BOLSHOI GOES HOME

MONTREAL (CP)—The 115-member of the Bolshoi Ballet company stranded in North America for a week by the airlines strike in the United States left here for Moscow Sunday aboard two Ilyushin-18 turboprop aircraft of the Soviet airline Aeroflot, sent specially to pick them up.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec Monday placed 138 provincial hospitals under trusteeship and named Yves Pratte as administrator over the institutions.

The action was the latest development in the strike by the 9,000 non-medical employees who began walking off their jobs July 15 over a wage dispute.

Mr. Johnson said Mr. Pratte "will exercise the powers of the administrative councils of each of these hospitals relative to negotiation and to the signing of collective labor contracts.

"The administrator will exercise his powers during the inquiry set up today on the organization of personnel relations in the hospitals involved.

"Rene Lippe, Montreal district judge, was named by the cabinet to hold this inquiry as allowed by Article 16 of the Hospital Act."

Mr. Pratte, who has been named a government mediator in the conflict between the employees of 118 hospitals and the Quebec Hospital Association, will remain hospital administrator until the termination of Judge Lippe's 60-day inquiry mandate or until the strike is settled.

Should the strike be settled immediately, the inquiry could be cancelled, Mr. Johnson said.

Although a total of 119 hospitals are on strike, the trusteeship affects 138 hospitals across the province.

CALLS SPECIAL SESSION

The premier also announced that an order - in - council calling a special session of the legislature for next Thursday has been passed during the cabinet meeting.

At this session of the legislature, Mr. Johnson said he will present certain labor legislation which could facilitate settlement of the strike of the non-medical employees of the National Federation of Services which is affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Mr. Johnson said he wanted to "counter the strike as rapidly as possible so as to safeguard the rights of the ill, which are the rights of the rights of the workers, the unions or the hospitals."

Asked if the trusteeship could be permanent, Mr. Johnson replied:

"In theory it could, but that is not the spirit of the law."

The settlement of the hospital conflict has "suffered a considerable delay and the problem must be attacked," Mr. Johnson said.

New Tax Sharing Assailed

BY DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier John Robarts says talks here among most of Canada's premiers are "discussions, nothing more" but storm warnings emerging after Monday's sessions indicate tough dealing with Ottawa over equalization payments to the provinces.

The premiers were told by Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan that his province will lose $35,000,000 in equalization grants under federal proposals he said he has been but would not divulge by reporters.

"Our government will never agree to such an arrangement," Mr. Thatcher said.

"Equalization of tax grants will get considerable national attention before it's through," echoed Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba in an interview.

Mr. Robarts said there still be a further exchange of ideas on the federal proposals before any final agreement is reached.

He said Quebec would receive an additional $90,000,000

Plan to Give LBJ Power To Halt Airlines Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today goes to work on legislation that would give President Johnson the power to halt the countrywide airlines strike for up to six months.

"They passed the buck to the president of the United States," said Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) after the Senate's labor committee voted new legislation Monday night, putting the strike deadlock back in the president's lap.

The administration prefers a bill which would have Congress hand halt the walkout, now in its 20th day. Organized labor strongly opposes any back-to-work order—whether it originates on Capital Hill or at the White House.

Morse said he will ask the Senate instead to have Congress write a strike-ending order.

The strike has grounded Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United Airlines.

A settlement worth an estimated $79,000,000 during a three-year period was reached at White House negotiations Friday night, only to be turned down by the 35,000 striking members of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) in balloting Sunday.

WANT IT NOW

The union membership wants the entire wage and fringe benefits package, estimated at 72 cents an hour, paid immediately in stages. Of this amount, wages total 52 cents. The settlement reached at the White House gave machinists 18 cents an hour the first year. Current wages run up to $3.52 an hour.

The measure that reached the Senate today would give Johnson an alternative which by all indications he did not want.

Under its terms, Congress would find that the strike has caused a transportation crisis warranting emergency action. But it would leave it to Johnson to take that action, and to set the strike-stopping period.

This amended measure supplanted one which would have empowered Johnson to halt the strike, for as many as three 60-day periods.

Under the amended terms, Johnson could end it for any period he chose, and could renew the order, but the machinists could be forced back to work for no longer than 180 days.

Some Gunned Two Blocks Away From Texas Tower

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Charles Joseph Whitman killed his wife and mother to spare them embarrassment, he wrote, at what he was about to do — shoot everybody he could from the 307-foot University of Texas tower. He killed 13 more persons, counting an unborn baby, before police shot him to death.

In addition to the 16 dead, 31 persons were wounded.

Whitman, 25, an architectural engineering student at the university, held officers at bay for more than 90 minutes Monday as he poured rapid, accurate fire from the observation section of the tower, tallest building in the Texas capital.

The terror ended when two policemen and a university employee crept to a platform above the sniper's position and gunned him down at close range.

A Texas landmark, the 28-story tower is a slender, four-sided shaft rising 307 feet above the centre of the campus. Its observation section, about the 20th floor, commands a view of the entire city and the rolling hill beyond.

Whitman, who qualified as a sharpshooter in the U.S. Marine Corps, dropped some of his victims two blocks away.

Others fell on the broad campus mall surrounding the tower and lay untended in the 96-degree heat as Whitman kept gunners at bay with his rifle and shotgun volleys which let the tower pitted and marked. The gun battle lasted from 11:48 a.m. CST until 1:20 p.m.

Whitman posed as a repair man when he wheeled a cart, carrying a footlocker, to his sniper's perch.

The footlocker contained: Two rifles, one equipped with a telescopic sight; a sawed-off shotgun which police said he had purchased that morning; a high-powered revolver; a semi-automatic pistol; a hunting knife; a supply of food and water; a plastic container of gasoline, and a hundreds of rounds of ammunition.

When the slaughter ended police broke into the Whitman home through a window and discovered Whitman's 25-year-old wife stabbed to death.

Then they went to his mother's apartment and found

Was Working Intently To Engineering Degree

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A tall, pleasant - faced, easy - going guy, who liked to joke and kid with his automobile passengers on the way to university of Texas classes. . . .

"Seemed more mature than most people his age."

"A former scoutmaster and marine, working intently toward an engineering degree. . . ."

This was the picture that emerged Monday night of Charles Joseph Whitman, 24, who killed his wife and mother, then shot 13 people to death from the 28-storey University of Texas tower.

Whitman had more than 400 rounds of ammunition left, as well as a store of food and water, when a police officer worked his way to the observation deck and shot the sniper. He left notes near the bodies of his wife and mother, which police said told of depression, depressed violences and severe headaches. The notes, an officer said, asserted he wanted to spare them the embarrassment of what he was about to do.

Judy Newstay, a pretty sophomore, said she rode to Uh university with the Whitmans from their South Austin neighborhood. She added: "They were just as sweet as can be. They were two of the nicest

Walkout To Halt Projects

HAUTERIVE, Que. (CP) — Construction of five sites at the massive Manicouagan and Outardes hydro-electric projects in northern Quebec was expected to halt today as 4,500 workers go on strike.

Jacques Tardif, an official of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said late Monday the men would go on strike at the Manicouagan 1, 2, and 3 sites and the Outardes 3 and 4 sites.

The projects are located on the Manicouagan and Outardes rivers, about 200 miles north east of Quebec City.

The workers are members of the National Union of Hauterive (Highwater) Construction Workers, an affiliate of the Quebec - based CNTU. Mr. Tardif has been named "strike director."

He said negotiations, which have been going on for some weeks with Hydro - Quebec, were broken off earlier Monday with 33 clauses of a proposed new working agreement still unsettled.

There were two strikes on the projects earlier this year.

The union is demanding a five-day, 35-hour week instead of the six-day, 40-hour week provided for under the last contract. The men want the time decrease with no loss of pay and an additional 15-cent-an-hour wage hike increase in a one-year contract.

WANT CLAUSES ELIMINATED

The union is also asking for abolition of worker classification. The men are presently classified according to their skills.

Mr. Tardif said the union will also press to have those conditions included in all future contracts for employees working on any Hydro-Quebec projects.

U.S. Anti-Poverty Programs Termed Unjust, Mismanaged

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—Observers of United States anti-poverty programs Monday afternoon termed them unjust and mismanaged.

William Glah, editor of the Mountain Eagle in Whitesburg, Ky., told the 35th annual Couchiching Conference: "There is more injustice in the war on poverty as it is being waged in the United States than there is justice."

He accused the U.S. federal government of not gearing its programs to the real needs of the chronically poor and said welfare administrators should be more efficiently controlled by the government.

Warner Troyer, a CBC producer who produced and directed a film on the U.S. anti-poverty program at work in the Appalachia region of which Mr. Great Society welfare programs have had inadequate federal leadership or clear conceptual planning.

He said the government's lack of control over local programs has made community groups "the biggest pork barrel you can ever imagine" for local politicians.

Minnesota Mayor Arthur Naftalin said it was dangerous to generalize about the whole anti - poverty program on the basis of Appalachia and that it was wrong to say federal programs were being controlled or thwarted by local politicians.

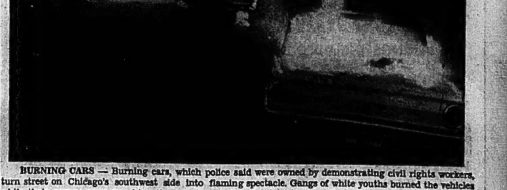
The week - long conference continues at this YMCA camp eight miles north of Orillia.

A senior federal civil servant said Monday that Canada's current housing deficiency results from blockage at the municipal level by politicians and real estate interests.

R. A. J. Phillips, director of the special planning secretariat of the Privy Council, said the lack of housing cannot be blamed on the inadequacy of federal or provincial laws.

Mr. Phillips said Canadians need 300,000 houses and that at the present rate of building it will take 50 years to build them.

Eric Kierans, Quebec's former health minister, Sunday said the federal government's medical care legislation could be delayed because the Quebec Union Nationale administration is hesitating about the province's participation.



He said the plan could be delayed "two, three, even four years" from its July 1, 1967 starting date.

He charged that the Union Nationale's failure to take a firm stand on the issue was allowing other provinces, notably Ontario, to hesitate about entering the plan.

"The country is so starved for real aggressive leadership that if Quebec wished to take a firm stand on federal medical care it could impose its will on Ot-

Two Portable Classrooms Being Built at Hillcrest

Up to a possible 70 pupils attending Hillcrest Public School will be studying in portable classrooms when the Fall and winter term gets underway early in September.

Two cottage - roofed temporary classrooms are now under construction on the Hillcrest school grounds and local school officials say they will be ready for use in time for school re-opening.

The portable classrooms, each accommodating 30 to 35 pupils, are being built by Rollins Construction. Their cost $7,325 each, and they will be electrically heated.

The reason for the portable classrooms at Hillcrest is that, although there is currently a need for more school accommodation, board officials are not satisfied that the need for additional space will be permanent.

Board officials feel the population of the Hillcrest area is in a state of growth. It still has not being definite whether the future will see it as a residential or industrial area.

This being the case, the board couldn't see spending $80,000 to $70,000 for the erection of new permanent accomodation until it was known what was required.

The portable building now under construction could be converted to other area of the city where they may be needed.

ments, the 33 clauses not settled also deal with health insurance, salary insurance and the accommodation at the site.

A statement issued by Hydro-Quebec early today said Hydro-Quebec is ready to absorb an additional cost of $20,000,000 over a three - year period but the CNTU demands amount to an additional $40,000,000.

The company said under its offer, a truck driver now earning $3.39 an hour or $143.46 for a 40-hour week would earn $3.07 an hour in June, 1968, for a weekly salary of $153.50 for a 30-hour week.

Spokesman of the union proposal, the same truck driver would earn $174.00 for a 30-hour week. "His demands ignore the economic and decree governing construction, will earn $134.80 on the same basis as in 1966," the statement said.

"The Quebec Hydro - Electric Commission must maintain the administration of a public service cannot comply with the demands which would be considered unrealistic in the context of Quebec's economy."

taws and the other provinces."

Bayard Rustin, director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute of New York, said Saturday the ferment in Quebec may prove to be the most significant event in Canadian history.

Mr. Rustin, a 56-year-old Negro, compared the Negro revolution in the United States to the French-Canadian quiet revolution.

Another speaker at the weekend conference, Stokely Carmichael, assistant director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, said the U.S. must admit a failure of colossal proportions in its war on poverty.

Despite a record expenditure of $100,000,000,000 during the last 30 years, he said evidence of the failure was the 9,000,000 U.S. families who live on an average income of $1,800 annually.

In a panel discussion, Mr. Stokelbeer said he was optimistic the U.S. could eradicate poverty within 10 years by philosophy of a redistribution of the country's gross national product to anti-poverty programs.

Prof. George Grant of Mc Master University in Hamilton, brother speaker of the panel, said he doubted whether U.S. Grea Society welfare programs would be able to make the individual mean something and live decently in a society that worships the religion of technology.

He described the U.S. society as ruthless, violent and impersonal and said the inevitable result of the technological revolution all over the world would be a "concrete garrison, half military, half market place."

Parents, Son Critically Injured in Collision

A Belleville couple and their 22-year-old son are in Quinte Memorial Hospital at Trenton, following a two-car collision on Highway 62, north of Brechin on the east shore of Lake Simcoe. Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. Woodley of 29 Elmer Street and Garry, of Salisbury, were seriously injured in the accident. They were motoring to Belleville from Sudbury, when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Woodley is reported to have sustained a fractured skull, crushed ribs and a fractured right ankle; Mr. Woodley lost his right eye, and suffered a fractured nose, left ankle and left elbow as well as rib injuries while Garry's injuries include a fractured jaw, two fractured vertebrae, and fractured right leg.

The 1964 model Vallant vehicle and the 1966 model Woodley car were completely demolished in the crash. Total property damage was estimated at $4,500.

her stabbed in the chest and shot in the head. His mother was the estranged wife of C. A. Whitman of Lake Worth, Fla.

Detectives Lloyd Merik Wells said Whitman had left notes at both residences revealing something of what he planned to do and why.

HATED HIS FATHER

Police did not reveal their contents but newspaper reports the notes said Whitman "hated his father with a mortal passion," and that his mother "gave the best 25 years of her life to that man."

The notes said Whitman couldn't understand "the pressures bearing down" and had "decided to fight it out alone."

Police said the notes showed Whitman "was very definitely mentally disturbed." They also disclosed that he had talked for several hours with a psychiatrist.

The note found in his mother's apartment, police reported, said he killed her to "relieve her of her suffering, that he didn't want her embarrassed by all of this mess."

As postscripts to the notes, police said, Whitman had written:

"12:30 a.m.—Mother already dead.

"5 o'clock—Wife and mother both dead."

Shortly after 9:30 a.m., Whitman left a downtown store, bought a shotgun on credit, took it home and sawed off the stock and barrel.

At 11 a.m., officers said, Whitman carried his footlocker to the tower's elevator and rode to the 27th floor, as high as the elevator can go. Then he climbed a flight of three wheeled cart up the four short flights of stairs to the foyer of the observation section.

KILLS TWO CHILDREN

There he killed four persons and wounded scores others from the tower, and a younger woman and her two children who were sightseeing.

When the shooting began a number of persons hurried outside the campus buildings to see what it was about. The sniper's deadly fire felled some of them.

Witnesses said the sniper's bursts were at times spaced only half a minute apart and other times rattling off in staccato fashion. The sniper dashed from place to place on the observatory and his fire came from all directions.

One of the wounded was Associated Press reporter Robert Heard, shot through the shoulder as he dived for cover behind open ground to a better vantage point.

For more than an hour Norma Barger of Dallas sat at a library window where she had been working. She could see in nearby buildings persons in the cement near the building.

The victims were taken to Brackenridge Hospital.

SCARES PLANE AWAY

At one point, Whitman's accurate fire drove away a light plane carrying a police sharpshooter who wanted to pick off the sniper from the air.

Then Officer Ramon Martinez, 26, a five - year police veteran, arrived on the scene from his home, where he had been relaxing off duty.

Alternately crawling and running, he reached the main entrance to the tower, followed by Officer George McCoy, 26. They gave a rifle to Allen Crum, a university employee.

The three men made their way to the observation section, where they separated. As Martinez rounded a corner he saw the sniper and fired.

The sniper wheeled and snapped back one shot. Martinez emptied his pistol at the sniper as Officer McCoy ran onto the platform firing his shotgun. One of Martinez' bullets hit the sniper in the neck. A buckshot pellet from McCoy's shotgun hit the sniper between the eyes. The battle was over.

Whitman served six years in the marine corps, from July 6, 1959, to July 18, 1965. He earned the Good Conduct Medal, but in 1963 a court martial convicted him of violating orders and he was reduced in rank from corporal to private and given 30 days restriction.

people I had met. I never heard a crash word spoken when I was present. Charles was always kidding and joking."

Several of the Whitman's friends came to their brick duplex before Mrs. Whitman's body was removed. They refused to talk to reporters.

The next door neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitaker, also spoke highly of the Whitmans.

"They seemed real nice," said Mrs. Whitaker. "We don't have anything to say about those people because they were real nice to us. We never had any racket of any kind around there."

ENLISTED AT 18

University records show he was born June 24, 1941, in Lake Worth, Fla. Whitman enlisted in the marines when he was 18. His own statement in an application for university employment said he was discharged Dec. 6, 1964, but during some of the intervening years he was enrolled at the university.

The same employment application form lists his height at six feet, his weight at 180 pounds. He said in the application he attended Sacred Heart grade school and junior high school, Lake Worth, Fla., and St. Ann's High School, West Palm Beach, Fla.

He met his blonde wife, the former Kathy Leisner, daughter of a Needville, Tex., rice farmer and real estate man, Raymond Leisner, while they were students. They were married Aug. 17, 1963, in the rectory of St. Michael's Church, Needville.

WIFE WAS WORKING

Mrs. Whitman was helping her husband through school, working as a junior high school biology teacher and during summer jobs at the telephone company.

Whitman also was working, besides carrying a heavy summer school load.

Dr. Clyde E. Lee, research engineer at the university's bureau of engineering research, said he hired Whitman as an assistant because he needed money.

"He was carrying a rather heavy course load, but said the courses were important to him and he wanted to get them out of the way," Lee said.

"He was an unusually good worker, was prompt, and asked real mature questions concerning the objective of the project —not just his job.

"The boys working with him Friday said he was in good spirits. There were no signs he was depressed."

TOLD OF HEADACHES

But notes left near the bodies of his wife and mother told of depression, repressed violence and severe headaches, police said.

Whitman had a spotty scholastic record, mostly C's, with an occasional D and one Fin his first two years at the university. But he made all As and Bs on a heavy load of math and engineering courses in the 1965-66 fall semester and two As, Bs and two Cs in the spring semester.

Whitman had no police record and no university record of disciplinary action.

Defence department records show a marine special court martial sentenced him to 30 days restriction and hard labor, but no confinement, and reduced his rank to private for violation of lawful order.

Whitman's university job application form said the court martial exercised him of "loaning money for profit and gambling."

Police said Whitman's notes said he had been to a psychiatrist for treatment of depression.

Crippled Boat Taken to Dock By Firemen

Alerted by the Ontario Provincial Police Detachment here, Belleville Fire Department came to the aid of a Massachusetts couple, who were in difficulty on the Bay of Quinte, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cuthbertson experienced problems with the motor on their boat, the "Misfit Mist", near the bay bridge. A Department of Transport employee at the bridge noticed the plight of the visitors from the United States and he notified the O.P.P.

Belleville firemen arrived at the bay about 11:45 a.m. and succeeded in bringing the crippled boat to the Governors Dock. The fire department's small boat was used to tow the larger craft to the dock.

Finds Thirteen Forged Cheques Unlucky Total

Thirteen proved to be an unlucky number for Lawrence Wilfred McNeil of 36 Bleecker Ave. in court this morning. That's how many cheques he forged before he was caught.

Police charged that McNeil forged 13 cheques during September and October of 1965 in the name of Mrs. Emilie Rashotte, totalling $423.35.

Police said that accountants at Victoria and Grey Trust before discovering the forged cheques in such a short time on the Rashotte account, police called October 8, 1965 by Don Thomas' Cigar Store when McNeil wrote a cheque there supposedly signed by Mrs. Rashotte and made payable to himself.

McNeil pleaded guilty to all 13 charges and was given a two-year suspended sentence. He also had to sign a bond promising to be of good behavior and obey the law and he has to make restitution and pay costs on all charges within six weeks.

date, Mr. Johnson said the administrator will be "perfectly free to negotiate within the monetary framework set up by the government."

The government's latest and "final offer for a new contract is for a total salary increase of some $85,000,000 over a 30-month contract."

The union has shown itself willing to negotiate within this monetary framework but union spokesmen say that two mechanical clauses have been a stumbling block.

Mr. Pratte's mandate as hospital administrator also allows him to negotiate on these claims which involve promotion and seniority rights.

Questioned on the legality of government imposition of truce-ship, Mr. Johnson said Quebec's Hospital Act includes terms that "are general enough to permit this," and they do not deal with specific cases.

Quebec has this control over the privately - owned hospitals because of the Hospital Insurance Act, passed in 1961, which made it necessary for the government to have some say in how its money is spent.

Mr. Johnson has said that government hospital insurance payments cover almost 100 per cent of the operating expenses. Of this amount, some 30 per cent is provided by Ottawa under a federal-provincial sharing agreement.

The hospital workers have been seeking their first universal contract with the hospitals. Previously, they negotiated individual contracts with each hospital.

The government offer of 18¢ week did not deal with the question of promotion or union rights. It offered the workers a 30-month contract with an increase of 18¢ a week in the first year and 16 in the second year.

Also involved in the dispute are 2,294 nurses, affiliated with the CNTU, who are seeking a $20 increase on their salaries of $80 a week.

Fine Youths For Careless Driving

Two area youths were found guilty in court today of careless driving and given fines by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Robert John Young of Wellington was fined $75 and costs after he failed to appear in court on time. He was found guilty on the evidence and fined $100 and costs.

Douglas John Crozier of Ameliasburg was fined $25 and costs for careless driving after he had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

An O.P.P. officer testified he was in his cruiser driving west along Dundas St. July 30 at 1.45 a.m. when he noticed a car coming alongside of him at a high rate of speed. The car, driven by Crozier, squealed, slowed down, swerved and came within a foot of the police car.

Stole Parcels To Pay Bills

A Trenton youth pleaded guilty to a number of theft charges in court this morning and was remanded two weeks for sentencing, pending presentence report.

Jack Cecil Yarrow, 22, of Trenton, pleaded guilty to stealing merchandise from Simpson - Sears Order Office in Trenton totalling $1,102.31. The thefts occurred from January 8 to June 8 of 1966.

Police said that whenever Yarrow was stealing merchandise from a bin in which parcels, which had been returned to the store for refunds, were placed for shipment back to Toronto.

They include bins where Yarrow, who is married, received a bill of some kind, he would pay some merchandise in order to raise money to pay the bill.

Yarrow was arrested June 8 at his home and police found eight articles valued at $96.30 in his home at the time.

John D. Hayes, Native Of City, Dies in Toronto

John D. Hayes, 83, Honorary Chairman of the Board and a founder of Laura Secord Candy Shops, and a native of this city, died Sunday at St. Michael's Hospital after a brief illness.

He was honorary President of the Kiwanis Club of Toronto from 1923, founding Co-Chairman of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, and was named "Candy Man of the Year" in 1955 by American Confectioners. Mr. Hayes was prominent in the Roman Catholic Church and attended Holy Rosary Church in Toronto.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, a Knight of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem one of the oldest orders of chivalry, a Knight, Grand Cross of Magistral Grace of the Sovereign and Military Order of Malta (oldest order of knighthood in Christendom, founded in 1113).

To the thousands of boys of the Gerrard Kiwanis Club, Jack Hayes was "The Pied Piper" or "The Candy Man". Every year he sponsored a picnic for 200 boys from Gerrard Street and annually offered a $1,000 award to the boy who reached a top civic post. In every boy who attended the Jack Hayes Picnic he gave a Canadian dollar, entered in a bank book, to encourage the saving habit.

BORN IN CITY

He was born in Belleville, Ontario, in 1883, son of Patrick Hayes who came to Canada from England and married Jennie Gazey, of Belleville. After attending Separate Schools in Belleville, he graduated from the Belleville High School and Business College. He left home to enter the wholesale lumber business, and when his brother-in-law, Thomas J. Sanctor (Laura Secord Candy Shops, John Hayes) asked him to help candy business.

When Senator O'Connor died in 1933, Mr. Hayes was appointed as President of Laura Secord Candy Shops. He was already President of the Fany Farmer Candy Shops in the United States. During the years Mr. Hayes commuted between Toronto and Rochester as head of both companies. He later retired as President of the Fanny Farmer Company and in 1937 as President of Laura Secord Board. In 1960 he retired as President of the Laura Secord Company and was made Honorary Chairman of the Board. Today Robert J. McGillis is Chairman of the Laura Secord Board, and Leonard D. Hayes, President.

NEAR EIGHTY-ONE FOR YEARS

Physically, John D. Hayes was a big man with strong features, from gray hair and a kindly friendly voice. For more than a 30 years he was practically without eyesight, and yet lived a full life of business and home life. His correspondence was read to him by his secretary, and Mrs. Hayes read newspapers and books to him. He was an avid radio listener. He was quick at recognizing the voices of employees and friends in the office or on the telephone.

His home was an apartment on Walmer Road in Toronto. Swimming and bridge were his main hobbies, music another favorite. When he was young he did considerable profession al singing and was advised by the late John McCormack to go abroad for study, a plan that had to be abandoned when he had trouble with his eyes.

Mr. Hayes was a member of the Granite Club and the Toronto Club, and a Director of the Eastern and Chartered Trust Company.

Surviving are his wife, the former Cecilia McKenna, and two daughters, Mrs. Frank McGillis of Toronto, Cecil Hayes, and four McConville grandchildren, all of Rochester, New York and his brother, Miss Nora Hayes of Belleville.

Youth Loses Right to Drive For 30 Days

A passion for noise cost a Belleville youth $45 and costs plus a 30-day suspension of his driver's license in court today.

Stirling Edward Sager, 19, of 15 Westmount Drive, pleaded guilty to Magistrate T. Y. Wills today to three charges of making unnecessary noise.

Police said that at 10:35 p.m. July 15, a cruiser stopped for the lights at Pinnacle and Bridge. The officer said Sager's car came up behind him and was making excessive noise. He continued to accelerate, making noise, as he followed the police car along Pinnacle. The officer said he stopped Sager and noticed the tail pipe on his car had been disconnected. "I told him to take the car home and he said he would," the officer said.

Another officer testified that at 11:10 p.m. the same night, he stopped Sager on Victoria Ave. near the Dominion Store because he was making excessive noise. "I told him to go home and he said he would not, he was going to the drive-in.

"I told him he'd be given a summons and he said we'd have a hard time serving it because he was going to the States."

Still another officer testified that at 11:30 that night, he stopped Sager right in front of the police station on Campbell St. "I told him he'd be charged and he said he didn't care, he'd rather go to jail than pay the fine anyway."

Magistrate Wills said, "If he is going to drive, he is going to drive within the law or else." He warned Sager that a jail term would probably be imposed if he drove within the 30 days.

The Canadian Enigma

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, while expounding the attractions of Canada (with the Centennial, in particular, in mind) to Australians and New Zealanders has also taken the opportunity to enlighten fellow Commonwealthers "down under" on the enigma of being a Canadian.

"Who are we and where are we going"? For long this has been the standing national joke about the people of this country. With 1967 coming up we may pride ourselves in the knowledge that our standard of living is one of the highest in the world, and that far from being uncertain of our future the prospects ahead could scarcely be brighter.

Nevertheless, there is still that element of caution and uncertainty in the Canadian national fabric which marks the people of this country for what they are. Yet there is plenty of action and "know-how" to build Canada to have reached such an advanced state of development.

We must, of course, acknowledge the energy and resourcefulness of the people of the United States in the industrial evolution of this country. And, Britain has, likewise, contributed not only people, but much in the industrial and technical spheres, and ideas and equipment that have been adopted here.

Miss LaMarsh, however, thinks we should exercise a greater degree of independence. She told a Canberra audience Canadians should return to the "spirit of the prospectors," and grow as a nation apart from the United States.

Canadians are not "risk-takers," she said. They are lacking in the pioneer spirit, tend to save their money rather than risking it in anything that is "too ephemeral."

Indeed it is this caution, carried too far, that is our greatest national failing — an acceptance of conditions we may dislike but are not inclined to dispute publicly.

As Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham put it recently: "Ontario people don't holler; they complain in private, but they won't get up and do it in public. Schools and churches and families have conditions imposed on them into tacitly accepting all sorts of crazy laws and regulations — muttering about them behind closed doors but never making it into open battle. What would the neighbors think?"

This viewpoint of the Canadian character is not new, but it is good to see signs of a new spirit abroad in the land. Expo 67 and the whole Centennial idea is bound to give Canada and Canadians a lot more to think about. The preparations for 1967 and their implementation will come a new pride among Canadians, and a fresh recognition of it overseas as a great and still developing nation.

Cruisers to Canoes

The Canadian Henley Regatta at St. Catharines is over for another year. So, too, is the Royal Henley Regatta in England.

Both Henleys and their counterparts in other countries are a test not only of brawn and stamina but also of team co-ordination. Competitive rowing places as stern a test on personal endurance as any sport. The exhausted appearance of the oarsmen after an event like the Oxford and Cambridge boat race testifies to this.

But what of the less rigorous brands of seamanship which can provide such pleasant and relaxing moments for vacationers. There is yachting (which, in reality can also be hard work) for the sail enthusiasts, and power boats and cruisers for those who enjoy speed on the one hand and comfort on the other.

There is one brand of boating, however, which excels other than any perhaps in the picture conjured up by the saying, "messing about in boats." And that is punting, as the university students do on the waterways of Cambridge in England, and in the summer of the celebrated threesome in Jerome K. Jerome's classic, Three Men in a Boat (to say nothing of the dog). The boating vacation of the three friends, and the mishaps that befell them, are in the best traditions of carefree Victorian days, far removed from the awesome pressures o.: our own day.

Here in Canada there were days like that too. In an earlier time Quinte waters were the scene of family picnics in quiet inlets reached by rowboat or canoe. It was the same all over the country.

Many Quinte residents will recall the moonlight excursions from Belleville to Massassauga. In our possession too is a booklet published in Port Arthur in 1909. It contains pictures of bearded Lakehead gentlemen and their families taking their leisure in silver lunch on the tip of Sibley Peninsula (The Sleeping Giant).

In those days the "Kaministiquia" plied between the mainland and Silver Islet, carrying vacationers. And on weekends the harbor area at the islet was filled with canoeists. Families paddled around in easy, relaxed fashion, meeting their friends who were similarly engaged, and pulling in eventually for refreshments before the journey home.

Those were the days. . . !

Dearth of summer cottages in the middle section of the county has brought fancy prices to owners, if their places are available. Role of Home Education

Brantford Expositor

During his school life a pupil is under his teacher's direction and influence only about one-eighth of his time. His home environment, where he spends far more hours than in school, is thus at least as decisive a factor as his teacher in his development and in the fostering of whatever interest he may show in the things of the mind. A child raised in a home where parental conversation never rises above superficial or body-line comment on day-to-day matters, or when there is neither a shelf of good books nor anyone who will encourage him to use the local library, and where all he hears that passes for music comes from Tin Pan Alley, is unlikely to acquire the foundations of a cultivated mind, however good his teachers are.

It is nothing new that most people are indifferent to the finer things of life, and mediocre as leisure increases. About a century ago, the sociologist Gobineau estimated that in France, then the most culturally advanced nation in Europe, hardly more than 100,000 persons out of 30 million devoted any time to the arts. That, of course, was before compulsory free primary education with its emphasis until recently heavily on the utilitarian.

Even today when our education bill is in the multi-billions, 60,000 people will yell their heads off at a football game, many having travelled at great expense across a continent to do so, while highly accomplished musicians, actors and dancers perform to audiences 30 to 50 times smaller. But that is the world as it is and as it will probably continue to be.

Sarcoidosis Assumes Many Diffrent Forms

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is sarcoid of the lung? — S. C.

Dear Doctor: Is there some medication for sarcoid o s i s? Just what is the disease? —A.G.

Sarcoidosis isn't the most prevalent of diseases; still, it affects many thousands, and because not a great deal is written about it (except in technical literature) a patient is naturally confused and bewildered when he learns he has it.

Sarcoidosis is a distinct entity, a disease separate from others, yet it has such a knack of mimicking other ailments that it can be very confusing until the diagnosis is confirmed.

It can attack the lung, causing lesions which so much resemble tuberculosis that it has been called "pseudo-T.B." It can cause skin lesions which resemble cancer, which it is not. Or it can look like a fungus infection. Again, it isn't, and it won't respond to antifungus therapy.

It can, in fact, attack almost any part of the body, causing nodes or lumpy lesions. In about two-thirds of the cases, the lymph glands will be involved, the skin in one-third, the eye, liver or spleen in about one-fifth. (It can, you understand, attack in more than one part of the body at the same time.) It affects men more often than women; Negroes are somewhat more subject to sarcoid of the skin.

There you have a rough idea of what sarcoid is like — lesions, lumps, swellings. With skin lesions present, you can see them, and the ailment is readily detected (although it may take a biopsy to confirm exactly what it is). Frequently, there are no particular symptoms. Often it is discovered only by accident, when the chest is being X-rayed or the eyes are being examined.

Medical men have reason to suspect that sarcoidosis may in reality be more prevalent than we realize.

To cap it all, we don't know what causes sarcoidosis. There is a suspicion that it may be from an organism similar to the tuberculosis bacillus, but this has not been proved and may not be true anyway. Sarcoid is not contagious or infectious, which is good to know, but raises a doubt as to whether the cause is a germ of some kind, or whether it is an organism unlike the ones we are familiar with.

Tomorrow we'll discuss the outlook for patients with the disease, and something about diagnosis and treatment.

Dear D. Molner: I have been chewing and swallowing gum for years. Is it harmful? Where does it go? I am 22 and swallow as many as 20 pieces a day. — J. F.

Your innards dispose of it in the same way they dispose of anything else you eat, and I'm sure swallowing an occasional piece does you harm you. Twenty sticks a day, though, is a rather large glob of indigestible stuff to impose on your intestinal tract. Why not save the wrappers, scrap the used gum and throw it away?

Since most gum is sugar-sweetened, constant chewing means that your teeth are perpetually bathed in a sugary solution, and this may result in more cavities.

Mrs. H. A. B.: I can't tell from your description whether the white patches in your mouth are leukoplakia, but if they are, the safe thing is to have them checked. They do tend to be a forerunner of cancer, so naturally it is better to get rid of them before that happens.

Strictly Personal

On Family Relationships

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Although I've used the word "apparel" hundreds of times, I had to go to the dictionary to look it up the other day. Our English spelling system is undoubtedly the most abominable of any language in the world.

Yet all efforts at spelling reform have failed. Her e d Shaw's will, in which he left a considerable sum for revising the English alphabet, was declared invalid by a British court even though it is our spelling that provides the greatest single obstacle toward English becoming a truly universal language.

Years ago, I recall, a group named the Simplified Spelling Society conducted an imaginative campaign on the subject. The campaign died without going anywhere, and, as far as I know, no one cares precisely. But while in existence it did put out a number of amusing limericks pointing up the absurdity of our present spelling. Among the best ones were these:

August 2, 1966 . . .

The English navigator and explorer Henry Hudson entered the bay that was to be named after him 356 years ago today—in 1610—during his fourth and last voyage in search of a northwest route to China. From August to September he explored the eastern shore of the bay in his 55-ton ship Discovery, and then wintered in the extreme south of James Bay. Supplies were short; the crew mutinied; and on June 22, 1611, Hudson, his son and several men were cut adrift in an open boat. Nothing is known of their fate. Hudson's discoveries hastened the development of the rich fisheries of Spitsbergen and the vast fur industry of the Hudson Bay territory.

1862—Victoria, B.C., was incorporated.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the French advanced on the Somme, capturing field - works between Hem Wood and Monacu Farm; British fleet raids Adriatic Mouleht on the coast of Asia Minor; the Allies attacked to start the battle of Doiran, Salonika.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—over 200 RAF planes raided Berlin in the largest air attack of the war to date; Germans launched a drive into the Ukraine from a point 155 miles south of Kiev; Swedish papers said German police had taken over all power in Norway.

Growing Problem of Litter

Orillia Packet and Times

With each passing year, it becomes ever clearer that some move will have to be taken to curb casual litter, which has grown in a generation from a mere nuisance to a full-scale problem. Once litter was a trifling seasonal occurrence peculiar to the summer months, and confined to a few beer bottles tossed into roadside ditches and occasional scraps of paper or peel in parks and other public places. Today, however, litter has grown with the enormous increase in urban population, the still greater increase in automobiles and highways made possible by an affluent society, and above all by a virtual revolution in packaging which now encloses almost every single item sold in a throw-away wrapper, into a menace which affects the purse, the comfort and the safety of every one of every level of our society.

Nowhere is it more serious than in the resort areas, where large numbers of people are living or travelling away from home and their normal domestic routines. People who consume large quantities of soft drinks or beer, purchased in some local store, and who do not intend to re-visit, are hardly likely to return the bottles for the refund amount. The deposit; much easier simply to toss the empties out of the car window as we have done. The resultant broken glass — and it amount to a surprisingly heavy quantity along city streets as well as on rural highways — is a dreadful menace to the tires of automobiles and to the feet of pedestrians, to say nothing of dogs and other pets. Glass can be broken bottles, in doubtedly constitutes the great est hazard to life and limb created by the litterbug.

The relative indestructibility of modern litter is not confined to glass. Metal beverage cans, candy foil, plastic drinking cups, all are virtually unaffected by the elements, and thus outlast in nuisance value the ubiquitous facial tissues, which perhaps the lower of modern motorized mankind. It is significant that scientists discussing the future geology of the Marianna trench, deepest part of the Pacific Ocean, found on a plateau seven thousand feet beneath the surface of the sea a beer bottle.

What can be done about this pig-like practice which is befouling both town and country alike? Controls over packaging materials is one possibility, but hardly feasible; tighter supervision and stiffer penalties for litterbugs would certainly seem more workable. But perhaps the best approach is indicated by one significant fact; the worst litterbugs, by a big margin, are children and adolescents, particularly the latter. Mostly this is because the teenager consumes more than an average amount of beverages in bottles and cans, candy and confections in wrappers, cigarets in boxes and foil, and tissue by the ton, but also by adolescents, likely to be heedless and untidy in his habits, making him undisputed victor in the litterbug race.

The relative indestructibility of modern litter is not confined to glass. Metal beverage cans, candy foil, plastic drinking cups, all are virtually unaffected by the elements, and thus outlast in nuisance value the ubiquitous facial tissues, which perhaps the lower of modern motorized mankind. It is significant that scientists discussing the future geology of the Marianna trench, deepest part of the Pacific Ocean, found on a plateau seven thousand feet beneath the surface of the sea a beer bottle.

What can be done about this pig-like practice which is befouling both town and country alike? Controls over packaging materials is one possibility, but hardly feasible; tighter supervision and stiffer penalties for litterbugs would certainly seem more workable. Canadians as "Beefeaters"

Oshawa Times

The shutdown of some of Canada's major meat packing houses by strikes turns attention to the meat - eating and buying habits of Canadians. We find that in 1965 we consumed 120 pounds of meat, we're quite a distance down the line.

Figures issued by the Meat Packers' Council of Canada show Canadians eat an average of 140 pounds of beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb per year. This puts us behind New Zealanders at 240 pounds; Australians at 219; Argentinians, 216; Uruguayans, 202; and Americans at 170. The British are right behind us at 130, the French follow with 132, the Danes, 130 and the Swiss, 125. Canadian per - capita meat consumption breaks down into 80 pounds of beef and veal, 31 of pork, and four of mutton and lamb. Only the Danes and Swiss eat less mutton and lamb than Canadians, at 30 meat-eating countries listed.

While it can be said that Canadians eat more and more for the privilege of eating meat, the figures show that one hour's work at the factory bench in 1964 ($2.03) would buy two pounds of sirloin beef compared with the 1.4 pounds one hour's pay would buy in 1950. (But $2.03 wouldn't buy two pounds of beef that $1.40 airlifts we're noticed too often around Ottawa.)

Meat Packers' Council points out that in 1964 the annual sales of more than $1 billion and is the fourth largest manufacturing industry in Canada.

Export Drive Loses Punch

Financial Times

Whatever you may think of the political future of Mr. Walter Gordon, in the short term as Minister of Trade and Commerce left a vivid memorial in the annals of all Canadian businessmen. Ever since he left, they have been asking "What ever happened to the export drive?"

His successors — Mr. Wallace McCutcheon, Mr. Mitchell Sharp and now Mr. Robert Winters — have faithfully echoed Mr. Gordon's theme. It is recalled even more solid support from the Economic Council of Canada. Continuing employment and Canadian living standards will depend, in the forseeable future, on the ability to export more — particularly more advanced manufacturing goods.

The goal, which Mr. Hees dramatized with the showmanship of an enthusiastic salesman, has never become the unexpectable of official dogmas. But where is the drive?

Much more than showmanship is now lacking. In 1961 Mr. Hies pushed onto the statute book Section 28A of the Export Credit Insurance Act, which empowers the government to grant loans, guarantees or loans export of capital goods. More than $400 million has already been authorized under this agreement for this purpose, and one of the good intentions announced by Mr. Gordon in his November last January was to add another $100 million.

Yet in the first half of the year only one loan (for less than $5 million) was made under 28A, and the machinery is so frustrated by the bureaucratic tangle surrounding any application that it may be the most given up trying. Equally frustrated is Parliament's purpose of spreading information to help to Canadian exporters battling international competition.

It may be necessary to trans- fer the administration of Section 28A to some agency less insurance - minded than the Export Credit Insurance Corporation. It may be possible to infuse a new sense of urgency into the present cumbrous machinery.

One way or another, Mr. Winters must restore some drive to our export effort; and he might start with the Ottawa bureaucracy.

Ireland Is Tense Again

Montreal Gazette

Dark and tragic are the emotions which the Rev. Ian Paisley is stirring in Northern Ireland. It does not matter that his official followers number only 12,000, or that the vast majority of Northern Irish Protestants are neither angry nor violent. In an area of such communal peace has long been balanced on a knife - edge, a few extremists are enough.

The Rev. Paisley leads a break - away Protestant church whose central purpose seems to combine politics and religion— which there is a political plot to sell out Protestantism and to unite all as tat of extremists, everywhere, and comes from the British Labor government, particularly the relationship between largely - Protestant Northern Ireland, and the largely - Catholic republic to the south.

Extremists like the Rev. Paisley cannot stop the violence but they can disrupt and delay it. By appealing to the religious hatreds that have so long and often brought violences to Ireland, they can hold back the governments of both North and South, and keep old wounds raw and inflamed.

Toronto Man Said Drowned In Trent River

FRANKFORD — Missing and presumed drowned in the Trent River at Glen Ross, 12 miles north of here, is David Albert Straus, 39, of Toronto. Dragging operations being conducted by the Belleville Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have so far failed to locate the body of the man. He has been missing since Saturday afternoon, when he went out on the river in a motor boat, alone.

Lorne Gardiner of Tweed, piloting a small aircraft in the vicinity of Glen Ross, Saturday afternoon, noticed a small boat circling in the Trent River. The boat was empty and its motor was running. Landing his aircraft in a nearby field, Mr. Gardiner alerted the O.P.P. and later directed officers to the boat.

Meanwhile, two Glen Ross cottagers, Ken Arbuckle of Kilcheener and Harley Richardson, caught up to the empty boat and brought the runaway craft to a halt by cutting its gas line.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and their five children, ranging in age from 18 months to 10 years, had been holidaying at a cottage at Glen Ross.

Driver Bruised As Car Upsets

FRANKFORD — A 32-year-old Madoc school teacher received minor bruises Saturday night when his car was totally wrecked after over-turning on Highway 33, one mile north of here. Ontario Provincial Police investigating the accident said Robert Colliver failed to negotiate a sharp turn just north of town. The car, out of control, first slithered along the right embankment of the road then veered to the left side, ending upside-down in a 12-foot ditch.

The car snapped off a telephone pole and several guard rails on the left side of the down grade curve. Colliver was alone.

600 Residents Sign Petition To Keep Chief

FRANKFORD — Some 600 residents have signed a petition to have Police Chief William Hockley reinstated on the force. Chief Hockley handed the village council his resignation on Monday, July 25 when he said: "The council wants a uniformed man to check doors and show special favors to their friends."

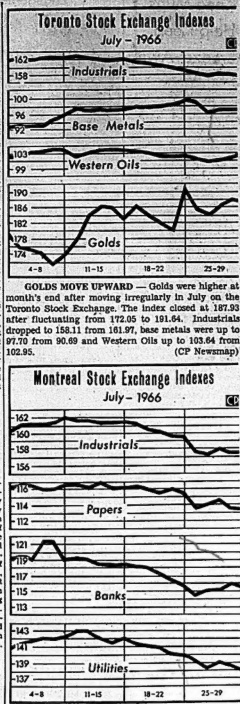
Chairman of the new Frankford Improvement Association, Hugh S. Powell, a retired accountant, said today that the members will meet and organize one hour before the council sits at 8 p.m. tonight.

Said Mr. Powell: "We have invited the council members to our meeting at the community hall. We want to give them a fair chance to explain to the people why they did not co-operate with the police chief."

Hope Fades For Boat With 31 Aboard

FALMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Ships and aircraft resumed an intensive search for a missing pleasure boat and its 31 passengers today as hopes of finding any of the party alive faded.

Other searchers scanned the shore for possible signs of wreckage from the 40-ft. ex-cruiser Dariwin, which was last seen Sunday night off the Cornish coast with excursionists.



A spokesman for the maritime control centre, which is organizing the search from Plymouth, said a white buoy was made in fine weather Monday "and I cannot believe we missed the Dariwin."

However, there still is some optimism at the Greatwood Hotel in the village of Mylor where the Dariwin picked up the vacationers.

BLOWN OUT TO SEA?

"She could well have been blown out to sea after an engine failure," said the hotel proprietor's son, Robert Rainbird.

Fears that the Dariwin sank during severe storms that lashed the coast during the weekend were heightened with the discovery of the boat's dinghy floating empty eight miles offshore Monday.

Way to Make Pre-cooked Turkey Roll

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal researchers have found a way to make a pre-cooked turkey roll that will hold its shape to allow slicing when heated to serve.

An essential part of the processing technique is to beat pieces of turkey meat gently to force some natural tissue fluid to the surface.

The pieces are compressed into containers for cooking. The resulting rolls are then frozen to complete the process.

To serve hot the roll is taken out of cold storage and heated. It will hold its shape up to 200 degrees to allow for slicing even though it's made up of several pieces of meat.

The tissue fluid beaten to the surface binds the meat pieces together during the first cooking process.

This is an improvement on current pre-cooked turkey rolls which were bound together in the cooking process with gelatin. The gelatin melted and the roll fell apart if it was heated before being served. Rolls of this type had to be sliced before reheating.

The new technique was developed by Dr. Moustafa Arei and Dr. Norman Tape, members of the agriculture department's food research institute.

Cooking time during processing is only 80 minutes compared to 4½ hours for the gelatin method.

Turkey rolls are made from meat from which bones, skins and other waste has been removed.

Health Nurse Enjoys Work In Northland

OTTAWA (CP) — Canoeing through icebergs isn't on the course at nursing schools. But public health nurse Margaret Bates once picked her way through James Bay icefloes in an outboard canoe followed by a flotilla of 14 Eskimos and a dead seal.

"That trip took 15 hours to travel 30 miles because the ice started drifting back in to shore. People were worried about me, but I was perfectly happy. We all kept stopping to have tea."

Miss Bates, 32, has been in the North for 10 years. She now is the superintendent of a 1,800,000 - square - mile area with 5,321 potential patients. Seven nursing stations with two nurses each are on her tour of duty.

The main difference about working in the Arctic is there isn't always a doctor at your elbow, says the slim brunette.

"After I delivered my first Eskimo baby I wanted to go right home that night. But really it isn't that bad. It's all over so fast. What worries you is thinking what is right or wrong."

Sewing up cuts is the worst job and "I put my foot down at pulling teeth." She's never had a language problem though her first patients in the James Bay area in 1956 were all Eskimos and Indians. They were babies, up to two years old.

DRESSES FOR CLIMATE

Since then she's worked at five other stations, the farthest north being Pond Main at the north end of Hudson Bay where she helped out during a measles epidemic in 1962.

Her working dress is pretty casual — moose - hide moccasins, ski pants and a hybrid parka made by three Eskimo women, her patients at different times.

"The first woman was from the Belcher Islands. They like to embroider, so she did the outside of the parka. A woman from Baffin Island added some appliques and another woman embroidered the inner parka made of duffle cloth."

The official health and welfare parka is navy blue with red braid and the RCMP, wear navy and gold. "They say you can pick them out. It's pretty hard to tell people apart when they're wearing a parka."

A native of New Lowell, Ont., Miss Bates has been south twice for advanced nursing courses and toured Europe for five months in 1962. But she says she's hooked on the frontier.

"There are so many new things to see and I've come to appreciate everything you do. It's like an adventure up there."

VEGETABLE IN BUTTER SAUCE

If you told one of my sisters she could not make a silk purse out of a sow's ear she would be liable to answer, "I am not so sure".

When the rest of us might be vacillating around wondering what we could rustle up to feed unexpected guests, she would be at the refrigerator door deciding what she could do with what she had on hand.

She did just that and produced a pleasant and pretty macedoine of vegetables that will come in handy for many of you.

Baked Back Bacon; Spiced Crabapples; Parsleyed New Potatoes; Creamed Broccoli; Fresh Blueberries and Cream; Butter Tart Pan Cookies (see Sat. July 30); Coffee.

MACEDOINE OF DICED CARROTS AND CELERY:

The secret is to dice equal amounts of carrots and green outer stalks of celery in uniform ¼" dice. Do not chop every which way. Be a perfectionist and chop them as evenly as a machine would. Cook in a small amount of boiling salted water for 10 minutes then add one finely chopped small green onion and cook until carrots are barely tender. Drain, add 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and shakes of salt, sweet and white pepper to taste.

Some of our readers have been asking for a more reasonable facsimile of the packaged fresh frozen mixed vegetable for butter sauce that are in the frozen food counters now. They find them expensive.

MIXED VEGETABLES IN BUTTER SAUCE:

The fresh vegetables that are most satisfactory in these mixtures are: diced carrots, whole kernel corn, tiny onions, green peas, cut green beans, baby lima beans. However, if desired, larger cut vegetables such as cauliflower, asparagus, squash and brussels sprouts may be included too. Cook the fresh frozen vegetables until barely tender. Drain. To make 1½ cup diced carrots 1 cup 1" cut green beans, 1 cup whole kernel corn will serve 4 to 6 people. Cook together in a small amount of boiling salted water. Drain. To make the Butter Sauce melt 2 tablespoons butter and stir in 4 teaspoons flour and ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon accent and 1 to 3 teaspoons chopped bottled onion flakes or green onion flakes until blended. Stir in 1 cup boiling water until thick. Add hot drained mixed vegetables and gently stir over low heat until heated through.

Knee Muffs Help Keep Breeze Away

PARIS (AP)—Jean Desses' cause to the rescue Monday of knees exposed to the winter breeze as he showed fur knee warmers attached to elastic lace-covered garters.

The knee muffs go with daytime wools and tweeds. As the day wears on and the dresses get dressier, he uses beaver, ocelot, Persian lamb and mink. In black lace it looked as if the manequin's panties were showing.

Desses drew attention to the back in his winter collection. He used row upon row of vertical ruffles spread across the back from neckline to hemline. He did them in chiffon, lame silk crepe and, for daytime, in two shades of light and dark silver mistelesse.

PRESENTS COLLECTION

Molyneux, presenting his winter collection to packed salons, set out to prove that real fashion stripped of fun, games and gimmicks is what most women really want.

"For God's sake," said Capt. Edward Molyneux, "Lady give them clothes they can wear without looking as if they were off to a fancy dress ball."

His hemlines cover kneecaps and clear them on one or two occasions in the dark dresses. Impeccable tailoring is soft and leaves an impact because it is never forced.

Many skirts are straight, but he turns to bias cuts in afternoon wool dresses shown with or without flared topcoats. A spiral bias cut sheath has the fullness tucked in at the back of buttons climbing diagonally up the future along the bias cut.

Lipreading League Highly Recommended

DEAR DORIS: I am so upset that you and so many have not heard of the "League for the Hard of Hearing." It is appalling. I am a charter member of 23 years before hearing aids were so much on the market today and so many hearing clubs.

In our League, we get the best teacher in lipreading, and for $3.00 a year we have group hearing aids so that anyone, member or not, can take part in lectures, concerts, and speeches from specialists who describe the ear and the different kinds of hearing. And we have worked all during the war making bandages and bazaars for Canadian Red Cross.

I could not get by in hospital (where I DORIS CLARE work) if it were not for lipreading. — L.B. VANCOUVER.

DEAR L.B.: Lucky you! There just isn't any such league where "Hopeful" lives — the one who wanted to learn lipreading.

But there are member leagues of the Canadian Federation for the Hard of Hearing in seven Canadian cities: Calgary, Montreal, Regina, Toronto, Vancouver, Victoria and Winnipeg. Wherever there's a league, there's organized help.

Thanks for telling our readers about your own go-ahead club.

DEAR DORIS: I am a boy 15. One of my hobbies is keeping tropical fish. Incidentally, some of my friends think I'm crazy. Is there something wrong with this hobby? Is it really babyish? Not that it matters to me. I like it too much to give it up.

Anyway, I noticed that several people have written to you inquiring about a plant. If you ever have an opportunity, could you put a brief note about an aquarium plant? The plant is quite tall, and looks nice at the back of aquariums.

I had several, but they didn't grow. Before I bought a reflector, they died. The plant is called elodea. It's also called waterweed and sometimes water thyme. — FANCY FISH.

DEAR FISH: Babyish? Crazy? Not a bit of it! It takes care and competence to raise beautiful, but fragile, tropical fish. The people with hobbies are likely to be the healthiest, mentally.

What to do with our increasing leisure time is the crucial question of our age.

Will readers please find F.F. an elodea as a backdrop for his pets?

DEAR DORIS: I just simply cannot keep a conversation going with anyone. I have gone out with a few very nice and polite boys or young gentlemen, but because of my poor ability to communicate, I lost them!

Now John and I have similar interests, especially in music; we both like dancing. But when it comes to talking with him, I couldn't think of a thing to say. How can I ask him a question, or make a casual remark to spark a conversation, and what can I say to keep my end of it up?

I enjoy listening to funny stories or jokes, but I can never think of something funny that happened to me to tell someone else. — BIGHTEEN.

DEAR EIGHTEEN: Well, good for you for sounding an S.O.S. For my money good conversation is one of the most exciting ways to spend an evening. Lucky the person who finds congenial talkmates.

You can learn how to talk. Come out of the sidelines and get involved. Dramatics, choir work, public speaking — any of these can give you a new world of talk-ability. And poise.

DEAR DORIS: I don't think the letter from Desperate Dottie should have been published. (This was the one complaining about a mother who is lonely and wants all of them to move back to her home town, has nothing to live for, and so on.)

The grandchildren are coming and they need us, we are wanted. And I don't think Mom is wrong. The sooner Dottie's letter is wiped out, the better. — ANOTHER MOM.

DEAR ANOTHER: Of course grandparents are needed. But do you refuse to go out unless a son-in-law drives you? Do you feel you have nothing else to live for?

I publish her letter, and yours, in the hope that I can help mothers and daughters, and others, to take another look at themselves.

Ann Landers

Husband Would Rather Needle Her Than Eat

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As long as I can remember I have had a terrible time getting up in the morning. When I went to school my mother had to drag me out of bed because I could never hear the alarm clock. It's a miracle I graduated.

After I married it was the same story — until the children came. I'm sure God gives mothers special ears. I always heard my children during the night no matter what the hour. This went on for many years.

Now that the children are grown I'm back in the old routine—sleeping through five-alarm fires and it's beginning to irritate my husband to the point where he is getting ugly about it.

ANN LANDERS

Ellsworth enjoys a big breakfast and I would gladly prepare it if he would only get me up. Instead he waits until he is ready to leave. Then he gives me a shove and yells, "Well, I'm going to work now — hungry again, on account of you."

I keep telling him that if he'd shove me thirty minutes earlier he'd have breakfast. What should I do about this. — LOVE TO SLEEP IN THE MORNING.

DEAR LOVE: Ellsworth doesn't want breakfast. He'd rather needle you. So forget it, Toots, and enjoy your morning sleep.

When he gets to the point where he really wants something to eat in the morning, he'll wake you up in time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 17-year-old boy who was recently given the privilege of using the family car. Last Tuesday was a very special affair and I promised my dad I would be home by 2:00 a.m.

I won't go into detail, but a lot of things happened and I didn't get in until 8:00 a.m.

My father got up and he really blew his stack. He asked how I had the nerve to bring a girl home at that hour — and what did her parents say? I explained that her parents were asleep and they did not know what time she came in.

Then he got madder and yelled, "What kind of parents could sleep while their 16-year-old daughter is out until dawn?"

Do you think I did a smart thing? I need your answer so I will know how to look at this situation. — INDIGNANT.

DEAR IN: Your dad sounds like a great guy to me. If there were more dads like yours around there would be fewer kids in trouble. Consider yourself lucky.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem ranks in importance somewhere below the Viet Nam situation but I'd appreciate your help.

Last week a relative phoned to tell me of the death of a third cousin whom I had not seen in years. The relative said, "Of course you want to send flowers." Why do they force good money, invite Gert to pitch in too, and then we can buy a really nice wreath?

Frankly, I had no intention of sending flowers but I didn't want to appear petty, so I agreed. I sent her my cheque for $7.00 that very day. She said she would handle everything.

This morning I learned that the wreath was sent but my name was not on the card. What should I do now? My husband said to ignore it. I don't think I should. Please advise. — HAD.

DEAR HAD: Don't ignore it. The florist may be at fault. Call your relative and ask what happened.

Rhythm Method of Birth Control Not Advocated

NEW YORK (AP)—A leading Roman Catholic psychiatrist, who had sought evidence to support the rhythm method of birth control, reports findings directly to the contrary—that it is a poor method.

"I must conclude that the use of rhythm is productive of serious psychological harm," says Dr. John R. Cavanagh, a professor in the theology school of the Catholic University of America.

Dr. Cavanagh, a member of the birth control study commission named by Pope Paul, reports his findings from a survey in the current issue of Marriage magazine.

Based on replies to a questionnaire from 2,000 "successful users" of the rhythm method, Dr. Cavanagh concludes that its use deprives "a woman of the conjugal act during the time of her greatest desire" and thus "causes severe frustration in many couples."

CAUSES DISCORD

Furthermore, he says, "this agreement over its use and quarrels over its failure cause marital discord" and "such marital disharmony with its attending symptoms may cause psychic damage to the offspring."

The survey was originated last fall by Dr. Cavanagh on the theory that the rhythm method also was more tolerators than supporters because the successful users, for the most part, were not being heard from.

Consequently, he asked for replies from only couples for whom the method had been successful in practice. Of the responses, he says, led to his negative evaluation of the method.

The rhythm method requires abstinence from sexual intercourse during a woman's fertile period. The church, so far, has disapproved contraceptive means.

"Many of the individuals are leading heroic lives of frustration," he says. "The letters made me wonder if God intended Catholics to suffer so."

In his preliminary report, he includes several typical letters that accompanied the questionnaire replies. Said one:

"We have calculated periods by thermometer, calendar, pains, desires, psychology, graphs, charts, wheels, tables, luck, guess, math, estimates, sugarpaper, moods, secretions, siellogs, depressogy and the Boom. It is true that the time for desire for both is the unsafe time. The frustration is enormous."

Said another letter: "How misled I was about marriage! I worked hard to be a virgin for my husband. Then I get married and the church tells me I can abuse love eight or nine days out of 29. Sure I can show love and tell when we don't want 10 children. We have slaves—and only two children."

The pontifical consultation reported to Pope Paul in June with its contents and reaction from him still forthcoming.

HELPS CHILDREN DESPITE WAR — Miss Elizabeth Brown is a Canadian woman who directs the Viet Nam branch of the Foster Parents world organization from a muggy office in one of the more dangerous sections of Saigon. She oversees the assistance given to 5,500 Vietnamese children who have been "adopted" by people in more fortunate countries. She could leave — Miss Brown is old enough to be retired — but she says somebody has "just got to stay." A graduate of the University of Toronto Miss Brown works closely with the real parents. In this picture, she stands outside her office with some of the children and their parents. (CP Photo)

Toronto Woman Is Director Of Foster Parents in Saigon

John Lindblad, Windsor Star columnist, gleaned some interesting sidelights to the war in Viet Nam during a tour of Southeast Asia. This is the story of a Canadian woman who directs the operations of the Foster Parents organization in Saigon.

By JOHN LINDBLAD
of the Windsor Star

SAIGON (CP)—In this ancient and beautiful land of strange war and strange warfare in which no one is ever really "safe," a Canadian woman is out in front with only two weapons—love and skill.

Miss Elizabeth Brown of Toronto, who is old enough to be retired, just won't surrender her post as director of the Viet Nam branch of the Foster Parents world organization.

In this city of 2,000,000 where one can't help but feel jumpy from day to day, she works out of a headquarters in a part of the city where there has been a great deal of violence.

Her job is overseeing the assistance given to 5,600 Vietnamese children—one quarter of them Canadian charges —who have been "adopted" by people 10,000 miles and a lifetime away from here.

The word around Saigon is that Foster Parents' New York head office has begged her to come home and take an easy job or go and raise daisies — but Miss Brown won't quit.

FIGHTS FRUSTRATION

A University of Toronto graduate with a master's degree in social work from Columbia University, Miss Brown has worked all over the world and in some difficult spots.

Before coming here 2½ years ago, she worked in Europe and the Middle East for UNRRA.

Sitting in her hot and muggy second-floor office between thousands of young children and their mothers crowded a courtyard, Miss Brown said she's determined to fight the impulse to get out of a frequently violent and frustrating life.

"Somebody's just got to stay," she said.

Under the Foster Parents plan, she is charged with distributing money for food and clothing which is sent to adopted children by "parents" in affluent countries such as Canada and the United States.

It costs 16¢ Canadian or $15 American a month to maintain each child.

It's the Toronto woman's job to see the money goes for what is intended and that children here can be given health and education to pull themselves out of misery that no Canadian knows.

CHECKS ON FOOD

Miss Brown is in charge of 22 case workers. They are all Vietnamese and, while they lack the standards of training and experience of their colleagues back in Canada, she says the girls do well.

Under the plan, $2 goes into local currency for the purchase of food for the children. In addition, money goes for new clothes, blankets, medical care and education.

Miss Brown works closely with the real parents of the child to ensure the child's food allowance provides it with a proper diet. She is also able to swing a big stick about the aid. In order to qualify for aid, the real parent must send the child to school — and keep him in school.

Miss Brown says the main trouble with this nation was described by a friend in a few words:

"There is no due process. It's simply organized chaos."

Dear Susanna: Thank you so much for the many helpful hints in your column. Perhaps mine will be well received too, although I am ashamed it has taken me so many years to figure it out!

I finally discovered how to get my hair done by a hairdresser in my usual styling, and to my thrilling while travelling.

Twenty-five cents gives you four poses in a self-portrait machine. So, I took a picture (4 angles) of my hair immediately after it had been set to my taste by my regular hairdresser.

Now, when I'm travelling or can't have the one girl who always does my hair, I just show them these snaps.

Much more successful than trying to describe what I want. — Aileen Grassby

Best idea of it's kind I've ever heard.

This would also be great for those times when your regular fellow (Antoine, Gus or Stephan) is having a bad day and has you confused with that other blonde whose type you can't stand!

Just flash the photos and ask, "Remember me?"

NATO Weakens as Western Fears of Russia Lessen

John Hightower, veteran Associated Press diplomatic reporter just back from sounding out European NATO capitals, looks at the changing continent.

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The political distance between Washington and NATO capitals across the Atlantic is greater today than any time since the Second World War. Leaders of the faltering alliance not only disagree on long-range goals, they also differ on present dangers.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is being mauled about and reshaped to cover a European defense front that increasing numbers of European themselves consider less and less threatened. On this issue the United States and its NATO allies seem hardly to speak the same language.

The sense of urgency and peril that once invigorated NATO has declined. Europeans who once worried day and night about Soviet power masked behind the Iron Curtain are now about ways of promoting trade, travel and politics with the countries of the splintering Soviet bloc.

HAS OTHER THOUGHTS

These are the tides of change which President Charles de Gaulle of France is trying to harness to his purpose and which, in the view of many Europeans, U.S. President Johnson ignores because of preoccupation with Asia.

Even a brief swing around western Europe suggests to a U.S. observer that the U.S. and its allies are badly out of tune with each other. To the allies, the cold war in Europe is over, but to the U.S. the hot war against Communist conquest in Viet Nam is the dominant reality on the world scene today.

Europeans, concentrating on internal problems in their relatively prosperous and secure continent, generally ignore, when they do not bitterly denounce, the Viet Nam conflict which is costing the U.S. scores of lives and $1,000,000,000 every month.

The more deeply the U.S. becomes involved in the war in Viet Nam, the more western Europe pulls away from American influence.

Antagonism to the U.S.-Vietnamese policy is most evident in France where it ranges from high officials of the de Gaulle government to marching demonstrators in Paris' Place de la Concord. Johnson's argument that the U.S. is waging a struggle for freedom everywhere does not seem to get through to the NATO peoples of Europe.

MAY CUT BACK

They are not even deeply concerned with military problems nearer home. Early last week at a meeting of NATO defence ministers in Paris, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara was reported to have told the Europeans that the U.S. might be compelled to reduce its forces in Europe unless the Europeans do more for their own defence.

He chided them for applying a double standard — protesting against any American reduction, but protesting also against any American effort to get them to increase forces on the grounds there is no great danger.

These are elements of the crisis in NATO which often have been blamed on de Gaulle, but which appear to be much bigger than the actions of any single leader. The Europeans, in sum, see evidence that the U.S. is absorbed in Asian forces —which they often do not like— while France has taken a lead in European affairs with policies which they sometimes approve and sometimes bitterly resent, but which at least deal with problems that are close to home.

ASIA IS CRUCIAL

If there were any doubt where major U.S. attention is fixed, Johnson himself undertook to dispel it in a speech July 12 when he proclaimed that the U.S. is a "Pacific power" and told the world: "Asia is now the crucial arena of man's striving for independence and order and for life itself."

De Gaulle's policy of splitting the NATO military system, withdrawing French forces from NATO as he did July 1 and trying to diminish American leadership has been repudiated by all the other 14 NATO allies. But his parallel diplomatic campaign to build an economic and cultural ties with the European Communist countries seems to have widespread acceptance.

Furthermore, his drive to the East is in line with Johnson's announced policy of two years ago to construct bridges between western and eastern European countries. But with the spreading complications of the war in Viet Nam and related antagonisms between Washington and Moscow, the whole Johnson policy bogged down.

The appeal of de Gaulle's European reconstruction efforts, controversial though they are, may prove to be his major source of strength in trying to construct the leadership position for France in western Europe. His critics in Washington particularly are quick to say that his fledgling atomic force will always be small as compared with those of the U.S. and Russia. And he has pared down conventional French military strength to concentrate on nuclear weapons.

De Gaulle cannot match the big countries in real power, but he can hold out to Europe the dream of a more peaceful and normal continent and hope to generate support from his efforts to achieve it.

He may also temper the resentment he has so far aroused by becoming, now that he has made his break, more of an ally than seemed possible last spring.

MAY COME AROUND

U.S. diplomats in Europe think de Gaulle will agree to practical co-operation between French troops remaining in West Germany and the NATO forces there. They expect that in return for co-operation from the NATO radar network guarding western Europe against sneak attack, de Gaulle will agree to let military planes of NATO countries fly over France rather than compel them to fly around.

The U.S. also is hopefully negotiating for the right to return to abandoned military bases in France in event of war.

French real estate for bases and for overflights has always been at the heart of NATO logistics and strategy. If the new agreements work out, some of the value of France would be saved for the alliance even though present headquarters, with their symbolism, have to be moved from Paris to Brussels.

"It looks as if France will wind up as half an ally," one NATO diplomat said, "which is certainly better than no ally at all."

Thus there is widespread confidence that NATO not only will survive the French break, but will also enjoy some French co-operation. How this works out, however, will depend not only on negotiations conducted way with France, but also on the ability of the defence system to bear other strains.

Ever since NATO was formed 17 years ago, its main military muscle has been supplied by the conventional and nuclear forces of the United States. Today the U.S. has 225,000 men in West Germany. The West Germans have 440,000 under arms. France has 72,000 and Britain 53,000.

MAY REDUCE FORCES

Typical of the proliferation of NATO's troubles is the fact that the British may soon withdraw some thousands of their troops to save money at a time when Britain is in serious financial difficulty at home.

Such problems of sharing burdens pose difficult issues for the NATO allies. In an interview Gerhom last month, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard deplored talk of troop withdrawals from West Germany for cost reasons, saying this gave the "smell of business" to a vital problem of security. He protested against any substantial cut in American forces particularly.

"These troops are necessary," Erhard said. "The presence of American troops in Germany is the best guarantee of peace, not only for us but for the Americans too."

Noted Pianist, Bud Powell, Dies in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pianist Bud Powell, 41, who with Charlie (Bird) Parker and Dizzy Gillespie brought jazz out of the swing era and into bebop, died Monday night.

Death came at Kings County Hospital, a city institution in Brooklyn. Powell had suffered several years from a combination of malnutrition, alcoholism and tuberculosis.

Powell's field style, in which notes cascaded from his keyboard as if blown through a horn, influenced a generation of jazzmen. He was revered as an innovator and composer.

But his life was a story of mental breakdowns compounded by physical illness that diminished his talents, leaving at his death only a faltering, unsure echo of his former brilliance.

Powell, whose first name was Earl, was born in New York in 1924 to a musical family. He played as a young musician with several jazz groups, eventually graduating to sessions at Minton's Playhouse in Harlem, where he met saxophonist Parker and trumpeter Gillespie.

Their classic recordings crystallized the emergence of modern jazz from swing.

White Africa Is Uneasily Preparing For Day Black Lands Unite Against It

By DENNIE LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—As Africa leaders dream of the day when a unified black army marches against the white south, wiping out the governments of Rhodesia, Angola and Mozambique, and finally coming to grips with the most hated of all white spots, South Africa.

It's now only a pipe-dream and likely to remain so for many years to come.

African leaders are beginning to discover the blunt fact that untrained, undisciplined armies of the black north are no match against the white south.

But the whites realize that one day, maybe in 20 years, these squabbling black nations may put aside their personal differences and combine against the common enemy. And the whites are busily arming themselves with a wary eye to the future.

As a succession of army coups topples the governments of The Congo, Ghana and Nigeria, and tribal strife ravages central and eastern Africa, the four white-ruled states of southern Africa draw into closer union behind a wall of armor.

FLANKS PROTECTED

Geographically, South Africa is well buffered from any direct black attack by them. She is protected on her flanks by the Portuguese possessions of Angola and Mozambique, and in central Africa by white-ruled Rhodesia, riding out a war of sanctions and threats of armed intervention.

Any far the most heavily defended territory south of the Sahara, South Africa politely employed 100 military budget during the republic's fifth anniversary.

More than 18,000 precisiontrained whites troops, backed by heavy armor, jet fighters, bombers and artillery, sounded a warning to any would-be liberation army intent on crushing the white man's domain in southern Africa.

"We will rise as one man to defeat any enemy who dares intrude into this bastion of the south," said Defence Chief Commandant Gen. R. C. Hiemstra.

To ensure the survival of South Africa's 3,500,000 whites and deter African extremist threats to one day liberate this country's 12,000,000 blacks is costing the republic plenty.

Budget estimates on defence alone since 1961, total over £400,000,000 ($1,120,000,000).

STRENGTHEN DEFENCE

Angola and Mozambique deploy more than 80,000 troops, staving off sporadic attacks by African freedom fighters, and the tough, British-trained Rhodesian army of nearly 5,000 men patrols the border with black-ruled Zambia. And South Africa is wasting no time strengthening her defences.

"South Africa belongs to the white man and will resist with all its might any attempt at aggression," said Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd. "To those who cannot accept South Africa as it is but seek to change it into something new, or regard only a black or multi-racial country as acceptable, I have nothing to say. I have no patience with them."

Most white South Africans, heartlessly involved in this country's complex racial problem, see the republic's massive military build-up as the only sure safeguard for the continuance of white supremacy.

Some view the country's long term future with uncertainty. They fear the day when the black continent finds unity of purpose and thought and the necessary resources to build a black army.

SEE TROUBLE AHEAD

There are whites in southern Africa who believe that someday the isolated, unsettled African states may become stabilized, that today's fiery black nationalism may be replaced by shrewder, saner-thinking men.

Some fear the growing number of black military leaders trained in Western or Communist countries and well-qualified in modern warfare.

For those whites in southern Africa, the decades ahead are filled with uncertainty and for some fear—fear that southern Africa's small white minority can do little to stem the turbulent tide of Africa's black mass.

Civic Holiday Ends Quietly At Grand Bend

GRAND BEND, Ont. (CP)—The Civic Holiday weekend ended quietly at this resort centre Monday night, but provincial police patrolled the streets to make sure it stayed that way.

Six constables from London, Sarnia and Strathroy joined the local 11 - man detachment to guard against any further disturbances that kept police and military police from Camp Ipperwash busy Saturday night, late Sunday night and early Monday morning.

Police said they encountered no trouble as the last of an estimated 20,000 holiday visitors left for home. The town has a regular population of 700.

Two London youths were arrested following renewed rock-violence Sunday night. Steve Barre, 19, was charged with being a public nuisance after a youth threw an empty pop bottle at a constable. Barbara La-Marsh, 17, was charged with possession of an offensive weapon—a size—and causing a disturbance.

Both are scheduled to appear in Lambton County court in Sarnia today.

The trouble appar e n t l y started about 7 p.m. midnight Sunday when a fight broke out between two youths.

Lorne Henderson, Conservative member of the Ontario legislature from Lambton East, said he will discuss Grand Bend's police strength with Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Superintendent A. E. Ayers, of the provincial police, said additional help will be detached. It is being considered for the Labor Day weekend.

Canadian Pacific Railway Co. net earnings for the month of June totalled $5,205,521, against $4,701,117 in June, 1965. Railway revenues amounted to $48,820,-034 and expenses totalled $43,614,513 compared to $43,000,544 and $40,299,477 in June last year.

EARNINGS DECLINE

Second-quarter sales of Domtar Ltd. totalled $107,370,000, up from $104,091,000 in the same corresponding quarter a year ago, but net earnings amounted to $6,950,000, off from $7,210,000 in the 1965 period. The month-by-month comparison in a statement attributed the profit decline to labor difficulties in Eastern Canada and fed seamen's strike in the United Kingdom.

DECLARES DIVIDEND

General Motors Corp. of New York City Monday declared a quarterly dividend of 85 cents a share, 15 cents more than paid in 1965. The higher dividend will bring payments for the first nine months of the year to $3.05 compared with $3 a year ago.

TOURNAMENT PUSHOFF — Mayor Jack Ellis rolls first bowl to get 24th Corbin Gold Cup bowling tournament under way. Looking on are William Van Tassel tournament chairman, club president Bill Wright and Gerald Hyde, this year's Provincial Lawn Bowling Association president.

The 24th annual Corbin Gold Cup tournament for rinks in lawn bowling was staged on Civic holidayat the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club with 32 entries, which included many Ontario centres and for the third time in a row and with the same rink, Dick Edney captured the beautiful trophy and the accompanying gold watches. His rink consisted of Eddie Stevenson, William Duncan, Sr. and William Duncan Jr.,

The lawns were beautiful, the greens were lightning fast and the weather was added touch by providing a most glorious day for bowling. The tournament was sent away to a fine start on Sunday night, when Peter Webber, representative of the Carswell Company was host to the visiting bowlers and a few invited guests at the Hotel Quinte. Paul Postma of Corbyville was an entrant in the First Gold Cup and for the consecutive years has had a rink in provincial and this constitutes a record. Mr. Webber, himself a lawn bowler is also the life of any party and his story telling at the reception was a delight.

At the opening of the tournament the "spider" was played and the receipts go to the PLBA which distribute the funds to veterans and other causes. His Worship, Mayor Jack Ellis was on hand to welcome the bowlers and their wives, while Bu. Wright, president of the local club added his words of welcome. Bill Van Tassel, general chairman of the tournament, also welcomed the visitors and thanked all for making the tournament the success it has been down through the years. "Jerry" Hyde, secretary-treasurer of the tournament committee, extended a welcome as president of the—PLBA and introduced many of the bowlers that will journey to Australia this fall to compete in the International matches.

BUSY DAY FOR WOMEN

As usual the women's section of the club under the president, Mrs. Lil Mascurn, provided light refreshments during the day and evening for the hungry bowlers. A building at the fairgrounds was used as a reception centre and was well patronized during the day. The comradeship and friendship that was observed during the day showed the strong hold lawn bowling has in the province. Mr. Van Tassel at the end of play when the prizes were distributed stated that the Corbin tournament was the best rink competition in the Province and this statement drew a great round of applause from the assembly.

The winner of the Lord Calvert trophy, eight glasses, cocktail shakers and mixes was won by a rink of H. H. Elliott, Art Lansley, O. Leblanc with John Henderson as skip, while the Belle Cleaner trophy and Iona Food Blenders went to a Trenton rink of Clayton Maguire, Larry Chouinard, Ken Peacock and Bill Fuller as skip. The Gordon Watkin Memorial trophy and flite bags were won by a rink from Baling Beach of John Sillers, Ron Hutton, Jim Bayley and Dail Tossell as skip.

The fifth place with a high for two wins was won by a rink of Oshawa of Clarence Oke, Ewart Carswell, Sam MacMillen with Gordon MacMillen, his son as skip. This rink won the Labatt trophy and the four transistor radios. Second place for two high was a rink of Barry Kyle, Charlie Orr, Jimmy Welsh and Kim Bain as skip from Bayholme Club in Toronto and they won the Deacon jackets donated by Deacon Brothers.

The high for one win was a rink from Whitby of Ian Muir, Joe Lake, Earl Judge with Tom Henstock as skip and they won the Ray-O-Vac lanterns donated by Stephens Licence. Second high for one win was a rink from Waterloo of Carl Thiele, Jeromy Weber, Roy Reidel and Joe Dorsch as skip and they won the four lawn chairs donated by the Stephens Adamson Company.

MADOC WINS

The high for no wins was a rink from Madoc of Goldie Fitzgibbon, Ossie Newton, Bob Parker and Mel Caverly as skip and they won plug in trouble lights donated by Elliott Motors. The highest scoring individual rink that did not win a prize was a rink of George Fisher, Doug Lee, Roy Hall with Walter Elliott as skip and they will be invited to a steak dinner from Pape's Steak House. The "spider" was won by George Martin of Kingston and he was presented with a lawn bowling set — from the A and P Stores. The results of the three games follow:

Victims of Sniper Ranged From Lifeguard to Teacher

AUSTIN (AP)—Paul Sonntag, 18, was tanned from a summer as a lifeguard in Austin's hot sun. He had a broad shoulders to his pocket and was in good spirits.

Mark Gabour, 15, had come to Austin with his family from Texarkana, Tex., to visit his aunt, Mrs. Margurette Lamont. She wanted them to see Austin and the surrounding hill country that Texans brag about from the best possible vantage point —the top of the 30-story University of Texas Tower.

Thomas Ashton, 22-year-old college graduate from Redlands, Calif., had only about a month of training left at the university before he left to teach English with the Peace Corps in Iran. He was taking a lunch break.

It was a lazy-type Texas day 96 degrees with a few puffy clouds pasted in the sky. No one was rushing to get anywhere in the mid-day heat.

In the air-conditioned tower, Mrs. Edna Townsley, 51, of Austin was enjoying the coolness before her replacement as an elevator operator showed up.

Then brutal, high-noon terror struck.

And before the 90 - minute nightmare was over, 13 persons lay dead or fatally wounded in the tower and outside by bullets from powerful rifles fired by one man, Charles Joseph Whitman, 25, a former marine who had learned to drill bullseyes from as far away as 500 yards on a firing range.

Three persons—Gabour, Mrs. Townsley and Mrs. Lamport—died in the tower, probably Whitman's first victims. Sonntag, Ashton and the others fell victim to the gun on pavement and grass.

University Chancellor Harry Ransom called off classes by day and said the school's flags will be flown at half staff during the week.

Also killed before two city police officers gained the tower runway and killed Whitman with pistol and shotgun fire from three range were:

—Roy Dell Schmidt, 29, a city electrical worker, making a routine call a couple of blocks away.

—Patrolman Billy Speed, 22, on the force for slightly more than a year, racing up some steps in front of the tower.

—Harry Walchuck of Austin as he talked to a newspaper employee across the street from the campus at the small book and newspaper store.

—Claudia Rutt, 18, an Austin girl who had dated Sonntag.

—Dr. Robert H. Boyer, former University of Texas mathematics teacher who was in Austin for a visit, after a month teaching in Mexico.

—Thomas Karr, 24, a Fort Worth native who died in the operating room.

—Thomas Eckman of Barcelona, Spain.

—The unborn baby of Mrs. Claire Wilson, in her eighth month of pregnancy, who was wounded.

HIT AGAIN

MOSCOW (AP) — The battered Central Asian city of Tashkent was hit Sunday by more earthquakes. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported five tremors shook the city, the strongest registering 5 on the international 10-point scale. Tass said no damage was done by the latest tremors, which brought the total registered in the city to 658 since April 26.

Prince Philip Blackballed Out of Society

LONDON (AP) — The president of one of Britain's leading scientific societies blamed professional prejudice Sunday for the blackballing of Prince Philip from honorary membership.

Sir Gordon Sutherland, president of the Institute of Physics and The Physical Society, and master of Emmanuel College Cambridge, told reporters:

"Less than eight per cent eligible took the trouble to vote, thinking it was a foregone conclusion. Those who voted against did so for doctrinaire reasons—every honorary fellow has been an eminent scientist and Nobel Prize winner. In other words, professional prejudice."

The Prince's nomination to an honorary fellowship of the society was rejected in a secret ballot by letter after the Prince had accepted the invitation to become an honorary member last April.

Sir Gordon said Prince Philip, a leading exponent of technological development in Britain, received a large majority.

The Sunday Telegraph reported the Prince was rejected with the vote of 1,000 against, but this was on the basis of a candidate being turned down if he got more than one response voting refused the proposal.

When reports of the snub leaked out, Buckingham Palace remained silent and referred inquiries to the society and its members.

Imprisoned Negroes Said Facing Torture

LONDON (AP)—Amnesty International charged today that Rhodesia's white minority government in Rhodesia is torturing imprisoned Negroes.

In a report on prison conditions in the breakaway central African colony, Amnesty International said electric shocks were used and gave details of beatings with "lists, boots and fists." Some prisoners had been threatened with castration.

Amnesty I n t e r n a t i o n a l described itself as a "politically organization which works for the release of political prisoners throughout the world.

The report said the prison diet is a nutritionally inadequate, cells—many of them overcrowded, medical facilities were insufficient, and there was no policy for rehabilitating prisoners.

Amnesty International said it collected the information through interviews with Negroes released from prison and from former prison workers.

It said it was impossible to know how many "prisoners of conscience" are being held in Rhodesia.

Airline Strikes May Be Peanuts Compared With Labor Troubles Still Facing the United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The more long-range, continuing dialogue between labor and management, rather than wailing for a crisis to develop in the last week or months before contracts expire.

strike against five U.S. airlines, for all its uproar, may be just a small thing compared to what's ahead in American labor-management warfare — and the problem of settling economy-crippling strikes.

This is true because 1966 is not a year in which many big-wage contracts must be negotiated. But next year is a different story, with contracts expiring in the giant auto, trucking, rubber and clothing industries.

Also in 1967 there will be new contracts to be hammered out for paper workers, basket workers, food processors and meat packers, and telephone and telegraph industries.

Strikes are a distinct possibility. If they occur, and persist, new demands that the government "do something" are sure to arise, and as surely to be resisted in some quarters.

Something unusual has happened in 1966. A lot of city government employees have gone on strike for better pay, shorter hours and improved working conditions, in the same pattern followed for years by private employees.

The public payroll strikers have been mainly teachers, but also have included welfare workers, firemen, policemen, doctors, nurses, transit workers and sanitation employees.

Among private-industry employees, the Communications Workers of America struck for a strike vote by its 24,000 members in the telephone industries for the Western Electric Co. The results of the vote will be announced Aug. 20.

ELECTRIC NEXT?

On the big-business scene, there's a prospect of hot trouble this autumn in the fall between the International Union of Electrical Workers and the General Electric Co.

The company says the unions have "a collusive scheme to strike the two largest companies in the electrical industry and make the entire industry conform to their demands." General Electric Corp. and General Electric are the big companies involved.

If an electrical-industry strike should come to pass, the results could make the airline strike and its effects look puny and trivial. It is expected also to increase the "there-ought-to-be-law" outcries that followed both the New York subway and airlines strike.

President Johnson has had the power for almost a year to halt down inflation by means of limiting pay raises to 3.2 per cent a year. For example, the New York transit strike was settled with an increase the labor department estimated at about 4 per cent.

The fact that business has been prospering, with extremely high profits in 1966, has led the labor people to believe to be bound to any specific figure so long as management is under no restrictions on profits or executives' pay.

Less and less is heard from the administration these days about pressing the guideline on unions.

Nigeria's Large Size May Be Both Blessing and a Curse

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Maj.-Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi told a meeting of ambassadors this summer that Nigeria's size marks her out for leadership on the African continent.

But this size could also prove a handicap in achieving purely national aspirations, Ironsi added. The "supreme commander" was speaking after some 600 persons died in Nigeria's northern region following his proclamation of a unitary state.

Ironsi's words are now the less true now that he has been swept from power in an army coup which left his fate unclear. His fall only underlines once again the extreme difficulty of operating a federal system in a big country with deep divisions of race, tribes and religion.

MADE PROGRESS

Ironsi, with the determined air of an honest soldier, repeatedly has declared the goal of stability to Nigeria after taking charge—or being put in charge—of the revolt that toppled the democratic government last January.

But it was always a touch-and-go affair. There is still the problem of a vast and backward Muslim Northern Region, suspicious of the go-getting Ibos and Yorubas in the southern provinces. The Ironsi, 41, was apparently deposed by Lt.-Col. Yakubu Gowon, 31, a member of the Northern Hausa tribe, who announced Monday he was taking over authority.

Ironsi faced a monumental task when he assumed power, trying to bring national cohesion to Nigeria, the time the country of 56,000,000—30th most populous nation in the world and biggest in Africa.

The army officers with him gave an impression of discipline and patriotism. But they had little political experience. Many politicians who might have helped were discredited or in jail.

Ironsi gradually fell back more on friends he could trust. Perhaps it was inevitable that these were mainly Ibos like himself. To northern eyes, it appeared to be an Ibo takeover although Ironsi himself had decried tribalism.

It was in this atmosphere that Ironsi proclaimed a unitary state late in May, abolishing the federation under which Nigeria came to independence six years ago. The result was anti-southern riots in the north and many Ibos and Yorubas lost their lives.

Then there was the economic situation. Although Nigeria is one of the only African countries to present a healthy face to the world, it had internal problems involving soaring food costs—which Ironsi could hardly remedy quickly. Unemployment was serious.

MUST SELL IDEA

The crux of the military government's problem, however, is how to devise a system whereby the north could be included within a popularly acceptable scheme of federal unity.

Public relations were not the regime's strong point, and persuading the northerners of the virtues of a greater degree of unity than existed under the old constitution is a project that will require real expertise in public relations.

Nigeria's size and diversity are obviously, as Ironsi said, a handicap. Yet it is hoped the advantages of size some day weigh the disadvantages. For Nigeria is one of the few countries south of the Sahara big enough to attain real economic independence.

SPORTS SLICES

The Civic Holiday weekend must go down in the weekend statistics archives as one of the best since someone had the bright idea that the laborites should merge with the cheque-signers and join hands in a three-day surcease from the daily grind.

For once the weather man held his storm and rain legions in check. He corralled the clouds, throttled the thunderheads, and handcuffed the moisture. He gave Old Sol free reign in the brilliant blue of azure skies.

But the Grim Collector threw his dark sinister shadow across the holiday harbour. Death riding the highways and the waterways again took his inevitable toll. Holiday-bent people will play — and must pay. The sad thing is that each year, it seems, the percentage of taxes on human life grows bigger. Tragedy from accident won't take rain-checks.

On the brighter side the holiday brake slip records. City fun-seeking buffs deserted the heat-choked canyons for the wide-open spaces. The exodus was perhaps the greatest in years as evidenced in crowed-cluttered provincial parks, water resorts, cabin, cottage and tents.

The Old Lady of the Moira added further laurels to her proud record of sport achievement. She hosted two outstanding sports events and lost none of her pride in the doing.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club's third annual Festival of Golf set a record that can only be equalled not beaten in the years to come.

It attracted nearly five hundred golfers from all parts of Ontario, a red-letter entry in the record books of the club.

From a more or less obscure country club, a run-of-the-mill perhaps golf course that are a dime-a-dozen in the province, it has come to stay on a high level in the tournament books of the province.

The proof of that is the fact that some sixty of Ontario's top professional golfers headed by Al Balding, winner of the 1962 Brantford Golf Open, such names as Balding, Norman, Homeiuk, Panasiuk, Whibly, Thompson, Kay, DeCaire, the Breens Maxwe, are fill in the lists, there will be some attractions.

True, as some detractors will point out, these stars of the fairways are between big tournaments and play here for a stopover. That is not the case.

As one outstanding professional told me yesterday at the club house when he parred in two, "There are several reasons why we like to play Quinte."

"One of the reasons," he said, "was that we like your club pro George Baines. He invited us three years ago and we've been here, played and were conquered by your course, your officials and your hospitality."

"Another thing we like about Quinte is its geographical locale. It is within easy reach from Toronto and other centres where pros are located."

"We experience no pressure prices like we meet on other places. You have a half-fellow-well-met membership here. These things help to relieve tournament tension. We can play here relaxed. The food is excellent and well priced at other centres."

"Well," he shrugged, "there are fifty of us here. Doesn't that answer your question?"

Practically the same applies to the Belleville Lawn Bowling Association. The 24th Corbin Gold Trophy played under ideal conditions was again, an outstanding success. The cream of Ontario grass keepers staged an excellent tournament and much credit goes to Bill Ferguson, president Byrde, club president Bill Smith and the tournament committee headed by Bill Vantassel.

Dodgers On Top; Pirates Drop To 3rd

By HAL BOCK

It's been a most productive week for Phil Regan, who need to worry about his share in baseball's pension plan and now shinks about a World Series share instead.

Regan won his third game in six days, Monday night, when Los Angeles Dodgers rallied for four runs in the ninth inning on Frank Howard's pinch homer and Jim Gilliam and defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1.

The victory kept the Dodgers in first place in the National League, three percentage points in front of San Francisco Giants and a full game up on the Pirates.

Cookie Quits Broncos

DENVER, Colo. (CP)—Cookie Gilchrist, whose tempestuous tactics have made him a dramatic professional football player of Canada and the United States, says he's quitting Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Gilchrist, 31, who has been continually in hot water with three Canadian Football League clubs Buffalo Bisons and the Broncos of the AFL since going to Canada from Tarentum, Pa., 12 years ago, announced his breakoff with the Broncos at a press conference Monday night.

The 240-pound fullback said he's quitting "with deep regrets," because he doesn't like the management.

Gilchrist said one of the major reasons for his discontent was the Broncos' refusal to give a try-out to his pal Willie Ross, last year with Buffalo.

Ordered to report to training camp July 22, he said hasn't taken the field and is accumulating fines at the rate of $100 a-day.

In a 22-word statement he said, "capable and exciting young ball players have been rejected by the Broncos organization without the opportunity to demonstrate their skills or abilities."

PLANS UNCERTAIN

He did not say he was retiring from football, but on advice of lawyers refused to say he would play for another team if Denver would deal him.

Jim Burris, executive vice-president of the Broncos, said he was "not unduly surprised or concerned" by Gilchrist's decision.

Hysterical Crowds

London Wild After Cup Victory

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—England is rejoicing in the rare sensation of restored glory as the world champions of soccer.

The English national team defeated West Germany 4-2 Saturday in a taut finals of the quadrennial World Cup tournament that ran into knuckle - biting overtime.

The victory prompted a thoroughly un-British display among ecstatic spectators at Wembley Stadium and stirred the pride of millions more who watched the country's highways and shopping centres to agonize and finally applaud before their television sets.

The celebrations went on until long past midnight Saturday, as seven hours after England inside forward Geoff Hurst, 24, had run down the left wing in the last minute of overtime and hammered in his third goal of the match.

The country that taught the game to the world and then watched its supremacy slip far away following the Second World War had recovered its birthright.

STOOD ALOOF

Until 1950, England stood aloof from all World Cup competition, secure in the illusion that it was, after all, the world's best. But that illusion "blew us" attitude. But no ecstatic were they Saturday that many among the Wembley crowd of 97,000 actually took the rare step of singing the words of God Save The Queen when the band played the national anthem.

They sang and shouted "England, God-land" drowning out the baritone chant of 10,000 Germans urging "Uwe, Uwe,"—the first name of their team captain, 24-year-old centre forward Uwe Seeler.

NIGHT WAS WILD

London newspapers called it the wildest night since VE-night, when the European War ended. Honking cars jammed the streets. Thousands cheered and sang in Trafalgar Square—some of them leaping into the fountains.

An almost-hysterical crowd surrounded the bus bringing the players to a banquet and kept a vigil outside the hotel, demanding repeated appearances of the players on the hotel balcony.

The players appeared and passed the 12-inch-high Jules Rimet trophy around the line of team-mates, each one waving it over his head to tumultuous cheers from the crowd.

The game was as changeable as the weather which alternated between bright sunshine and pouring rain during the match. Helmut Heller put Germany into the lead early in the game, but England fought back to tie it before half-time, on Hurst's first goal.

With 12 minutes of regular time to go Martin Peters seemed to have won it when he made it 2-1 for England.

But Wolfgang Weber forced the game into overtime with 30 seconds to go. That meant an additional 30 minutes of play—for a total of two hours without substitutes on a field famous for its speed.

The winning goal was almost not allowed. Hurst drove the ball on to the underside of the crossbar of the German goal. It bounced down and West German defenders and judges headed it over the bar. The referee pointed for a corner kick but the linesman called it a goal.

Hurst completed his performance with a last-second goal when many of the West Germans seemed to think the game was over.

In Frankfurt, flag - waving, cheering and singing crowds gave West Germany's team a hero's welcome when it arrived home Sunday.

Bobby Moore, England team captain, was named Sunday the world's top footballer by a panel of journalists and broadcasters.

Parsons Trounce Brockville

Belleville Parsons grabbed first place in the Kingston and District Soccer league with a 6-4 drubbing of Brockville at Brockville on Saturday.

The winners scored five goals in the first half - hour and coasted to their triumph. Excellent goalkeeping by Bower in the Brockville nets kept the Parsons from going into double figures.

Bob Rutherford opened the scoring with a penalty—shot after a defender had handled the ball, and soon after, Pete Crowl made it 2-0 with long shot from right wing.

Greenwood folded under Parsons' pressure and put the ball into his own net, and within minutes Joe Lasenza broke through the middle to score again, making it 4-0.

In the second half, play evened out, with Mueller scoring for Brockville and Bob Rutherford getting the hat trick with another goal on a penalty shot, to make the final score 6-1 in favor of Belleville.

Parsons play the Trenton High School team tonight in an exhibition contest. Kickoff time is 8:30, at Trenton.

Leafs Whip Suns Twice; Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pete Magrini has learned to grin and bear it.

"I lost the last game myself. . . . I got mad and gave up," the Toronto Maple Leafs pitcher said Monday after holding Jacksonville Suns to three hits in a 1-0 International League victory.

In four close defeats the Leafs had given Magrini three runs, and when an infield hit and an error put the first two Suns on base in the fifth inning Monday he began to stew again.

However, Magrini overcame the obstacle.

"I forced myself to smile," he said. "It took quite an effort."

The effort, however, gave Magrini a 6-6 record for the season and his seventh victory against 10 losses.

The Leafs swept the second game of the doubleheader 4-3, while Rochester Red Wings defeated Columbus Jets 2-0 to take over first place from the Jets for the first time in 69 days, and Buffalo Bisons walloped Richmond Braves 12-3.

SWING OUT TOWARD THE TARGET

You might not think that your swing action after striking the ball has much to do with the success of the shot — but, actually it really does.

For instance, by swing your club out towards the target on your follow-through (No. 1), you must have properly returned your right elbow to your right side on your downswing (No. 2).

Also, swinging the club on out towards the target will provide you with a nice high finish to your swing (No. 3).

In short, if you concentrate on swinging the club out towards the target — but do not sway your head and shoulders in that direction — you will force yourself to swing the club on a proper plane.

Enforce Putting Ruling

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Touring golf professionals headed for the $100,000 Cleveland Open today, forewarned by five disqualifications in the Speedway golf tournament that the new continuous-putting rule will be enforced.

Billy Casper, winning the Speedway event Sunday for the second time, had a copy of the rules sticking out of his hip pocket when he dropped his final putt for an 11-under-par 277 and $18,000.

Those missing on the final round included last year's winner, Bruce Crampton of Australia, and two - time winner Doug Ford, both ejected for failing to hole out in uninterrupted putts. The rule, intended to speed up play, had been in effect in three of the last four Professional Golfers Association tournaments.

R. H. Sikes, former intercollegiate champion, went into the final round tied with Casper at nine under par but slipped to a 73. His 280 was good for second money, $8,500.

Johnstone Is Hero

Angels Edge Yanks; Twins, Nats Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jay Johnstone, called up by California last Friday night to fill in for Rick Reichardt, stroked three hits and drove in the winning run Monday night as the Angels edged New York Yankees 4-3.

Johnstone, 20, joined the Angels Saturday after hitting .328 for Seattle of the Pacific Coast League. He was promoted after the Angels learned that Reichardt, their leading slugger, had kidney trouble and might be lost for the rest of the season.

In three games, the left-handed hitter has collected six hits in 12 at-bats, including five hits in his last six trips to the plate.

"I like everything I've seen of him," said California manager Bill Rigney.

TWINS, SENATORS WIN

While Johnstone won the game with his bat, 39-year-old Jim Bunning pitched two perfect innings of relief, saving the 10th victory for 37-year-old Jack Sanford.

Sanford ended a New York rally in the seventh after Hector Lopez tied the game 3-3 with a pinch-hit, two-run single. In the bottom of the seventh, Sanford left for pinch hitter Joe Pepitone, whom Hal Reniff walked pur posely as he could pitch to Johnstone. Johnstone drilled a single to centre, driving in his first major league run.

Jimmie Hall drove in four runs with two homers, and Earl Battey added a two-run blow for Minnesota. Tony Conigliaro accounted for Boston's two runs with a home run. Jim Grant pitched a six-hitter for his seventh victory against 11 defeats.

Kansas City tied its game 4-4 in the seventh when Bert Campaneris tripled home two runs on Paul Casanova's bases-loaded infield single.

Ptashnik birdied the 16th hole with a 15-foot putt and took the lead on the 17th with another birdie while Woodall had to settle for a par. On the 18th both golfers had pars.

Bill Wills of Waterloo, who was the first-round leader with a 68, was tied with 219. Wills and Ptashnik were tied after 3 holes at 143.

Minors' Meet Sets Records

HAMILTON (CP) — A girls' relay team from Bishop Ready Track Club in Toronto broke the Canadian juvenile women's 880-yard record Saturday in the Ontario relay championships.

Another record, the junior two-mile, was broken.

Linda Bradshaw, Leslie Burley, Heather Brown and Jo-Anne Atkins of Bishop Ready clocked 1:48.8 in winning the midget 880-yard event. Because there is no midget record for the 880, their performance will stand as a juvenile record.

Bob Watson, Paul Thomson, Glen Ukyo and Mike McCann of Hamilton's Spartan Track Club set a record in the junior two-mile with a 7:32.8 performance. The mark of 7:58.2 was held by Lester Pearson, Upper School of New Westminster, B.C.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue. A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in most cases, without surgery. Speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while giving relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

New Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Police Busy With Minor Car Accidents

NAPANEE — The Napanee town police were kept busy the end of last week. Some time during Thursday night, or early Friday morning, thieves entered the White Rose Service Station opposite the N.D.S.R. and stole about 82 in pennies from the till, a small musical radio, and a small siding machine.

The thieves had cut a section from the lower part of the glass door so that the opening could not be detected from the street. Constable J. E. Fretz is still investigating the case.

There were two accidents on West St., two blocks apart, one Friday and one Saturday.

Three cars were involved in an accident Friday afternoon at four o'clock in front of the Napanee Industries on Anne St. Donald Simmons of Centreville was turning off Anne St. when his car collided with a car driven by Norman Kimmerly of Selby driving it into a car owned by Arthur Bartlett of R. R. 8, Napanee, which was parked in front of the building.

Total damage was approximately $200. Mr. Bartlett's car was most seriously damaged, to the extent of about $140.

Constable Tom McCrae investigated and said no charges would be laid. There is no stop sign on this busy corner, and cars are parked on both sides of the narrow streets, obstructing the view. He believes it to be a dangerous corner, and that a stop sign should be erected.

At six o'clock the following evening two cars were involved in an accident at the West and Thomas St., intersection. Margaret Meadows of R.R. 1, Napanee driving north on West St. collided with a car driven by Helen K. Malcolm of Slate Falls. Both cars were damaged. A passenger in the second car Mrs. Flossie Inwood, 80, was taken in the Lennox and Addington County Hospital for observation but was released. She suffered bruises to her shoulder.

Constable Warren Richardson who investigated says that charges are pending. Constable Tom McCrae, who was passing, assisted him.

Armouries Cost $8,555 a Year To Operate

PICTON (Staff) — Figures have been made public as a result of many requests for further information from town officials concerning the cost of operation of Picton's Main Street Armouries. The building was originally purchased for $7,300. A council spokesman has obtained the actual operating cost from the Department of National Defence which shows the annual cost to be $8,555. The sum includes the cost of heating the huge structure and salaries for caretaking and maintenance.

Members of council are satisfied that projected revenue, along with possible economies in operating the building, will eventually cover, if not more than cover, the cost of it's operation.

281 Beginners Are Graduated At Cove Beach Swim Classes

PICTON (Staff) — Graduation day for swimmers was held at Prince Edward County's Cove Beach on Friday morning. Some 281 certificates were presented to the beginners' class of swimmers and 34 of these were awarded the Red Cross badge of proficiency for having completed all the requirements. Many of the youngsters had no previous experience in the water but are now well on their way to becoming swimmers as a result of the program sponsored by the recreation committee. The classes have been under the supervision of Recreation Director Wayne Bing of Picton and he has been ably assisted by the swimming instructor, Linda MacDonald. Four other assistant instructors, Judy Sharpe, Judy Dewe, Patricia Thompson and a volunteer, Paul Bentley, have supervised and instructed the children in water safety and swimming.

Present for the awards presentation on the beach were Dr. Lionel Dockrill member of Town Council and chairman of recreation and parks and a past president of the Picton Kiwanis Club; Ray Lennox, president of the Kiwanis Club; Bill Strachan, vice-pres. of Kiwanis and a member of the recreation and parks committee; Jim McGinnis, chairman of boys and girls work of the Kiwanis Club; John Cary, Kiwanian, and newly appointed member of the recreation and parks committee; and Mayor H. J. McFarland, principal promoter of the Cove Beach Swimming Classes, past and present.

Dr. Lionel Dockrill said that he was angry with local cynics who said too much money was being wasted by the recreation movement. For the sake of the people he said that he intended to see the recreation program carried on, to the best of his ability.

Bill Strachan in speaking to the children and their parents said that it was one of the happiest days of his life. Waterskimach, he said, 11 years ago was asked (by Mr. Strachan) for permission to hold swimming instruction courses at his beach and he was gracious enough to give me the reply that 'what is here is yours for the asking, free.' Mr. Walter has been a wonderful help over the years' and co-operates 100 per cent.

Mr. Strachan also complimented the instructors who studied and practised their swimming and teaching methods all winter long that they would be able to help the children as they should be helped. He thanked Mayor McFarland and said that "without his help and co - operation this last ten years we would not be here today."

From Oct. to June, some 9 months of the year, swimmers were allowed to pass through his home and use the services of his private pool. 20,000 children have gone through his kitchen on their way to the pool for swimming lessons.

He also said that he was pleased with the way in which all of the instructors had helped Mr. Bing with this swimming program.

Ray Lennox, president of the Kiwanis Club said that for the last 11 years the Picton Club has been interested in swimming instruction. "We hope that maybe a life'or two has been saved during this time as a result of our work."

Mayor McFarland thanked Mr. Bill Strachan and the instructors who worked with Mr. Bing.

"Mr. Strachan", he said, "mentioned that I had 20,000 children, and I'm very proud of each and every one of them. When I built the pool I didn't know I was going to have 20,000 children. Thanks to Mr. Dockrill and also to the Kiwanis Club for doing such a wonderful job, I want to promise we're not going to stop our recreational program on account of a few critics in this town, we're going to press on and do a job for the children of this county."

He presented each child present with a coca or soft drink.

"It isn't going to cost the ratepayers anything for the amusement," he said, "I hope we can set up a pool and other things for our town's children and a place where parents and children can go to enjoy themselves." Another group of some 200 children began classes on Tuesday.

New Man Is Now at Wheel Of Highway Safety Council

By FRITH ROOK

OTTAWA (CP) — "My own driving record is pretty good," he says in his quiet way. "But let's knock on wood. Never ask for it."

Philip J. Farmer, since April is the new man in the driver's seat at the Canadian Highway Safety Council headquarters in Ottawa, in charge of every man's frailty where his own safety and that of others is concerned.

After a seven-month preparatory assistant to the executive director, Mr. Farmer—a gingerhaired 40-year-old with a Ph.C. and M.Arch. Brycon—the driving force of the council since its inception in 1952.

He succeeds executive director, a native of Vancouver who became known across Canada as national president of the 25,000-member Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1951-52, is on redeployment.

He'll keep his foot firmly on the executive gas pedal, doesn't foresee any drastic policy turns and will steadily follow the course set by Mr. Bryce, a former teacher and newspaperman who attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the Second World War.

As is common in most organizations dependent on the voluntary co-operation of individuals, governments, business and industry, money will be one of Mr. Farmer's biggest problems.

"Our $150,000 budget is totally inadequate if we want to do—for that, we need at least $300,000."

One-third of the council's income comes from the federal and provincial governments. The balance is contributed by business, mainly insurance companies, and industry.

Stronger legal action against drunken driving and driver education for children's youth are foremost on Mr. Farmer's mind. The subjects quicken his pace instantly of speaking.

"Every year, some 230,000 youngsters reach driver age. I want them to take advantage of the government - sponsored course, says Mr. Farmer, a father of four.

"We have to reach them before, not after, they get their licences. With young people it's the same for everything; once they get their papers they think they know everything."

ROSE THROUGH RANKS

With his wife, the former Genevieve Gibbs of Vancouver, he spends his free hours listening to hi-fi, and in the summer at a cottage. He also curls and bowls.

He considers his quarter-century career with English Electric Co. of Canada Ltd. at Toronto, St. Catharines, Ont., and Winnipeg a long preparation for the post he now fills.

An honors graduate in applied science and electrical engineering of the University of British Columbia, he joined the company in 1939 and climbed through the various stages of sales and contracts engineer to managerial positions.

He resigned in August last year to move his family from the company's Toronto headquarters to the capital.

"Our work isn't very spectacular," he says. "The council is a national, co-ordinating organization. Most work-a-day with the public is done by the provincial and local councils. We listen, talk, organize, promote, prod, persuade."

MOVIE: "Time Without Pity" (13)

DIRECTOR AT WORK — Leon Major, the guiding light behind Halifax's Neptune Theatre, directs a battle scene from Shakespeare's Henry IV Part 1 in which Holspur, played by David Renton (left), and Prince Hal, played by Paul Massey, fight to the death. Neptune's artistic director says he has received several attractive offers to direct elsewhere, but he suspects he will still be in Halifax next year. Major has been at Neptune since its founding four years ago. Skeptics doubted that the repertory theatre could make a go of it, but with government assistance it now seems to have found a firm financial footing. (CP Photo)

By DAVE NICHOLSON

HALIFAX (CP)—Although it faces loss of the man who nurtured it into an artistic success, the Neptune Theatre seems assured of remaining the solid community theatre that many skeptics doubted it could ever become.

The Neptune now is in its fourth season, a surprise enough for some who felt a permanent repertory theatre might prove an undertaking too ambitious for this conservative port city.

After several preliminary studies which indicated a theatre could survive with government assistance, the Neptune settled into an intimate home converted from a dingy downtown movie house.

Named after North America's first theatre established by French playwright Marc Lescarbot in 1606 on the shores of Nova Scotia's Annapolis Basin, the Neptune was guided from the start by Leon Major.

Major, a slim, cigar-chewing 30-year-old native of Toronto, had already won an impressive reputation in Canadian theatrical circles. He added to it by developing Neptune into one of Canada's most successful regional theatres.

Major recently confirmed that he has received several attractive offers to direct elsewhere.

"I suspect I'll be at Neptune for the 1967 season," Major said. After that, it may be "somewhere in Canada, New York or London. . . . It's a tough decision to make."

NOT LOSING MONEY

Although it may be losing its artistic director, the theatre seems to have found a firm financial footing.

This year, with a $272,000 grant from the provincial government, the theatre is relatively secure.

Charles Reynolds, an ebullient 32-year-old Irishman who left his job as a CBC producer here in 1965 to become the theatre's administrator, feels Neptune has overcome its major financial problems.

Reynolds says about 40 to 45 per cent of the theatre's budget comes from government sources, "but no theatre in Canada could expect to survive without government assistance."

"If we can keep our box office running at 65 per cent, there's no problem. Last year it was about 72 per cent and we don't think it will go down this year."

Reynolds admits the selection of plays goes a long way in determining the box office, and the theatre comes under fire both from those who want fewer comedies and those who feel the theatre is "pushing culture" by offering too much serious fare.

"You can't win, no matter what season you choose," said Major, a 13-year veteran of the professional theatre. "We get criticized for doing too much Miller and for doing too much Shakespeare."

POOR ATTENDANCE

One of the surprises this year was the poor attendance figures early in the season for A Shot in the Dark, the farcical play in this year's six-play schedule.

Also running this season are Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part One, Arsenic And Old Lace, Arthur Miller's The Crucible, The Physicists by modern Swiss writer Friedrich Durrenmatt and The Sleeping Bag, comedy by Halifax author-surgeon Arthur Murphy, one of the earliest supporters of Neptune.

Although Major feels the artistic standard of the theatre has improved "tremendously" since it opened and believes it thinks its community's reserve towards Neptune has yet to be fully conquered.

"One of the major problems is coming into a community where the theatrical art is foreign," he said. "Most people will naturally distrust the foreigner and the foreigner's product and I doubt we have really yet succeeded. . . . This is probably the major problem, not finances."

Despite his plans' eventually to leave Neptune, Major said he "will never be able to divorce myself completely from Neptune. There's far too much of myself in this theatre to ever leave it for good."

Lorne Greene in Real Life As Proud as Pa Cartwright

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lorne Greene often exhibits pride in his fictional sons Hoss and Little Joe in television's most-seen series, "Bonanza." But you should hear him talk about his real-life off-spring.

"I'm just finding," he announced triumphantly as he arrived for lunch a block from where they film the western show watched weekly in 62 countries.

The cause of his jubilation: Daughter Linda, 21, had just received straight A's as a third-year English major at the University of California at Los Angeles.

And for a second year her twin brother Chuck had made the dean's list for scholarship at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The good grades, not particularly a novelty for his children, he said, were just another source of pleasure in finds generally in a life that has brought him from Canadian newscaster to father figure to thousands.

"It's fun" crops up frequently as he discusses aspects of a career that has made him a millionaire-plus in seven years.

GETS MANY LETTERS

As wise, stalwart Ben Cartwright he gets letters like: "When I grow up, I'm going to become a father exactly like you."

"I like to work at about 18 levels at once," said Greene, 51 and barrel-chested, with hair that started turning to its present grayishness when he was 21.

"Recordings. Rodeos. Personal appearances. It's fun, and I'm a ham. I feel 20 years younger than I did 20 years ago.

"I enjoy being with people, even in audiences."

Greene did a night-club act in Nevada a year ago because: "It's fun—and fun if you can do it." The act included a song, "I'm an old cowhand—from TV, land." Also a "Bonanza" speech as Shakespeare might have written it:

"What say you? The Indians have ambushed my son? A horse, a horse. My Pandereus for a horse—no, not you, Hoss."

WILL READ SPEECHES

Also, he and the barrel-chested Hoss (Dan Blocker) were planning an appearance shortly at the University of Tampa, in tuxedos and capes, reading excerpts from the writings and speeches of Lincoln, Churchill, Kennedy and others.

And on leaving home from a spring vacation trip to Europe with his second wife, Nancy, Greene caught an eight-foot-two marlin off Jamaica.

Now it's back to filming the eighth year of "Bonanza" before the Ottawa native who came to stardom via other TV shows after Broadway acting.

"Boring after seven years? Anything becomes boring if you allow it to. But Mike Landon, (who plays Little Joe) and Dan and I get along so well together we spark each other.

"Like today, we had a scene where I was giving Little Joe hell for getting one involved in a bet. We started forgetting the script and suddenly it became alive and very funny. It was fun."

Bell Income For Six Months Up Slightly

MONTREAL (CP)—Bell Telephone Co. of Canada had lower net income in the second quarter of this year—$35,786,229 or 80 cents a share, compared with $35,879,677 or 75 cents in the similar 1966 period.

For the first six months of this year, however, income showed a slight increase on the strength of the company's first-quarter performance.

In the six months ended June 30, net income was $42,294,816 compared with $42,050,137 in 1965.

Net income in the 12-month period ended June 30 rose to $86,799,828 from $84,080,285 on operating revenues for the period of $361,781,759 compared with $365,638,602.

In an interim statement to shareholders President Marcel Vincent said that while operating revenues in the second quarter rose 8.7 per cent, expenses were up 18.6 per cent. This was due to higher costs for materials and labor.

OMA Advises Doctors to Work Against OMSIP

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Medical Association has advised its member doctors to deal directly with patients and not the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan.

In a pamphlet entitled Your Doctor and OMSIP, issued for distribution through doctors' offices, the OMA said the advice was given because the patient, not the government should control medical services.

"If doctors were to be paid by OMSIP, which is the government, instead of by you, you might wake up some morning and find your doctor working for the government, not you," the pamphlet says.

It says doctors are more willing to work for doctor-run plans such as Physicians Services Inc.

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, write our Circulation Department.

Smugglers Use Tourist Flow To Get Goods Into Red Lands

VIENNA (AP) — Smuggling across the Iron Curtain has become a profitable business — boosted by the scarcity of consumer goods in Communist eastern Europe and the appeal of western products.

The great tourist stream that treks eastward each summer gives smugglers a chance to slip across the Iron Curtain under the noses of customs officials.

Nearly 4,000,000 cars entered Yugoslavia last year and Czechoslovak border checkpoints averaged up to 3,500 border crossings a day.

A typical case of modern smuggling was told by a Czech-oslovak customs official, Frantisek Misarik of the Mikulov checkpoint.

"One day last August I had to take cars of a long line of cars with weekend tourists and Austrians visiting their relatives in Czechoslovakia," he said.

"I checked a Viennese driver in an American-made car who was making his 28th trip to Czechoslovakia. I took a closer look at his car and noticed that the space behind the rear seat was rather large.

"While I bent over for a close examination, the driver smoked more and more nervously.

"I called a mechanic who un-screwed the seat, pulled the rear seat and pulled out 180 nylon coats that had been neatly stacked in this secret compart-ment."

Another smuggler passed the Mikulov checkpoint 47 times in nine months, shuttling back and forth with foodstuffs, watches, radios, transistor radios and with the leather jackets for Czechoslo-vakia and Czechoslovak cam-eras and antiques for Austria.

A Vienna chauffeur stuffed the seats of his car with money, fixed a dozen radios under the dashboard, filled the space around the engine with watches and built a special compartment under the floor for lighters and ballpoint pens.

Iron Curtain smuggling is a two-way job. Such items as postage stamps and antique plaques are being smuggled out of Hungary, diamonds and old paintings out of Czechoslovakia.

Smugglers who get caught face prison terms of several years, fines equal to the dollar they would have had to pay for contraband goods, and confisca-tion of goods they were caught trying to take or buy trans-ported them in.

Oil Companies' Promotional Gimmicks Please Some Motorists, Annoy Others

By JIM FOLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Matching pictures of tigers or flying together have the imitation money are among the promotional gimmicks Canadian motorists have encountered this year when they buy gasoline. They are offered a jobase of other prizes ranging from steak knives to a combined TV, stereo and radio.

It's all part of a campaign by oil companies to win the business of the motorist who hasn't decided which brand he prefers.

Some drivers are happy at the prospect of getting something for nothing. Others believe the costs of the contests to the companies and dealers are tacked into the pump price of the gasoline.

William Lewelis, president of the Halifax-Dartmouth Retail Gasoline Dealers' Association, says: "You know and I know that every time a sales promotion is put on it costs somebody money."

But representatives of the oil companies, questioned in a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press, said motorists are not paying for the contests.

Ken Ardill, a spokesman for Shell Canada Ltd., said after his company's Match-the-Bill contest: "The company was not aware that any citizens where dealers raised their prices to cover the cost of their participation in the contest."

Spokesmen for the British American Oil Co. Ltd. and Imperial Oil Ltd. say the same thing. Increased sales balanced off the cost of the contests.

These three companies run the main contests although others also are offering "chances" at prizes.

The Imperial Oil customer receives a card. He pools off the corresponding to four pictures of three tigers. If two of the poses are similar he receives a translucent tiger. If all three are the same, a television set.

Each card bears a letter and if a motorist collects cards spelling the word tiger he gets a chance at a combined TV, stereo and radio.

BA runs the Musical Showcase contest. Customers' names are placed in a drum and four are drawn as partners to four contestants on the show. If a contestant wins in a quiz, his partner also wins something.

In the Shell contest the driver tried to match halves of imitation bills. If he matched the two parts he received the cash. The initials—BA, "For the great majority of the market they have no effect whatever. They buy their gas, ah they always have, at their neighborhood station."

SALES BOOSTED

All of the companies questioned said increases in sales were gratifying. They declined to give the percentage of increase.

The dealers weren't so cautious. One dealer in New Brunswick said his gasoline sales rocketed by a whopping 80 per cent during the contest period.

At first companies thought motorists would jump from station to station, buying gasoline in small quantities, in order to participate in more contests.

"It was true for a time but the novelty has worn off," says Joe Loftus, manager of an Imperial Esso station in Toronto. "Our sales are mostly fill-ups as they always have been."

Figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that during the last 17 years gasoline prices have increased by only 11.8 points on the 1935 100-point base. During the same period costs of health and personal care rose by 72.1 points, recreation and reading 56.1, housing 43.1, food 42.5.

"Prices are kept down by more efficient means of manufacturing and especially by the cut - throat competition that characterizes the industry," said Mr. Ardill.

WIDE PRICE-RANGE

Prices vary considerably from region to region and province to province, the survey showed.

New Brunswick prices are among the highest, ranging from 39.8 cents a gallon in Bathurst to 47.4 at Saint John for regular grade. Premium in each case costs five cents more.

At the other end of the scale is Alberta, where prices vary from 28.9 to 40.9 cents for regular; 43.9 to 49.9 for premium.

Most Nova Scotia motorists pay 45.4 cents for regular and 53.4 for premium. In Halifax the prices are about two cents less.

Prince Edward Island prices are about 45.5 and 52.5 cents. In Newfoundland a gallon of regular sells at 43 cents, premium at 54.

The Montreal price is 41.9 cents for regular and 46.9 for premium. Metropolitan pay 45.9 and 50.9 cents respectively.

The basic price in Winnipeg and Regina is 43.9 cents for regular and five cents more for premium.

Vancouver and Victoria prices range from 40.9 to 42.9 for regular grade and 45.9 to 47.1 for premium.

Main reasons for the difference in prices between provinces are differing transportation costs and differing provincial taxes.

DEALER GETS 3 CENTS

Taxes vary from a high of eight cents gallon by Newfoundland to 12 cents levied by Alberta. New Brunswick and Ontario take 18 cents, Manitoba 17 cents, Quebec and Ontario 18 cents, Saskatchewan 19 cents and British Columbia 13 cents.

Although pump prices differ most service station dealers across the country take home about eight cents for every gallon sold.

The rest goes back to the big petroleum companies which supply the gasoline. They pay about two cents a gallon as federal tax and pocket the balance—from 13 to 21 cents for regular and from 23 to 26 cents for premium.

Prices in many provinces—including Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia—have gone up a cent or two during the last two years. In Quebec and Saskatchewan have cut prices one to 1½ cents in P.E.I. during the last three years. The increase usually is in response to 4 higher provincial tax.

"But we also did it to pay for our soaring overhead and labor costs," says Edward Alborough, manager of a Toronto service station. "Rent, taxes, labor, insurance, machinery—they all are going up. We've got to get money somewhere to pay the bills."

'Freedom Meal' Is Produced In Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Laboratory efforts have produced a new processed cereal called Nebraska Freedom Meal, and Nebraska sponsors are hoping that the product will become a major resource in combating world hunger.

The cereal's ingredients include grain sorghum, soybeans, each 2 mlio, wheat and corn flour, 15 per cent soy meal and 10 per cent dry skim milk, plus vitamin and mineral supplements.

The product was developed under Nebraska's program of research into new uses for farm products. Governor Frank Morrison says it is the first such food to use milo as a major ingredient.

Cooked in boiling water for one or two minutes, the cereal produces a bland mush, high in protein (30 per cent) and particularly suited to meeting the nutritional needs of infants and

Communist Bloc's Quebec Romania's Communist Leaders Adept in Quiet Revolution

By JOHN BEST

BUCHAREST (CP)—The leaders of Communist Romania have proved their practitioners of the art of the quiet revolution.

They have carried off their campaign for greater autonomy with a measure of success that might even impress Quebec's practitioners of the same art.

Parallels between what has been taking place here and in Quebec, both in a province-seeking to assert a stronger position within the existing national framework.

But many of the same economic, cultural and political factors are involved in the two movements.

In both Quebec and Romania there is a determination to take stricter charges of the economy and to guard against excessively outside influence.

In the case of Romania the drive is in terms of restricting integration into a Moscow-dominated economic blueprint for Eastern Europe. In Quebec, one aim has been to bring about a better balance between domestic and American capital in enterprises controlled by outside interests, particularly American and English-speaking Canadian.

In short, both Romania and Quebec feel they have had enough of economic domination from outside.

Both began their quiet revolutions about 1960, though it's easy to discern manifestations of discontent long before then. Both Romania is seeking to balance a predominantly agrarian economy with an intensive industrialization program.

Culturally, the most striking parallel lies in the fact that both Quebec and Romania are rediscovering ancient ties with France and nourishing them as a kind of outlet from the close embrace of English North America on the one hand and the Soviet bloc on the other.

"France is the most important foreign influence in our culture," says Alexandru Balaci, vice-president of the Romanian state committee for culture and art.

Such sentiments, widespread in Romania, correspond to efforts in Quebec to consolidate relations with France.

Romaniana, a Latin people, historically have looked westward, especially to France and Italy, for cultural nourishment and sustenance. One interpretation of the present independence of the government is that these ties have triumphed over the artificial, party-created ties to Moscow accepted by Romanian Communist leaders in the past.

Romanian leaders say the country is still committed to Communism but simply meant it to be their kind of communism, free of outside regulation.

In the same way, the Quebec government is by and large committed to the political system called Confederation. But it has insisted on room for manoeuvre in the realm by methods of co-ordination without any domination by the federal authorities.

The parallel could even be extended to the responses of Canada and Romania, both of which, in entirely different sets of circumstances, have felt obliged to accommodate their "rebels."

However, the response of the Canadian nation to Quebec's demands has been far more active than that of Russia to Romania. A succession of accommodations have been made, especially in the fiscal field.

Russia's acceptance of the Romanian rebellion has been more passive and has the completion of a grudging tolerance. No special concessions have been made though thus far Russia has refrained from invoking any sanctions, either.

One gets the impression that Russia is still busy working out its response to Romania's new look.

In one way, the Romanian revolution has been even quieter than Quebec's. It has not been marked by a dramatic change of leadership such as occurred when Jean Lesage and his reform-minded government took office in 1960.

Romania's revolution began under Communist party first secretary Gheorge Georghiu - Dej, who died last year right on after his death last year.

Incidents Giving Rise to Charge Of Church Intervention Reviewed

MONTREAL (CP) — Ever since the surprise victory of the Union Nationale in the June 5 Quebec election, discussion has been going on about the role the church may have played during the campaign in the predominantly French and Roman Catholic province.

Some Liberals have said priests and parish publications contributed to their party's defeat. The clergy have denied they sought to influence the vote.

One of the first to mention the religious issue was Liberal leader Jean Lesage the day after voters had inserted his government, electing 55 Union Nationale, 51 Liberals and two independents in the 108-seat legislative assembly. The election was the first held on a Sunday.

Mr. Lesage said he had learned that the defeats of his labor minister, Carrier Fortin, in Sherbrooke, and of Albert Morissette, a minister without portfolio, in Trois-Rivieres, were attributed to fears by the clergy and the people about the threat to Quebec's religious system of education.

BLAMED CLERGY

Mr. Fortin blamed intervention by the Catholic clergy for Liberal setbacks in the Eastern Townships. He said reporters of two cases in which he said the clergy were involved.

One involved le Messager de St. Michel, a weekly publication of the archdiocese of Sherbrooke distributed after mass to parishioners throughout the eastern Townships.

Mr. Fortin said le Messager quoted Time magazine as suggesting that the report of the Parent commission report on Quebec education would lead, to the establishment of schools that were almost as far as religion is concerned. It describes Time as a hot-wing magazine.

The Parent commission turned over the last two volumes of its 5-volume report to the Lesage government May 31 at a time when the election campaign was in full swing. In one of the final volumes, the commission recommended that, where practical, all schools be brought under the authority of school boards, whether pupils are Roman Catholic, Protestant or of other denominations. At present there are separate Roman Catholic and Protestant school boards.

EXEMPTION PERMITTED

The report said parents whose children attend public schools should be exempted if they have the right by law to ask that their children be exempt from religious instruction and services.

In general, said the commission, Quebec should be recognized as having a "pluralist" system of public and confessional schools in the province should "respect the diversity of religious options of parents and pupils."

None of the recommendations in the four volumes has yet been adopted by the government and the new Union Nationale government will decide whether they will be.

The second volume of intervention mentioned by Mr. Fortin involved the parish priest of St. Malo, in Compton county which was retained by the Union Nationale. The priest asked his congregation to remain silent mass to hear what, Mr. Fortin said, turned out to be a speech warning that the church's humanitarian educational work in Liberal government policies.

Abbe Roland Lemaguy, parish priest at St. Malo, denied the charge. He said neither the election nor politics were mentioned at a meeting which had dealt solely with the problem of transporting children to and from school.

Abbe Lemaguy said his parishioners hoped to be able to keep pupils of seventh, eighth and ninth year in their own or a neighboring parish rather than have to send them to a regional school some distance away. The meeting was held election day because the problem was urgent as the deadline approaching deadline for hiring teachers, he said.

At the outset of the meeting, said Abbe Melchior Hamel, he had cautioned his parishioners that the question before the meeting was above politics and should not be linked in any way with politics.

Mgr Jean-Paul Roy of St. Malo said he was at the meeting and nothing political was discussed.

Sherbrooke La Tribune published the letter which the bulletin distributed election day to parishioners of Notre-Dame de L'Assomption church in Waterville, also in Compton constituency. The bulletin dealt with the new school schools contained in sections of the Parent commission report as the threat to Catholic port.

Canon Achille Lacroix, pastor of the church, told La Tribune the bulletin was made up of clippings from various publications and that he was no other comment to make.

Montreal La Presse printed extracts from a parish bulletin distributed election day in the Saint-Agnes-de-Dundarn parish in Victoriaville, 14rgest town in Arthabaska constituency.

At one point the bulletin said:

"It is up to us all to build our national future. But it is illogical to want to build by demolishing to the ground the structures erected before our time. Our collectivity will grow normally or abnormally according to whether it remains faithful to its traditional faith and the French culture or whether it strays from the practice of religion and declarationless de school national institutions.

"You carry out a Christian act in voting. Your vote itself will be Christian if you give it to the candidate and to the political party, which in the judgment of your conscience, are the most likely to be concerned with the religious, moral, cultural and material welfare of Quebecers. . . ."

Mngr. Alphonse Roux, pastor and author of the bulletin, told La Presse in an interview that he wanted to give the congregation some doctrinal matter to think about and it was pure coincidence that the article had appeared election day.

Mngr. Roux said he was sure Mr. Morissette was going to retain Arthabaska for the Liberals and he was surprised to hear later that the Union Nationale had won.

La Presse quoted a statement from the bishop's palace at Nicolet under whose jurisdiction Victoriaville is. A spokesman at the palace who asked that his name be withheld said that Mngr. Roux had overlooked the possible political implications of his bulletin.

Rene Levesque, welfare minister in the Liberal government, also raised the religious issue. He said that for three weeks before the election political statements appeared in bulletins of Montreal parishes.

Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, archbishop of Montreal, ordered an investigation, he said election. Later, the cardinal's spokesman said it could find no basis for Mr. Levesque's charges.

Religious - political controversy is not new to Quebec. Cardinal Leger has said he is not afraid to speak out openly for years.

In the early 1870s, the federal Liberal party became embroiled in a controversy with the Catholic church. Several church leaders openly fought the Liberal party on Ocan Vaughan, who was the most liberal of all Communist countries and, like Austria, a neutral in the cold war.

Most of the Yugoslavs are classed as economic refugees, having left their homeland to get better jobs—or just any jobs.

Yugoslavia's economic reform has resulted in substantial unemployment. Because, with emphasis now on sound business principles rather than rigid planning, some state enterprises, are being forced to close down and thousands of workers have been laid out.

At that, the influx would not be as great were it not for the open border between Austria and Yugoslavia. It's almost as easy to get across as the Canada-U.S border, and neither country wants to do anything about it for fear of losing tourist trade.

DISLIKE CHANGES

The movement of economic refugees offers an interesting insight into difficulties faced by Communist regimes in straightening out the economic mess in which most have find themselves.

Their people know that they can't get rid of the system; they can't toggle them that. But they can refuse to provide the hard labor to help make it work. At the same time they have come to expect such things as low transport fares, low rents and security.

Apart from the economic refugees, there has been a 100-per-cent increase in political refugees during the last year or so. Some 1,675 came last year from Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The vast majority took advantage of increased East-to-West travel to defect. Many remake their break, simply defecting after coming here on tour or visit to relatives.

Relatively few come the way of the great Hungarian migration of 1956 when the overland flight across the border. It is too dangerous. Both the Austrian and Czechoslovak borders are heavily guarded.

On the Hungarian side of the 325-mile Austro-Hungarian frontier, a new system of electronic devices and guard towers has been laid out.

This replaces a complex of minefields that did their job until this year. The mines produced strain in relations between the two countries when some washed into Austrian territory during floods and caused embarrassing and unsuspecting farmers.

Ninety-one refugees made it into Austria last year from Hungary via the overland route. Others are believed to have perished in the attempt.

Refugees Flood Into Austria, Most of Them From Tito-land

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, found on a visit to Austria that, despite the widely-held belief, the flow of refugees from communism has remained at a steady pace. He tells about it in this story.

By JOHN BEST

VIENNA (CP)—Seen from this outpost of capitalism in central Europe, the "Iron Curtain" is still a barrier between East and West, and communism remains a system that people flee from—if they get the chance.

Refugees flow into Austria in a steady stream, a surprise to anyone with the notion that the movement practically ended with the great exodus from Hungary followed the 1956 revolution.

Last year 9,000 refugees came here, says a spokesman for the UN office for refugees. Ironically, 65 per cent came from Yugoslavia, which was the most liberal of all Communist countries and, like Austria, a neutral in the cold war.

Most of the Yugoslavs are classed as economic refugees, having left their homeland to get better jobs—or just any jobs.

Yugoslavia's economic reform has resulted in substantial unemployment. Because, with emphasis now on sound business principles rather than rigid planning, some state enterprises, are being forced to close down and thousands of workers have been laid out.

Ninety-one refugees made it into Austria last year from Hungary via the overland route. Others are believed to have perished in the attempt.

Qualified observers here have suggested that the new barrier is more formidable than real. They calculate that so far only about 10 miles of the barrier have been erected by the more sophisticated system.

However, few are likely to take a chance, not knowing precisely where the installations are.

In at least one frontier area, a six-yard-wide strip of land has been cleared and mined. This has been cleared and levelled by the authorities to offer a free field of vision.

Next there is a strip of barbed wire, then a 12-metre-wide strip of carefully smoothed soil in which footprints are immediately visible for distance. Then there is a wide, heavily guarded zone containing electrified barbed wire fences.

Despite these restrictions, however, Canada last year admitted fewer refugees, 1,928 from Curtain "unsponsored refugees"—those without relatives or specific jobs to go to in Canada. Lesser numbers were admitted from Italy, Germany and France.

A group of aspiring refugees that is not likely to make it are 20 Polish grazers who crossed into Austria not long ago from Czechoslovakia. They wanted to go to Canada but Canadian immigration laws bar the admission of grazers.

Australia and the United States are not likely to accept them either. So the outlook is that they will have to return to life under communism.

There are believed to be about 1,000 other Polish grazers in Yugoslavia waiting to see how the first group makes out.

Nasser's New Economic Plan Means 7 Lean Years in Egypt

Egypt has just embarked on a seven-year economic plan at a time when she is short of food, funds and foreign exchange. Experts predict seven lean years, says Canadian Press reporter who visited Egypt during a swing through the Middle East.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAIRO (CP)—Egypt's modern pharaoh has dreamed a dream and wise men interpret it to mean seven lean years in the land.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser's dream is of self-sufficient prosperity, of doubling the national income every 10 years. His Joseph, Prime Minister Zakaria Mohieddin, says the dream demands a heavy measure of austerity in the new seven-year economic plan.

In the biblical story of Joseph and the pharaoh's dream, the lean period was preceded by a saving seven years of plenty. In the modern version, Egypt embarks on the seven austere years after a prodigal period of spending that leaves the country pressed for foods, funds and vital foreign exchange.

The seven-year plan, officially dated July 1, 1965, to June 30, 1972, has just been launched after debate that delayed decision on its final form by a year. Since the decision, new developments threaten to make the coming years even leaner than the economists planned.

A plague of bollworm threatens the cotton crop, a mainstay of the economy that accounts for 60 per cent of Egypt's foreign earnings. At the same time, the United States has shown reluctance in meeting Egypt's request for more easy - pay wheat shipments — aid that formed an important prop for Egypt's first development plan between 1960 and 1965.

Austerity already imposed in Egypt's controlled economy includes a ban on all but first - priority imports. The government has permitted a pinching rise in prices. Spending power has been siphoned off through a compulsory payroll savings program.

Meat, a luxury that became regular fare for ordinary Egyptians with the spread of prosperity under the Nasser regime, now may be purchased only four days a week —an effective curb on consumption where most families, without refrigerators, must eat meat the day it is bought.

In Cairo, the stores along Kasr el Nil Street display few luxuries. Beside the Nile, construction is suspended on the shell of a new hotel. New ships lie idle in Port Fuad for lack of foreign exchange to buy engines.

Some of these lapses are the inevitable result of the rush to social and industrial progress that has lifted the people out of subsistence poverty and laid the basis for a diverse range of manufacturing, from steel and chemicals to television sets and sewing machines.

TARGET DATE CLOSER

Political and social demands complicated economic planning.

Before the 1960-65 plan was drawn, the economists set a target of doubling national income in 20 years. Nasser insisted that the target time must be 10 years in order to outpace the growth in population—an exhausting pressure on resources that has increased the count of mouths to feed by 4,000,000 to 30,000,000 in five years.

Looking to Egypt's role as leader of progressive forces in the Arab world has diverted resources into such projects as supporting the republican cause in Yemen with 78,000 troops for four years.

Planning has sought to fulfil two demands of Nasser's national charter at the same time—building heavy industries as "the only bases for modern industry" and providing consumer goods to meet "the established right of the masses of our people to make up for their long deprivation."

The first development plan provided for investment of 1,500,000,000 Egyptian pounds (about $3,750,000,000 at the inflated official exchange rate) in five years.

By early last year, the heavy rate of investment, foreign debts, the drain of the Yemen war and a private spending spree prompted by relative prosperity had caused a major economic crisis.

Mohieddin introduced a stabilizing trend when he took over as prime minister last Oct. 1. He then won a partial victory for restraint in the face of pressure to double the rate of investment in the second development plan. Planned investment of £3,100,000,000 now will be spread over seven years instead of five.

Further, the government is placing at least verbal emphasis on more quick-return investment while waiting for costly but unproductive or inefficient projects such as the Aswan high dam and the Helwan steel works to start paying.

Austerity will tax the patience of the people. Restraint in public spending will trouble men of the left impatient to press towards fulfilment of the pharaoh's dream. The years of the second development plan are likely to be lean ones for the government as well as the country.

Tomorrow: Egypt cracks down on corruption and land-grabbing.

Camp Good - - For Parents

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — God bless summer camp!

It's good for the children—but even better for the parents.

One of the major hypocrisies of our time is the idea that parents deserve credit for the financial sacrifice they make to send their children to summer camp for two weeks or a month.

"I bed to borrow the money, but it's worth it," they say smugly. "The kids really need the fresh air and sunshine. It does wonders for them."

The truth of the matter is that most modern parents would gladly hold up a bank, if necessary, to raise the funds to send their children into summer exile. Anything to get them out of sight and hearing for a while.

Of course, the first night they're away it is a bit hard on Mother. The house is so silent without the thunder of little hooves.

"I miss my babies," she wails.

FATHER LIES

"Yeah, me too," Hes Father, cheerfully mixing them a second martini.

But by the third day they openly admit they are having the time of their lives. Peace, it's wonderful.

No hideous rock 'n' roll music blares from the phonograph. Cobwebs begin to gather on the unused telephone. Mother no longer has to pick up scattered clothing from the floor. Dad can listen to any television program he wants — or even turn the darned thing off entirely. They can go to the movies without having to pay a teenage baby sitter the downpayment on her college education.

They get a sadistic parental pleasure out of reading the mail from Camp Wah-eepoh-poo—Indian for "land of happy waters."

QUOTES LETTER

A friend of mine received this letter recently from his small daughter:

"Daddy, come get me. My counselor is a real ratfink. If we don't do eggzactly what she says, she curses us."

"Are you going to the recess?" I inquired.

"Are you crazy" he replied. "I'm going to send her counselor a five-pound box of candy, a case of coke bills, and a list of swear words my wife won't allow me to use in our house."

The trouble with summer camps — from the parents' viewpoint—is that they end all too soon.

"Summer camp sure did them a world of good," Father says wistfully to Mother. camps for children? And how about spring and autumn camps?"

Express Workers Asked to Return To Railway Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Union leaders have called on striking express employees in Montreal to return to their railway jobs today but there were doubts that the strikers would comply.

The walkout, officially described as "wildcat," began Monday at the CNR, where 1,500 men were involved, and spread to 300 more employees at the CPR here.

Express shipments of freight in and out of the city were stopped as of Tuesday night and the CNR also reported most of its fast overnight trains on the Montreal - Toronto run were cancelled.

From Toronto came word Tuesday night that 300 CPR express-handlers had walked off their jobs in sympathy with the Montrealers. There was no possibility the walkout in Toronto would spread.

Many strikers in Montreal began their walkouts in apparent protest against the pace at which negotiations for a new work contract was being achieved.

The men at the CNR here belong to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC). The CPR men are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Express and Station Employees, another CLC union.

CALL FOR RESUMPTION

The call for a work resumption went out Tuesday night from Donald Montgomery, the leadcity for Johannesburg, South Africa.

The Rhodesian government has refused to comment on the incident.

A sixth lecturer picked up in the police raid, a Rhodesian, who was released Monday and left immediate for Johannesburg by the only way to London.

Police moves against the University College staff and students followed months of unrest culminating in the suspension of 35 students after a series of sit-ins in the lecturers were detained.

The college was three premature-turday closed for the winter vacation. It is scheduled to reopen Sept. 28.

SIGN ACCORD

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)—China signed an agreement Tuesday to supply 100,000 tons of rice to Pakistan. The United States has agreed to ship Pakistan 400,000 tons of grain.

Rhodesia Releases Prisoners

They were an Italian, Giovanni Arrighi, 36; a Briton, Richard Whitaker, 30; a Dutchman, Jaap van Velzen, 44; and a Norwegian, Axel Sommerfelt, 46.

Two other Britons, Ian Henderson, 31, and Elizabeth Joyce, 24, were understood to be still in prison, but were also expected to leave today.

DETAINED WEDNESDAY

The eight lecturers were picked up in a dawn raid on the university Wednesday, a student who was detained at the same time was unexpectedly released Monday and left immediately for Johannesburg, South Africa.

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Factory worker Stanley King Monday was put on a year's probation and ordered to pay £83.33 for windows he broke in the police station here with a hammer. Killer Knew He Was Mentally Ill, Asked Autopsy in Notes

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Charles J. Whitman "knew he was mentally distressed" and requested an autopsy to determine why, Police Chief Robert A. Miles said Tuesday.

Miles said he based this conclusion on three notes left by the dead former marine, who killed his wife and his mother, rode to the 27th floor of the University of Texas tower and killed 30 more persons with rifle shots.

The Austin police chief discussed the notes with reporters after refusing to disclose their wording. Miles said lawyers advised this course and the notes may never be made public.

Whitman left one note beside the body of his wife at their home, another in the apartment of his mother and a third on the mother's door to advise calling the man who "sleeping late."

"Considering the situation," Miles said, "he was quite rational in his notes. . . . He seemed to be completely believe by the things that were happening to him. . . .

"He said he had decided to kill his wife and mother but didn't know why he intended to do it—whether it was compassion or love or wanting to spare them embarrassment.

"He said if there was a here-to after, they are there, and if not, they are out of their pain and misery. . . .

"He had decided the world was not worth living in . . . (Del) there was nothing to indicate he would go to the tower and do what he did. . . .

"He asked that an autopsy be performed to try to find what it was that was making him do these things. . . . He had had severe headaches."

Miles had said earlier that the notes stated that Whitman "hated his father with a mortal passion." He also had told reporters Whitman consulted a doctor but "decided to fight it alone."

Quebec Hospital Strike Settled

MONTREAL (CP) — Agreement was reached early today in Quebec hospital strike between hospital administrators and Quebec Federation of Labor representatives, a spokesman for the National Federation of Service said.

The spokesman said the 32,500 striking non - medical workers will be asked to vote today on a new work contract. Results of the voting throughout the province were expected to be made available by 6 p.m.

If negotiants of the nation's members approve the contract, work will resume in Quebecs 320 strike - hit hospitals, the spokesman said.

The union said it will recommend that the hospital workers accept an agreement. Voting meetings were being organized to take place simultaneously across Quebec by each of the unions involved in the strike.

The strike began July 16 over wage dispute.

Terms of the approved contract were not given.

The two parties continued to meet early today to discuss final details of the agreement, the union spokesman said.

They have been negotiating since last Monday night and have had only one break since.

Mr. Pratte was named administrator Monday night and was given full authority to sign a contract with the workers union under a Quebec order-in-council that placed 138 of the provinces hospitals under a government trusteeship.

Both Mr. Pratte and Paul-Emile Dalpe, president of the National Federation of Services which represents the workers, had expressed confidence earlier that the strike would be settled today.

The union is affiliated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Unions.

The workers, representatives accepted during the weekend a 35¢ an hour increase to bring average weekly wage of $69, on condition the hospitals, represented by the Quebec Hospital Association, agreed to clauses dealing with promotion and certain union rights.

The hospital Association refused this and as a result the government placed the hospitals under trusteeship.

The Quebec government has control over privately - owned hospitals through the Hospital Insurance Act, passed in 1964, which gives it a right to say how government money is spent.

In addition to ordering a trusteeship over the hospitals vad appointing the administrator, the government announced that Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal will head an inquiry into labor-management relations in the provincial hospitals.

However, Premier Daniel Johnson said that should the dispute be settled immediately, the inquiry could be cancelled. The hospital workers include kitchen staffs, cleaners, orderlies, attendants, maintenance and transport workers. They have been seeking their first provincial contract with hospitals. Previously, the National Federation of Services negotiated an individual contract with each hospital.

Soviet Leaders Retained

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet parliament today re-elected Nikolai Podgorny as head of state and Leonid Brezhnev as Communist party leader. Podgorny, 63, has been Soviet president-chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet—since he replaced Anastas Mikoyan in November.

Today's re-election by the Supreme Soviet (parliament) came as no surprise.

Brezhnev, who has no state post, thus retains his leading position in the Soviet parliament.

The president and the Soviet government must by law be elected every four years following the election of a new Supreme Soviet.

Podgorny, once a protege of former premier Nikita Khrushchev, was also a member of the Communist party's ruling Presidium.

APPROVE COMMITTEES

Earlier, the parliament approved 11 new committees as part of a plan by Kremlin leaders to involve the country's 1,517 deputies more closely in running the government.

The new parliamentary standing commissions were approved by the two equal chambers of the Supreme Soviet. The house met for a joint session later to elect the presidium and approve a new government as required by the constitution after general elections.

The new commissions formed Tuesday will serve under parliamentary groups. There are now nine in each house.

It was not immediately clear how much power the commissions would have to influence the government.

The Soviet news agency Tass said they would discuss and analyze in advance questions submitted to the Supreme Soviet and make proposals on them. It said they would also check the activity of executive agencies.

Fears Tragedy, Disaster From Rhodesian Crisis

LONDON—(CP) — Reginald Maudling, Opposition spokesman on Commonwealth affairs, says failure to reach agreement on the Rhodesian crisis could end in tragedy and disaster.

Maudling, beaten by Edward Heath in the fight for the Conservative leadership last year, told a press conference today he would not elaborate on the nature of the disaster he envisaged because giving details might make it more likely to happen."

He believed, however, that Britain and the Ian Smith regime must reach agreement on the 1961 principles leading to majority rule and he is confident such agreement will be reached "because both sides realize the consequences" of failure.

Asked what he meant by majority rule, Maudling said it should be based on the Rhodesian given to educated non-whites over a period of time. He did not believe in a rigid timetable for majority rule but concluded it should be done over a period of less than 50 years.

The Conservative Opposition has shown some tendency to split on the Rhodesian issue with right-wing elements led by Lord Salsbury giving full sympathy to the Smith regime while the more moderate wing condemns Prime Minister Smith's seizure of independence.

Thatcher Alone Among Premiers Endorses Scheme

TORONTO (CP) — Most of Canada's premiers appeared in open revolt Tuesday against federal proposals for provincial participation in grants to government-sponsored medical care schemes.

"We want our own plan," said Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, leader of his province's delegation at the two-day meeting of provincial premiers that ended here Tuesday.

"No medical care plan imposed by Ottawa will be accepted," said Mr. Bertrand, Quebec deputy premier who also holds the education and justice portfolios.

Premier Daniel Johnson left before the talks began, returning to Quebec City to deal with a hospital workers strike.

Several premiers said there was no federal-provincial conference on medical care insurance and Mr. Bertrand said his government had already written Ottawa requesting this.

Ottawa has set July 1 next year as the deadline for provinces to establish medical care plans that are universal, portable, government - run and compulsory.

CALLS PROPOSALS 'RIGID'

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia described the federal proposals as "unnecessarily rigid."

"We haven't been too happy with the federal proposals," Mr. Stanfield said in an interview. "We have tried to bridge them (Ottawa) without success."

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick was critical of Ottawa's failure to consult the provinces before announcing its intentions. However, he was "still confident" the federal plan would go through "with revisions."

He advocated a federal-provincial conference of health ministers but Premier John Roberts of Ontario said the matter should be settled at the senior level."

Mr. Roberts indicated his government would be prepared to make changes in medical care insurance legislation to meet federal requirements but not necessarily as they stand now.

Premier Alexander Campbell of Prince Edward Island said he favors a federal-provincial conference on medical care.

He said his province is anxious to begin a program of medical care insurance but it will have "extreme difficulty" in meeting Ottawa's deadline.

SEEKS 'BETTER' SCHEME

Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba also called for Ottawa-provincial talks to seek a scheme not only "more acceptable to my province but to all provinces."

He called on the federal government to "abandon its medical care plan" and to work out consulting the provinces before drafting it.

Premier R. C. Manning of Alberta described Ottawa's proposals as the "most costly" that could be imagined.

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan said he agrees with federal medical care plans because his province has nothing to lose if they are implemented.

The talks attended by seven of the 10 premiers — Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia as well as Mr. Johnson were not there—dealt with other common provincial problems but the main focus was on medical care.

Financing higher education was considered as was uniformity in liquor laws, especially those dealing with highway regulations and interprovincial trucking.

Will Try To Curb Killings

By PAUL RECER

AUSTIN (AP) — Governor John B. Connally called a meeting with Texas law enforcement officials today to discuss the Charles Whitman homicide rampage Monday which left 16 persons dead and 31 wounded.

Meanwhile, a grand jury was made to fix the bodies of Whitman and his mother, the first person killed in the mass slaying, in their home town of Lake Worth, Fla., for burial Friday.

Having cut short a Latin-American tour because of the tragedy, Connally arrived in the state Tuesday night from Rio de Janeiro.

The governor, who narrowly escaped death by gunfire when he was wounded in the Dallas assassination of President John F. Kennedy, said he called the talks "in hopes of preventing a recurrence" of such shootings in Texas in the future.

In Washington, sponsors of a gun - control legislation, underproding from President Johnson, moved towards steering a bill to the Senate.

The possibility that brain disease caused the 25 - year - old Whitman to go berserk was raised Tuesday when a surgeon who performed an autopsy reported the former marine had a tumor which might have caused intense pain.

A University of Texas psychiatrist, Dr. Maurice Deane Hardy, said in a television interview last March 29 Whitman said he thought about getting up in the campus tower "with a deer rifle and shooting people."

Most of the victims in Whitman's outburst were felled by rifle shots from the tower's 27th-floor level.

Dr. Heatly said Whitman, who was described as "well-centered and egocentric," failed

Hear Rebels Have Slain Junta Chief, Gen. Ironsi

From AP-Reuters

LAGOS (CP) — Nigerian sources say rebels in Ibadan have executed Maj.-Gen. John Aguiyi - Ironsi, Nigeria's military junta chief, and Lt.-Col. Adekunle Fajuyi, military governor for the Western Region. The reports could not be confirmed.

The informants said Ironsi, who took over after a military coup last January and Fajuyi were main Friday. Ironsi was reported in Ibadan when northern officers blew up last Thursday and Friday.

News censorship was in force.

Lt. - Col. Chukwuemeka Ojukwu, military governor of the Eastern region, charged in a speech Monday night that rebels carried out "cold premeditated murder of officers from the Eastern region."

Ojukwu said the army rebels were demanding the country be split up regionally as the price of a ceasefire.

Lt.-Col. Yakubu Gowon, a 31-year-old northern Christian, assumed power Monday after saying he had obtained the support of a majority of the Supreme Council of which Ojukwu is a member.

Informed sources in Lagos said Gowon may have led the northerners in the Ibadan barracks uprising in Lagos Friday.

Meanwhile, Chief Awolowo of Ibadan, political leader released from detention by Nigeria's new military government, told reporters today he plans to return to politics.

Chief Awolowo and his party leader, Chief Obafemi Awolowo, a former premier of Western Nigeria, were both detained on charges of plotting to overthrow the former federal government.

Mao Dislikes Specialization, Will Turn All Into Soldiers

TOKYO (AP)—China, acting in the name of party chief Mao Tse-tung, has launched a broad new campaign to reduce specialization among its workers, peasants, students and soldiers.

"This brilliant idea of comrade Mao Tse-tung," the Peking People's Daily says, will turn China into "a great revolution ary school where the people take part both in industry and agriculture, in military as well as civilian affairs."

It will "turn everyone into a soldier," the Communist party newspaper says, "and greatly strengthen our combat preparedness. Should imperialism dare to invade us, it will be drowned in the great ocean of the people's war."

The program is contained in two directives from Mao received on Tuesday and today in editorials and reports on the 39th anniversary of the Chinese Communist Army.

There were indications that the purge announced Tuesday of high-ranking army officers, including chief of staff Lo Juiching, stemmed from opposition by these officers to Communist party newspaper says, "and greatly strengthen our professional body concentrating on military skills.

Mao's directives called on all citizens to study politics, military affairs and culture and to "criticize the bourgeoisie."

Army personnel, the Peking People's Daily, said "can also engage in agricultural production and side occupations."

LBJ Wants Congress to Share Onus for Ordering Strike End

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided U.S. Senate today seeks a compromise course under which Congress and President Johnson would share the political blame for any order to 35,000 striking machinists to return to their jobs on five grounded airlines.

"That's the crux of it," said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen. "Who accepts the onus?"

Organized labor strongly opposes any back-to-work order and with congressional elections four months away, Johnson has made clear that he doesn't want the assignment of issuing such an order without Congress sharing some of the responsibility.

But before the Senate now is a resolution which would require a presidential order if the walkout is to be ended for up to 80 months. The strike now is in its 28th day.

During the six months, efforts would be made to reach a settlement between the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) and the five strike-bound lines—Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United. An agreement worked out at the White House last Friday was rejected Sunday by union members.

Senator Jacob K. Javits (Rep., N.Y.), originally a sponsor of the measure that left any final strike - ending responsibility to Congress, said little progress was made Tuesday toward a compromise.

But Javits said he believes that if compromise efforts collapse, there are enough votes in the Senate to enact a version Johnson opposes.

Javits said the effort to produce a version acceptable both to Congress and Johnson could involve a congressional back-to-work order of perhaps 30 or 60 days duration, followed by presidential review and possible presidential finding to keep the men on their jobs.

Despite Protest Meeting On His Behalf Frankford Police Chief Leaves Office

Frankford village council will consider a "formal" request for it to co-operate more fully with police but it is still faced with the hiring of a new chief constable.

At a meeting of the Frankford Improvement Association held last night to protest the non-co-operation of some council members with village police, Chief Constable William Hockley re-affirmed his decision to quit his police job.

Chief Hockley tendered his resignation on July 25th claiming certain members of council were interfering with police duties.

He said council wanted a uniformed man "to check doors and show special favors to their friends."

200 ATTEND MEET

Approximately 200 residents attended last night's meeting at the community hall protesting the action of council in hiring a police chief, then failing to appoint him in his law enforcement duties.

A petition signed by 900 Frankford residents claimed that council by its action was condoning action which made village streets unsafe.

Council members, meeting in another room, refused to attend the citizens' meeting upstairs, and a half hour later the citizens became angry and stormed into the council chambers, where Association chairman Hugh S. Powell presented the petition.

ASKED TO STOP RADAR TRAP

He said that he had been told by council to take the radar off the village streets during business hours to prevent hurting local business.

Chief Hockley said that also his wife and family had been the target of insults from local lovesilles.

Former police chief Ed McGeachy who retired this year after 33 years as police, named William Rose, Harry Wickson and Leonard Reid as councillors not co - operating with the police.

Chief Hockley, who has accepted a position with Canada Cement at Point Anne as a security guard, said that actually Frankford needed two full time police officers instead of one.

Many residents fear with the lack of co - operation from council, difficulty may be experienced in hiring a replacement for Mr. Hockley.

On the other hand Frankford council members were highly critical of how the press had handled the Frankford police troubles, claiming the news paper had blown the story out of all proportion.

The meeting ended with by the mayor announcing that council would consider the delegation's request for more co-operation with police and saying that council would "try to clean up the mess."

Soapy Williams Wins Primary For Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Gov. G. Mennen Williams (Soapy) Williams, a strong supporter of President Johnson's Vietnam policies, claimed victory Tuesday over Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh for Michigan's Democratic U.S. senatorial nomination.

In other U.S. primaries, state Sen. Frank Church defeated Idaho Governor Robert E. Smylie in his bid for the Republican renomination for governor and Senator James B. Pearson defeated Rep. Wilfred H. Avery won renomination in the Kansas Republican primary.

Primaries were held in the United States to nominate party candidates for office.

Williams, 53, the heir to soap millions who served six terms as Michigan's governor, was endorsed by most of the state's powerful union leaders. His Negro primary opponent was Senator Robert Griffin, unopposed in the Republican primary.

Student Blistered Bare Feet Trying to Save Victims

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Chet Drummond, president of the University of Texas' student body of 8,000, surveyed blistered feet Tuesday. They were burned when he ran barefoot Monday from the campus' hot, blazing, tear-gas streets, pulling a student's victims to safety.

The 21-year-old pharmacy junior from western Texas, one of the first to hear the shots, ran to the top of the 307-foot main street trying to carry wounded persons out of range of the gunfire from the lens of Charles Joseph Whitman.

Drummond did this for 1½ hours in his bare feet because his leather-heeled shoes were "slippery as glass" on the pavement. He knew he couldn't run in them.

"I was meandering along when I heard two shots.

"Then people began to fall and I realized I was in the open, easy target."

He ran into a nearby building, shed his shoes and grabbed a first aid kit while a friend borrowed pharmacy coats to use as bandages.

PULLED IN VICTIM

He ran out of the building on the side away from the sniper, sped across the wide street and pulled a boy or young man—he wasn't sure—into safety. Bullets ripped into some wooden telephone frames and the pavement.

Another student, Bob Higley Jr. of Austin, was with him.

"Bullets were hitting the dirt where they hit the pavement," said Drummond, who with Higley made a dash across the wide street to a nearby building.

Working with the ambulance crew, who took off their white coats to help wounded, he and Higley hauled in another man with a moving fast under cover of some smoke flares at an auto intersection, carried two others into the center of the building. He said he thought they were four boys wounded, not dead.

Drummond and Higley then left still with the ambulance when two officers' shots killed Whitman.

Expect African Countries To Ask UN Act on Mandate

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—African members of the United Nations will ask the General Assembly to set a timetable for South-West Africa at the start of its fall session in a new attempt to loosen South Africa's grip on that mandated territory, diplomats predict.

Some sources expressed doubt that the assembly, convening Sept. 20, would agree to dictate South-West Africa immediately since that would delay the usual general debate for which 100 ministers attend the opening days of the session.

Others said that the Africans theoretically could put together a majority necessary for such a decision. They have 36 of the 117 votes in the assembly and they can usually count on 25 more from the Asians and the other 10 from the Communists.

The International Court July 18 threw out a complaint brought by Ethiopia and Liberia claiming they had no legal right to bring action against South Africa.

Ethiopia and Liberia asked the court to rule that South Africa had violated her League of Nations mandate over South-West Africa by practising apartheid (race segregation) in the territory, and to order that she stop doing that. If such a decision had been made the Africans could have asked the security council for action to enforce it.

The African group at the UN has not decided what to propose, but some diplomats think the Africans could push through an amendment to the UN charter requiring all members to place their League of Nations mandates under UN trusteeship and thus, UN supervision. Nations have done this except South Africa.

Water Gauge Is Installed At Footbridge

A new water recording gauge, supplementing the four gauges already in operation on the river system, has recently been installed in the Moira River.

The most recent gauge to go into operation has been installed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission at the footbridge in downtown Belleville.

The other recording gauges are at Tudhope, and at three different locations on No. 7 highway, on the Shoutamatta at Actinolite, on Black Creek midway between Actinolite and Madoc, and on the Moira where it crosses the highway near Marmora.

In addition to recording stream flow, the new gauge at the local footbridge also has a water sampling device.

Readings from the gauge will be taken by the Moira River Conservation Authority officers.

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese Communist party's anti-nuclear world conference collapsed today, split into pro-Moscow and pro - Peking factions after two days of bitter wrangling.

The representatives of left-wing organizations from only six of the 31 foreign countries represented during the peiping party conference of the 12th World Council Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs (Gensuikyo) attended today's final session.

They were the Japanese hosts, plus delegates from Denmark, France, Guyana, North Korea, Rumania and the United States.

Missing were delegates claiming to represent opinion in Australia, New Zealand, Malaya, Ceylon, the Philippines, Swaziland, Basutoland, Bechuanaland, the Sudan, Belgium, Panama, Brazil, Columbia, Britain and South-West Africa.

ADMIT SOVIET CITIZEN

They boycotted the conference when the conference decided Monday to admit Vladimir Orel, a Soviet citizen, the delegate of the Budapest-based World Federation of Democratic Youth.

In a statement the dissident delegates said the conference refused the request of the "overwhelming majority" of delegates to exclude Orel from the meeting.

The dissenters were determined to establish a genuine international united front against "United States imperialism and its lackeys," it said.

"We are fully convinced that such a front can only be formed of honest, anti - imperialist strugglers and cannot contain the agents of imperialism, namely collaborators controlled by the present rulers in Moscow."

A conference official said the conference would continue in Hiroshima and Nagasaki on the anniversary of the dropping of the first atom bombs as scheduled. Hiroshima was bombed Aug. 6, 1945, and Nagasaki three days later.

Put All Today's Politicians Into Bag Urges Centenarian

REGINA (CP)—Wilfred Malhiot at 102 years of age still is intrigued about politics but isn't impressed by Canada's present-day politicians.

"I don't believe in any of the parties any more. I used to be an ardent Liberal supporter and consider Sir Wilfrid Laurier to be Canada's greatest prime minister.

"But they should put all of today's politicians into a big bag," he said in a recent interview.

Still in excellent health, Mr. Malhiot has good vision, doesn't wear glasses even when watching television or playing bridge, his two favorite hobbies.

While not as mobile as he once was, he's easy enough to have made three flights since his 100th birthday.

Born near Trois - Rivieres, Que., he came west in 1883 as far as the railway line went, to Portage La Prairie, Man., and travelled by wagon to Wolseley, Sask., where he started a farm.

He spent 31 years in Odessa, Sask., from 1916 to 1947, and also lived in Moosomin, Sask., Regina and Edmonton before moving to Victoria in 1955 for a year.

Mr. Malhiot now lives in Regina with a daughter, Mrs Beatrice Lalonde. His descendants, including 16 grandchildren and 38 great-grandchildren, are spread across the Prairies. His wife died in 1951.

His advice for longevity: "Keep away from tobacco but don't be scared to take an occasional drink."

Whisky and brandy are his favorites.

STILL FINDS POLITICS INTRIGUING—Wilfred Malhiot isn't impressed by Canada's politicians today, although at the age of 102 he still finds politics intriguing. He has excellent health — doesn't wear glasses and has made three flights since his 100th birthday. A Quebec native, he moved to the Prairies in 1883. (CP Photo)

Dr. Healty, however, said that in the March interview Whitman told of having "overwhelming periods of hostility with a very minimum of provocation" and admitted that he had twice beaten his wife—one of his victims.

INTENSE PAINT

Jerry Delanna, justice of the peace, quoted a surgeon who performed an autopsy on Whitman as saying the tumor found in his brain "could have caused intense pain—headaches — that could have indirectly caused or contributed to his actions."

In Lake Worth, C. A. Whitman said, "my son has committed a crime that is a great horror to the whole world."

"I know you all realize that this boy is sick. I don't know what else to say about him."

Whitman, a 47 - year - old plumbing contractor, was answering reporters' questions about his son.

Premier Roblin Gives Views on Canadian Unity

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba says the federal government should develop a concerted policy of regional development as a means of promoting Canadian unity.

Mr. Roblin, attending the Provincial Premiers' Conference in Toronto, spoke Tuesday night to the Coachbuilding Conference through a telephone-loudspeaker hookup.

The premier said the federal government has not led strongly enough in stating national objectives on regional development.

He called specifically for changes in national transportation policy and also asked for revision of equalization payment systems so that local poverty pockets in poorer provinces could be aided directly by federal and provincial revenue.

Mr. Roblin said his province had been assisted in efforts at regional development by a lack of assistance from Ottawa.

Wage-and-Price Freeze Like Britain's Would Give Canadian Politicians Shivers

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The British government's white paper on its prices and incomes freeze is a document that, in a Canadian context, would send shivers down the spines of the politicians.

Constitutionally it couldn't be enforced in Canada. Politically it would be impractical. Economically it would represent almost the last step of a mortally sick country.

But latest indications are that with Britain's often-tested determination to muddle through, it will stick and probably work.

The document is entitled a Price and Incomes Standstill. And it means just that. Wage and price increases are to be halted for the balance of this year. They will be permitted in the first half of next year only with severe restraint.

Canadian economists and political leaders have been calling for restraint in expansion of Canadian economy for about a year—though for a different reason than those leading to the stern measures introduced last week in London.

In Canada the immediate danger is inflation, which many indicators show already is stalking in the land.

Prime Minister Pearson called for restraint last August. The Economic Council of Canada did it again at the year-end. Finance Minister Sharp put some teeth into it in his budget speech in March.

But expansion in industries that are already hard-pressed to meet the demand is still exerting strong upward pressures on prices. Trade Minister Hellyer's re-echoed the call for restraint this week when he made public a mid-year report on capital investment plans.

Belt-tightening is an unwelcome to Canada under any circumstances as it is to Britain. But it is made difficult in Canada under the day-to-day political and inter - governmental pressures in such a widely-diversified country.

It is even more difficult to enforce in a federal state where constitutional jurisdiction is divided. Ottawa, unlike London, can't impose price - and - wage control in peacetime without invoking war emergency powers.

The British white paper, for instance, makes it clear that the freeze on price and wage increases is to apply to all goods and services, whether provided by public or private enterprise.

If the stage should be reached in Canada that Ottawa felt similar measures were necessary, Parliament could act only in its federal field of jurisdiction and appeal to the provinces to act in theirs.

The federal field includes the federal public service and Crown companies and also in-

Toronto Man's Body Found At Glen Ross

The body of a Toronto man, missing since Saturday afternoon, was found in the Trent River early this morning by Belleville O.P.P.

David Albert Barnes, 30, had been missing since he went out on the river in a motor boat alone, Saturday. Harold Colsby, manager of the Rainbow Lodge at Glen Ross, phoned police at 7:30 a.m. today after he spotted the body floating in the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and their five children, ranging in age from 10 months to 10 years, had been holidaying at a cottage at Glen Ross.

New Cooling System Enables Corby's to Start Work Early

A new cooling system installed at the Corbyville plant of H. Corby Distillery, will enable the annual manufacturing process to get underway earlier this year.

Because of the requirement for low water temperatures, manufacturing in former years has not commenced until some time in September, but this year with the new cooling system manufacturing is expected to get underway early in August.

Water from the Moira River is used in the cooling process with approximately 1,500 gallons per minute being drawn from the river during the manufacturing period. After being used, the water is returned to the river.

An official of the Moira River Conservation Authority said today that the summer river flow was being checked to see if Corby's earlier than usual water requirement was available.

If not the gate valve at the Lingham Lake reservoir north of Madoc will be further opened to provide the necessary flow.

Quinte Pollution

It is satisfying to learn from the Ontario Water Resources Commission that a study of lake water in the various resort areas has not revealed evidence of serious pollution.

The commission began taking samples in June at 21 points throughout the Muskoka and Kawartha water systems and is continuing the process throughout August.

Less pure and fragrant, unfortunately, are the waters of the Seaway and Great Lakes systems, not to mention our own Bay of Quinte. It takes one who has lived away from his native heath for a considerable period to remind us that Belleville waters are being ruined by what he terms "dumping fill and destroying the reed bed. . ."

And adding: "Ending all nature-lore!

Gone, then, the life there — dead!"

The condemnation in terms of Quinte waters comes from Wallace Havelock Robb of Abbey Dawn, near Kingston, poet laureate of the "Xente" district. The full text of his poem appeared in The Intelligencer last week.

Visiting his brother, Morse Robb, on the Trent Road, recently, Mr. Robb was reminded of a poem he wrote 40 years ago in which he gave vent to his feelings about the odor in the waters of the bay. Probably reaction to his remarks then was unfriendly to say the least, but today Mr. Robb finds nothing has changed. He says the water in Quinte smells "awful."

We have referred to the tests to be made of area waters from Kingston and Brockville. Doubtless the Bay of Quinte in due course will be favored by a visit from the government researchers, in which case we should learn to what extent local waters are being polluted.

John D. Hayes

Belleville native John D. Hayes, whose death in Toronto at the age of 83 has been announced, was an outstanding citizen.

Although a resident of Toronto for many years, Mr. Hayes frequently returned to Belleville to renew his ties with the area. A sister, Miss Nora Hayes, lives here.

As a businessman Mr. Hayes rose to the presidency of the Laura Secord Candy Shops, founded by his brother-in-law, Frank O'Connor (later Senator O'Connor). He also spent some time in the wholesale lumber business after a spell in post office work in Belleville and Toronto.

Mr. Hayes had many other interests. For example, he was founding co-chairman of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, but it was his interest in young people that has left the most lasting impression. He was founder of boys of the Gerrard Kiwanis Club, he was "The Picnic Man," or "The Candy Man." Every year he sponsored a picnic for 300 downtown boys in Toronto and encouraged them in the making of careers of their own.

It was not always easy for Mr. Hayes. In his later years his eyesight all but failed, but he continued to take an active interest in his favorite work of the Kiwanis Boys' Club, as well as pursuing his many other interests.

Mr. Hayes' passing will be regretted by a wide circle of friends and business associates in the Quinte area.

"Beatle Spirit"

Prime Minister Harold Wilson has adopted an unusual slogan in an effort to inject new life into the ailing British economy.

He has called for the "Beatle spirit" in industry to help Britain out of the slough of economic despond. Yes, he means the Beatles. . .

"Britain only got to the top of the pop league because our beat groups asserted themselves."

Even if Mr. Wilson had to stretch his imagination to suit the occasion (he was speaking at a reception at the Cavern Club in Liverpool where the Beatles launched their career) the prime minister may be regarded as an admirer of the singing group. It was Mr. Wilson who announced that they be awarded the MBE decorations which caused so much controversy a while ago.

One reason why the mop-haired quartet was honored in this way is the fact the group earned $4 million for Britain. "The Mersey sound has echoed around the world and has helped to fill our coffers with world currency," said Mr. Wilson.

It was a handsome tribute to the famous group, whose popularity is still considerable. John Lennon and Paul McCartney are still turning out best-selling music, and with all four still touring the world and producing records their earnings help to fill British coffers. Now Mr. Wilson wants a comparable effort by British industry as a whole.

Only Human

There is nothing new under the sun, according to ap old saying. Just the same as the one about Rome not being built in a day.

Now President Sukarno of Indonesia has given us a modern version of the same idea. He said recently: "I am only an ordinary mortal. I cannot build a mosque in one night!"

Steroids Effective Treating Sarcoidosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a skin disease called sarcoidosis which affects only my eyes. They become bloodshot and swollen. — Mrs. C. C.

Dear Doctor: What follow-up treatment is required after hospitalization for steroid? —Mrs. G. W. M.

Sarcoid isn't — as I pointed out yesterday — a skin disease. It can attack any part of the body, including skin, eyes, internal organs.

The outlook is generally good. While the disease may run its course and subside spontaneously, it also can be treated effectively with steroids (drugs of the cortisone series).

With some mild cases, treatment may be unnecessary, but when the lung, eye or skin is involved, treatment is to the point — to minimize symptoms, prevent lasting complications and (in the case of skin involvement) shorten the time during which the patient has to explain the disease to curious friends and relatives.

For the most part, hospitalization is not necessary. The principal exception to this remark is that, since steroids may look like so many other diseases some of them dangerous, hospitalization may well be ordered until there is diagnostic proof of the ailment and that it is not cancer or tuberculosis, for example.

If tissue can be obtained from the skin or from an affected lymph node, the diagnosis can be made definitely by microscopic examination.

Otherwise diagnosis may involve the painstaking process of eliminating other diseases which it resembles, proving that it is not T.B., or whatever.

There is a skin test (Kveim Test) which gives significant data in identifying sarcoid. The trouble is that this requires about four weeks to interpret the results.

Thus, while it may take some time to pin down sarcoid, the patient frequently can vent a sigh of relief, knowing that it is not one of the deadly or disabling diseases.

The duration of steroid treatment depends on the speed with which the disease subsides. Follow - up treatment aside from that, is primarily a matter of examination to make sure that the lesions and the scar tissue which may result are not interfering with the eyes or other organs of the body.

A mysterious ailment.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister gives her children soda drinks all the time. The oldest is 10, is this harmful? — Mrs. S.

To some degree, it can be. The nutritional value of cola drinks (or that of any pop) is essentially the sugar in them. Therefore they should be treated as you would candy: An occasional treat is fine: a steady diet is wrong. The cola drinks also contain caffeine, a stimulant just as coffee is, and healthy children don't need stimulants. Too much can make them jittery. I certainly don't condemn soft drinks, but they should be used with common sense.

Computer as Traffic Aid

Stratford Beacon - Herald

Motorists in Toronto are enjoying a preview of a system which will eventually come to all big cities.

Conscious that the economic loss from traffic tie-ups and accidents was costing it dear, metropolitan area spent $131 million annually and realizing that there was no vehicle for every 20 feet of paved road in the city, with the ratio shrinking, Toronto decided to do something about it.

It brought in a Univac 1103 electronic computer to control traffic. This fast-acting brain has the capacity to examine and analyse as many as 3,000 intersections in one second. In the one-thousandth of a second that it devotes to each intersection, the computer:

Reads the volume and speed of traffic as reported by 2,000 detection devices scattered along the streets.

Calculates the density of traffic flow by dividing the number of vehicles by the time to detect them.

Reads the traffic signal and notes how long it has been red or green.

Computes the correct length of time the signal should remain green in a certain direction.

Compares this computed time with the time the signal has already been green. If the two items are equal, it sends a signal to change the light. If the actual "green" time is less than the computed "green" time, it goes on to examine the next intersection, returning to this one a second later.

Each time the computer orders a signal change, it checks to see if the change actually was made. If not, it repeats the order. If the light still doesn't change, the computer notifies a human operator and turns one problem over to him.

Because of the computer, says one writer, it is as if Toronto has added an extra lane to each of the city's four-lane streets — without turning a shovelful of dirt.

Rhodesians Stand Firm

Montreal Gazette

The Rhodesian finance minister says that sanctions against his country have failed. He claims that Rhodesia's exports have only dropped 17 per cent, with the exception of tobacco exports about which he would say nothing.

His budget statement may well have been worded differently to inspire public confidence, boost morale, and discourage foreign enemies. But it can probably be accepted as true in a general sense.

Sanctions have largely failed. Oil supplies are getting through. Talks with Britain have revealed no sign of compromise. Zambia, the independent Black state to the north, is not dissatisfied with the measures against Rhodesia. Best of all it is threatening to join the Commonwealth.

By this time, Rhodesia was supposed to be on the brink of economic collapse, instead, it is holding its own. The following notice will face the Commonwealth prime ministers, when they meet this autumn: tighten sanctions with radical new measures, or admit defeat (suitably camouflaged for public opinion).

If the Commonwealth could research control of the situation in Rhodesia, every night is the point of getting a few basic concessions from the Smith regime, something would be done to reassure the non-White world. But all the signs point the other way to a reluctant retention of Rhodesian independence.

Hellyer Ten Feet Tall In Cabinet of Pigmies

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It may remain a question whether Defence Minister Hellyer's right or wrong on Canadian Forces unification through-integration.

Your view on that issue depends on where you sit.

But one matter where you are on the sidelines, there's no question that in the Liberal Cabinet, Hellyer's 10 feet tall.

He could still be the ultimate loser in his War-with-the-Admirals, if the Commons, suddenly terribly late in the defence day, comes awake and turns on him when he presents his Armed Forces Unification Bill to Parliament next Fall.

Sure, he could be the loser, but on the form so far shown, it isn't likely.

Because in three years that he has been easing the reluctant Services down the integration road to unification, he has stone-walled the Opposition in the Commons with riddles of ease.

None of the Opposition Defence Critics have laid a finger on him in the few times he took them on in a round of questions and answers.

ODD BREAK

It may have been a freak situation that gave Hellyer this Parliamentary break, but he was quick and clever enough to make the most of it.

The Commons never have two former Defence Ministers, and so, really, two Defence Critics, Gordon Churchill, Tory ex-Minister, and Douglas Harkness of Calgary.

But Churchill was Defence Minister only for a few months, didn't have the required time to settle comfortably into the job, lacked the opportunity necessary to win full confidence in headquarters and so very possibly felt not altogether qualified to attempt pinning the rattle Hellyer to the unification mat.

And Harkness, having sparkled in the Conservative Cabinet mutiny that wrecked the Diefenbaker Government nearly four years ago, was still in the Opposition Leader's doghouse and denied a seat on the Commons Defence Committee.

So he, too, was bewildered.

And Hellyer had it much easier than he may right to both in the Commons and the Defence Committee.

The result was two top Tories on Defence out of the real action, there was nobody else to ask but Hellyer.

The New Democrats don't really care about the Armed Forces' — they rather think the money might be better spent on Foreign Aid.

And as things are in this Parliament of Minorities, the Liberals don't count on lunes like this and the Creditistes are not interested.

But even so, with all these things going for him, Paul Hellyer made a good situation even better.

In a Cabinet of so many pigmies, he managed to look like a giant.

He worked it by the simple device of making up his mind and knowing what he was at although if the pressure keeps up, the Conservative press outline bleeding manpower, he still might have to back away.

If the Government Bill was solved almost every problem and surmounted nearly every crisis by retreating and even surrendering — remember the Quebec dock strike and that astonishing 30 percent wage settlement for one — to find a Cabinet Minister who takes the same position day after day is to make something of a discovery.

So Hellyer is stubborn, you say.

He is more, much more than that. He is tough.

With a smoothly polished toughness.

He's got a sort of computerized managerial mind. This very special talent first became apparent when he ring-mastered the last National Liberal convention, making it the slickest political circus, as those pow wows invariably are, that the Capital ever had seen.

With the years, his talents have been refined.

And you should have seen him the other day at his press conference on his War-with-the-Admirals.

The reporters, what innocent amateurs we all are, came armed to the fray with supposedly explosive questions.

And he defused them all with ridiculous, even humiliating ease.

Tall, tanned, confidently relaxed, it was little more than a play for him, and he smiled his pleasure at it.

He answered all questions. No hesitation. At once. Fully, it seemed. So smoothly. Enormously convincing, too, that wide blue - eyed sincerity of his.

It was a romp.

When the Cabinet's "Ambitious Men" try on Lester Pearson's leadership shoes, Paul Hellyer is the man to watch for size.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

August 2, 1950 . . .

The Irish nationalist Roger Casement was hanged in London 30 years ago today—in 1916—after being convicted of treason for his abortive efforts to win Irish independence from Britain. Casement had been a British consular official and was knighted for his services only five years before his conviction. After starting in Ireland just before the First World War, he published anti-British pamphlets, attempted unsuccessfully to form a rebel brigade, and solicited support from Americans and Germans. Upon learning of the proposed Easter uprising in 1916, he set out for Ireland in a German submarine, but was captured shortly after landing and taken to England for trial.

1918 —The Warlide was torpedoed off England, with 123 dead.

1949—The Israeli government ordered Palestinian immigrants to be drafted for labor.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the Belgians in East Africa occupied Uiji on Lake Tanganyika; the British advanced north of Bezentin on the Somme.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — the RAF launched widespread air attacks on northern France; heavy fighting was reported within 30 miles of Kiev and in the Estonian area northeast of Leningrad; Axis air raids on the Suez Canal Zone resulted in 71 casualties.

Red Tape Is Cut for Once

Brantford Expositor

United States department of agriculture regulations require that cattle from Canada be inspected on entry. This seems a sensible precaution, but every now and then it becomes, in this case an exemption has been made for the animals of farmers living in adjoining property in the two countries. After some months of high level discussion by Ottawa and Washington, it was decided that they constitute a border - line case.

For generations, farmers in Vermont and Quebec have been crossing their fields to each sides of the border. Last February, the Vermont farmers asked the United States Bureau that in accordance with regulations their cattle would have to be tested for brucellosis they entered the U.S. This move would obviously shake hay of daily milking schedules. So the neat compromise was worked out whereby each farm would be declared by the vets designated a quarantine station. Animals in these areas need now be checked only once a month.

This is a victory over red tape and a triumph of common sense. Border regulations are persons need a button and not sacred for cows.

Strictly Personal

Those Spelling Problems

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of Bernard Shaw's phonetic alphabet and its facetious and illogical thing known as English spelling, as I was yesterday, reminded me of his ironic spelling of the word "fish."

Shaw pointed out that "fish" could easily be spelled "ghoti" in English. The "gh" combination is pronounced as in "enough" like rough; the vowel "o" is pronounced like a short "i" in women; and the "ti" combination is pronounced like "sh" in the word nation.

In discussing the lunacy of English spelling, I also mentioned the Simplified Spelling Society, which labored for many years to bring order out of chaos. Although the group has apparently died out, some of their splendid limericks still survive, and herewith are a few more of their choice items:

A king, on assuming his reign,
Exclaimed with a feeling of pain:
"I'm legally heir
No one here seems to care
That I haven't been born with a brain."

Bill learned to play tunes on a comb,
And became such a nuisance at home,
That Ma spanked him and said,
"Shall I put you to bald?"
And he gleefully answered her, "Nomb."

A merchant addressing a debtor,
Remarked in the course of his letter
That he chose to suppose,
A man know what he owe:
But the sooner he pays it, the better!

A young lady crossing the ocean
Grew ill from the ship's dizzy motcean.
She called with a sigh
And a air in her sigh,
For the doctor to give her a pcean.

And now our brief lesson is through —
I trust you'll agree it was trough;
For it's chiefly designed
To impress on your migued
What wonders our spelling can dough!

English, indeed, is perhaps the only civilized language in the world in which even reasonably educated persons have to spelling drummed into them. In fact, some fine writers are perversely proud of their inability to spell correctly. And it is true that, to our old-fashioned eyes, nothing looks uglier than English as it had be spelt.

O.P.P. Weekly Report Given

NAPANEE — This week's public information release of the Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reports a total of 1157 man hours from Sunday morning to Saturday night last week. The previous week's report gave a total of 980 man hours. This is explained this week by pointing out that it was a holiday weekend, with traffic heavy on Highways 401, 2 and 33, with every available man on patrol.

Accidents in this area were of a minor nature during the week, the report states, with a total of nine, three of them with minor injuries and three property damage accidents. Nine charges were laid under the Highway Traffic Act during the week, and 36 warnings were issued. The men patrolled a total of 1700 miles.

During the week there were seven thefts, three break and enters, eight disturbance complaints, and 29 other investigations of a minor nature.

The detachment's file is directed to parents, pointing out that children are careless, and not careful, in the manner was prompted by the drowning of 14-year-old Linda Parks in the Salmon River near Tamworth last Monday.

Karsh Gets Posed Pictures Of Queen, Philip

LONDON (CP)—The Queen and Prince Philip posed for Canadian photographer Yousuf Karsh during a two-hour session at Buckingham Palace Tuesday.

"It was a very beautiful experience and I hope to have very beautiful results," said Karsh.

"This is the third time the Queen has posed for me—as princess and Queen—and I believe she grows more beautiful each time I see her."

Karsh declined to disclose the exact number of photographs taken. Some were formal and some informal and all were of the Queen and Philip posing together, he added.

The session was commissioned by the Canadian government in connection with next year's centennial. The Queen and Philip are expected to officiate at the opening of Expo 67 at Montreal.

Karsh will remain in London for a few days and then fly to Finland for an international photographic symposium before returning to Ottawa. He said he will develop the royal pictures in Canada.

Denies Claim Viet Cong Avoid Aussies

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell said Tuesday the Viet Cong does not want to fight Australian soldiers in Viet Nam and deliberately avoids them.

His statement was denied today by Defence Minister Allen Fairhall. He accused the Labor party leader of casting a slur on the competence of "three fine battalions whose courage, skill and fighting spirit have kept the Viet Cong on the move."

Calwell, who opposes Australian backing of the United States in Viet Nam, told Labor unionists that the Viet Cong has avoided dozens of opportunities of destroying the Australian 1st Battalion with their superior numbers.

In one major battle, the Viet Cong avoided the Australians and concentrated on the Americans, he said.

Calwell did not say why the Viet Cong avoided encounters with Australians but observers said he was suggesting that the Viet Cong felt the Australians did not want to fight them.

Fairhall retorted today: "If Mr. Calwell knew anything about guerrilla tactics he would understand that the Viet Cong would open conflict wherever possible, and not only with the Australians."

Iron Ore Pile Sharply Cut

PICTON (Staff) — Record ore shipments in the months of May and June reduced the stock pile of iron ore pellets at Marmoton docks near Picton. A 18,000-ton ore shipment was loaded this week aboard the carrier Hoohlegas, bound for Buffalo. This shipment reduces the ore pile at Picton to about 20,000 tons. Superintendent of the docks, Carl Johnston, said that a few small boat loads will clean out the remaining ore.

Ontario Housing Official Replies To Criticism

TORONTO (CP)—The executive director of the Ontario Housing Corp. hit back at Canada's war on poverty directive Tuesday for including Ontario in an attack on the country's public housing.

R. A. J. Phillips, chairman of the special planning secretariat of the Privy Council, told the Conciliating Conference Monday that Canadians spend more money to keep cats and dogs than they do to provide minimum standard housing for people.

"Ontario has nothing to be ashamed of," declared H. W. Suters, executive director of the Ontario Housing Corp.

Mr. Suters replied Mr. Phillip's statement that Canada spent $32,000,000 on household pets last year compared with $26,000,000 on public housing.

"Our OHC investment in 1963 was over $20,000,000 and we have further commitments of over $48,000,000," he said.

Battle Looms Near Border Of Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Helicopters ferried heavy U.S. troop reinforcements into South Viet Nam's central plateau near Cambodia today as three days of fighting against North Vietnamese forces appeared building up into a major battle.

B-52s raked bombs on suspected enemy troops positions and a base camp 30 miles north from the Cambodian frontier as the reinforcements swelled the American force to 10,000 or more men.

In the air war against North Viet Nam, U.S. planes pounded the Haiphong oil depot Tuesday for the third time in a week. Nam said the Americans also bombed residential areas in the port city and hit a steel plant north of Hanoi Monday.

The reinforcements joined infantrymen who since Monday have fought a series of short, sharp engagement with the North Vietnamese.

Washington first confirmed hitting the oil depot after North Viet Nam charged that U.S. planes made an indiscriminate raid on Haiphong, "bombing residential quarters and factories."

The North Vietnamese said they had demanded an investigation by the International Control Commission, made up of Canada, India and Poland.

Hanoi radio said that six American planes were shot down, although U.S. authorities said none were lost.

Home Found For Animals

SARNIA (CP) — Mrs. Jean Whitehead, who was forced to move out of her Rostock, Ont. area farm in July and leave her menagerie of dogs, birds and rodents, has found a home for the animals.

W. R. Berube, operator of a zoo, 14 miles east of here, offered to take the animals which Mrs. Whitehead had hoped to display in a travelling zoo.

But financial troubles ended the plan and Mrs. Whitehead and her daughter Corylynne, 17, were forced to look for help for themselves and their animals.

The Ontario and London humane societies bought food for her animals and friends and strangers contributed cash and food for the Whiteheads.

Mr. Berube's zoo is operated daily during the summer and weekends in spring and fall. Mrs. Whitehead will be contributing birds, a skunk and iguanas.

Successful Living
Girl Should Help Earn New Piano

DEAR DORIS: I love music and, as a small child, wished that I could have an organ or piano and music lessons. But I grew up without ever realizing my dream.

DORIS CLARK

Then, when I married and had a daughter of my own, I made a big effort to see that she had the chance I was denied in my childhood.

For four years we paid for music lessons for her. Then she lost interest and these were discontinued. In the three years following, she seldom sat down at the piano.

Last year I had an opportunity to sell our lovely piano and since it was standing idle I let it go. Now, Doris, I feel as if I have done a very cruel thing. My daughter grieves for it, and I feel that I have lost a friend; even if I can't play, I sometimes would pick out a song or a chord.

Would it be wise to buy an organ, which is cheaper, smaller, and which would still provide a means of practice? My husband, who can't sing a note and doesn't appreciate music, seems to think I should forget the whole thing. — MUSIC LOVER.

DEAR M.L.: As one music lover to another, I'd urge you to put music back in your home. Whether you can satisfy yourselves with an organ, I wouldn't be prepared to say. How does your daughter feel?

Another thing. Would she be prepared to invest some earnings in the instrument she plays for? Her own investment of money to buy it and time to practice can multiply her enjoyment in playing it.

Not only that, but she is coming into a social time of her life, when she'll at playing a piano or organ, (or mouth organ!) can bring her friends.

Confidential to ANY HOPE?: As long as both of you really want something better, there's a chance for you to somehow find a new way of working things through. But don't remain foolishly aloof from help.

You have written to me. It's only a slightly bigger step to dial the number of the family agency where you are. A back-and-forth personal discussion may surprise you in the way it brings a new point of view and fresh hope.

Get out the yeast and raisins for making a batch of raisin biscuits. Serve them hot and fresh from the oven for lunch or afternoon tea with butter and jam.

RAISED RAISIN BISCUITS

Are you ready for some raised raisin biscuits that are ready for you to serve in three hours flat from the time you put hand to measuring cup?

Before I ate my lunch at noon, I mixed them up and spooned them into the pans. At 3 o'clock we had them with our tea.

All seriousness aside we are in great danger of gaining weight in this kitchen at the pace our baking is going right now.

Those Raised Raisin Biscuits are easy for amateur yeast bakers.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

RAISED RAISIN BISCUITS
(Makes 12 to 15)

- 1 package granular yeast
- ¼ cup warm water
- 1 teaspoon sugar or 1 cube
- 1 cup boiling hot milk
- 1 cup dark seedless raisins
- 2 tablespoons sugar (second amount)
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ cup uncooked yellow cornmeal
- 2½ cups sifted all - purpose flour
- 1 egg

Soak the granular yeast in the warm water with the 1 teaspoon sugar or cube for 5 minutes.

Heat the milk.

Into your large mixing bowl measure the raisins, sugar, shortening, salt and cornmeal. Pour hot milk over and stir to dissolve shortening. Add risen yeast liquid and mix. Beat in the flour and egg until mixture is thoroughly blended. This dough is too soft to knead and does not require kneading.

There are two methods of shaping these biscuits: 1) Sprinkle two layer cake pans on bottom with cornmeal and drop uniform spoonfuls of dough on them, barely touching. Sprinkle tops sparingly with additional cornmeal — About ¼ teaspoon on each, Or 2) Butter 15 average muffin tins liberally and 2/3 fill each with raisin dough. Brush tops with melted butter. Let rise until doubled in bulk — about 2 hours. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. — 17 minutes for pans; 15 minutes for muffin size.

Fresh from the oven, we split and buttered and each ate one. We wished someone would walk in so we could show them firsthand our lovely results.

A&P

Ever See One Hat That Would Satisfy Every Woman's Taste?

Impossible? Of Course!

We feel the same way about coffee. We don't believe one blend can satisfy every taste.

That's why we have three blends of A&P Bean Coffee. Some like a mild, mellow coffee. That's our Eight O'Clock.

Some like a medium blend that's rich and full-bodied. That's our Red Circle.

Some like a strong blend that's vigorous and winey. That's our Bokar.

In fact, there are no finer coffees in any package at any price.

Is A&P Coffee a good reason for shopping A&P? It's one of many.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Most toddlers go through a stage of saying "no" to everything, whether they mean it or not. Ways to cut down a determined son's "no's":

- Have you ever thought your toddler may be learning to be negative through too many "no's" from you? Your "no's" will be more effective, less likely to be imitated, if used only when necessary.
- "No's" are best ignored when the reasons behind them are not serious.
- When you must restrict, diplomacy, diversion and attention work more wonders than threats.

smiles when your toddler does eat well, you're on your way to establishing good eating habits.

Gerber offers wonderful variety in Junior Foods for little "tasters." Each food is cooked with special care to help preserve those precious nutritive values . . . that inviting flavour.

Safety measures. Of course, all of us know the basic safety precautions for into-everything toddlers. Things that may slip your mind? (1) A forgotten table light bulb. (2) A cleaning compound not returned to an out-of-reach haven. (3) A medicine bottle left on a reachable sink.

Accentuate goodness to cut down negatives at mealtimes. How? Offer foods with colours and flavours that you like. Like Gerber Junior Foods . . . prepared and seasoned with an eye to enjoyment. Then you might try a selling job, by telling Junior how good the food is. A taste or two, accompanied with an "um'mm" from you, is most convincing if you curb frowns at dawdling and cultivate

Gerber Senior Cereals
Junior Chicken
Junior Mixed Vegetables
Junior Chocolate Custard

Toothsome Snacks. When teething troubles come along, Gerber Teething Biscuits are just the thing. They're extra-hard and wafer-textured to give baby the biting satisfaction he needs and needs. Scalloped edges make them easy to grasp and hold. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Younger Daughter of LBJ Leaves White House on Saturday Bride of Student

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Baines Johnson came to the White House as a teen - ager, coping with assassination tragedy. She'll leave as a young bride, riding a happy crest.

At 19, the younger daughter of President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson is probably best described in her mother's words — a combination of gay sprite and intuitive philosopher.

Blue - eyed, black-haired, petite five feet four, Luci no longer wants to be considered a teen-ager: "I'm going on 20." And she's going to be one of the new breed — a married collegian, keeping house for a graduate student husband and keeping up her own studies.

She will be married this Saturday in Washington to Patrick John- Nugent, 23, of Waukegan, Ill.

In the two years and eight months she's lived in the White House, Luci has grown up—and allmost down. She dieted out of chubby adolescence to a trim, 120 - pound size seven. She danced and dated, pierced her ears, campaigned politically, and pleaded for privacy.

HAS SLIGHT LISP

Luci talks with a slight lisp —and she loves to talk. Her off-the-cuff speeches sometimes unnerve her mother, who says: "I never know what's going to come out."

Though she still may drop a curtsy to her elders, Luci can be the height of sophistication. She's a showman and, a bit of a show-off. But she takes herself and her role as the president's daughter seriously and she has a deeply religious commitment.

Luci often recalls the November day she sat in Spanish class at National Cathedral school for girls and couldn't believe her own ears that President John F. Kennedy had been assassinated.

"I'm not the president's daughter, I'm not," she insisted to a girl friend.

Later, she said she felt she had been "robbed of my youth and my private life."

The second daughter of a famous and busy politician, Luci was born and brought up in Washington, with constant commuting home to Texas. She and her older sister, Lynda Bird, now 23, often were temporary campaign orphans while their parents were off on election forays.

Like any typical teen - ager, Luci spends hours on grooming, has an incredible array of makeup, hairsprays and lipsticks.

She drives a dark green Corvette Stingray, likes chewing gum, movies, late pizza snacks, listening to records, piano playing and sometimes writes verse.

FLAGSTONE NIGHTMARE

Dear Su: Whatever you do, if you find it necessary to relevel your flagstone walk, make a diagram of the walk before you start and number each stone as you remove it.

Otherwise, it's murder! When you try to return the stones to their fresh sandy base you will find yourself working with 100 pound pieces trying to figure out a giant jigsaw puzzle. — Wm. L. Lebarre

Definitely a job for the Jolly Green Giant! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: No need for us to lug a ro-cart to the cottage for wheeling our small boy about.

We simply plunk our 2-year-old baby into our little green garden-type wheel barrow with the high sides and take off down the path to the local store.

Needless to say, he feels like "King of the Road" himself! — Mrs. L. J. B.

Washington Society Still Grouping for Leader to Replace Jackie Kennedy

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Back in 1609, the British embassy restricted the guest list for a royal garden party to 1,200.

Congress, spurred by spouses, angered at being unable to take tea and strawberries with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, promptly killed some spending legislation of importance to the United Kingdom.

Those were the days when Britain's stately Georgian pile of red brick on Embassy Row ruled the roost—more exclusive by careful design than the White House itself.

Under the autocratic rule of its social secretary, Irene Boyle, no dealer from Franklin Delano Roosevelt's administration was allowed to penetrate the place for two years.

But Miss Boyle, who died in April in Italy after serving five ambassadors, has no equal today among the 358 foreign missions now here.

GROPES FOR LEADER

Washington society, in fact, still seems in be groping for a leader to replace the widowed Jacqueline Kennedy, whose sophisticated elegance made the White House the "in" place. Mrs. Kennedy now lives in New York.

The last real social lions on the scene were the French and their status disappeared — as hinted by irritation with President de Gaulle's concepts of global strategy—on the departure last year of Ambassador Herve Alphand and his sparkling wife, Nicole.

The White House under Lyndon Baines Johnson and his wife Lady Bird, more prone to be planting trees as part of her beautification program than doing the frug, has a Texas earthiness.

The Vietnamese war has subdued it. Barbecues for convalescing veterans are common or the president uses his yacht to entertain on the Potomac.

But there has not been any visible halt to a steady escalation in the cocktail rise.

MELT MANY TYPES

This, coupled with receptions, a steady round of national days and dinners, remains Washington's occupational melting pot blending diplomats, politicians, the military, lobbyists, business and the ubiquitous press which indefatigably chronicles major occasions and interprets every nuance.

The preoccupation among Washington's three newspapers with social news strikes some as highly provincial, others as good gleaning for future reference.

Proud but poor new nations spend lavishly to woo aid from this richest country in the world; nations of all sizes discuss trade over martinis; the Communist - bloc delegations

Good Secretary Quit Due Wife's Accusation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an average looking woman in my 30's. I wear glasses and store-bought toppers, but I'm a whale of a good secretary — at present unemployed.

ANN LANDERS

Yesterday the boss' wife telephoned me at the office and accused me of making a play for her husband. I went right to my boss, told him about the phone call, packed my pencils, and left that very hour. The boss was floored, I might add.

I have never before walked off a job. It's always at times when someone's given me notice and I felt terrible about doing it but I just didn't feel that I could stay another day.

Did I do the right thing? My husband says I did. I'm not sure. Perhaps I should have written the wife off as a nut, (which she most assuredly is) and hung on to my job. Please comment. — FORMER SEC.

DEAR FORMER: You did the right thing. If your boss had urged you to stay, you should have done so, but since he did not, you were wise to leave.

A whale of a good secretary should have no trouble finding another job — and a more loyal boss. He let you down miserably.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I plan to be married in October. This evening my aunts asked me if I had decided on the members of the wedding party. I said, "I haven't asked her yet but of course Bess will be my maid of honor." We've been best friends, since childhood.

There was a chorus of "No, you can't have her for obvious reasons." Bess is a cripple. She walks with braces on her legs and walks with a cane. One of my aunts said, "It will take her three times as long to get down the aisle and she won't be able to keep up with you."

I was boiling inside at first and determined to have Bess as my maid of honor even if I had to wheel her down the aisle myself. Now I'm undecided. I discussed this with friends this morning and they say my aunts are right. What do you say? — FELICIA.

DEAR FELICIA: Quit shopping for opinions and use your own judgment. You sound more sensible than your moronic friends and your dear aunts. Tell them in unmistakable terms that Bess is your choice and then tell her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last year when I was 15 mom decided I was old enough to manage my own money and buy my own clothes. I was very happy with the idea.

The first six months were a mess. I bought all the wrong things. When an important occasion came up I never had anything decent to wear. I asked mom for help but she said, "It's your problem. Work it out yourself."

Well, I did work it out. I went to my home economics teacher and she gave me some great advice and my wardrobe really took shape.

A few months ago mom started to bring home "bargains" for me. Everything she picks looks lousy. Her "bargains" don't go with my other things, but I have to pay for them anyway. Last month 50% of my allowance went for her goofs.

DEAR W.M.: No it is not fair and I am backing you up. You should not be forced to accept your mother's selections. If she wants to give you an occasional "bargain," O.K., just to make you pay for it is unjust.

look and listen.

Exclusivity might once have been the hallmark of social success but today the emphasis seems more on who "swings" big in New York. Washington is a place where you can rush in and rise to the ceiling," observed one knowing source recently.

And it still helps to know the Kennedy clan—either place.

WEDDING

PUKANCIK — KEEGAN

The wedding was solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville on Saturday, July 23, 1966, when Norma Agnes Keegan and Ivan Pukancik, both of Belleville were united in marriage.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Sister Mary Rosaria who also accompanied the pupils of Miss Jaclyn Keegan's Grade 5 class of St. Michael's School as they rendered appropriate selections.

The bride was attired in an orchid shade gown of peau de soie highlighted with a lace coat of matching shade. She wore a wedding ring headdress of organza petals interwined with orange blossoms and short bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of white Shasta daisies and yellow roses.

Mrs. Phyllis Plummer of Cobourg attended her sister dressed in a pink brocade dress with matching pink chiffon coat, pink flowered hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Richard Thomson was groomsman, while Mr. Milton Pukancik, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Robert Keegan, son of the bride were the ushers.

A reception was held at the Sun Valley Motel for 70 guests where the bride's mother Mrs. Joseph Goyer of Toronto received the guests wearing a dusty rose lace dress, rose and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a deep blue crepe dress, dark blue and white accessories and a corsage of tinted blue carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Pukancik will reside at 147 Moira Street, Belleville.

Welfare of Masses Is Given Attention In Egypt for First Time in Centuries

Under President Nasser Egypt is cracking down on corruption, unearned privilege, land - grabbing—and political opposition. This has stirred some discontent but a Canadian Press reporter on a visit to Egypt found that the Nasser regime has improved the lot of the country's down-trodden masses.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAIRO (CP)—He says his name is Sammy, or maybe you spell it Sami. He would be as vague about his vocation.

Lean, dark and in his 30s, he spices his broken English with second-hand American slang. He operates along the Sharia Talaat Harb, an uptown Cairo thoroughfare where messenger boys in flowing ankle - length shirts jostle men of affairs in pin stripe suits.

Sammy will change your dollars at almost twice the official piastre rate. He has the air of an entrepreneur who, if encouraged, would provide other services that flout the law and spirit of Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt.

For Sammy, Egypt's social revolution at worst means keeping an eye out for the ubiquitous police, at best a chance to profit on wants officially thwarted by currency and import controls.

He is a small-fry example of a diverse group that attracts a political system pledged to eliminate corruption, unearned privilege, "feudalism" — and political opposition. All are under attack in a purge of political dissidents and social misfits that began early this year.

TRY ARMY OFFICERS

Groups of army officers have been arrested and put on trial in secret during recent weeks, giving rise to speculation that military men were plotting a coup. The explanation accepted by Western experts in Cairo is that the main group of officers arrested was embezzling government funds.

In the Nile Delta, authorities have been cracking down on "feudalists" — the term used for acquisitive landowners who try to circumvent land redistribution laws that limit the holdings of any one family to 100 feddans (104 acres).

A Committee for the Liquidation of Feudalism, headed by Vice - President Abdel Hakim Amer, was formed in May after disgruntled landowners assassinated two executive members of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only legal political party. The property of 89 "feudalist" families has been seized.

SEEK NASSER'S LIFE

Evidence at current trials is that members were recruited in mosques ostensibly for religious classes, persuaded that the government is pagan and then trained with weapons allegedly obtained in Saudi Arabia. The main aim was the assassination of Nasser.

The detailed prosecution and daily long newspaper reports of the trials are designed to discredit the brotherhood as corrupt fanatics, although the accused include university lecturers, engineers, shopkeepers, a former government minister, a frontier guard and a war ministry employee.

Opponents of Nasser outside Egypt say the public purges reveal widespread unrest. But Western experts in Egypt are inclined to rate the opposition as minor and diffuse.

A visitor encounters some discontent with the austerity that forms part of Egypt's development drive and the security restrictions enforced by an oppressively omnipresent police force.

A doctor complains—much like some doctors in more affluent societies—about being overworked and underpaid. The doctor, a journalist, a civil servant and a sailor on a Suez Canal pilot launch inquire about emigrating to Canada in search of "better living than we can get in Egypt," as one of them puts it.

WANT TO EMIGRATE

The Canadian embassy in Garden City is getting about 10,000 applications a year from would - be immigrants and a second immigration officer is being assigned to Cairo. Between 1,500 and 2,000 are accepted annually, almost all of them university graduates or skilled workers.

Many of the applicants are members of minority groups —Greeks, Italians, Armenians or Coptic Christians — who once dominated the commercial and administrative life of Egypt.

They were dispossessed in a revolution that has nationalized 30 per cent of business. "Egyptianized" much of the remaining 30 per cent of free enterprise and reduced the influence of the estimated 4,000,000 Coptic Egyptians under nationalist discrimination that favors Moslems in public offices.

But the mass of the population has reason to be gratefully loyal to a system that has paid attention to their welfare for the first time in centuries.

AID FOR POOR

To a Western visitor, the dark and crowded conditions in the back streets of Cairo's Sayeda Zeynab quarter or the dirt and squalor of a Delta village are appalling.

But, beside many slums, clean public housing projects rise. In 14 years of the revolution, hundreds of thousands of villagers have received for the first time pure water supplies, meet with their meals, medical clinics and schools. In the cities, authorities enforce a minimum wage of 25 piastres (30 cents) a day.

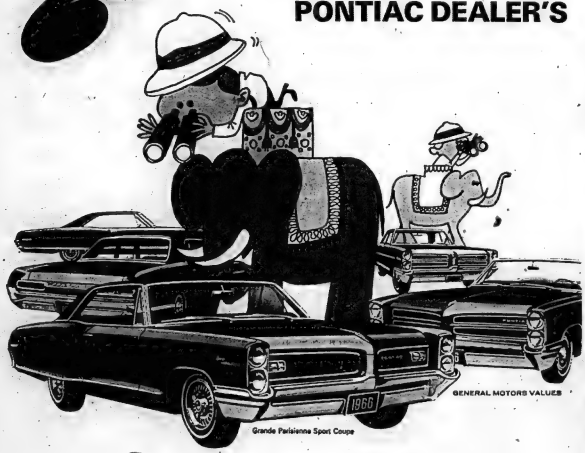
Older members of the urban middle class may miss the yearly trip to Europe and the imported luxuries, but some will admit to pride in Egypt's achievements under Nasser and the fact that an Egyptian leader at last stands up to the great powers. A new middle class — thousands of university graduates absorbed by government departments and state enterprises—depends on the present system for its existence and privileges.

The arguments about Nasser's Egypt—and they are continuous throughout the Middle East—are almost always resolved by two conclusions seldom disputed: few would dismantle Nasser's program of development completely and, in any case, nobody knows of an organized force capable of replacing the present regime.

Tomorrow: Irrigation is weapon to convert desert into farmland.

SHOOTS TO SAVE

JOHANNESBURG — (AP) South African police said Tuesday that a police sergeant killed a Negro Monday to save the life of a white railway engineer whose train had just been in a wreck. The shooting came when Negro passengers attacked the train crew whom they apparently blamed for the wreck. Officials said a Negro was about to smash in the engineer's head with a rock when the policeman fired.



APARTMENTS WITH NEARBY SHOPPING — These modern apartments in a Cairo suburb are flanked by a typical Egyptian market. In this one two old men pass the time of day under a rudely-pitched awning. New government housing is growing beside many slums, although to a Western visitor the dark and crowded conditions in the back streets of Cairo's Sayeda Zeynab quarter or the dirt and squalor of a Delta village are appalling. Beatle Lennon Says Christianity Will Go

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —A magazine article quoting John Lennon of the Beatles as saying his group is more popular than Jesus has inspired a "ban the Beatles records" campaign by Birmingham radio station WAQY.

Station Manager Tommy Charles said Tuesday the Beatles were his No. 1 attraction before he read the article in Datebook.

The article, quotes Maureen Cleave of the London Evening Standard as quoting Lennon as saying:

"Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that; I'm right and I will be proved right. We've (the Beatles) more popular than Jesus now; I don't know which will go first —rock 'n' roll or Christianity. Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary. It's them twisting it ruins it for me."

Commenting on Lennon's statement, Charles said: "It's just fak it was so absurd and sacrilegious that something ought to be done to show them they cannot get away with this sort of thing."

MORE SUPPORT IT

The Birmingham disc jockey said more than 30 per cent of the calls regarding this campaign support it.

"Almost unbelievably the teen-agers, almost as soon as they were sure it was true (the quotes), became really angry, some to the point of tears," Charles said. "All sorts of record and book stores have called saying they are taking their Beatle records and books off the market.

WAQY is broadcasting spot announcements every hour telling the audience to turn in their Beatle records, pictures, magazines and souvenirs to designated pickup spots.

"We'll have a giant Beatle bonfire the night they are closest to Birmingham on their next American tour, probably when they are in Memphis later this month," Charles said.

Express Depots Are Picketed

Jerry Doyle, a union spokesman for the CPR employees, said the Toronto walkout was in support of new contract demands, and also was in sympathy with some 2,000 Montreal CPR and CNR workers on a wildcat strike to protest dangerous working conditions.

TEACHERS GO TO SCHOOL — A five-week Elementary Mathematics Summer Course, held at Belleville's Harry J. Clarke Public School, will come to a climax Friday with an examination for the 360 public and separate school teachers who have been enrolled in the course. Shown examining one of the many displays used to demonstrate the "new approach" to mathematics are (from left) Audrey Bertram of Sharbot Lake; Gerda Armstrong, a teacher at Belleville's Queen Elizabeth Public School; and Mr. R. M. McKay, of Hamilton Teachers' College, who is acting as principal for the course.

Violence-Charged Textile Strike in Quebec in Fifth Month, No Settlement Seen

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the longest, bitterest strikes by textile workers in Quebec province's history is in its fifth month with no sign of a settlement.

The walkout, marked by explosive violence, charges and counter-charges and, in some cases, economic troubles for small merchants, involves 3,000 workers at Dominion Textile Co. Ltd. plants in Magog, Sherbrooke, Montmorency and Drummondville. Union spokesmen in Magog and Sherbrooke say the weekly cost of the strike is $150,000 to strike pay and other expenses, most of which might be paid from union funds.

The strikers are members of the National Federation of Textile Workers, an affiliate of the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions. The strike started in Magog April 1, and spread to the other three centres.

The walkout started quietly enough but as negotiations dragged on, tempers became frayed and violence erupted.

The bulk of the violence occurred during a six-day period in mid-July during which three bombs exploded and a company executive was attacked.

OVERTURN DESSES

On July 11 a goon squad broke into the company's Sherbrooke headquarters and caused $2,000 damage by smashing typewriters and overturning desks.

Three days later a 16-year-old Montreal high school student, Jean Corbo, carried a time bomb into an alley behind the Dominion Textile plant in Montreal and was killed when the bomb apparently exploded prematurely.

Police said they believe the student was a henchman for a terrorist organization. Corbo's grief-stricken father, a Montreal notary, described his son as "the naive servant of the high priests of separatist terrorism."

The Montreal plant is not affected by the strike because its employees belong to a different union.

On July 17 the homes of two company executives in Magog were rocked by explosions caused by a Molotov cocktail and dynamite. Both men—Geoffrey Bonhomme, the Magog personnel manager, and Clarence Syran, a foreman—were away with their families at the time but the explosions caused extensive damage to their homes.

SEEK HIGHER WAGES

The dispute involves the question of night work for female employees and wage demands. The union is demanding an increase of 42 cents an hour and a 26-month contract and the company is offering 20 to 31 cents in a 40-month agreement. The present average wage paid to the workers is $1.79 an hour.

In a speech to the company's annual meeting July 29, E. P. King, executive vice-president of Dominion Textile, said the strike has cost the company about $6,000,000 without consideration of fringe benefits and possible wage increases. He said the "impact of the four communities is substantially in excess of this figure."

A few days earlier, two elected representatives from Sherbrooke became involved in the strike when they blamed the "rigid and miserly" attitude of the company for continuation of the walkout.

In a letter to then-president René Gosselin, who retired July 30, Maurice Allard, independent Conservative member of Parliament, and Raynald Fréchette, Union Nationale member in the provincial legislature, stated that if the company did not modify its rigid attitude they will take the issue to the people in a "study and information campaign."

The campaign opened Aug. 1 when the two men addressed a meeting of 200 strikers in Magog.

A company spokesman said the two representatives were not "properly informed" and should seek first-hand information on the walkout and the company's position.

Meanwhile, local merchants and striking employees, who represent half the labor force in Magog, are suffering.

Strikers in Magog receive strike pay of $10 a week for single men and $18 for married men. Through a special arrangement they can borrow up to $15 a week from local banks and storekeepers are cautiously extending credit, confident they will be paid once the strike ends.

Damage Suit Rejected After 43-Day Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—A $256,600 damage suit resulting from a mishap during construction of the Champlain Bridge in Montreal five years ago was rejected with costs Tuesday after a 43-day trial.

Mr. Justice Rene Dureniseau ruled that Vickers-Sperry of Canada Ltd., Toronto, and Flick Reedy Corp., of Melrose Park, Ill., were not responsible for damages caused by the 15-foot fall of a concrete beam weighing 176 tons on July 16, 1960.

The plaintiffs, McNamara (Que.) Ltd., the Key Construction Inc., and Deschamps and Belanger Ltee., were awarded an $8,319,000 contract in 1959 by the National Harbors Board to build the bridge, spanning the St. Lawrence River.

The litigation narrowed to whether locks were sufficient to support the load necessary for each.

Trade Unions Requested to Enter Politics

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)—John Morgan, a professor of social work at the University of Toronto, says Canadian trade unions will have to enter union candidates in federal and provincial elections if they want to exert the power that they possess.

In an address Tuesday night to a Conciliating Conference, Prof. Morgan said trade unions will have to forsake some short-run gains at the bargaining table for a more effective campaign against social abuses.

The unions are not doing their part to lobby for the 50 per cent of Canada's poor who are fully employed but earn only pittance wages, he said. The unions could also lead a public protest against the nation-wide housing shortage.

"Unions are defending their workers against the evils of the last industrial revolution instead of preparing them for the new revolution," he said.

In reply to Prof. Morgan's criticisms, Emmet Park, assistant to the national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said proposals for union - management councils to contemplate long-term problems in industry are, for the most part, rejected by management.

The week - long conference, sponsored by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs and the CIAC, continues at this MCA camp eight miles north of Orillia.

Duke to Appear

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Jazz pianist Duke Ellington and his band will perform Friday at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival. The afternoon concert will be held in the Festival Theatre, the first time a large jazz band has performed in the building.

Mathematics Summer Course Nearing End in City School

A number of Ontario elementary school teachers acting as students in Belleville for the past five weeks have been learning that two and two aren't necessarily add up to four.

Some 360 public and separate school teachers mainly from the Belleville area, but some of whom are from as far away as Kingston, are enrolled in the Elementary Mathematics Summer Course being held at Harry J. Clarke Public School.

The course, which is sponsored by the Ontario Department of Education with the cooperation of the Belleville Public School Board, offers instruction in teaching techniques involved in presenting the "new approach" to elementary school mathematics, from the kindergarten to grade six levels.

At the elementary school level, the so-called "new math" is little more than a shifting from the abstract to the concrete aspect of mathematics, says the Principal of the course, R. M. McKay, of Hamilton Teachers' College. "This is achieved," he says, "by teaching the subject with the assistance of visual "learning devices," such as graphs and models, which encourage actual student participation in the particular mathematics lesson being taught.

A sizeable number of these "devices", used to illustrate various mathematical concepts to students, were made by the teachers participating in the course and were put on display for this week, the final one of the course.

With the increased use of visual teaching aids in mathematics, says another of the principal A. Nightingale of Hamilton, the mathematics classroom is now a more indefinitely place from, say, that used for the teaching of science. Mr. Nightingale, who is merely a teacher for eight years at Belleville's Quinte Secondary School, is now on the staff of the Hamilton Teachers' College.

The course currently being held in Belleville is similar to ones being held this summer in seven other strategically located Ontario centres, and has met with enthusiastic response from elementary school educators.

The "new math" itself has generally met a favorable reception, says Mr. McKay, although "the general public tends naturally to be a little critical. It's not easy to accept the fact that your children are being taught a problem in a manner completely unlike the way you learned it."

The 11 instructors for the course include teachers' college masters, principals and vice - principals of elementary schools, and a public school inspector. It is not uncommon in such courses for the teacher instructing a class to be younger than his class "students", due to the relative recency of such curriculums as new math".

This Friday, the teachers registered in the Belleville course will sit for an examination to qualify for their Elementary Mathematics Summer Course Certificate, as well as for the satisfaction of knowing that they have mastered the subtleties of "new math."

Sayys Mr. McKay, "It is probably easier for children to learn this type of subject, - they have not become set in their ways."

Top U. S. Govt. Officials Huddle to Study Situation After Steel Prices Raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inland Steel Co. Chicago boosted its prices for strip and sheet metal by $2 to $3 a ton Tuesday and top U.S. government officials immediately huddled to study the situation.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of President Johnson's council of economic advisers, summoned other officials for a strategy session shortly after Inland's announcement — which apparently caught the administration by surprise.

Asked later about the meeting, Ackley said the council is "studying" the situation but did not comment further.

Inland chairman Joseph L. Block announced the price increase—described by company officials as "moderate"—at the end of the business day. It was immediately clear whether the other big steel producers would follow Inland's lead.

In Pittsburgh Tuesday night, U.S. Steel officials said they had no comment.

Asked if Inland would roll back its price increase if other firms didn't follow suit, Block said "we will have to."

Sheet and strip metal account for roughly 20 per cent of the industry's total output. If other firms match Inland's increase, it would amount to the widest industry boost since 1963.

Earlier this year, Inland became involved in a major clash between the industry and the Johnson administration prompted by Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s New Year's Eve announcement of a $5-a-ton increase for structured steel.

Inland went along with the boost a few days later, but after U.S. Steel — under heavy administration pressure — announced only a $2.74 increase, both Inland and Bethlehem rescinded them.

The compromise, described by Johnson as within his wage-price guidelines, set off a stock market surge.

Tuesday the company specifically raised its price on prime grade hot rolled sheets and strips to $5.45 a hundred pounds from $5.30. Prime grade cold rolled strips were boosted 15 cents to $6.675 a hundred pounds. Secondary grades were raised 10 cents.

The boost comes amid lagging profits throughout the industry. Of the five major steel producers, only Bethlehem reported increased profits for the first six months of 1966.

Since its initial showdown with the steel industry early this year, the Johnson administration has not challenged any subsequent steel price boosts, although it attacked increases in other metals.

Feb. 18, U.S. Steel increased the price of boiler plate $4 a ton, an increase it said covered about one-tenth of one per cent of all steel sales. The company later adjusted its over - all prices, a move that increased the total price of steel about two-tenths of one per cent.

$800 Million Building Program Too High for Sharp's Liking

OTTAWA (CP)—A 1966 construction program $800,000,000 too high for Mitchell Sharp's liking is forecast in a government survey released Tuesday.

The survey shows Canadian businessmen revised their investment intentions upwards by $500,000,000 after Finance Minister Sharp announced budget measures March 29 intended to lop $300,000,000 from their plans.

Some of these programs cannot be met, the trade and commerce department warns in its mid-year investment review.

Sectors of the economy already working all-out will be kept under pressure, with the strains showing in rising costs for labor and investment money.

Thus higher prices and higher scarcity will both be reflected in the indicated 15-per-cent increase over 1965 in capital outlays by private and government sectors.

Plans now total $15,004,000,000, compared with actual spending of $12,800,000,000 last year.

The new figure is 3.3 per cent higher than the $14,546,000,000 predicted in a similar survey in March.

The mid-year survey blamed most of the increase on the rising prices of capital and construction goods.

If allowance is made for these factors, it said, the increase planned in the volume of activity is probably less than in either 1964 and 1965, and no greater than that expected at the first of the year."

Capital spending by business —not including housing—is expected to total $9,500,000,000, according to the survey, which were compiled in May and June after the budget restraints were announced.

Pre - budget estimates had been $9,000,000,000.

Mr. Sharp hoped to reduce the figure to about $8,700,000,000 by:

—Reducing capital cost allowances for 36 months on most kinds of buildings, machinery and equipment.

—Taxing at five per cent corporation profits over $30,000 with a promise to refund the money in 18 months.

—Holding out the promise of a later reduction of sales tax on machinery to postpone some buying now.

The mid-year review again posted the storm signals for an economy bent on accomplishing more than its resources will allow.

Business, housing and social spending together have increased by a like 17 per cent in each of the last two years. The last two categories promise to be lower this year with mortgage money tight and the federal government holding down its programs.

But in the private sector the mining industry, particularly iron mine and petroleum development, has plans 43 per cent higher than its actual spending for 1965; manufacturers upwards 30 per cent higher, notably in transportation equipment, paper products, foods and metals.

In both mining and manufacturing intentions are substantially higher than in January when the commerce department first asked about 1966 plans for its initial forecast.

Ottawa Orders Crackdown on Untidy Stores

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa city council, continuing a drive to clean up the capital, has ordered a crackdown on untidy businesses.

A bylaw passed unanimously Tuesday night requires owners of business and commercial property to keep land clear of rubbish, debris, heavy undergrowth and noxious weeds.

The bylaw is called the first of its kind in Canada and is said to contemplate a new controlling residential property.

Fines of up to $300 are provided and if necessary, the city can order demolition.

Marichal Pushes Giants Into Lead

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal and Manny Mota, whose last get-together gave San Francisco a big scare, have held a long - distance reunion . . . and given the Giants a big lift.

Pittsburgh's Mota, a former Giant outfielder who inadvertantly put Marichal out of action a week ago, socked home the eighth inning run Tuesday night that gave the Pirates a 6-5 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Marichal, meanwhile, made his first appearance for the Giants since Mota slammed a car door on his pitching hand and beat New York Mets 5-4 for his 13th victory, tying the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax for the major league lead.

The San Francisco victory and Los Angeles defeat sent the Giants back into first place in the tight National League race, one game ahead of the Dodgers and Pirates.

Mota and Marichal, longtime friends from the Dominican Republic, got together a week ago after a Giants-Pirate game. The middle finger on Marichal's right hand was gashed and the Giant ace missed his next starting turn.

ENDS MET RALLY

Marichal came out of the bullpen in the eighth inning Tuesday night to choke off a Met rally and pick up the decision in his first relief venture of the year.

The Giants had gone through five pitchers when Marichal got the call.

Mota, whose .320 average leads the league but who has not batted enough times to qualify, also was a late - inning replacement Tuesday night. He failed as a pinch hitter in the sixth inning but came through with the deciding hit - off reliever Ron Perranoski after a single, a sacrifice and a walk set the stage in the eighth.

Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati Reds beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, Philadelphia Phillies edged Houston Astros 4-3 and Chicago Cubs topped Atlanta Braves 6-5 in 12 innings.

Osala Virgil drove in three runs, pacing the Giants' comefrom-behind victory over New York. His two-run single highlighted a three-run rally in the eighth, which sent the Giants ahead 5-3, and Marichal protected the edge after the Mets scored a run off Frank Linzy in the bottom of the inning.

The Pirates spotted Los Angeles a 3-1 margin on homers by Lou Johnson and Jim Lefebvre, then knocked out Don Drysdale and moved ahead 5-4 on a two-run homer by Donn Clendenon and Gene Alley's solo shot. The Dodgers tied it in the sixth on Johnson's single and a run scoring double by Tommy Davis.

Deron Johnson's three - run homer in the seventh snapped a 5-5 deadlock and lifted the Reds to their 13th victory in the last 16 games. Vada Pinson also homered for Cincinnati. The Cardinals stranded 14 base runners.

The Phillies won their fifth in a row, overcoming a 3-2 deficit on Cookie Rojas' two run single in the seventh. Bob Aspromonte homered for the Astros, who have lost 39 of their last 51.

Byron Browne's two-out single in the 12th delivered the winning run for the Cubs, who had tied the score in the sixth when Don Kessinger singled after Hank Aaron lost Browne's fly ball in the sun for a triple. Aaron drove in four Atlanta runs with his 31st homer, a single and a bases-loaded walk.

OVERHEARD AT THE 1711 — AND THEREABOUTS

Moe Norman refused to autograph a dollar bill for Jack Fitzpatrick's daughter at the country club during the holiday festival. "No, no," said Moe as Jack proffered the bill and a pen. "I do not autograph these things. I pay 'em in the bank. You had better do the same." And off he strutted.

You hear some funny stories around the 19th — and other places in a country club. Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll passed quite a collection of golf yarns — and here they are:

It's sometimes difficult for a caddie to hide his disdain for a golfer whose efforts to move the ball are painfully feeble. This was the time a duffer pulled a 5-iron from his bag and said to his boy:

"Do you think this will get me home?"

"If you hit it just enough," said the boy.

"You're all run down," the physician told a wealthy patient. "I suggest that you lay off golf for a while and get a good rest at your office."

With a gallery looking on, he stepped up to the ball, took a mighty swing and missed. Again he addressed the ball, swung and whiffed once more. A third attempt produced the same result. The crowd became somewhat embarrassed, but not our hero. With a nonchalant smile, he turned to the embarrassed gallery and remarked:

"Tough course, isn't it?"

"I'm sorry," said the dentist, "but you can't have an appointment with me this afternoon. I have 18 cavities to fill." And she picked up his golf bag and departed.

Every time the guy in the rough waggled his No. 3 wood, he jumped a foot back behind the ball deeper and deeper. But he didn't seem to be sure he could get the ball out with a wooden club.

"Can I help with that?" he asked his caddie.

"Not yet," cautioned the boy.

Some railway laborers who worked near a golf course were vastly intrigued by the game. They saw a golfer knock the ball into a rut and have a hard time extricating it. Then he got into a bunker and after that into a trotting out.

Finally he got a good shot away and the ball trickled into the cup. An Irish laborer had been watching him scramble.

"Now, mister," he said sympathetically, "yez are in a fix."

Golf pro: "Tee the ball."
Beginner: "Sure, I pee it. But why the baby talk?"

The pro pondered the position of his ball on a hole where the wind was a deterring factor. The club he selected did not seem quite adequate and he turned to the boy who was toting his bag.

"What's it look like to you, son?" he asked.

"Why ask me?" replied the caddie, "You're the pro here."

A club member was having a bad day and he continually found fault with his caddie.

"I'm going to report you to the caddie master as soon as we get back," he said peevishly.

"Huh!" said the caddie. "I needn't start worryin' for ages yet."

"Say, caddie," said the golfer, deep in the rough, "why do you keep looking at your watch?"

"It isn't a watch, sir," replied the caddie. "It's a compass."

Then there was the frustrated golfer who decided to end it all. He went into the locker room, turned on the warm water, and slashed both wrists. He was bleeding to death quietly, with an interlocking grip, when a pal stuck his head inside the door and asked:

"Want to play tomorrow?"

"What time?" the bleeder asked.

Two guys played a round at Las Vegas and one of them lost 15 balls. That night they played roulette and the one who lost the 15 balls in the afternoon won $400.

"That proves it," the other said. "You've been playing the wrong ball."

Wills Now Playing Third Base

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maury Wills, the base-stealing shortstop of Los Angeles Dodgers, says he may have to play third base for the rest of the season.

Wills played third Monday night in Pittsburgh for the first time in two years because of his twisted, swollen and heavily bandaged right knee. John Kennedy was at shortstop most of the game.

"I may have to play there the rest of the season but I'd like to return to shortstop sometime, or when I'm able," he said in Pittsburgh Tuesday.

"People say I could add years to my baseball life by moving to third base. But there's not much to do there."

The Dodgers front office said it has long been manager Walt Alston's feeling that Wills could prolong his baseball career by shifting to third base but any such decision is a matter of time and the condition of the knee.

No-Curve McLain Blanks Chisox

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Charlie Dressen had some famous advice for former McLain—Stop throwing curves.

McLain took the advice and started a streak of trouble for the first time in three weeks, pitching a four-hitter Tuesday night as Detroit defeated Chicago White Sox 5-0.

McLain, 20, the Tigers' ace who hadn't won a game since the All-Star game July 22 when he buried three consecutive starts in the National League's starting pitcher.

Then McLain was also battered for 19 runs in 18 1-3 innings — that's an earned run average of 9.36—while dropping four straight games.

Dressen, the Detroit manager now-retired from an early season heart attack, phoned McLain Tuesday.

"He told me to quit fooling around with the curve ball or else I'd be right back where I started," McLain said after blanking the White Sox.

WINS 16TH GAME

En route to his 16th victory against eight defeats, McLain gave up just four singles and allowed only one runner to reach second base.

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore trimmed Cleveland Indians 8-5, California Angels edged New York Yankees 6-5 in 11 innings, Minnesota Twins downed Boston Red Sox 7-3 and Kansas City Athletics nipped Washington Senators 4-3.

Orlando Marfarlane, who credited McLain for the first time, supported his battery mate with a two-run homer in the fourth inning that gave Brown homered for the Tigers in the eighth.

Paul Schaal fired a shot past Mickey Mantle in centre field in the 11th inning and raced around the bases for an inside-the-park home run, giving California its 28th victory in 30 one-run contests.

The Angels tied the game 5-5 in the ninth on run-scoring single by Jay Johnstone and Jim Fregosi.

Dave Johnson led the Baltimore attack, driving in four runs with a homer and sacrifice fly. The Orioles jumped on Sam McDowell for five runs in the third inning, but they needed Johnny's homer to snap a 5-5 tie in the seventh. Rocky Colavito homered for Cleveland.

Rico Petrocelli tied the game 3-3 for Boston in the eighth, but Jimmie Hall won it for Minnesota in the ninth with a two-out, grand-slam homer off Don McMahon. Don Demeter hit a two-run Red Sox homer while Tony Oliva drove in two Twins' runs with a single.

Bert Campaneris capped Kansas City's three-run rally in the sixth inning with a two-run, inside-the-park homer. Ed Charles led the Athletics' 12 hits and led off the inning with a triple and scored on Ed Brinkman's error. Ken McMullen knocked in two for Washington with a single and a double.

Athletics Acquire Blasingame

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A three-player shift in which Kansas City Athletics acquired veteran infielder Don Blasingame from Washington Senators was announced Tuesday.

The Athletics sent right-handed pitcher Jim Duckworth, 26, to Hoosiers of the Pacific Coast League in exchange for Pitcher Diego Segui, 28, a right-hander formerly with the Athletics, who was sent to Vancouver of the same league. Hoosiers is a Washington farm club and Vancouver is the Kansas City farm system.

Could Be Ottawa Year

Riders, Als Tangle Tonight

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Most questions about the 1966 Eastern Football Conference should be at least partially answered before the week is out.

Two of the biggest questions — Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes — open the EFC season tonight in a game that should indicate whether the EFC race will be another two-team affair or perhaps a wide-open race.

The game will be televised in Eastern Canada on the CTV network, starting at 8 p.m.

After three consecutive years of second - place finishes and playoff losses to Hamilton Tiger-Cats, several observers feel this could be the Riders' year. They have a young team, as they had last year, but they also have a lot more experience.

Last year coach Frank Clair had 10 rookies and the inexperience proved costly in pass defence, especially late in the season. All but one of the rookies are back and only three new men have cracked the lineup—offensive guards Roger Ferdets and Mike Walderzak, both imports, and Canadian tackle Chuck Harrison of Cornwall, Ont.

BACKFIELD IS STRONG

Quarterback Russ Jackson, fullback Jim Shibicki, halfbacks Bo Scott, Ronnie Stewart and Rick Black and flanker Whit Tucker have explosive potential as an often ive backfield, although they will need improved blocking from the line.

Defensively, the Riders are virtually unchanged from last year, except for the added experience.

It's a different story for the Alouettes. After a third straight third-place finish the Larks did a major rebuilding job, starting with the coaching staff and extending throughout the entire team.

Rookie coach Darrell Mudra still has quarterback Bernie Faloney and fullback J. W. Lockett for the power running, but from there the offence is barely recognizable.

The interior of the offensive line has a new look, but it's mostly a result of deals for established veterans rather than a crop of eager rookies. Veteran Chet Mikuta, formerly of Hamilton, is at centre, flanked by guards Kaye Vaughan and Tony Pajaczkowski.

OASA Peewees Win Second Tournament

Belch's hard - hitting peewee softballers won their second straight tournament by downing Burlington, Newmarket and Cobourg in an eight team tournament held at Hastings on Monday. This marked the second consecutive tournament championship for the city team which won the tourney here last month.

The scores were 15-8; 4-3; and 14-9, respectively, with John Sprackett pitching all three. Gary McMurray hurled two scoreless innings in relief in the first game and Sprackett went the route in both the second and third games.

First baseman Al Travis was the big man at the plate for Belleville, with 8 hits in 12 trips, including 2 homers, 2 triples and 3 doubles.

Belleville Peewees will meet Oshawa in the OASA playdowns, beginning at Oshawa August 20th. The second game will be at the new Alumite Field in Belleville August 27th. The series will be a best-of-three affair.

Bantams Hit 13 Home Runs, Lose Tourney

The Belleville O.A.S.A. bantams fought near way into the finals of a softball tournament at Hastings during the past weekend, as the powerful team homered 13 times in three games played.

Scott Reid started all three games for Belleville. He got relief help from Jim Potts. In the first game Belleville whipped Norwood 20-11, and in the second outlasted East Gwillimbury 10-9.

Reid allowed only two hits in a spectacular eight inning effort in the final game against the East Peterborough team, before being bettered off the mound and losing 11-10.

Jim Potts smashed four home runs and Craig Adams had three for Belleville. Scoffer and Beacher each hit a pair of round trippers, and Morton and Reid hit solo blasts.

Jets Edge Wings 4-3, Leafs Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only two percentage points separate Columbus Jets and Rochester Red Wings atop the International League baseball standings.

And the Jets and Wings demonstrated Tuesday night that there isn't much to choose between them.

Tied 2-2 after the sixth, the clubs battled through five scoreless innings before Rochester went ahead 3-2 in the top of the 12th inning on Mike Epstein's 18th home run of the season. However, the Jets won it 4-3 in the bottom of the 12th when Jose Martinez singled home two runs with the bases loaded and two out.

The victory resulted in Columbus taking back first place from the Red Wings by two percentage points.

In the night's only other games, Jacksonville Suns ended Toronto's seven-game winning streak by blanking the Maple Leafs 8-0 and Richmond Braves defeated Buffalo Bisons 8-5.

NHL Has "Proposal" For CAHA

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Tuesday his organization "will have quite a proposal" for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when the relations committees of both groups meet here Aug. 18.

The pro and amateur governing bodies will attempt to renegotiate the pro - amateur agreement, which expires June 30, 1967.

A controversy hinges on the distribution of funds paid by the NHL for amateurs drafted to professional ranks and sponsorship of amateur clubs by the pros.

Bombers Crush Eskys With Passes

Score Was 26-7

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sod Grant is going to investigate Winnipeg Blue Bombers' inability to score a touchdown in the second half of a Western Football Conference game Tuesday night.

"I want to know the reason," the coach said following the Bombers' 26-7 conquest of Edmonton Eskimos before 26,128 fans.

It wasn't needed, but Grant wanted the touchdown to put a 23-0 lead.

The second-half stand and feat hailed ask Jim Thomas salvaged some pride out of an otherwise inept Eskimo effort.

With seconds to go, Thomas—five touchdown passes—in a 40-33 triumph Friday night which started the 1966 WFC season.

Kenny Ploen threw Bombers into range for two of their touchdowns in the second quarter. Dave Raimey got one, Ken Nielsen the other.

Norm Rauhaus got the third, pouncing on a loose ball when Eskimo Garry LeFebvre fumbled a punt in the end zone.

Norm Wilson's perfection on converts and his unsuccessful field - goal - try single, Ed Ulmer's two punt singles and Bob Taylor's safety-touch tackle of Eskimo quarterback Sid Reddi wrapped up Winnipeg scoring.

Ploen, who ceded his signal-calling chores to Dick Thornton in the final minutes, completed 16 of 26 passes for 246 yards.

RAIMEY GOES OVER

Leo Lewis caught Ploen's dump pass in the last minute of the first quarter and skipped 28 yards down the left side to the Edmonton 19 - yard line. Within seconds, Raimey had twisted 12 yards for a touchdown.

In the 13th minute of the second quarter Billy Cooper, the WFC's top rookie in 1964, outpaced Eskimos' Art Johnson for a back - pedalling catch of Ploen's 49-yard toss. Working from the Edmonton 10-yard line, Ploen found Nielsen with a scoring strike.

In the first 70 minutes the Eskimos, breaking in 15 rookies in a bid to escape from last place, managed to penetrate Winnipeg territory only twice.

Ulmer was a thorn in their side, intercepting three passes and four times holding Eskimo rushes to short yardage. But the former Ottawa Rough Rider was also the man who failed to hold on to Thomas on the last-second romp.

Statistically it was: Winnipeg 27 first downs, 125 yards rushing, 246 passing; Edmonton —nine first downs, 162 yards rushing, 92 passing. Reddi and Randy Kerbow completed five of 16 passes. Coffey caught all of them.

Empire Games

Half-Milers Warned "Watch Crothers"

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Track buffs are touting the British Empire Games 880 as a classic race when athletes from 35 countries get down to business Thursday for the five-day jamboree to settle who are the greatest foot runners, tossers, vaulters and jumpers in the Commonwealth.

The word is out to watch Canada's Bill Crothers against a great field. Crothers of Markham, Ont., holds the Canadian record of 1:46.8 for the half mile.

"I wouldn't be surprised if the winner hits the tape in under 1:46," Crothers said Tuesday.

That would shatter the 1:47.3 Games record set by Peter Snell of New Zealand in 1962 at Perth.

Crothers, by his own admission, has stressed that he's only out for victory and will let the times of the race look after itself.

OPPONENT AGREES

One of the first to agree is George Kerr, soft - spoken 28-year-old Jamaican whose big, lithe career dates back to the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne.

Kerr, an entomologist, tipped his hand when he said he will compete only in the 880 here. He has won eight medals—four gold, two second-place silver and two third-place bronze—in both the 440 and the 880 in previous Games.

Heats in the 880 are Saturday with finals set for Monday night.

Besides Crothers, who went 1:47.3 July 23 in Toronto, there's Kenyan Wilson Kiprugut, bronze medalist in the 800 metres at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, England's John Boulter and Chris Carter.

Boulter tipped Commonwealth ratings this year with 1:47.2 and Carter was just one-tenth of a second behind.

Kerr has met them all except Carter. The old fox of half milers has a 2-2 won-lost record against Crothers.

They first met in Toronto in 1964 and Kerr won again in the 1962 British Empire Games 800 semi-finals when Snell bowed in Crothers."

But strategy for this half-mile is a question.

"I don't think there will be too much strategy," said Kerr. "The guys will just go out there and run."

Others in the probable field are also a strategy question.

"You can always expect Kipruigut to go right out from the start," Kerr said.

Boulter will probably do the same as Kipruigut.

"Crothers usually sticks back and I like to run in the crowd, following somebody. I can follow practically any pace—I've run a 53-second lap."

Field Whittled To Fifty

By WALTER HAYES

VANCOUVER (CP) — It's down to business today for the 50 top remaining players in the Canadian lawn tennis championships.

They days of fierce competition whittled the field down from 64 starters and only the experienced players are left. Even some of those have fallen by the quick, hot pace.

Three seeded American men were dropped to consolation play in upsets Tuesday, the second of the six-day tournament.

A blistered foot continued to give top-seeded Canadian Mike Belkin of Toronto trouble Tuesday and he had a touch time beating Tom Muench of Sacramento, Calif., 6-0, 9-7 in third round play.

Belkin, a member of the Canadian Davis Cup team, was expected to provide tough competition later in the tournament for top-seeded foreign entry Allan Fox of Los Angeles, but he may be forced to default the rest of his matches if he blisters don't improve.

PLAY 40 GAMES

Third seed Keith Carpenter of Montreal, another Davis Cup team member, needed 40 games to defeat unranked Ken Stuart of Los Angeles 16-32, 8-6 in third round play.

Sixth forlorn seed Steve Wilkinson of Bellingham, Wash., was eliminated 6-1, 6-2 by Toronto's Max Ward in the second round.

Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver, a Davis Cup team member, put away his seventh seeded pair, Bob Murio of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-4.

Eighth-seeded foreigner Joe Huey of Los Angeles was the other seeded player to be eliminated when he lost 6-4, 6-0 to Victoria's Don McCormick.

Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., the top - seeded Canadian woman, and top-seeded foreign woman Rita Bentley of Manchester, England, easily advanced in second round matches Tuesday.

Retains Feather Title

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—Billy McGrandle of Edmonton, scheduled to be married today, will march up the aisle with a sore nose and the Canadian featherweight boxing championship.

The 18-year-old youngster won a close, unanimous decision Tuesday night over Thomas McDougall of Sydney, N.S., Tuesday to keep the title he won from Jackie Sadd in Montreal two months ago.

A solid body attack on the lanky 135-pound challenger from Dartmouth, N.S., moved smartly to the front and McGrandle in the middle stages before McGrandle's aggressiveness paid off.

McDougall, a soft-spoken university student rallied in the last three rounds but fell one point short on the card of referee John Smith of Edmonton, who scored it 58-54. The two judges, also from Edmonton, scored it 56-54 and 59-55.

McGrandle's right and McGrandle three times for assorted violations but both fighters were guilty of heeling and butting.

McGrandle bled from the nose in the third round but was not affected noticeably. McDougall suffered a minor nick over his left eye in the sixth round. It did not bother him.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

SQUARE EVERYTHING FOR ACCURATE PUTTING

Many golfers fail to achieve lasting success on the greens because they fail to stroke their putterface squarely into the ball. It may be moving toward or away from the player, rather than along the target line towards the hole.

To become a consistently good putter, you must stroke your putts so that the clubface is moving along the target line as you strike the ball.

The surest way to achieve such a putting stroke is to make certain that your feet, knees, hips and shoulders are all positioned to parallel the target line (see illustration). If you are fully positioned square to the target in this manner, it will be difficult for you to aim in your putting stroke. More solidly stroked putts will result from this proper address position.

Says Mr. London:

Fighting's Lousy; Pay Good

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — The odd thing about Brian London, who fights Cassius Clay Saturday for the world heavyweight boxing title, is that he hates boxing.

London, 32, freely admits that he's in the game strictly for the cash.

In 11 years as a professional he has earned $250,000 and lives comfortably near Blackpool. The Clay fight will fatten his bank balance by a minimum $162,000.

"Fighting is a lousy business, but pay is good," he says.

London is shorter than Clay, but almost as heavy and is built like a tank. In 47 fights he has 36 victories.

He is confident he can beat Clay by adopting a Rocky Marciano style of infighting.

"I'm just going to get in there and have a ding-dong.

"I seem to have better fights against people who are not punchers and it does not appear that Clay can punch.

"Someone is going to beat him one day and it might as well be me.

"My best bet will be to close in and fight in Marciano style, crowding my man all the way."

London was born into a boxing family. His father, Jack, formerly was British heavyweight champion.

But at school, Brian preferred football and cross-country running to boxing. When his father began training him into the ring Brian's first thought was to get it over quickly and get out.

London made his pro debut in 1955 by stopping Dennis Lockton in the first round. In his next 10 fights, London chalked up nine wins inside the distance.

His string of victories ended, however, when he was stopped by European heavyweight champion Henry Cooper in the first round. In two later fights Cooper, stopped by Clay in the sixth round of their title fight here May 21, again beat London both times.

One of London's best wins was over former world lightheavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in 1958. The fight was stopped in the fifth with Pastrano suffering a badly cut left eye.

The same year London won the British and Empire heavyweight titles, knocking out Joe Erskine of Wales in the eighth round.

Motorcycle Body

Urges Control Legislation

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Motorcycle Association called Tuesday for legislation to control motorbikes after the Ontario department of transport announced an increased death and accident toll among motorcyclists.

The department says 20 riders and eight passengers were killed to the end of June, 1966, compared to eight riders and four passengers in the same period last year.

Injured were 1,125 riders and 287 passengers in the January-June period this year, compared to 596 riders and 141 passengers last year.

Motorcycle registrations at the end of May this year were 24,460, compared to 12,000 at the same time last year.

Mrs. Eve White, an executive member of the motorcycle association and editor of Canadian Motorcycling, called for:

—Supervised, compulsory, instruction of novice riders;

—Establishment of instruction areas;

—A ban of all machines of less than six horsepower from provincial highways;

—Separate licenses for motorbike operators;

—Development of a safety helmet complying with specifications of the Canadian Standards Association.

At present in Ontario anyone can ride a motorbike by getting a $2 beginner's permit, valid for 90 days, or on the basis of an ordinary driver's permit obtained by passing a test in an automobile.

Dominion Shoot

Hampton Takes Bankers

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Dick Hampton of Alliston, Ont., continued his rookie shooting at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships today with a victory over eight rivals in a shoot-off for top honors in the difficult Bankers match.

The burly 33-year-old security salesman, who retired from the army a few years ago with the rank of major, won the top event in Commonwealth shoot-ing—The Queen's Prize at Bisley, England—less than a month ago and already has finished second in one event and third in another in the DCRA matches in addition to winning the Bankers.

The nine Bankers finalists were forced to shoot off yards into a stiff wind that blew straight toward them off the government's mile - wide Connaught Ranges near this community west of Ottawa.

It took Hampton three shots beyond the regulation five to defeat a determined bid by Larry Fish of Oakville in the shoot-off. Each had a score of 34 out of 35 and together with John Whitecross of Winnipeg they continued to shoot it out.

Hampton and Fish had four-point leads on their first two shots while Whitecross went to the sidelines with an inner followed by a three-point magpie.

On the third extra shot Hampton scored a bullseye while Fish had to settle for another inner.

Lt.-Cmdr. Eddie Ryan (retired) of Kingston, LAC Ernie Roger of Namao, Alta., and Britons John Byles of Bickley, Kent, and Jim Fitch of Weybridge, Surrey, all had 33, followed by Cadet Philip Lawrence of Hull, Que., with 30 and Maj. Fred Vine of London, Ont., with 29.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Waples of Victoria Harbor, Ont., drove two winners Tuesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The 42-year-old teamster won with Mr. Joe in the third race and returned to the winners' circle in the fourth with Admit.

Paul Barkley's Adios Hanover from Morrisburg, Ont., set up the head end of a $28.80 exacta or with a two-length win over Rendezvous Boy in the sixth.

Lloyd Hanover, a 19-year-old trotter who finished sixth in the third race for Morris MacDonald of Strathroy, was claimed for $1,500 by Gerald Hess of Morrisburg.

69 Leads Junior Golfers

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—Ken Trowbridge of Brampton shot a one-under-par 69 Tuesday to take a two-stroke lead over 161 other teen-age golfers in the 36-hole Ontario junior golf championship.

Trowbridge, who played through a heavy rain, birdied the 12th hole and eagled the five 17th, sinking a 12-foot putt.

Fred Kesselring of Kitchener, son of Gerry Kesselring, one of Canada's finest amateur golfers, was tied with two others at one-over-par 71. Gar Hamilton Jr. of Weston and Peter Turner of Thornhill, who three weeks ago won a berth to the Playcare International tournament in Chicago, were the other 71 shooters.

Ian Thomas of London, the Canadian junior champion, and Danny Hanson of Ridgetown were one shot back at 72.

Tim McCutcheon of Peterborough and Dwayne Hay of Georgetown paced the juvenile division, age 14-15, with 72s. McCutcheon was the Ontario bantam champion two years ago.

Falls Wins Midget Tournament

TORONTO (CP) — Niagara Falls won the annual Leaside Midget baseball tournament Monday by four months.

Niagara Falls defeated Runnymede 4-2 in the final behind the pitching of 13-year-old Phil Roberto, voted the most valuable player of the tournament.

Under amateur baseball rules, outside of Metropolitan Toronto, anyone under 17 years of age as of Jan. 1 is eligible to play midget baseball. The age limit is May 1 inside Toronto.

Roberto was born Jan 1 and could play for any team outside Toronto.

Roberto struck out 21 and allowed only four hits, all in the last inning to break his shutout attempt.

Niagara Falls beat Wheatley 9-4, with Roberto in centre-field. He hit two home runs in that game. Roberto pitched a three-hitter 11-2 win over Kitchener, striking out 13 and hitting his third home run of the series. Niagara Falls beat Hamilton 5-1 Monday with Roberto pitching three innings of relief.

S. Warner Shades Cheesemen

Stewart Warner scored a come-from-behind 10-9 win over Black Diamond in a Commercial Softball league battle at the CNR last night. The Warnermen overcame a five run deficit and grabbed the victory in the seventh, when Gary Gow slammed a two - out home run.

The two pokies kept Stewart Warner in second place, 10 points back of Lapcaps in leading Point Anne.

Doug Ellis hurled the win, while Sonny Holoway took the loss. Holoway gave up 10 hits and fanned four.

Pat Glancey, Keith Bertram, Doug Ellis, Claude Carr, Gary Gow and Floyd Crawford hit for the winners.

(Ed. note: - Scorekeepers at games are supposed to record the scores of both participating teams. This was not done in this game. Managers should see that this is done. In future "one - half" scoring will not be published.)

Elaine May Race In Eight

KINGSTON (Reuters) — Elaine Tanner, 15-year-old Vancouver girl expected to emerge as the star of the British Empire Games swimming events, may tackle eight races.

Miss Tanner, known to teammates as Mighty Mouse, swam 17 times during four days in the Canadian championships in early week and won six individual titles and shared three relay events.

But Miss Tanner was anxious to swim in all eight events for which she was entered—110-yard freestyle, the 110- and 220-yard backstroke and Butterfly events, the 440-yard individual medley and the freestyle and medley relays.

Gilchrist Placed On Reserve

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Denver Broncos' solid Tuesday that Cookie Gilchrist, 31-year-old fullback who says he doesn't want to play for Denver, will be placed on the American Football League's reserve list.

Jim Burris, executive vice-president, said this is equivalent to suspension since the league has no suspension list.

Gilchrist said Monday night, in a letter he made public here, that he was quitting the Broncos and a year left on his two-year contract.

WILD ABOUT PONIES — Judy MacLean fell in love with horses when she was a baby. Now, at 19, she's even wilder about them. She spends her day at a race track outside Ottawa and at night she works as race marshal, leading the trotters to the starting gate. Her duties include dealing with ill-mannered starters, recovering runaway horses and controlling traffic around track accidents. She also has her trainer's licence.

Former Trenton Girl, 19, Race Marshal at Ottawa

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Most little girls are crazy about horses, but the attraction usually fades when they discover boys.

Judy MacLean, race marshal at a track outside Ottawa, fell in love with horses at 18 months. If anything, she is even wilder about the ponies at 19 years.

She says the 15-hour days she sometimes puts in at the track don't hamper her social life at all. "You meet a lot of really neat people out here."

Most of them are men. Out of 200 people hunting, harnessing and logging the 450 horses stabled at the track, only 10 are women. Judy has her trainer's licence, says she's never had any opposition from her male competition.

"They just think you're funny."

Barefoot, in shorts and a flowered shirt, Judy looks about 13. A blue - eyed brunette, she seems too small at five feet four inches and 115 pounds to handle half a ton of ornery horse.

But she's been riding since she was a toddler on her grandfather's Nova Scotia farm. Since then she has lived in Edmonton, Somerset, P.E.I., Labrador and Trenton, Ont., with her air force family and it has been horses, horses all the way.

OWNS SPIRITED MARE

"My family don't understand it. They like horses but not the way I do."

She goes out to the track every day, sometimes as early as 8 a.m., to groom and work out the two horses she rides alternately at the head of the race parades. One, a tall black gelding, is rented from a riding school. The other, a delicate bay mare called Dancer Mc Lemore, is Judy's.

"She's kind of goofy," says Judy with a sigh. "It's not that she's stupid, she's just so high-spirited that she doesn't know what to do with herself."

Judy spends the afternoons "sort of messing around" with harness and other horses, and goes to work about 8 p.m. with the first race.

Resplendent in black jacket, jhodpurs and hard hat, white shirt and long brown boots, she leads the trotters to the starting gate. Her duties include dealing with ill - mannered starters, recovering runaway horses and controlling traffic around accidents at the track.

ASKED FOR JOB

She suggested her job herself.

"I used to be out here all the time last year working out other people's horses, and they didn't have a marshal. So I thought it would be a nice job for me, and I asked them if I could do it. They said yes."

She gets $50 a week, but she made more last year helping out in the paddocks.

"I can't beat this year, because employers can't, but it's probably just as well. The most I ever won was $31 anyway."

A Grade 12 graduate last June, Judy wants to go to an American school for race track officials next fall. "I want to be a race secretary, but I'd also like to train and show horses."

Right now she's shaping up an orphan yearling she bought as a new-born for $35.

"My girl friend and I raised him on skim milk and pablum. It cost us a fortune but it was worth it. He's still tickling and I simply adore him."

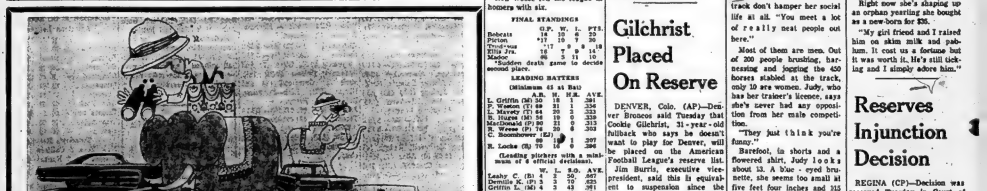
Reserves Injunction Decision

REGINA (CP)—Decision was reserved Tuesday in Court of Queen's Bench on an application by Melville Millionaires for a temporary injunction to prevent the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League acting on plans to disband.

Mr. Justice F. W. Johnson reserved decision on a statement of claim filed by Melville, one of the league's seven clubs, July 28.

The claim seeks damages from league commissioner Frank Boucher of Regina and the other clubs.

It asks that a July 15 resolution to disband be ruled invalid and that league funds be turned over to a receiver by court order. It says league assets at April 30 were $34,010.



Melville is asking $250,000 general damages and $2,800 special damages because, the club says, it and Flin Flon Bombers of the same league received intimations June 26 they would not be admitted to the new Canadian Major Junior Hockey League which the others purported to form and were left without a league in which to play.

C. R. Davidson of Regina, counsel for Melville at the hearing, said the club realized it could not prevent other clubs leaving the SJHL or forming a new league, "but we don't want them taking the hoodle,"—the assets of the SJHL.

CANADA LEADS

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. The teams split the opening two singles matches in the elimination to decide which will face the defending American team.

"A Patch of Blue" wins 2 Academy Award Winners, Comprises Last Bonus

Sidney Poitier, who won the Academy Award as Best Actor for his performance in "Lilies of the Field," offers another heartwarming portrayal in the new Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer film, "A Patch of Blue," which he co-stars with Shelley Winters, also an Oscar winner, and which introduces a compelling young acting personality, Elizabeth Hartman, in her screen debut.

Miss Hartman plays a striking role, that of Selina, a young blind girl who lives in a sordid tenement environment with her slatternly mother (Miss Winters) and an alcoholic, ineffectual grandfather Wallace Ford. Cut off from the sights of the world, her only happiness is in being taken to the park by a Polish merchant for whom she brings beads to help out with the family expenses.

Here one day, she meets Gordon - Poitier and it is an encounter which changes her entire life.

Private Hitchcock Nightmare Is Ketchup on French Fries

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—As a lifelong dealer in nightmares, Alfred Hitchcock has a private terror of his own.

It isn't the sight of blood. It's the sound of ketchup.

"I went out to take this down carefully because it is of the greatest significance," said the portly master of filmed suspense as he forked the slender, dark shape handled like a victim in his luncheon plate.

"The reason I hate ketchup is that it is connected with the most unpleasant sound in the world—the sound of a hand smacking the bottom of a bottle.

"As a result of this sound some horrible looking red goo slowly emerges from the neck of the bottle and lays itself over some perfectly innocent French fried potatoes, which never harmed anyone in their life."

Work, wine and food make the chief social world of Alfred Hitchcock, and he loves to discourse amiably about all three. One of his favorite diners was no all-bias meat—he brews as a practical joke for the late Gertrude Stein.

"I served him soup, bine bread, blue trout, blue chicken and blue cheese," he said, "so he called fondly. "It was quite a meal."

He has a private wine cellar of 4,000 bottles, including some going back to 1880 for which he has been offered $100 a bottle by other connoisseurs. He uncorks them sparingly because, as usual, he is having weaker knee trouble. His weight hovers around 218.

ALWAYS CALM

The director is famed for his equanimity. Methodically, he sets each scene in advance, never raises his voice or bothers to look through a camera eye set, and on the occasional retakes he remarked dryly:

"All their drama is on the set and not on the screen."

"This is a golden year for "Hitch," and filmdom is behaving him celebrates it. It marks the completion of his 20th motion picture — Tony Curtis, starring Paul Newman and Jules Andrews.

Hitchcock started as an advertising layout artist for a London department store. His first job in films was writing titles in silent films. The first one he directed was "The Pleasure Garden, made in Munich in 1925.

"I've been through a lot of famous titles since then," he remarked. He turned out Britain's first talkie picture, Blackmail, in 1930, and became a top figure in Hollywood in 1940 with his first American-made film, Rebecca.

His own favorites among the 54 he has directed that bear his imprint include Spellbound, Lifeboat, Shadow of a Doubt, Rear Window and Psycho.

Questions Most Often Asked Tour Guides for Universal

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Here are the questions which Universal Studio tour guides say visitors ask most often—with answers by the guides and others:

Q. (To make-up men): Which stars are hardest to get along with?

A. You cannot develop a rotten attitude and rise to the level stars have reached. Well liked by the crews are Rosalind Russell, Julie Andrews and Rock Hudson.

Q. How can I get rid of lines and wrinkles in my face?

A. The least amount of makeup is the most helpful. Plus a good moisturizer. On the screen, lighting and camera filters help.

Q. (To stuntmen): How do you get to be a stuntman?

A. There's no school for stuntmen. You have to know one, then start training with him.

Q. What becomes of an actress's wardrobe?

A. Some things go into the wardrobe department. Some outlines an actress buys her costume, or it's given to her.

Q. How do you become a movie star?

A. Try to get bit parts and work your way up.

New Shows Will Provide Competition for Goliaths

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The woods—the Hollywoods, that is—are full of viewers powerful enough to make or break the latest dens. Especially during Sunday night, a half-hour NBC comedy called Hey, Landlord, will try to compete against two powerful opponents—the perennial Ed Sullivan Show on CBS and ABC's FBI. Last season this combination of shows squeezed Chuck Connors' Branded right out of network TV.

Andy Williams has got to be unhappy about his new position in NBC's lineup. His variety hour has been shifted to the 10-11 p.m. spot Sunday nights, a time period that has proved deadly for his two predecessors —The Phenix and Wechsler Ship in The Army. The enemy is CBS' long-running Candid Camera followed by What's My Line?

Opposition networks have been attempting for years to dent the popularity of NBC's Sesame Street every weekday afternoon. But this mid-evening Sunday hour this last season proved to be the final nail in the coffin of CBS' Perry Mason. Garry Moore and his new variety show have the dubious honor of being CBS' choice to try to crack the Cartwright's high ratings.

Roger Miller may be king of the road, but Lucille Ball is queen of comedy and the Nielsen ratings. Miller's new half-hour variety show on NBC will be pitted against CBS' Lucy Show Monday nights. ABC's entry is a war show called Rat Patrol. This last season, Lucy neatly dispatched both NBC's Dr. Kildare and ABC's Jesse James.

Red Skelton is ratings ruler of the Tuesday night schedules. ABC hopes to make a dent with a comedy western followed by unhappy about his new position another comedy starring Fred-lis Diller and Gypsy Rose Lee. NBC has scheduled a situation comedy, Occasional Wife, for the first half hour opposite Skelton and then swings into a rerun of a feature movie.

Schedule switches also will bring collisions between some established hits. Hogan's Heroes and Wild, Wild West on serious competition in its Friday night spot last season, will tangle with NBC's The Man From U.N.C.L.E., a formidable opponent.

And Gomer Pyle, which had everything going for it as a Friday night CBS entry, has been moved into the Wednesday evening lineup—and runs headlong into ABC's Peyton Place.

Hospital Workers On Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-medical workers began returning to their jobs in Quebec hospitals today following their acceptance Wednesday of a new 30-month contract which ended a 20-day strike.

The 32,000 employees, represented by the National Federation of Services which is associated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, voted more than 80 per cent in favor of ending the strike.

Several Montreal hospitals reported Wednesday night the non - medical workers were showing up for the midnight shift although the new agreement provided for a three - day return - to - work period.

A special strike - occasioned session of the Quebec legislature, called for today, was postponed after settlement was reached.

The agreement, arrived at by union officials and Yves Pratte, newly - appointed administrator over 130 Quebec hospitals, was a compromise between the workers' demands and the government's offer on behalf of the Quebec Hospital Association.

RANGE FROM $8 TO $19

The contract awarded increases in various rates ranging from $8 to $10 over the contract expiring for three wage groups. For those who earned less than $59.4 week under the old contract, a $4 increase was given, retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Another $1 was given retroactive to last July 1 and a further $3 would come effective on July 4, 1967.

For workers who made more than $60 but less than $80, raises of $5, $1 and $3 were granted, retroactive and effective on the same dates as in the first group.

The third group—those who earned more than $80 or over a week—received raises of $5, $1, and $4, retroactive and effective on the same dates as in the other two groups.

Other benefits included shorter working hours, longer vacations and more emphasis on seniority in the placing of candidates in new jobs.

NURSES SEEK INCREASE

Some 2,294 nurses, also affiliated with the CNTU, participated in the strike in support of demands for a $20 increase in their $80-a-week salary.

They voted 89 per cent in favor of accepting a contract offer but it was not known immediately if their raise was granted.

Ten Arrested After Riot Act Read At Delhi

DELHI, Ont. (CP) — Police out to give them more than armed with shotguns Wednesday arrested 30 Jobless tobacco workers who refused to disperse after Mayor A. M. Sayeau read the Riot Act to about 200 of the transients who marched on this town demanding better food and lodging.

More than 500 workers, mostly from the Markimes, Northern Ontario and Quebec, were waking in a camp near here for the expected opening of the tobacco harvesting season Aug. 8.

They receive free meat and cheese sandwiches twice a day. A large "circus tent" with a canvas floor serves as a dormitory.

Police Chief Carl Johnson said the workers threatened Tuesday night that if they did not get more food they would march into town and take it.

Wednesday they marched but found the road blocked by two police cars and eight policemen. On police recommendation, Mayor Sayeau read the Riot Act.

Under the Criminal Code, this may be read when 12 or more persons unlawfully and riotously assemble. They are liable to life imprisonment if they do not disperse within 30 minutes.

Most of the demonstrators dispersed but 30 who refused were arrested. Charges of causing a disturbance and unlawful assembly are pending.

Rev. R. J. Langan, chairman of a citizens group which operates the transient camp, blamed the trouble on a few ringleaders. He described these variously as "big mouths," "odd balls and goofs," "rabble-rousers" and "guys with long hair."

Of the camp, the priest said: "It's not living at the Ritz but it's free. The food is better than ever it was. We never started

Peace Body Strafed in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Communist dispatches said Wednesday members of the International Control Commission were among those strafed by U.S. and South Vietnamese planes in alleged attacks on a Cambodian frontier village.

The ICC — composed of Canada, India, and Poland — was reported investigating charges of earlier strikes at the village of Anloeng Trach when one raid took place Tuesday, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The ICC was formed in 1954 to supervise the truce established by the Geneva conference that year.

U.S. officials in Saigon refused any comment on the reports. The ICC for Viet Nam said any protests would be filed with the ICC representatives for Cambodia.

The Tass report from Phnom Penh, Cambodia, said members of the ICC, accompanied by military attaches of Britain, France and Indonesia, and a group of journalists, were strafed for 30 minutes by "two fighters with identification marks of the United States Air Force."

American involvement in the war. A total of 15,012 Americans have been wounded this year.

South Vietnamese combat dead increased by five last week to 200 but the number of missing or captured declined to 31 from 45, a spokesman said. The government does not report the number wounded.

The other forces reported 12 dead, 21 wounded and none missing compared with three dead and seven wounded the previous week.

Enemy casualties also were lower. Spokesmen said 1,153 killed and 120 captured the Police Move Into Quebec Strike Area

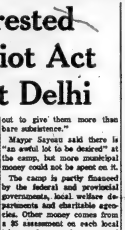
HAUTERIVE, Que. (CP)— Some 330 members of the Quebec Provincial Police arrived in Hauterive Wednesday and left by bus for areas to the north where construction sites operated by Hydro - Quebec have been hit by another strike.

The police reinforcements arrived from various parts of the province, flying in this area on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, some 200 miles northeast of Quebec City.



At the sites of the developing hydroelectric projects, 4,500 employees of the provincially-owned power utility have been on strike since Tuesday following a breakdown in negotiations for a new contract.

On Wednesday, Mr. Justice Robert Beaudoin of Quebec Superior Court issued an interim injunction in Quebec City ordering the strikers' union to stop picketing and carrying out an "illegal blockade" of the big projects on the Manicouagan and Outardes rivers.

Mr. Justice Beaudoin said the injunction would remain valid until Aug. 25 when representatives of Hydro - Quebec were ordered to appear in order to file application for an interlocutory injunction.

Premier Daniel Johnson expressed gratification when he

Wildcat Walkout Ties Up Railway Express Services

MONTREAL (CP)—A wildcat walkout by 2,000 non-operating union employees continued to tie up express services of the CNR and CPR here today.

About 1,200 CNR employees, supported by more than 700 CPR employees, picketed several rail properties Wednesday in support of their demands for more speed by Judge C. A. Cameron, the federally - appointed conciliator, in presenting his report on a proposed new working agreement.

The impetus behind the sudden work stoppage was not immediately known. Union officials said Wednesday night they were surprised by the action because all the men knew that a union-supported strike was almost inevitable later this month.

J. A. Pelletier, secretary of the joint protective board of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), said union appeals for the men to end the walkout have been futile.

Meanwhile, in Toronto, about 425 express handlers voted Wednesday night to end their one-day walkout and return to work. Another 700 CPR express handlers who also walked off their job Tuesday were scheduled to meet today to decide whether to continue their walkout. Both Toronto groups have declined sympathy with the Montreal workers.

UNION OPPOSES WALKOUT

Mr. Pelletier said the Toronto strikers were informed by their local leaders Wednesday that the union had no wish to support an illegal wildcat walkout.

The CBRT workers are all employees of the CNR. The CPR employees on strike are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Express and Station Employees (CLC).

More than 10,000 non-operating union members in Canada have

Swedes Ask End Of Tests

GENEVA (Reuters) — Sweden appealed today to the United States and the Soviet Union to agree to stop underground nuclear tests by the end of this year.

Mrs. Alva Myrdal, chief Swedish delegate, told the 18-nation Geneva disarmament conference the positions of the two nuclear powers on this issue are close and she hopes agreement might be within reach.

Negotiations on a underground test ban have been stalled for years by U.S.-Soviet differences over the issue of international inspection on the site of suspicious underground upheaval.

The U.S. says a certain number of these inspections are necessary to make sure that the event was an earthquake and not a secret test explosion. But the Soviet Union says modern seismic instruments are sufficiently sensitive to detect this.

Nuclear test in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space are banned by the 1963 Moscow test ban treaty.

Mrs. Myrdal said neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union has indicated it is ready to agree on an underground test ban.

Strike Shuts Stelco Plant

HAMILTON (CP) — A squad of 180 policemen broke up minor skirmishes at the scene of a wildcat strike which closed down the Hilton plant of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., here early today.

The plant closed when some 4,000 day shift workers joined 7,000 fellow employees in refusing to cross picket lines.

Nearly 5,000 members of Local 1005, United Steelworkers of America (CLC), blocking the plant's main gate, made a lunge at their own union leaders who were urging them through loudspeakers to return to work.

Police quickly surrounded the Chicago Hecklers Arrested

CHICAGO (AP)—Police again skirmished Wednesday night with white hecklers who turned out in an all - white Chicago neighborhood to harass 200 civil rights demonstrators protesting alleged housing discrimination.

At least 21 men and women in a crowd of about 1,500 whites were hauled away by police vans as the demonstrators marched through streets to a real estate office. Several persons were injured.

A dead snake, rocks and a toy machete were a few of missiles tossed at the marchers and several bottles were thrown at police guarding the demonstrators' automobiles in a nearby park.

Marchers were led by three aides of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

In Providence, R.I., Gov. John H. Chafee blamed "young ruffians" for racial disturbances in the city two nights this week.

Meanwhile, the U.S. House of Representatives tentatively wrote a controversial open housing provision into the 1966 civil rights bill by a 40-vote margin, 180 to 179.

The provision still faces a motion to eliminate it from the bill and a separate roll call vote before final passage. It also must pass the Senate.

'Armed Forces Council' Formed by Gen. Allard

HALIFAX (CP) — Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of Canada's defence staff, announced today the formation of "an armed forces council" composed of senior officers at headquarters in Ottawa and the commanders of all six commands.

He told a news conference here that the council will have the job of considering the shape by which integration and unification of the forces will be carried out.

The first meeting of the council will be held in Ottawa and it will meet regularly once a month thereafter.

The general said it will be the council's job to draw up recommendations concerning integration and unification, but the final responsibility as to what recommendations will be made to Defence Minister Hellyer will remain with him.

Gen. Allard said the council will determine to a large extent "the course of action I will take."

"I want the council to participate fully in the decision making."

He said matters of current policy are also decisions, but the council will have a large say in recommendations for future policy. One of these matters with which the council will deal is unification of the navy, army and air force and the proposal for a single uniform.

He declined to comment directly on the recent so-called "admirals' revolt" except to say he didn't think it was a revolt at all. He thought the term "revolt" was something dreamed up by the press.

He said it was his idea to set up the armed forces council. The general's visit to defence installations at Nova Scotia is the first of a series he plans to all branches of the armed forces across Canada.

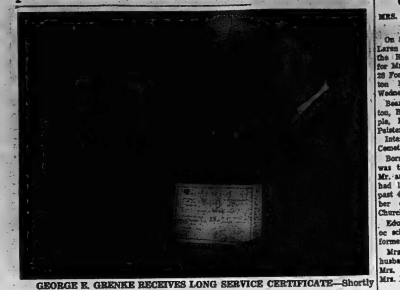
He had participated in integration since it was started two years ago. He had organized the new Mobile Command "from zero" and this was one of the most interesting and most pleasant jobs he had done.

Air force officers were in the majority on Mobile Command staff. Despite this, everything had worked extremely well. "From the beginning there was never any problem."

Big Stratofortresses Pound 6-Mile Demilitarized Strip

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force B-52s today bombed the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam for the third time, hitting suspected North Vietnamese infiltration routes and gun positions in the six-mile-wide strip.

The Stratofortresses pounded the jungle area with heavy explosives in an apparent effort to destroy troops of North Viet Nam's 324-B infantry division which escaped from a task force of U.S. marines last south of the zone last week.



The marines ended their 19-day sweep—Operation Hastings—Wednesday after failing to make any further contact with the Communists. The marines in the 324 enemy dead and accounted the beginning of estimated nearly 1,000 others were killed.

The eight - engine bombers also came in from Guam to attack suspected Viet Cong concentrations and a base camp 30 miles northwest of Saigon, where Communist activity has been on the rise recently.

Meanwhile, the U.S. military command announced today that 93 Americans were killed and 534 wounded in combat last week. Both figures were a drop from the previous week when 106 Americans were killed and 976 wounded.

The report brought the unofficial toll of American battle dead to 2,091 for the year and to 4,329 since Jan. 1, 1961, the date considered the beginning of

City's Golfing Aldermen Win Over Ottawa

Belleville's golfing aldermen Jon Joss and Tom Carruthers, on their third consecutive ster - city aldermanic golf match at the Bay of Quinte Club yesterday, defeating a team rom Ottawa.

The two Bellefville aldermen ere eight up with seven holes ft to play in their match against Controller Murray Hall and City Clerk Alf Hanley of Ottawa. Joss and Carruthers fired a best - ball score of 72. Tanley and Hall were 84.

In another match yesterday, Ald. Desmond Bender and Dr. Roger Kennedy, City Officer of Health, Ottawa, tipped three Belleville aldermen, Ken Soden, Doug Boyle and Don Williams, four up with two holes to go. The Ottawa twosome shot a best - ball of 80 compared to a 95 for the Belleville aldermen.

officials and whisked them out of the area in cars.

The incident occurred about 7 a.m.

Four men were arrested after minor altercations with police.

John Morgan, president of the local, membandied by workers when he attempted to urge them back to work, called the strike illegal.

He warned the men on picket lines they are harming themselves by continuing the walkout.

Morgan was booted and told to go home by the workers. A group of pickets pushed him into the street while the rest shouted: "Out, Out, Out."

"You can see the union's executives have no control over this," Mr. Morgan said. "They (the workers) will not even let us through the picket lines."

In a prepared statement, he said the strike is futile and the workers won't get pay from either the company or the union.

Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, Ont., chairman of a three - man conciliation board meeting in Toronto with union and company officials, said the talks will be suspended due to the illegal strike.

"The board has no intentions of resuming negotiations until the picket line is removed and the employees have returned to work.

"It is the unanimous view of the board that the prohibiting strikes during conciliation proceedings must be upheld. The unwarranted conduct of irresponsible elements acting contrary to the law and against the specific instructions of their elected leaders and bargaining representatives cannot be tolerated."

Judge Little was appointed chairman of the board July 19 at the joint request of the parties.

Negotiations for a new contract to replace one that expired Aug. 1 have been under way for four months.

Wednesday night, picket lines appeared at Steico's main plant as hundreds of afternoon shift workers turned back the night shift of about 3,500 men.

Autopsy Seeks Evidence Slayer Goof-Ball Addict

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—An autopsy report today is expected to show whether Charles J. Whitman was under the influence of drugs when he killed 16 persons and wounded 31 others before police bullets cut him down.

Jerry Dellana, justice of the peace, said he has instructed pathologists making the autopsy to search for demedrine in Whitman's blood. DeHana said each pills — goof balls — were found in Whitman's clothing after he was shot by Austin police Monday on the 28th-floor observation tower of the University of Texas main building.

Whitman, 25, killed 13 persons with a spray of rifle fire from the tower. Earlier, he shot and stabbed his mother to death and fatally knifed his young wife, Kathy, 23, as she slept, police said.

Meanwhile, Governor John B. Connelly, is seeking laws that might prevent such slaughter.

Whitman's body, along with that of his mother, was flown Wednesday night to Lake Worth, Fla., their home town. Graveside services were to be held Friday. His wife was buried Wednesday near Rosenberg in the Houston vicinity after funeral services at Needville, her home town.

"I am very disturbed about the whole question of heinous crimes being committed and— through a plea of insanity— punishment being escaped," Connally told a news conference Wednesday. "... We've reached a point in this country where we tend to coddle criminals."

He said he is considering a recommendation to the Texas legislature that "whenever a serious crime where loss of life like this one occurs, and the person is found insane, that the perpetrator be incarcerated for life—and never paroled or released."

Belleville-Built Moving Sidewalk Proves Popular at Montreal Airport

"God bless Montreal."

"They should have one of those in Copenhagen."

Such was the re-action of passengers on International flights arriving at Montreal yesterday after the first of the moving sidewalks built by Stephens-Adamson of Belleville went into operation.

The Belleville firm is installing a total of four of the moving walks at the Montreal International Airport — two for the International passenger tunnels, and two for domestic flight passengers. The three other moving sidewalks are expected to be in operation sometime in November.

The long walks necessary for passengers at the Montreal airport have been a bone of contention since the opening of the terminal and Stephens-Adamson were given the contract to build the moving walks to overcome the problem.

The walk, which went into operation yesterday, is 450 feet in length, moves at a walking pace and is equipped with moving handrails.

Mr. L. Lewis of Belleville, vice president of the Belleville firm, said there was a terrific reaction from arrival passengers as they used the walk yesterday for the first time.

"Everybody was enthusiastic. Many of the passengers saying that similar moving walks would be a good thing at other international airports," he said.

Mr. Lewis said that, with the exception of the moving belt, 99 percent of the walk mechanism was made in Canada.

Travelling to Montreal for the sidewalk inaugural besides Mr. Lewis were Tony Janitsch, chief engineer, Al Taylor, sales engineer and a head office representative from Aurora, Illinois.

The value of the moving sidewalk contract to Stephens-Adamson was approximately $700,000.

Washington Stays Silent About Steel Price Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration maintained silence today on what moves it might take, if any, to try to roll back steel - price increases announced by three companies.

The administration reaffirmed its opposition to any inflationary price rises but said no decision has been made whether the new industry moves—one Monday by Inland Steel Co. and two Wednesday by Armco and Jones and Laughlin—would add to inflation.

President Johnson's council of economic advisers refused to discuss the steel situation publicly although Gardner Ackley, the council president, sent telegrams to at least two companies, including U.S. Steel, the largest in the U.S.

The contents weren't revealed but the telegrams were reported to have urged the firms to hold the price line, at least until the council completes its study of the increases scheduled to take effect next Wednesday. There was no response from the U.S. Steel except to acknowledge Ackley's telegram.

Armco, the fourth - largest steel firm in the U.S., in announcing price increases of $2 and $3 on some basic steel types, called them "so modest they cannot be considered consequential." Jones and Laughlin, fifth - largest producer, gave no reason for its increase but Armco cited increased labor, materials and service costs and reduced earnings.

MAY ADD TO STRAIN

The 2.1 - per - cent price increases by the three firms could add to the strain on the administration's wage - price guidelines which visualizes relatively stable prices.

The three firms' $3-a-ton increase is for strip and sheet metal, the kind used in the manufacture of automobiles and appliances. Prices on secondary grades of the same products would be increased $2 a ton.

Armco said the increases would increase the cost of an automobile by only $3, a refrigerator by 6 cents and a clothes dryer by 15 cents.

Strip and sheet metal account for about 20 per cent of the steel market.

Johnson has not protested any proposed increases in steel prices since the first of the year but price increases have been attacked in other fields.

The most recent rollback was in Molybdenum, a key ingredient in making high-grade steel. Price increases of five per cent were rolled back by two major producers under federal pressure. Ackley had called the proposed boosts inflationary.

Quebec on the March

Quebec nationalism is much in evidence these days. The movement is less violent than it was in the early days of the separatist movement, but everywhere the French Canadian is asserting himself.

It is not just in the sphere of politics, or in the speeches of the movement representatives and of separatists that Quebec nationalism is making itself felt. The French Canadian, feeling the eyes of Canada upon him, is responding by seeking to discover what lies outside his own boundaries.

Thus, the first plates of cars from La Belle Province are everywhere these days. Highway 401 in particular carries a high proportion of the visitors (and all driving, incidentally, like hounds out of hell). The parks in the Cornwall area, for example, are attracting many Quebeckers. This coming and going is all to the good, and it appears it is being accomplished without any rancor other than that Ontarians possibly feel a little resentful that their parks are being "invaded," and the choice picnic spots snapped up by the visitors.

On the political level the assertion of French Canadianism is more upright, more blatant, and frequently abrasive. In Ottawa the French language is being heard more often, and more than ever it is becoming a prerequisite of employment in government and a necessary facility in conversation in places of business and in stores.

In Quebec proper the atmosphere is tense enough between French and English. English Canadians are less welcome in the province than at any time in the past, and that includes those born in Quebec. The French, moreover, are quite open and arrogant in their dealings with the English element in Quebec. The latter are left in no doubt that they are not really wanted and the result many are leaving the province. Preference in jobs is also being given to French-born Quebeckers.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson gave further point to the province's increasingly independent stance in a recent speech at Chicoutimi. Reviving the threat of separatism, he warned Ottawa that any attempt to restrict the fiscal freedom of Quebec would be seen as a threat to the "French-Canadian nation."

Mr. Johnson said he interpreted his party's mandate as meaning that Quebec "as the main home of the French-Canadian nation, must exercise all the rights and assume all the responsibilities of a real national state."

The Union Nationale leader could not have expressed himself more plainly in terms of what is going on in Quebec today. The idea of a separate state within Canada is still a possibility envisaged by French Canadians from Premier Johnson on down.

Recently, an editorial reprinted on this page asked, "Who Speaks for English Canada?" It was a good question, for even on the food packages one buys in the supermarkets these days the explanatory text in French comes before the English text in many cases.

British Columbia, and not Ontario, could be the last bastion of the Anglo-Saxon tradition in Canada — and out there it is also under assault. Suzanne Gay, 17-year-old exchange student from Montreal, expressed her displeasure at Union Jacks being flown in Victoria and the apparent absence of Maple Leaf flags. Her group from Quebec even suggested taking the British out of British Columbia.

This is a bit much from the province whose people are noticeably clannish and hitherto have taken little interest in the rest of country. It seems to our English-speaking French understanding which is being urged upon Canadians.

Or is it a one-way affair? Is Quebec still hell-bent on seceding? Or is it going to take over the whole country? As the writer said, "Who Speaks for English Canada?"

Helping the Needy

The story of Miss Elizabeth Brown, the Toronto woman who directs the operations of the Foster Parents organization in Saigon, is an inspiring one.

Miss Brown oversees the assistance given to 5,600 Vietnamese children who have been "adopted" by people in Canada and countries. She is dedicated to be retired, but says somebody has "just got to stay."

The Canadian woman (whose work was described in The Intelligencer recently) is typical of many able and courageous administrators who are attempting to alleviate the distress of thousands, not only in Viet Nam but other countries whose peoples enjoy none of the material comforts of the western world.

They serve in organizations like Foster Parents, the Canadian Save the Children Fund and CARE, to name a few. Before going to Saigon nearly four years ago Miss Brown worked in Europe and the Middle East for UNRRA, the United Nations relief organization.

Without dedicated people like Miss Brown, and without the contributions of people all over the world who favor the upkeep of needy families and the children in particular, the spectre of famine in the under-developed countries would loom much larger.

To Your Good Health

When Indigestible Lactose Lacking

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am told that I cannot properly digest lactose (milk sugar) and must therefore avoid milk and milk products.

Does this mean I must avoid ice cream, whipped cream, cottage or cream cheese, and butter? — J. L.

This is a deficiency disorder (not an allergy) which has been described recently. A defect in enzyme production results in a lack of enzyme lactase which digests milk sugar.

The cause is not known, but it tends to appear in some older persons. Symptoms are nausea, flatulence, bloating, abdominal cramps and diarrhea which occur after drinking milk.

The symptoms appear to be related to the amount of milk consumed. Many patients with this problem tolerate a glass or less without trouble.

As to milk products, the only sound answer is to do a bit of testing, even though you may find that you can tolerate butter or perhaps no milks, moderate amounts of some of the other products may not bother you.

This is particularly true of cheese, since the amount of milk sugar it contains can vary considerably.

Whipped cream and butter consist primarily of the fatty parts of milk rather than the milk sugar constituents and for that reason may be tolerated more readily.

Rather than trying to avoid all milk products, I suggest taking them in small amounts until you discover how much you can tolerate without distress. You will soon know.

Keep in mind, though, that the total amount of milk sugar appears to be the important point. You may be able to tolerate a moderate amount of gravy made with milk, or a modicum of certain kinds of processed cheeses, yet not be able to eat both of them the same day.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have used laxatives all my life. I now find that a new one will frequently bring some action the first time and then nothing. Can you recommend anything? — Mrs. P. P.

Stool softeners (containing sodium dioctyl sulfosuccinate) often prove superior to harsh laxatives, but I also strongly urge you to familiarize yourself with factors which will help besides. You'll find such data in my booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." (To receive a copy, send 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there such a thing as nervous kidneys? I have to urinate quite frequently. There is a history of diabetes in my family, but I also have emotional problems. I have had Kerr's and a cystoscopic examination and everything showed normal. Am I letting my nerves make me sick or is this something that should be checked into? — Mrs. J. S.

If you came to me with such symptoms I wouldn't spend a minute discussing your nerves until I first had run a blood sugar test to see if diabetes clandestine. A family history of diabetes plus frequent urination is a combination too suggestive of that disease to be ignored.

If your blood sugar is normal, you can look for some other cause. But then if you find out for sure that you don't have diabetes, maybe your nerves will calm down.

The answer: Have your sugar tested.

WARNING TO MRS. R. S.: Pink eye is usually highly infectious. Unfortunately I can do anything about it. Consult your doctor as quickly as possible.

Farmers Hit By Inflation

Ottawa Journal

The indignation of farmers, patient as well as militant, stems back to the election campaign last year.

On rural platforms, the Liberal, Conservative and other campaigners promised "$4 a bushel" for milk.

That, they said, was what the farmer needed and that's what he'd get if they were elected.

On March 23, Agriculture Minister Greene announced federal dairy policy. It included a support guarantee to provide for "an average net return of $4 per hundredweight of manufactured milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat content, basis f.o.b. the factory."

The slinger was that "f.o.b. the factory." The farmers who marched in protest around Queen's Park on Wednesday, and parked their tractors along highways, complain they were deceived. Some at least thought the price supports promised them would ensure $4 a hundred at the farm.

The haulage costs paid by the farmer reduce his milk cheque substantially. The average cost of haulage is estimated at 22 cents per hundred, leaving $3.78 instead of $4.

Farmers, as much as city residents, are caught in the inflation squeeze — their costs are rising faster than their income.

Curb on Expo Profiteering

Calgary Albertan

We give a generous tip of our Calgary stetson hat to Honorable Leolin Laudrault, minister of fish, game and tourism for the Province of Quebec. Mr. Loudrault says that at the next session of the Quebec Legislature a law will be passed to prevent unscrupulous hotel and motel owners from fleecing visitors who come to the 1967 World's Fair in Montreal.

Mr. Loubier has pointed out how serious the situation can become if Expo is not handled properly. He said his department recently made an inquiry which revealed that 38 motels and motels in the Montreal area are planning to profit by milking visitors to the fair. In many cases rooms which before May 1st were rented for $10 were now up to, from $25 to as high as $50. A housing price control law already exists. However, it simply states that prices had to be frozen May 1, 1966, and we seem to remain the same until after Expo '67. Obviously, then, the law does not exercise sufficient control over those who would profiteer at the expected flood of visitors.

We might point out that 1967 is the Canada's world fair year but the nation's Centenary and with all that appears likely to take place, almost everyone in Canada may have to exercise control over the temptation to raise prices and "rob" the tourist. Certainly we can understand the desire, even the necessity, to raise prices in some extent. But it is a step far short of the extortion point in charges related to tourism in 1967.

Railways, governments and other organizations are preparing all out efforts to accommodate Centennial year visitors in every way. Hence, we hope "fairness" will become the national slogan as Canadians welcome their guests without increasing the price tag beyond the point of equity and fairness.

Junketing MPs Usurp Task Of War Graves Commission

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Among the many Parliamentary fringe benefits to that altogether adequate annual $18,000-plus is the junket.

Some of these journeys to Faraway Places at taxpayers' expense are more necessary, of course, than others.

How necessary, then, was the all-expenses-paid tour last month of 23 MPs through Belgium, France, Holland, Germany and Italy?

(A couple of the Honorable Members even took along their wives, having the good grace, however, to at least pay their (freight out of their own pockets.)

In made, one MP was frank to concede, for "quite a nice trip, thank you."

Another of the journey through five countries was to inspect the graves of Canada's war dead.

Parliamentary, perhaps.

But necessary?

Nor — if you listen to the hosts of MPs from veterans' headquarters here in the Capital revealed that this icy epistle had been sent out by the national office to 500 ex-service men in PEI, Fredericton or not, it stands.

That extra $25, it was explained, just might put their income through the "poverty ceiling" of $622 monthly for married vets and $133 for single pensioners.

But the MPs and the Parliamentary Veterans Committee didn't get to do anything about it — they were occupied with other things in Europe.

The Babington plot by Roman Catholics to assassinate Queen Elizabeth I of England was uncovered 380 years ago today—in 1586. Anthony Babington, a supporter of Mary Queen of Scots, joined with other Catholics in a plot to murder Elizabeth and her ministers, organize a general Catholic uprising in England, and summon power in the country with the aid of Spanish forces. The conspiracy was uncovered when correspondence between Babington and Mary was intercepted and one of the plotters confessed. Babington and six other Roman Catholics were condemned to death for high treason, and the relay of Elizabeth was made more secure.

Strictly Personal

A Bulletin Board Gaffe

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

One of the chief paradoxes of human society is that the greater the social evil, the less effective against it is the control of law; the law can prevent or minimize many little infringements, but the biggest obstacle to a just society — the perversion of the moral sense itself — is a moral, not a legal or judicial, matter.

The balance of careless language is aptly illustrated by the notice that appeared on the bulletin board of a Boston police station: "Executives who have no secretary of their own may take advantage of the girls in the stenographic pool."

The trouble with talking about "understanding" executives is that we tend to forget they are under - developed economically and we begin to believe they are also under-developed intellectually, ethically, and spiritually—which does not necessarily follow in many cases.

Generations like the American Medical Association, the American Bar Association, and the Chamber of Commerce, inveighing against "government intervention", and more time is pondering the wisdom of Clemenceau, the French statesman, who said long ago: "Freedom in the art of discipline is a ourselves so that we do not need to be disciplined by others."

Few words have become more corrupted in modern times than "democracy," which is a big Greek word for "school," and originally meant time devoted to intellectual and moral development and participation in community life, not mere relaxation and recreation.

Fewer than 10 percent of the 2,500 varieties of snakes in the world are dangerous to man, and more persons die annually from bee and wasp stings than from snake bites, yet snakes are more greatly feared — especially by women — than any other creature, for mythical reasons that have lurked deeply in the unconscious of the race since Eve's day.

Those ambitious characters who are making plans for what they ought to reflect upon Oscar Wilde's melancholy message in a letter to Robert Ross, 1 s t: "To become somebody is child's play; but to remain somebody requires the will of Satan himself."

Why is it that the same restaurant chain fails to give you even the tiniest dab or cup of coffee gives you a glass of iced tea — and for the reason that you can't put in the lemon or sugar without overflowing?

Music and the dance have only a superficial and accidental connection, which can be seen from the fact that almost all ballet music has been written by second- and third-rate composers, and that the best music cannot be danced to.

The trouble with Lincoln's remark is that you don't have to fool all the people all the time — just 51 percent.

Corner Store In Spotlight

Brockville Recorder and Times

Because we have always wanted a bit nostalgia for the old effect of corner stores, it was with more than passing interest that we noted the sensible stores in the capital city of our country.

Ottawa city council has refused to go along with merchants demanding that small stores be allowed to open for the hours of the big stores. Council there is seeking exemption of a corner stores from the by-law enforcing retail store closing hours so that the operator, if he so desires, may open and stay open evenings and holidays.

The privilege of staying open is the difference between survival and going out of business for many of these small stores. And it is necessary to have some stores open after 6 p.m. A great many people are unable to shop before 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Lennie Bruce, Comic, Found Dead at Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Lennie Bruce, often charged with using obscenity and obstage use of narcotics, was found dead Wednesday in his Hollywood Boulevard apartment.

Bruce, 40, was found in his bathroom. On the sink nearby, police said, were a syringe, a blackened bottle cap and burnt matches. The cap contained a white crystalline residue.

The Los Angeles County coroner's office listed an overdose of narcotics as the probable cause of death. An autopsy has been ordered.

Bruce once said: "People should be taught what is, not what should be."

With that premise and a glossary of hip and four - letter words, he sallied forth into saloons, offbeat clubs and the recording world, bringing a humor branded as "sick."

"It's a comedian's duty to maintain a level of good taste and this to me is a semantic bear trap," he said.

"I've been accused of bad taste and I'll go down to the grave accused of it and always by the same people. The same people, the ones who eat in restaurants that reserve the right to refuse service to anyone."

HAD LONG RECORD

His brushes with the law included: Arrests on a battery charge in 1952; narcotics arrests in January, February, October and November of 1957, and October, 1961; obscenity arrests in 1962, twice in 1963, and again in 1964. He was sued for slander, mother, striptease choreographer Sally Marr and his stepbrother in 1962 for $50,000 for libel. Juries allegedly suffered while entering Bruce's house; and in September, 1963, he was banned from Britain.

"I don't have agents, just lawyers," he said. A California Supreme Court decision reversed one conviction, saying Bruce was not a narcotics addict.

Bruce was born Leonard Alfred Schneider Oct. 13, 1925, in Mineola, N.Y.

His parents were divorced when he was five and he spent subsequent years with relatives. He left school at 16 to join the navy.

His first entertainment job was for $12 a Saturday night at a Brooklyn nightclub. He then entered the nightclub world in earnest, worked on movie scripts, recorded his routines and began emerging as a prominent figure in the late 1950s.

Last October, Bruce, U.S. district court in San Francisco, in support of a bankruptcy petition, declared him a pauper.

His marriage to striptease dancer Honey Harlow ended in divorce in 1957. They had one child, a daughter.

First Service of Amalgamated Churches to Be Held Sunday

Congregational members from the three churches making up the former Plainfield pastoral charge at Plainfield, Rosslyn and Bethel-Zion, will hold their first combined service on Sunday following amalgamation of the three churches about a month ago.

The "home" church for the amalgamated congregation will be the United Church at Rosslyn, now re-named Trinity United Church (Rosslyn).

The inaugural service will be conducted by the Belleville Presbytery chairman, Rev. Newman Truax of Wellington, at 3:00 p.m. Following the inaugural service future services will be held Sunday mornings at 11:00 o'clock, by Pastor Rev. G. A. Southall.

Mr. Southall says that the amalgamation of the three Plainfield charge churches was the beginning of a pattern expected to see many rural churches throughout Ontario join forces.

NEW BOARD FORMED

The amalgamation at the Plainfield charge also sees the three Sunday Schools combine, also finances of the three former churches and women's groups. A new church board has been appointed to look after church affairs for the combined congregations.

One of the main leaders in the church amalgamation plans was the late Fred Elliott, RRL Halloway, a former elder at the Plainfield Church. Mr. Elliott was drowned in Leighton Lake over the holiday weekend when his boat struck a rock.

The two now unused churches at Plainfield and Bethel-Zion will be removed from the properties.

DON'T WALK SOFTLY

Dear Su: On a recent glorious visit to the resort country, soft pale sand stretched everywhere from our huge cottage to the shore.

In our enthusiasm, the whole group of us would often start out barefoot to walk to the water. But boy, before we had gone far on hot days, those burning sands sure got to us.

Since nobody ever wanted to be bothered going back for their things, we improvised a method whereby only one of us needed to suffer, at a time.

We formed a single row, one behind the other, and took turns being the leader.

The fellow at the top walked heavily, twisting his foot in the sand with each step. The rest of us followed in his footprints.

Ahhh, it's lovely, the way this method cools off the ground for the sizzles like me in the line! — Vera Walton

THURSDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Mushroom Consommé; Chicken Chop Suey; Fluffy Boiled Rice; Raspberry Mousse; Coconut Macaroons; Coffee.

FROSTED CHOCOLATE LOG

One 8-oz. can chocolate nut loaf (or date and nut loaf).
one 4-oz. package white cream cheese,
¼ cup icing sugar,
1 tablespoon milk.

Open both ends of can containing nut loaf to facilitate removal. Stand loaf on one end and with sharp knife cut it into four even lengthwise slices. Cut a wafer thin lengthwise slice from one rounded outside slice to make it lie flat when they are stacked.

Make frosting by creaming together the cream cheese, icing sugar and milk until smooth.

Place flattened bottom slice of loaf on a small oblong serving dish. Spread with frosting. Repeat until you have four layers with frosting between. Carefully frost top and sides and ends. Score top and sides with fork tines to resemble bark of log. Chill thoroughly. Serves five. Note: To serve ten simply join two sliced loaves, end to end, on a longer oblong serving dish and double amounts of frosting and frost as above.

TWO-IN-ONE POTATO BURGERS.—(serves 5 or 6)

1 lb. hamburg meat,
1 tablespoon minced onion,
½ teaspoon thyme,
1 teaspoon salt,
¼ teaspoon pepper,
1 cup instant mashed potato flakes,
½ cup milk,
2 tablespoons butter or drippings,
5 or 6 split hamburg buns (optional),

In a medium bowl mix all ingredients except potato flakes. Shape into 5 or 6 patties. Melt butter in frying pan and cook meat patties about 16 to 20 minutes or 8 to 10 minutes per side, if desired serve in hamburg buns.

FROZEN FRENCH FRIED POTATOES

You do not need to turn on the oven to prepare frozen French fries. To prepare crinkle cut or straight cut or shoe string French fries simply add about ¼" cooking oil to large frying pan or electric frying pan. Open cello bag of frozen French fries at one corner and tip into the pan the amount of French fries you need for current meal. (Fold over and clip bag and return to freezer.) Cook over medium heat until they turn a deeper gold then gently turn over to brown all sides. Skim out and repeat if you need another panful, without adding more oil. This method gives you golden crisper chips. These are delicious fillers for perennially starved young people.

Ann Landers

Man Wants Everybody To Kiss and Hug Wife

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for seven years. We get along fine but something about Tom bothers me and I would like to know if I am being silly.

ANN LANDERS

When we are with other couples, Tom gets in one of the jows, "Why don't you hug Edith? Or when we're out bowling he'll suggest that one of the fellows give me a big squeeze for luck.

The other evening we were playing with neighbors and Tom said, whenever wins the next game he has to take Edith in the kitchen and give her a big kiss." Everyone laughed but I don't think he was kidding.

Most husbands would be mad if another man tried to hug or kiss his wife. My husband seems to encourage it. Please tell me what to do. — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFF: Tell Tom not to offer you around as a good luck charm, a card prize or anything else. Such remarks make him look to all the world like a boob. If he does it again make it clear that he is not speaking for you and tell him to cut the comedy.

DEAR ANN: Your reply to "Too Beautiful" was cruel. I am also "Too Beautiful," and I can tell you it's horrible to go through life with a face and figure that men lust after and women fear.

When I was in high school the boys were afraid to ask me out. They assumed I was always dated up. No one wanted to risk being rejected. I sat home many a night on account of this.

The girls in the office along my business they figure anyone so good looking has to be a tramp. And they are afraid to introduce me to their boy friends and husbands. I am often excluded from office parties.

Although life is a little compassion for those of us who are too beautiful, Life is lonely for us. — MIRROR MIRROR ON THE WALL.

DEAR MIRROR: A little realism can be beautiful, too, Honey, and I recommend it as a tonic.

If you are as gorgeous as you say, there must be some serious flaws somewhere. I suggest you find out what they are.

DEAR ANN: This is no teen-age complaint. I am 28 years old and my boy friend is no kid either.

Harvey has a fine job, makes good money and he likes the best of everything — for himself, that is. For my birthday he presented me with a wrist watch. Everything was fine! dey I wore it. I didn't want to hurt his feelings so I didn't say anything. The repair bill was $6.50. Two days later the crystal fell out. It cost me $2.00 to have it replaced. The following week the stem fell off. When I took it in again the repair man said the watch couldn't have cost more than $17 now (he's sure I got it second hand) and that it wasn't worth fixing.

For Christmas Harvey told me what he wanted and I bought it — a pocket watch for $68. I'm ashhed to think he bought me a piece of junk. Should I tell him? — FLIM FLAMMED.

DEAR FLIM: Don't tell him he bought you a piece of junk. (He knows it.) Tell him you are not wearing his gift because the repairman told you it wasn't worth fixing.

Finally Getting Chance To Do Some Writing

FREDERICTON (CP) — Dorothy Livesay — poet, scholar, lecturer, journalist, teacher and social worker—is finally getting a chance to settle down and do some writing.

All her adult life Miss Livesay says, this year's resident writer at the University of New Brunswhk has been squeezing in the writing of her sensitive modern poetry between teaching, lecturing and social work assignments that have taken her from coast to coast in Canada and as far away as Zambia.

In private life she is Mrs. Duncan Macnair. Her father, the late J. F. B. Livesay, was general manager of The Canadian Press from 1920 until 1936.

Now, as resident writer at UNB, Miss Livesay is under no obligation to do anything but write. She will teach no courses and give no lectures except as she chooses. The only stipulation is that she maintain some office hours, in which to consult with and advise young would-be writers on the campus — something which Miss Livesay does not consider a chore.

"Of course I'm delighted with the set-up," she says. "It's what I've been looking for since I came back to Canada. In fact, it's why I came back to Canada."

CHOSE POETIC THEME

Miss Livesay had been in Africa, teaching English to Rhodesian teachers under the auspices of UNESCO. She came home in 1963.

"I thought I'd be able to have a bit of a rest in Canada. There were health problems in Africa—I did have malaria once. . . .

"Particularly, I thought I'd do some writing. But I found that I was going to have to teach, in order to earn a living."

She did teach, at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver. At the same time she was "supplementing my teaching equipment," as she puts it, by doing a thesis on Rhythmics and found a Contemporary Canadian Poetry for her MA degree. She already held a BA from the University of Toronto, diploma d'Etudes Superieures from the Sorbonne, diploma in social work from U. of T., and diploma in secondary school teaching from UBC.

The thesis subject was well suited to Miss Livesay's talents — she herself has published six volumes of poetry and in 1947 won the Lorne Pierce Medal from the Royal Society of Canada.

HUNGRY FOR POETRY

The topic involved her in interviewing and tape-recording many young poets reading their own works, as she analyzed sounds, style and linguistics. She became acquainted with most of the prominent poets on the west coast.

"They're all a bit nutty out there, not unlike the people I remember from my own youth," she recalls. "But there is a very great excitement for poetry. All the big names, such as Allen Ginsberg, Robert Duncan and so on, have visited Vancouver. . . .

"Poetry readings at coffee houses are big too; the audiences come as they would for folk-singing."

Miss Livesay became caught up in this movement. By last fall, when she had finished her thesis, she found herself teaching poetry and creative writing at UBC. But she still wanted to do her own writing.

Then the Canada Council appointment that saw her join the UNB staff as writer - in - residence was ideal. "It's the first time in my life I'll be able to sit down and write, free of any financial worry," she says happily.

IN NEW TERRITORY

She's also keen because it is the first time she has lived in the Maritimes. She was born in Winnipeg, educated in Toronto, worked in Vancouver and Montreal, as well as in London, Paris and various parts of Africa.

So far most of the students she has encountered are attending UNB's summer session, where she teaches a workshop in creative writing.

"There's a strong tradition of poetry from this area, what with Bliss Carman, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts and so on," Miss Livesay says. "But at present things are—how shall I say?—a bit out of touch with what's happening.

"But I find that the young people are really eager for the news, so to speak, in the creative writing field. They don't know what they want, but they are literally for something — something different."

Polio Victim Runs Afoul of Traffic Laws

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — A widowed polio victim has run afoul of Britain's traffic laws for shuttling her two children to the baby sitter in her motorized invalid carriage.

"I must decide whether to break the law again or neglect my children, still I can assure you I'm not going to neglect my children," said Mrs. Freda Blyth, 32, of suburban Bracknell.

Mrs. Blyth works as a secretary six hours a day because she cannot support herself, John, 5, and Jeanette, 4, on a widow's pension and her relief cheque.

To get about, she uses the one-seat invalid carriage. Last week she was driving it down Bracknell's main street with the children aboard when a policeman stopped her.

APPEARS IN COURT

He told Mrs. Blyth it was against the law to carry passengers in a one-seat vehicle and reluctantly gave her a ticket.

In court Tuesday the mother said,

"My neighbors and friends are very kind to me, but I cannot impose on people's kindness every day of the week. I pay a friend to look after them while I'm at work, but she lives two miles away and the only way I can get them to her is in my little car."

Said Magistrate Norman Allen:

"We sympathize with your difficulties, but it's not up to us to bend the law in your favor—hard luck though it is on you."

He fined Mrs. Blyth £2 ($6).

Mrs. Blyth told reporters:

"I have applied to the ministry of health for a mini-car that is controlled completely by hand, but they told me these were only for war-disabled pensioners or invalid married couples."

A spokesman said the ministry was reviewing the situation.

SINGER SUED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress-singer Judy Garland was sued for separate maintenance Wednesday by actor Mark Herron, who charged he suffered mental and physical pain and was subjected to extreme cruelty. Herron, friends said, decided to file for separate maintenance instead of divorce on the chance a reconciliation is possible. The couple married in Las Vegas, Nev., last November and separated last April 25.

Family Reunion

CLAPP — CREDICOTT

At Bridgewater, (now Actinolite), on May 10, 1902, Miss Esther Anna Credicott, daughter of John and Dina Credicott became the bride of William Albert Clapp son of John and Elizabeth Clapp. Both families were of the immediate vicinity.

A bountiful picnic lunch was shared at noon.

R. 1, Belleville; for the oldest gentleman Mr. William McDonald of Trenton: the youngest child present, baby Lee Credicott, aged 10 weeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Credicott of Toronto. The most recently married couple was Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Allport of Deseronto, and the couple who had travelled the farthest, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Southard of Lakewood, Ohio.

A fine day was enjoyed by all. The families hope to enjoy a second re-union next year.

Navy's First Female Surgeon Cadet On 10-Week Course at Camp Borden

By GEOFFREY BINTCLIFFE

CAMP BORDEN, Ont. (CP)—Wendy Clay is a willowy, 25-year - old blonde, equally at home in a swimsuit or at the stops of the church organ in her home town of Terrace, B.C.

So how come she presents a somewhat warlike image this summer, charging about this military camp in battle dress and steel helmet, toting a submachine-gun or a service rifle?

For a start, she's the first female surgeon cadet in RCN history, enrolled in the Canadian Armed Forces 45-month medical undergraduate subsidization plan.

This summer she's on a 10-week "indoctrination and orientation" course, in preparation for her commissioning this September as a surgeon sub-lieutenant in the navy. Wendy is the only girl among 30 medical cadets taking the course.

This fall she starts her fourth and final year in medical school at the University of British Columbia where she also did her three years as a pre-med student.

Last October she enrolled as a surgeon cadet and when she graduates next May, she will intern at a regular hospital, which she hopes will be Vancouver General, before being posted with the rank of surgeon lieutenant to a military hospital in Canada or overseas.

Wendy hopes the posting will be to a hospital in West Germany.

COURSE IS RIGOROUS

Bulk of the course is spent at Camp Borden, 15 miles southwest of Barrie. The cadets also had one-week stints at Halifax, Toronto, North Bay, Ont., and Trenton, Ont., 10 miles west of Belleville.

At Halifax they made a familiarization tour of naval vessels. At Trenton they learned something of Air Transport Command and at North Bay they studied air defence operations. In Toronto they attended lectures on aviation medicine.

The course is no jaunt. It packs in plenty of studying, rigorous military training and 10 days of medical field training under simulated war conditions.

But Wendy appears to thrive on it. She asks for and gets no special privileges and is expected to compete on an equal basis with the male cadets.

She certainly does this, says Flying Officer Rosa Gibbons, base information officer at Camp Borden. The cadets are in two platoons and in mid-July, Wendy was placed second in her platoon.

"I love the life and can't wait to get into the service proper," she said with a ready smile.

"The companionship is tremendous."

When she is commissioned, Wendy will be the only woman doctor in the regular forces and the first woman naval physician to come up through cadet-ship, PO Gibbons said.

DECIDED ON CAREER

Wendy must spend three years in the navy but this gives her no qualms. She plans to make the navy her career.

Both her mother and her father, Lawrence William Clay, a real estate and insurance salesman in Terrace, wholeheartedly support her in this. None of her relatives is a doctor or in the services.

As a cadet she receives an allowance of $129 a month. Her tuition fees are paid for by the subsidization plan and she receives a uniform allowance and $75 a year for text books.

When she is commissioned, her surgeon sub - lieutenant's pay will be $340 a month after deductions. Requirements for enrolment in the plan are a "satisfactory" standing as a student and the approval of a selection board which is looking for leadership qualities and good officer potential.

Wendy recommends it to other medical students.

"The government subsidization is generous. Your practice is established with your patients waiting and your equipment provided when you finish internship.

"And I like the concept of preventive medicine emphasized by the services where the population is basically healthy and the aim is to keep it that way."

Finding her a uniform presented the navy with a minor problem. That has been solved temporarily with a compromise; she turns out in a naval nurse's uniform and a Wren officer's three-cornered hat.

Luci Johnson Wants to Be Plain Mrs. Patrick Nugent After Wedding on Sat.

By FRANCIS LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—As just plain Mrs. Patrick J. Nugent, Luci Johnson hopes she can leave behind some of the problems and criticism that befell her as the president's daughter.

Luci wants to be a housewife, like any other newlywed. She said she won't be able to attend a maid and will have to live on a budget.

With the help of her mother and the Johnson family cook Zephyr Wright, 19-year-old Luci says she knows how to cook. She says she's capable of putting on the table "a different meal for two nuts meals, seven days a week without a duplicate."

Luci says Nugent will be head of the house. She won't ask him to do dishes, but if he offers, she won't refuse.

She sees her marriage to Nugent in Washington this Saturday as a partnership. "Pat consults me and I consult him. I respect his judgment."

In their brick house in Texas, Luci hopes the world won't be looking in the window the way it does at the White House.

OPEN TO COMMENT

Everything from what she wore to grades in school was the subject of comment, Luci found out.

The years she spent in the White House were the most sensitive for a teen-ager. She celebrated her 17th, 18th and 19th birthdays there.

Luci had her own big decisions to make there—to convert to Roman Catholicism and to marry Nugent.

Luci, who was Episcopalian (Anglican) like her mother and older sister, Lynda, has several close friends, both boys and girls, who are Catholic.

While friends may have influenced her, those who know Luci say she had been leaning toward this church for some time, propelled by her own tenderhearted, dramatic, sensitive and sometimes mystic qualities.

Luci took instruction in Catholicism for many months and finally, on her 18th birthday, July 2, 1965, was baptized into the Roman Catholic Church at a private service attended by her parents and her sister.

BAPTISM CRITICIZED

The baptism raised a flurry of criticism among theologians, who said it was a slap at the Episcopal (Anglican) church because of the implication that the first baptism was not valid.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington defended the decision to baptize Luci, which she had requested.

And Luci, in a statement issued by the White House, said "I felt that this was a personal matter and went about it in a personal way."

Another time there was criticism when the White House served beer, along with soft drinks, at a dancing party at which Luci was hostess, to 250 teen and daughters of diplomats.

A Florida Baptist minister said he feared this would set an unfortunate example.

DOESN'T DRINK

Luci herself doesn't drink or smoke. She once said she had enough problems "without giving people something to gossip about" on that score.

The fact that Luci followed her own interests and desires in the face of constant public scrutiny showed that she has a mind of her own.

She said she had been brought up with guidelines that were not too rigid. Her parents, she noted, "set standards they believed in and told me why they believed in them and we have worked together to let me develop in my own mind what is best for me."

Among the rules was an 11 p.m. dating curfew for Luci. Once she recalls getting home at 1 a.m. to find her mother waiting up. "She chewed us up one side and down the other. Nobody ever made me feel so small."

Luci's main aim has seemed to be to maintain a personality of her own.

Successful Living

Reader Thanks Doris For Lipreading Advice

DEAR DORIS: I'm so grateful for the interest you have shown in my case. I have received reading material and a list of books to help lipreading, guidance by a teacher in my own town.

I'm certainly hopeful of learning, with all the help I'll be receiving, books and otherwise. It has given me a new interest and courage. Many thanks and continued good wishes for your work. — HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL: You make us all feel good. I can see you're the very person to tackle the lipreading and really get somewhere.

I'm told that even with improved, DORIS CLARK convenient hearing aids, lipreading helps tremendously. It "trains the eyes to help the ears."

Not only that, but a person who has worked away at it until he lipreads well, has learned along the way to be more alert: able to grasp the gist of a conversation and fill in the missing words.

Psychologically it can work a miracle in self-confidence for the person whose hearing is failing.

When you make progress, let's hear from you again.

DEAR DORIS: Is a man 34 too old for a woman 21? I consider myself to act and feel younger than 34 and my girl friend is very mature. The girl does not feel that the age difference should pose any problem. — YOUNG AT HEART.

DEAR YOUNG: Well, you aren't as old as Methuselah! But males of 34 usually live in a different world from the one inhabited by a girl just barely grown up.

There are exceptions. The oldest daughter in a large family may show wisdom beyond her years. From sharing the raising of that family she learned heaps about life a long time ago. Girls who have worked and been on their own since 16 or 17 seem more mature. But most have done neither.

If you feel you are made for each other, try developing your friendship. For a while, underplay the physical attraction which may be misleading you.

It has to be right for both of you.

DEAR DORIS: When a man presents an engagement ring to a girl, should he get her to help choose one or does it make any difference?— JOYFUL JOE.

DEAR JOE: Some girls start thinking about ring styles from the minute they go on their first date. Others couldn't care less. Many prefer to have a shining solitaire materialize out of their lovesl one's pocket. I think if I were you I'd ask her.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Mother's Helper

A COLORFUL touch for a birthday party is a Balloon Tree. If you have a small tree in front of your house, use it; if not, a tree branch set in a bucket of sand will serve nicely. The differently-colored inflated balloons all over the tree, at least one for each guest. In one balloon, put a lucky ticket for a door prize. Let the guests pick off the balloons as they leave. BANCROFT (Special) — All advance indications are for a record attendance at this year's third annual Bancroft Rockhound Gemboree. Two of the large 50 by 90 tents are completely booked for rock and mineral dealers and their displays, and there may even be an overflow into one of the other four or five tents which are booked for other displays. The Bancroft Mineral Society display as well as the displays of individuals, are to be seen in the new Bancroft Mineral Society clubhouse.

The official opening of the Gemboree is on Wednesday, August 10, at 3:00 p.m. That evening features the Old Time Fiddlers' Contest. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings the well - known North Hastings High School Band will be in attendance. The local variety concert under the chairmanship of Bobby Best will be the feature of the Thursday evening program. Finishing up the proceedings on Saturday evening will be a big marshmallow roast, with free marshmallows for all the children present.

FOR KIDDIES AS WELL

The midway is always a popular event for the kiddies as well as most older folk, and this will be on the go every day. The United Church Women's food tent will be a very popular spot. Commercial and other displays will be found in other tents. A major attraction will be the handicraft display under the chairmanship of Mrs. Dorothy Thompson.

The Bancroft business men, responding to the call of the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce, are donating prizes for a lucky ticket number draw, to be conducted every hour on the hour. In fact, Chairman David Burke says the response has been so generous it may be possible to make it a draw every half hour, so be sure to come and keep your ticket stub handy in case your number is called over the public address system.

DAILY FIELD TRIPS

Since this is primarily a Rockhound Gemboree, it is only natural to expect conducted field trips every day, and these will leave from the Gemboree Grounds on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday mornings at 9:00 o'clock. Rock sawgrinding will be on the go every afternoon and likely early evening at the many away tables. The Rock and Mineral dealers from throughout Canada and the United States will have everything for sale, from rough specimens, polished cabochons, finished jewellery and rock-bound and lapidary equipment, to publication and information of every kind. Visitors may even see some of them actually making up jewellery in their booths.

100,000 Acres in Egypt Reclaimed From Desert

Egypt has embarked on irrigation programs in an effort to bring desert land under cultivation and reduce its dependence on food imports. Here an arid country is working to boost food supplies for a fast-growing population in a described by a Canadian Press reporter who visited Egypt.

By CARL MOLLINS

ROUAD, Egypt (CP)—Sixty miles or so northwest of Cairo in the direction of Alexandria, you leave the fertile earth and scrivvy of the Nile Delta and enter the desolation of the Western Desert.

A few miles farther and a windbreak of young pines rises out of the grey shale like a miracle, enclosing a field of short-stemmed wheat with no visible means of support under the incinerating sun.

The wheatfield is the southern vanguard of a creeping desert reclamation project in Al Tahrir province, a stretch of sand and shale 65 miles long and 30 miles wide hopefully colored green on the official map of Egypt.

Rouad district is the oldest and biggest, at 40,000 acres, of a series of reclaimed areas in Al Tahrir that total more than 100,000 acres so far. The Tahrir operation, begun a year after the 1952 revolution, is one of a dozen irrigation programs under way from the Mediterranean coast to the Kom Ombo valley in Nubia, from the Sinai back of the Suez Canal in the east to the man-made oases of the New Valley deep in the western wilderness.

COST RUNS HIGH

In Rouad, grids of concrete water conduits diminish, into a pattern of rock-lined ditches, and, finally, into ranks of sprinklers. The system is supplied in one section by water diverted from the western arm of the river Nile through a canal 18 kilometres long, in another region by a gush of artesian water pumped surprisingly from less than 100 feet beneath the dehydrated surface.

The water nourishes orange groves and wheatfields, corn, mangoes and the deep-green fodder crop called berseim. It quells the thirst of 100,000 chickens, 1,000 head of cattle, 200 young engineers who roll back the desert and 8,000 fellahin who own five precious acres each but farm the new land co-operatively.

The effort involved in domesticating such wasteland is immense: in places the cost of reclamation is $500 an acre. The result is often patchy: Rouad crops would win no prizes at Toronto's Royal Winter Fair.

But it is an effort judged worth making in a rainless land where 20,000,000 farm folk try to make a life on a narrow strip of Nile silt crowded with mud-brick villages, hungry children and the cattle, goats, donkeys and camels that devour the products of one-third of the limited farmland.

CAN'T GROW ENOUGH

Only three per cent of Egypt's total area of 386,000 square miles can be cultivated —roughly the relation of Vancouver Island to the whole of British Columbia. Six million acres, cultivated more intensively than almost anywhere else on earth, fed to feed a population that numbers 30,000,000 now and grows by almost 1,000,000 a year.

The High Dam at Aswan is adding 1,200,000 acres to Egypt's farmland. It is converting another 700,000 acres of riverside to year - round cultivation by irrigation instead of once-a-year planting after the late-summer Nile flood — flood that no longer reaches the river below Aswan now that the High Dam is almost complete.

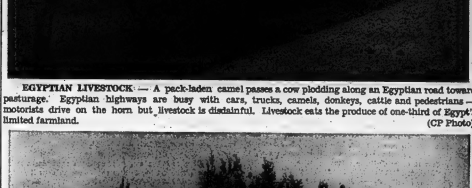
The most optimistic forecast is that careful husbandand distribution of the Nile waters, with the help of the Aswan dam, can eventually increase the cultivable area to 10,000,000 acres. But this new, man-assisted gift of the Nile would be consumed almost as fast as it was created at the present rate of population growth.

Redistribution of land ownership, rent reductions, rural welfare measures, co - operative farming and some mechanization have dented the problem of poverty on the land during the last 14 years.

Birth - control programs have been initiated during the last year to stall a population growth rate that Egypt's 1962 National Charter describes as "the most dangerous obstacle that faces the Egyptian people in their drive towards raising the standard of production."

Perhaps the main hope, however, lies in such programs as those at Al Tahrir or in the New Valley, where engineers are tapping an underground river discovered recently at a speed of 30 yards a year in a 500-mile arc from the Kharga to the Siwe oases in the Western Desert.

Viewed against Egypt's entire hunger, the effort here at Rouad is a single raindrop in a sandpit.



But the excitement of Al Tahrir is not also that here they have forced the desert to grow food. The wonder is that this ancient land, stagnating after centuries of confinement to the Nile Valley, has found a frontier.

Appropriately, Tahrir means liberation.

Tomorrow: Dredging enables Suez Canal to handle bigger cargoes.

PUSHING BACK THE DESERT — Young pine trees planted as a windbreak against sandstorms line an irrigation ditch that is part of Egypt's campaign to push back the desert. These trees, in Al Tahrir province west of the Nile Delta, also help hold shifting soil in place. Desert land, irrigated and brought under cultivation, would reduce Egypt's dependence on food imports. The oldest and biggest reclaimed area is the Rouad district, where one of 12 irrigation programs is under way. (CP Photo)

Don't Eat Daisies--or Any Flowers--If You Would Prolong Mortal Hours

HESPELER, Ont. (CP)—Occasionally a person emerging from the woods after being lost for a few days proudly announces that he has subsisted on wild berries and the like.

But unless he has a fair knowledge of the dangers of eating innocent-looking plant life, chances are the fact he is still alive is sheer luck.

Take jessamine berries, for example. Eat them and you're in for digestive disturbances and nervous symptoms, perhaps death.

The same goes for yew berries and foliage, the latter more toxic. Death is usually sudden without warning symptoms.

The dangers to be found in the woods and garden are explored in a report from the Ontario district forester of the Ontario department of lands and forests.

The advice for hunters and fishermen is not to eat or chew on any wild plant life unless you know it's safe. And for campers taking their children into the woods, the only sure way is to teach the kids not to put in their mouths any plant or berry not commonly used as food.

"If someone does ingest a dangerous plant, call a physician immediately for his advice," the forester's report says. "If it is always advisable to induce vomiting, for some plants contain corrosive juices that quickly and damage tissue of the digestive tract during vomiting."

The forester emphasizes that many poisonous plants are so common and seemingly innocuous that you don't suspect their toxic qualities.

USED FOR SUICIDE

The pretty mountain laurel, for example, was used by the Delaware Indians to make a suicide potion. Rhododendron contains a poison that has shown up in honey made by bees that visited the plant. And the popular Christmas flower, poinsettia, is full of an acrid, burning juice so lethal that a child who consumed one leaf might die.

Most dangerous of all plants in the vegetable garden is rhubarb. The stalk is not toxic but the leaf blade contains oxalic acid and which crystallizes in the kidneys, causing severe damage.

All parts of jack-in-the-pulpit, especially the roots, are toxic, containing small needle-like crystals of calcium oxalate that cause intense irritation and burning of the mouth and tongue.

Purple monoecod berries, which resemble wild grapes but contain only a single seed instead of several, can be fatal if eaten.

The marapple, its foliage and roots contain at least 16 active toxic ingredients, mainly in the roots. And although children often eat the apple with no ill effects, consumption of several may cause distress.

All parts of the buttercup are dangerous. The irritant juices may severely injure the digestive system. And all parts of nightshade, especially the unripe berry, can cause intense digestive disturbances and nervous symptoms with fatal results.

The jimson weed or thorn apple can cause abnormal thirst, distorted sight, delirium, incoherence and coma and has proved fatal. It's one of the most common causes of poisoning despite the weed's foul odor.

Also dangerous in varying degrees are wisteria seeds and pods, the twigs and foliage of wild and cultivated cherries, the foliage and acorns of oaks, all parts of elderberry, the bark, sprouts and foliage of black locust and all parts of azaleas.

FORGIVES YOUTHS

HALLEYBURY, Ont. (CP)—Magistrate E. W. Kendrick urged five young men to shake hands after suggesting the crown attorney drop charges of assault against them. The magistrate said too many young people do not realize the real penalty in many minor cases is that the convicted have difficulty getting into university, the armed forces or good jobs.

Steel Warehouse Erected Here for Crawford Metals

THIS NEW STEEL WAREHOUSE, which has a floor area of 6,000 square feet, will be an addition to the operations of Crawford Metals of Belleville. It is located on Byron Street, opposite the present Crawford business premises.

Crawford Metals of Belleville is carrying out a significant expansion in its Byron Street wholesaling operations with the addition of a warehouse having a floor area of 6,000 square feet.

The new warehouse, which will be used to stock an estimated 1,000 tons of structural steel and pipe of all shapes and sizes, is itself a prefabricated steel structure. The alternate blue and white steel panels that form the walls of the warehouse were erected in less than two weeks by Roson Contractors, a division of Toronto Iron Works.

The building is located directly across the road from Crawford Metals' present Byron Street operation. Erected at a cost of some $25,000, it is 80 feet in width, 100 feet long, and has a clearance of 28 feet. The warehouse will be equipped with an overhead crane which is expected to cost an additional $13,000.

Expected to be operational by mid-September, the new Crawford addition will service local industries from Port Hope to Brockville, being the only steel warehouse in this part of the province.

Bill White of Crawford Metals says that about 18 men will be involved in the operation of the warehouse. He feels that the warehouse will mean a saving for area firms, which up to now have been forced to obtain most of their structural steel from Toronto or Montreal.

In steaming jungles of the Ia Drang Valley 200 miles north of Saigon, units of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division and reinforcements from the 1st Air Cavalry Division ended a third day of fighting Wednesday night. The presence of 10,000 American troops in the area near the Cambodian border indicated U.S. officers expect more action.

A U.S. spokesman in Saigon said at least 81 Communists have been killed against light U.S. casualties, but AP correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the field that one infantry company of 68 men was badly mauled Tuesday afternoon when the North Vietnamese lured it into the jungle and pounced on it. The company commander — a captain—and several others were killed and most of the rest were wounded.

The Viet Cong attacked a company of about 120 militiamen near the Cambodian border 78 miles northeast of Saigon early today but were beaten off and left eight dead, a government spokesman said.

The U.S. command announced that a third plane—an air force F-105 Thunderchief fighter-bomber—had been shot down over North Viet Nam Monday, bringing reported American aircraft losses over the North to 878. The airman is listed as missing.

In Toronto, CPR officials said orders had gone out to their freight and express agents across the country Wednesday not to accept any express shipments destined for Montreal.

CNR also placed an embargo on Montreal - bound shipments covering piggyback trailers and air-express shipments as well as normal express packages.

The tie up in the two centres was affecting CPR's highway express service in Galt, Kitchener, London, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie in Ontario.

Several Montreal - Toronto freight trains were cancelled Wednesday but passenger service remained unaffected.

CPR and CNR depots were functioning normally in Halifax and Saint John, N.B., but delays in shipments to Montreal and points west were expected.

Charge Laborer Kidnapped 12-year-old Girl

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — An unemployed laborer was charged Wednesday with kidnapping a 12-year-old girl from her home and holding her captive for 16 hours in his car.

The man, Robert Huff, 34, who is estranged from his wife, was accused of abducting Betty Farrell Tuesday from in front of her home in Grape Creek, south of here.

Huff was taken into custody by Sheriff Jack Clark of Vermilion County earlier after the Farrell girl had been found sitting on the steps of an abandoned store in the town of Belgium, four miles south of Danville.

The girl, dressed only in the light summer clothes she wore when she got into a car Tuesday afternoon, told a search party that her abductor had driven her around all night and let her out when the "car broke down."

Medical View Saves Life Of Gunman

OTTAWA (CP)—Citing "important medical evidence of a neurological nature," the federal cabinet Wednesday commuted the death sentence of Roger Allan Fulton, 25, who gunned down a trust company worker in a Vancouver holdup last year.

Fulton had been scheduled to die on the gallows in the British Columbia penitentiary shortly after midnight next Tuesday.

It was the 22nd consecutive commutation by the Pearson government in 40 months of office. The former Conservative government commuted 52 of 66 death sentences during a six-year term.

There has not been a hanging in Canada since December of 1962 when two killers were executed together in Toronto.

On April 5 the Commons rejected a motion calling for the abolition of capital punishment. The vote, climaxing an extended debate, was 143 to 112.

INDICATES DISORDER

No details were given, but the statement was taken to indicate that Fulton was found to be suffering either a mental disorder or disease.

He shot down Jan Kelderman, an assistant manager, during the $2,000 armed robbery of the Commonwealth Trust Co. branch office in Vancouver May 19, 1965.

A jury that convicted him of capital murder last Oct. 20 did make a 50 recommendation for mercy.

Fulton's death sentence is the second to be removed by the cabinet since the Commons vote upheld capital punishment, but there had been a jury recommendation for mercy in the other case.

All Fulton's court appeals, including one to the Supreme Court of Canada for a new trial, were rejected.

There now are 14 other men in Canadian jails awaiting dates with the hangman.

Change in Soviet Leadership Fails to Bring Improvement In Soviet-Chinese Relations

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Soviet leaders still are having their troubles with the Chinese.

In fact, Soviet-Chinese relations near the breaking point, they ousted Premier Nikita Khrushchev as apparent attempt to ease the situation, replacing him by the two-man team of Alexei Kosygin and Leonid Brezhnev.

Discussions at the current session of the Supreme Soviet indicate that the situation, if anything, has worsened.

Khrushchev's blunt lines in dealing with the Chinese Communist party chairman, Mao Tse-tung, and other Chinese leaders, created a feeling of discomfort in Moscow.

His ouster apparently was designed to pacify Peking's hostile criticism of the Soviet Union for travelling too far along the road toward coexistence with the West, especially with the United States.

DIVIDED DUTIES

Consequently, Kosygin and Brezhnev divided Khrushchev's duties between themselves, Kosygin assuming the premiership and Brezhnev taking on the job of Soviet Communist party chief. Their hope was to steer the Soviet Union toward a course more to the liking of the Chinese leadership.

But the Chinese were not impressed. They pressed forward with their quarrel with the United States, and recently stepped this with strong accusations that Moscow had joined Washington in an imperialist conspiracy designed against Peking.

The Vietnamese war has strained relations between the United States and, the Soviet Union, but it has failed to bring together Moscow and Peking, although both officials have pledged support of North Viet Nam.

The Soviet government appears united in its attitude toward Peking as was indicated by the post-execution of Kosygin and Brezhnev to their posts when the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, convened in the Kremlin Tuesday.

DISAPPOINTING RESULTS

It apparently has given up its struggle to mend relations with Peking after several years of disappointing results.

Although Kosygin, reviewing Soviet foreign relations Wednesday, declared that Soviet-American relations were completely overshadowed by "aggressiveness" now apparent in Washington, his main criticism was aimed at Peking.

The Soviet premier said that every Kremlin attempt to improve relations with China had been fruitless, citing the Peking's attacks on the Soviet Union "distort the essence of our party's and state's course and have nothing in common with reality."

"Tension in Soviet - Chinese relations runs counter to the nature of socialist relations inside the world system of socialism," Kosygin said, concluding that China is doing a "great service to American imperialism by attacking the Soviet leadership."

Claims Convict Has Extensive Brain Damage

VANCOUVER (CP) — Roger Allan Fulton, 25, whose death sentence was commuted Wednesday by the federal cabinet, was described as a "neurological cripple" in a report prepared by Dr. William Gibson, a professor of history and medical science at the University of British Columbia.

Fulton was sentenced to hang for shooting Jan Kelderman, assistant manager of a trust company in Vancouver, during an armed robbery last May. Hanging date was midnight next Tuesday.

Wednesday's announcement in Ottawa that the sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment said the cabinet had heard "important medical evidence of a neurological nature" but gave no details.

Charles Maclean, Fulton's lawyer, said Wednesday night the reference was to a report by Dr. Gibson, who examined Fulton at Riverview Mental Hospital.

Mr. Maclean said the examination included a neurological study as well as an electroencephalogram — which records electrical impulses in various areas of the brain and shows any abnormalities in the normal pattern of brainwaves.

Dr. Gibson's report said: "I am satisfied the accused here is a cripple, neurologically speaking."

He concluded Fulton had extensive brain damage of long standing.

Douglas Johnson, vice - president of the trust company, said the communist was "disgusting."

"I am all for capital punishment in such cases. The cabinet is reversing everything they can get their hands on," he said.

Wilson Move Toward Compromise With White Leaders of Rhodesia May Cause Commonwealth Crisis

By ARTHUR I. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson and key ministers are moving toward a compromise with the rebellious white rulers of Rhodesia that may cause a major Commonwealth crisis.

This flows from a reappraisal of basic British policy toward the problem of southern Africa and relations with new nonwhite members of the Commonwealth. The reappraisal has been carried out in the light of several realities weighing on Wilson's newly-pressed Labor government:

—Nine months after renouncing Rhodesia's authority, the breakaway regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith still is holding out in Rhodesia against worldwide campaign of sanctions led by British.

—Plagued by their own money emergency, the British want desperately to get rid of a costly quarrel that is gobbling up precious resources and menacing prized investments.

—Any settlement with Smith which fails to put Rhodesia's African majority in power is likely to be seen by the new Commonwealth nations as a sellout of African interests.

—Only last week, Commonwealth Relations Secretary Arthur Bottomley confessed in Parliament that Britain has no power to enforce her wishes on the Smith regime.

All this has brought the Wilson government close to what may seem to some a moment of humiliating truth.

CAN'T CRUSH REBELLION

The truth is that British—mightiest power at the turn of the century — now has neither the resources nor the political resolve to crush a rebellion of 220,000 determined white colonists.

Compromise, accordingly, has been accepted by Wilson as the only practicable course, even if it has to be a compromise with a man Bottomley once branded a liar and a rebel.

Wilson and the men immediately around him are aware that the process of compromise will be consulsive both within the British Commonwealth and cabinet.

Wilson and his spokesmen continue to insist emphatically the Rhodesian solution they seek will preserve three principles. They insist that the constitution of an independent Rhodesia must provide:

1. Guaranteed progress toward majority rule by the nearly 1,000,000 Africans.

2. Guarantees against reneging on African rights.

3. Immediate improvements in the political status of Africans.

4. Repeal of Rhodesia's discriminatory race laws.

5. Acceptance by all Rhodesians of the final settlement.

6. Insurance against racial oppression by whites or blacks.

These terms, in addition, have been coupled with another precondition insisting that Smith's regime must abandon its illegal pretense of independence. That calls for a formal renunciation of the Queen's authority.

In this situation of seemingly irreconcilable stances Wilson's men think they have something of a trump to play. It is in the surprising person of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa whose apartheid (segregation) racial policies have been condemned repeatedly by the Labor government.

Wilson and Verwoerd are widely thought to have been in secret contact, not only about Rhodesia but also about the over-all southern African situation.

Aides of the British leader are convinced that while Verwoerd does not want Smith to lose, he also feels that he can win the grim tussle.

Without South Africa's help in oil, money, goods and other supplies the Smith regime could not have survived sanctions. Without South Africa's good will $3,000,000,000 worth of British investments would be lost, threatening the already beleaguered economy of Britain with bankruptcy.

Verwoerd, then, is in a powerful position to influence both Smith and Wilson although, publicly at least, he is following a hands-off policy. The British, nevertheless, expect him to press Smith discreetly into an accommodation in the months ahead.

Exports Running Higher Than Last Year, Report

OTTAWA (CP)—First-half exports 19-per-cent higher than last year were reported Wednesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Trade Minister Winters declared the performance "exceptional."

A boom in sales to the United States carried total exports for the first six months of 1966 to $4,787,000,000 from $4,009,000,000.

Almost $800,000,000 of the jump came with shipments to the U.S., notably in automotive products, forest products, metals and minerals such as potash and asbestos.

Mr. Winters said in a statement the growth is "all the more gratifying in view of the capacity limitations under which segments of Canadian industries now are operating."

He added that the growth has to be maintained to keep ahead of imports.

To the end of May imports were running 18-per-cent higher than last year, with the dollar volume less the one-quarter behind exports.

Last month's figures on trade under the new automotive program showed that sales of vehicles and vehicle parts were running almost 400 per cent ahead of 1965.

Job Security May Bring Strike Action

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP)—Outside workers at Port Hope voted Wednesday night to take strike action to back demands for increased job security.

The membership of Local 760 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC) instructed its 15-man bargaining committee to meet with CUPE representative E. Murray Gray of Toronto to set an early strike date.

A union statement said the workers would a clause in their contract that will ensure job security for present employees if work now done by municipal workers is contracted out to private firms.

The clause was unanimously recommended for adoption by a conciliation board under Dr. Louis Fine of Toronto in a report July 28, but Port Hope council rejected the recommendation.

Port Hope is 20 miles south of Peterborough.

Selling Goods Bought From Cuban Govt.

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal auctioneering firm is selling goods bought from the Cuban government, which in turn confiscated them from opponents of that government.

The goods were purchased from the government of Premier Fidel Castro by a group of Canadian businessmen. They once belonged to Cubans who fled the Castro administration, which took power in the Caribbean country in 1958.

The sale began Wednesday and is continuing until Saturday. The goods include wall plaques and antique Chinese urns. Some 300 persons attended the first day of the sale.

A spokesman for the auctioneering company said all was quiet at the session despite what he called anonymous letters criticizing the sale.

CLAIMS DROP

OTTAWA (CP) — Claimants for unemployment insurance numbered 217,800 on May 31, 12,000 fewer than a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Benefit payments were $30,000,000 in May, almost $8,000,000 lower than in April.

Prime Minister Foresees No Change in Legislation Of Medicare for Provinces

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday provincial premiers can place the medicare issue on the agenda of this fall's federal-provincial conference but he foresaw no changes in federal legislation as a result of their criticism this week.

The prime minister told a press conference that details have been known for a long time about the federal offer to pay half the cost of provincial plans meeting four federal conditions.

"If the provinces don't want to participate, that is entirely up to them."

Some provincial leaders meeting in Toronto this week charged that the federal government introduced its medical care insurance bill without sufficient consultation with the provinces.

The two largest provinces—Ontario and Quebec—want Ottawa to turn the money over anyway, regardless of whether the provinces set up plans in accordance with the four conditions. Health Minister Macdonald has stated several times that no consideration has been given to such a move.

The conditions require that a comprehensive range of services be provided, that the plan be publicly-administered, portable among provinces and include 90 per cent of a province's population at the start.

The federal legislation was introduced in the Commons before the summer recess began and the prime minister has given the bill high priority on the Commons' schedule for this fall.

The prime minister also said:

—Canadian regulations governing sales of firearms, ammunition and explosives will be examined to determine whether changes are needed in the light of the slaying of 15 persons by a sniper in Austin, Texas.

—Legislation to control hate literature will go before Parliament this fall or early in 1967.

—He has received no report in any form from Mr. Justice Wishart Spence on the Munsinger inquiry.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

His way born in Frankfurt, Germany, is a naturalized Canadian; looks like Jack Nicklaus and as versatile on a soccer field as in a gourmet kitchen.

He's Herb Moeller who spends his working hours as head chef of the Sun Valley Motor Inn and the most of his leisure time studying and playing his favorite game.

Here is big and blonde, can handle or kick a soccer ball with the same ease that he concocts a delicate sauce. He is as much at home defending a goal as-he is spearheading an attack on an enemy citadel.

CHEF HERB MUELLER

Naturally Herb followed the fortunes of West Germany and England throughout the recent World Cup tournament with the climactic moment coming when the team from his native land opposed the English club for the coveted trophy.

Moeller watched the overtime final with something of mixed emotions, but as he puts it, "I am a new Canadian now, I would have liked to see West West Germany win but since I gave my allegiance to the crown I was equally proud that England won."

He never missed a play in the great overtime classic that came via video to his home.

"Not only did England win the Jules Rimet Trophy for the first time," he said, "but it marked the rebirth of extreme fairness for the English fans. England taught the world the game many years ago and had been pushed into the background by her apprentices."

"I have watched many great games in my life but the England-West Germany classic was the best with the better team winning."

Herb has been engaged in soccer for the past 25 years and currently is playing with the league-leading Belleville Parsons of the Kingston District Soccer League.

He gives the bulk of credit for England's victory to Alf Ramsey, coach of the world champions. Ramsey, he said, shook off the shackles of committee officialdom in selecting players, scouted the tight little island — and came up with a winner.

"With system was mainly the reason for the West Germans reaching the finals. In my former country the players are carefully selected from the top pro teams, and are then screened before final selection to the national club."

Herb's knowledge of soccer and his experiences rates him as a critic of note. He followed the fortunes of practically every team in the world cup tournament.

The final epic from his point of view was outstanding. "The midfield battles were a picture of tactics, superb passing and the darting attacks of the halfbacks."

"The games brought out the facts especially to older fans, that soccer was modified. The backfields are more aggressive. You see more tackles. The wings are by backtracking and many positive play runs to a stop before reaching the penalty area.

"The English coach showed player knowledge in choosing Jeff Hurst who scored three goals over the great star Germa. Bobby Sepies, five-foot-four, tremendous me of a little terrier scrapping with big dogs."

"West Germany's Helm, one of the best, missed two goals because of inaccurate shooting and at that I must say five of the six goals scored resulted from defensive errors. The sixth by Hurst was a beauty."

"One of the great things of the tournament was the sportsmanship, which was so sadly lacking in the earlier games, displayed by England, West Germany and Portugal in the semi-final and final. It helped wash out some dark dismal occurrences and elevated the game to the high level it formerly enjoyed."

Junior Golf Championships

Playoff Decides Title

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A three-way playoff for the Ontario junior championship was needed Wednesday to determine the 1966 champion.

Gar Hamilton, a 17-year-old from Toronto, emerged the victor over on the third hole of the playoff. He trailed by two shots Tuesday in the first round of the 64th championship but tied at 144 Wednesday with Ken Trowbridge of Brampton and Peter Turner of Toronto.

Trowbridge was eliminated on the first playoff hole when he went wild off the tee and had to settle for a one-over par. Hamilton and Turner each scored para on the first two holes.

Turner was wild off the third tee, short of the putting surface with his second shot and two putted for a one-over-par five. THE WYNN 145

Ian Thomas of London, Ont., 1965 Canadian junior champion, and Don Miserrore of Sault Ste. Marie both had 145 totals in the junior division.

Fred Kesselring of Kitchener, son of Gerry Kesselring, one of Ontario's best amateurs before turning pro, and Jim Short of Toronto were next in line at 149.

While the older juniors and juvenile divisions played in Kingston Collar of Brantford won the 15-year-old division by one shot over John Wynne of Anchester, Ont. Collar had a 291 total

Tim McCutcheon of Peterborough combined rounds of 77 and 76 to win the 15-year-old division by three shots over Dwayne Hay of Georgetown.

Take Over Second Giants Game Up

Bucs' Veale Whiffs Eleven Dodgers

BY RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Veale has a pain in the back. And he's giving Los Angeles Dodgers one in the neck.

Los Angeles has faced the Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher twice this season and has collected a grand total of one unearned run, 12 hits and two walks off him. In beating the Dodgers 2-1 Wednesday night, Veale struck out 11, just as he did when he beat them back in May.

It was Veale's first game in more than two weeks and the first complete game by a Pirate pitcher in 16 attempts. Veale's back, the cause of his disappearance from the starting rotation, still bothered him a little Wednesday, he said.

When the current series between the two pennant contenders began, the Dodgers were leading the league. Now they're in third place, a game behind the Pirates and two in back of the league-leading San Francisco Giants.

San Francisco took his third straight from New York Mets by an 11-1 score, while the National League games, Philadelphia Phillies beat Houston Astros 5-3, Cincinnati Reds blanked Chicago Cubs 3-0, and Cincinnati Reds won a 16-inning marathon over St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

DROVE TWO HOME

Roberto Clemente's two-run homer in the 11th inning gave Veale all the room he needed to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers. His earned-run average is now a sparkling 2.64, best on the club, and his 11 strikeouts and nine complete games.

A grand-slam home run by Jim Ray Hart and two solo shots by Tom Haller gave Gaylord Perry nine distant runs and then he needed for his 16th victory.

John Callison rapped out four hits and Bill White contributed a grand-slammer as the Phillies snapped a five-game losing streak. Larry Jackson won his 11th game of the season and the Phillies captured their sixth in a row.

Ken Johnson threw a five-hitter as Chicago Fergie Allen scored both runs in Atlanta's victory. Johnson struck out 10 and allowed only one Cub runner to as second base.

Pete Rose's sacrifice fly marked the beginning of the end of the overtime contest in St. Louis. He drove in Mel Queen running for pitcher Coleman, who had singled. A moment later, Deron Johnson hit a single scoring Tommy Harper, who had bunted safely.

67 Takes Pro-am Tourney

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Harry McIlree of Toronto shot a four-under-par 67 Wednesday over the Markland Wood course to win the annual Cooksville pro-am golf tournament.

Charles Kaddy and Les Robertson of Toronto were tied for prize winners among the more than 100 amateurs competing. Kaddy won on a two pro Fred Marin of Toronto to win a playoff on the first playoff hole.

Other teams led by Martin, Frank Whibley of Kitchener, Leon DeCaire of Toronto and George Cooksville were tied for the low best-ball score, 13 under par at 58. Roberts, playing to a 28 handicap, birdied the first playoff hole to win the title.

McIlree's score was one shot better than second registered by Whibley and host-professional Al Balding. Three other pros carded better-than-par scores. Bob Panasiuk of Windsor shot a 68 and Don Bierwas of Simcoe and Bill Mawhinney of Toronto came in at 70.

Rain, Hail, Thunder
Lions Clobber Stampeders 21-3

CALGARY (CP)—British Columbia Lions proved accomplished sunshine Wednesday as they battered Calgary Stampeders 21-3 in the first game of the Western Football Conference season for both clubs.

The Lions clawed their way to a 13-0 halftime lead before 19,836 fans and had little difficulty holding the Stampeders in check the rest of the way. The game was slowed by thunder and hail in the last half.

Touchdowns by Willie Fleming and Bill Munsey wrapped up the decision. Bill Mitchell converted both scores and added a field goal and a single. Neil Beaumont also had a single and the Lions earned an early safety touch.

Calgary's points were provided early in the third quarter by Larry Robinson on a 43-yard field goal. Robinson led the WFC in scoring last season.

B.C., which fell to fourth place after winning the Grey Cup in 1964, led 3-0 after the first quarter and 20-3 at the third intermission.

Precise offence, geared to Munsey's inside running and Mitchell's outside to Fleming, gave Calgary defenders too much to handle in the first half. However the Stamps fought back in the last half on long runs by Atlanta Hall and Ted Wood, but could not narrow their deficit.

CHARGES FOR 127 YARDS

The Stampeders had some reason to regret the game was not played on the scoreboard. Calgary outgained B.C. by a yard on 14 carries to lead all ballcarriers. Munsey was best for the Lions with 127 yards.

Fleming caught seven of eight passes for 164 yards as Kapp threw for 304 yards. Kapp was 20 for 287 yards. Eagle Day and Pete Liske of Calgary managed 12 completions in 34 tries for 135 yards.

Kapp scored an early pass which Fleming carried into Stampeder territory and B.C. used the resulting field position for the first five points. Mitchell's field goal was a 28-yarder. In the third quarter, Munsey moot forced the Stamps back to their one with a good punt from Stampeder Jim Evans. A long conceded the safety on third down.

The second quarter settled the issue. Norm Fieldgate intercepted a pass to give B.C. possession at the Calgary 35. Munsey completed the march by bulling in from the six with Mitchell adding the convert.

The downpour came long after the Lions had wrapped up the verdict.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER
CHIP WITH WRISTS FIRM
The chip shot should be made with the wrists firm throughout the stroke (see illustrations). This will give you a nice crisp cut at the ball and will reduce your chances of topping or scuffing the shot.
Too may either sweep the ball off the grass or pinch it off. I prefer sweeping the shot if the ball is sitting up well in the grass, because if you pinch the shot it might take on too much backspin and finish short of the hole. However, you must pinch the ball if it's resting down low in the grass.
Regardless of the method you use to move the ball out of the grass, however, you will achieve best results if you chip with firm wrists and accelerate the clubhead through the ball.

Bisons Hit 5 Homers, Win 14-11

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Popular slinger Roger Miller claims You Can't Roller Skate In A Buffalo Herd and international League leading Columbus Jets discovered Wednesday night they couldn't swing with the Bisons.

Miller's song doesn't concern the Buffalo club, but the Bisons swung with enthusiasm, collecting 20 hits—five for homers—to defeat the Jets 14-11 in a free-for-all slugfest.

Elsewhere, Syracuse Chiefs walloped Jacksonville Suns 10-1, Toledo Mud Hens edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and Richmond Braves defeated Rochester Red Wings 9-8 in 10 innings.

Buffalo scored eight runs in the seventh inning.

Archie Moore hit his 12th home run of the season in the ninth inning to ruin a seven-hit, 11-strikeout performance by Gabe Claco and give Toledo the victory.

Felix Millan's single with one out in the 10th inning gave Richmond its victory over Rochester.

Left - hander Jim Roland pitched a six hitter for his first victory of the season for Syracuse. The victory broke a nine-game losing streak for the Chiefs.

PICTON — If the first game in the Belleville and District playoffs between Ellie Juniors and Picton Kinsmen was any indication of similar games in the future, the district fans are in for a great deal of interesting, exciting softball.

At least it would seem that way, after the contest here last night, as Picton dotned the Juniors 4-3 in a 19 inning marathon.

The game, featuring great pitching and fielding seasoned with a display of power hitting, was one of the finest two-team efforts put forth in this area this year.

The contest matched Picton ace Carl Stacey against the formidable left arm of the Juniors' Bob Ethier, and both pitched well enough to win. Stacey gave up nine hits and blew third strikes past 34 batters, while Ethier allowed 12 hits and fanned 16.

Both pitchers gave up costly "gopher" balls. Ethier's was in the eighth frame, when he gave up a home run to Carl Stacey. Stacey, although holding and swinging the bat with only one arm, cracked his remarkable shot over the centre fielder's head to give Picton the go-ahead in that inning.

With two out in the ninth, however Stacey floated a pitch straight down the middle to big Bill Barberstock of the Juniors, who gobbled the pitch for a tremendous round - tripper to tie the game at 3-3.

In the 19th inning, second baseman Elton Gray of Picton led off with a double. Dave Lockwood's perfect bunt advanced him to third, and Elton Carson slammed a base hit to bring him home with the winning run.

Mary Stacey, the older half of the Picton battery and older brother to Carl, belted a home run in the second frame, and scored after tripling in the fourth, to account for Picton's other runs.

The Juniors scored their first two runs in the eighth. Jerry St. Denis walked, went to third on Bob Moon's double, and both men scored when Carl Boomhower stroked a single.

Lee St. Denis led the winners in the field with several fine plays.

For Picton, Mary Stacey had a homer and triple, Carl Stacey blasted a one - handed home run and single, and Elton Gray banged out two doubles and a single. Warren Ostrander had two singles, while Elton Carson and Ron Weese had one.

Wayne Wood slapped three singles for the losers. Bob Ethier had two base hits, and Bob Moon, Carl Boomhower, Terry Whalley and Bill Barberstock ripped a homer.

Guards Win Churchill Shoot Match

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Four marksmen from the 1st Canadian Guards stationed at Camp Picton, Ont., won the Churchill match Tuesday at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships.

The match was fired in cloudy, threatening weather.

L-Sgt. F. H. Hirt scored 46 of a possible 50 to lead the team. Sgt. G. N. Osborn and Cpl. S. Schiweck each had 43. Sgt. A. S. Layzell 42.

The Victoria Rifles militia unit from Montreal was second in the 20-team field, two points behind the winners.

Senior Hockey Club Will Play Exhibitions

Belleville's new senior hockey entry will play exhibition games at Trenton against the Trenton Golden Rockets during the week preceding October 16th.

Playing coach Floyd Crawford made the announcement at a director's meeting last night.

Ray Miron, who managed the Cornwall Colts in eastern senior hockey of the roaring fifties is now associated with the International League, and is the authority for the games.

The as yet unnamed Belleville team opens the schedule against Woodstock on October 14 in Woodstock and plays its first home game against Barrie on October 21st.

Other commitments however prevent Memorial Arena officials from making the usual after October 16th. There is a possibility that Belleville's first home game will be played in Trenton.

Tweed arena authorities have asked for exhibition games involving the Belleville entry.

Crawford said arrangements are well under way for the acquisition of players to bolster those selected from the city and district. No date for the opening of training camp has been set as yet.

Last night's meeting authorized a nomination committee composed of directors, Fred Deacon, Ted Follwell and Dick Ellis to bring in a slate of executive officials consisting of a president, two vice-presidents and a secretary. Director Ken Sodon is expected to take over the treasurer position.

Season tickets for the 20 home games by the club will be on sale next week at downtown distributing centres. The tab is $23. Single adult admission will be $1.25.

General manager Bob Temple and associates discussed the production of a souvenir program with a representative of an advertising organization. Nothing was settled at the meeting.

Again the hockey public is reminded that the 1956 edition of the city's senior entry is sponsored solely by a group of city business, industrial and professional men. The directorate is composed at present of twenty of these men. This number is expected to be increased to thirty.

Official city hall has nothing to do with the club in any manner - shape or form, apart from arena playing commitments.

Latta Wins Over Read 8-3 In Semi-Final

Latta trounced Read 8-3 behind the three-hit pitching of Lorne Cronkright in the first South Hastings semi-final playoff game between the two teams, at Read last night.

Cronkright fanned 10 and walked six for his win.

Ted Abrams took the loss for Read, giving up nine hits, striking out seven and walking three. He gave up six runs in the second frame to virtually decide the ball game.

The winners got plenty of hits. Doug Chisholm, Larry Mervely and Doug Rollins all snapped a double and single, while Doug Geen, Gary Ray and Ernie Cronkright had base hits.

Carm Milligan blasted a triple and double and Pete Enright had a safety for the losers.

Bombers Will Decorate Pass-Stoppers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has come up with a gimmick to give his defensive corps some long-overdue recognition.

Every player who intercepts a pass will be given a little blue football-shaped decal transfer to stick on the side of his helmet.

First man to collect the keepsakes, in fact — is safety Ed Ulmer who pulled off a pair of interceptions Saturday night in the Bombers' Western Football Conference season-opening 26-7 victory over Edmonton Eskimos.

To make his bravado complete, Ulmer predicted before the game he would do just that.

Minor Softball Results

Kiddie Korner Astros took their semi - final series lead in two straight over the Browns as they beat them 7-4 last night.

In other squirt playoff action, the Redskins evened their best-of-three series at 1-1 with an 18-10 win over the Shopping Plaza Rams. The final contest in this series is slated for next Thursday. The Astros will meet the winner of the Redskin - Rams series for the championship.

The Colts and Yankees meet on Monday in the first game of their city championship series in the peewee division.

Larks Muffle Riders But Lose 10-8

Game Of Defences

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders turned the tables on the experts Wednesday night and used a strong defense to post a 10-8 win over Montreal Alouettes in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference season.

The Rider's supposedly - explosive offence was muffled by the Alouettes in the battle between two strong defences, but a touchdown set up by a pass interception provided a happy ending for 19,390 Ottawa fans after a rather dull game.

Defensive halfback Joe Poirier made what turned out to be the key play of the game when he intercepted a pass by Montreal quarterback Bernie Faloney on the Montreal 35-yard line late in the third quarter.

Poirier raced into the end zone on the play but a clipping penalty against Ottawa moved the ball back to the Montreal 32.

Even then, the Riders needed two successful quarterback sneaks before quarterback Russ Jackson hit flanker Whit Tucker with a nine - yard touchdown strike.

Moe Racine's convert and his 30-yard field goal on the last play of the first half provided Ottawa's only other points.

The Alouettes broke into the scoring column late in the game they got the ball in the third quarter but couldn't get anything again until the dying minutes of the game. The clock ran out just as they reached the Ottawa 30-yard line.

CARRIES BALL OVER

Faloney sparked the 80-yard touchdown drive with passes to end Peter Kempf and halfback Donnie Davis and finally carried the ball over himself around right end from four yards out.

Kempf booted the convert and end Gino Berretta added a single on a 30-yard angle mid-way through the final period.

Montreal defensive halfback Larry Fairbairn emerged as the star of the game, intercepting three of Jackson's passes. Two of the interceptions in the first half halted Ottawa penetrations that could have resulted in scores.

Fairbairn grabbed a first-quarter pass intended for Ottawa halfback Rick Black on the Montreal 14 and on the first play of the second quarter took another one away from Black at Ronnie Stewart, also on the 14.

Ottawa's pass defence also sparkled, intercepting four of Faloney's throws. In addition to Poirier's catch, Black and Ron Gaines caught two and linebacker Ken Lehman grabbed the other.

Jackson had a poor night in the passing department, completing only eight of 18 attempts for 97 yards. Stewart missed on his only pass when Jackson was the intended receiver.

Added 10 IN TURN

Ottawa had a better record on the ground, piling up 206 yards through the middle and off tackle. But their wide running was stopped short. Black, who alternated with Jim Dillard at fullback, ran 82 yards in 10 carries while halfback Bo Scott added 61 in 14 trips.

The Alouettes, hampered by injuries to offensive guards Tony Pajaczkowski and Keve Vaughan, managed only 58 yards on the ground but got 192 yards through the air as Faloney completed 12 of 24 passes.

Pajaczkowski injured his knee early in the game but returned later and coach Darrell Mudra said he did not think the injury was serious. Vaughan, however, suffered torn calf muscles and is expected to be out for a week to 10 days.

Kempf and Davis were Faloney's favorite targets, catching five passes apiece for 58 and 53 yards, respectively. Halfback Don Lisbon produced more than half of Montreal's rushing total with 30 yards in nine carries.

The Riders had the best scoring opportunity in the first but missed another three points when Racine's field goal attempt from the Montreal 45 hit the upright and bounced back to the 30-yard line. Racine was wide and short on a third field goal try, from 41 yards out.

Pitches Unfair To Mays

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays is getting fewer good pitches to hit this season, observes Larry Jansen, San Francisco Giants' pitching coach.

"The pitchers seem to be working much harder on him," said Jansen. "He's not getting his pitches. Last year, I think he had at least one good pitch to hit every time he came to bat and in my opinion he had his best season ever."

Mays has 19 National Baseball League in homers with 32 this year. This year, he has 28 after 107 games and is seven behind the leader, Atlanta's Hank Aaron.

However, the 35-year-old Giants centre fielder needs only three more homers to top Jimmy Foxx, the majors' career leader among right-handed batters.

"There's no pressure on me, though," Jansen noted. "He just goes up there swinging the way he's done all through the years."

Mays is batting .291 with 106 hits, also included 21 doubles, 64 runs scored and 67 runs batted in. He leads the Giants in each of these categories.

Strikes Out Ten

Twins' Boswell Stops Bosox; Yanks Win

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave Boswell's barnyard impressions still knock up his team-mates, but the Minnesota Twins' funny man is dead serious about his new art—impersonating Sandy Koufax.

Boswell, 21, fired a four-hitter against Boston Wednesday night for his seventh straight victory and added 10 strikeouts to his American League lead as the Twins battered the Red Sox 7-3.

Before June 1, Boswell's major contributions to the Twins were his hilarious imitations of the animal and bird kingdoms.

Since June 1 he has won 11 of 12 decisions. Koufax, Los Angeles Dodgers fabulous left-hander, was 6 on June 1 and has been 8-4 since then. Boswell has won his last six starts; Koufax has won two of his last six.

Sandy's earned run average of 1.64 is far superior to Boswell's 3.00 mark, but the Minnesota fireballer will take the victories any way he can get them.

SECOND IN STRIKEOUTS

Boswell's 10 strikeouts against the Red Sox increased his season figure to 138. Koufax, with 210 strikeouts, is the only pitcher in the majors ahead of him.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, New York Yankees ended a five-game tailspin by trimming California Angels 9-0 on Mel Stottlemyre's two-hitter. Cleveland Indians overcame five Baltimore Orioles homers for a 9-6 victory over the league leaders; Washington Senators edged Kansas City Athletics 4-3 and Detroit Tigers took a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, winning the opener 5-3 before bowing 4-2.

Boswell, who had pitched a 13-inning relief job in Minnesota's 4-3 victory over Boston Monday night, was the losing pitcher in the nightcap.

Stottlemyre scattered two singles and bolted a homer as the Yankees beat Dean Chance for the fourth time this season. Stottlemyre, now 10-12, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris each drove in two runs.

ORIOLES WASTE HOMERS

Max Alvis' bases-loaded triple and Fred Whitfield's two-run homer fed Cleveland past the Orioles, who wasted two homers each by Frank Robinson and Boog Powell and another by Sam Bowens. Robinson's pair boosted his league-leading total to 33.

Cal. Angels Get First "Million"

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—California Angels, playing in the baseball city his baseball fathers, have become the first American League team to top 1,000,000 in attendance this season.

Playing their first year in the Anaheim Stadium, the Angels are third in the standings.

President Gene Autry hopes now hopes for at least 1,500,000 for the season.

Last year, sharing the stadium of Los Angeles Dodgers, the club drew only 566,727.

The three-level stadium seats 43,204 and Tuesday night's crowd of 25,465 raised the season total to 1,000,111.

Anaheim is one of the mushroom suburbs of Los Angeles. It has a resident population of more than 150,000. But there are 1,000,000 people within 10 miles of the stadium, and within 30 miles are 6,000,000.

Canadian Tennis Semi-Finals

Seed Matched Against Seed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seed meets seed today in the quarter-finals of the Canadian lawn tennis championships.

Today's matches pit seeded players against each other for the first time since the six-day tournament began Monday.

All eight seeded women—four Canadians and four foreign entries—emerged unbeaten from matches against less - experienced players and are the only women singles players left in the tournament.

Eight seeded men have fallen by the wayside in the last two days and only the top five Canadian and three foreign seeds still remain.

Mike Belkin of Montreal, top seeded Canadian and member of the Davis Cup team, will be the only seeded player remaining in Bob Pothast of Los Angeles.

Pothast ousted fifth - seeded Canadian Francois Godeau of Montreal 6-3, 7-5 Wednesday to make the quarter-finals. Belkin advanced with a 6-4, 6-4 fourth round win over unranked Don McCormick of Victoria.

Allen Fox, top foreign seed, best eighth seeded Canadian Mike Carpenter of Montreal 9-7, 6-4, Wednesday to advance to the quarter-finals against fourth Canadian seed John Sharpe of Toronto, who turned back fifth-seeded foreigner Jack Wear of Portland, Ore., 6-3, 6-1 in fourth round play.

At Connaught Range

Wind Affected Scores

By PETE McNAUGHTON

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)— Weather played havoc with scores at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships Wednesday and threw competition wide open for places on next year's Canadian Bisley team.

Slim winds whipped across the government's mile - wide Connaught Range — largest shooting ranges in the world—near this village west of Ottawa and made accurate shooting a near-impossibility for all but the most experienced marksmen.

Jack Roberts of Victoria, who has represented Canada at the Commonwealth championships at Bisley, England, several times, won the first major match of the day with 34 out of 35 in the tough Gatineau match from 1,000 yards. His score was two better than the 32 posted by seven shooters who tied for second.

Johnnie Thompson of Stellarton, N.S., another veteran of the 16-man Bisley team, won a six-way shoot-off in the Macdonald match with five straight bullseyes from 600 yards.

Fred Kirkman of Toronto, Joan MacKay of Lancaster, N.B., English wife of Alex Mathers of Banstead, Surrey, and Ed George of Winnipeg all had 23 out of 25 in the shoot-off in the Bill Hornsby of Downsview, Ont., had 21.

TEACHER WINS SHOOT-OFF

CHM James, a schoolteacher from Burlington, Ont., won the only other shoot-off of the day against Alex Orpen-Smeltzer of Sheela Heath, Brookwood, England, in the Alexander of Tunis match. The pair had scored 49 out of 50 from 900 yards.

Alberta won the provincial team match over seven other provinces with a score of 807 out of a possible 900 from 800 yards, good for an eight-point margin over Manitoba and a 10-point edge over New Brunswick in third.

Junior Disband Halted

REGINA (CP)—A temporary injunction was granted Wednesday restraining commissioners Frank Boucher and five Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League officials from acting on plans to disband the league.

Mr. Justice F. W. Johnson granted the injunction, effective to Aug. 23, to Melville Millionaires who filed an application for the injunction July 28.

The injunction included a guarantee that if by reason of its granting any damage is suffered by Boucher or the other defendants the Millionaires will pay.

Teams from Regina, Estevan, Brandon, Saskatoon and Weyburn wish to withdraw from the SJHL to join a proposed new league, the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League, from which Melville would be excluded.

WINNIPEG, (CP) — Representatives of the original Winnipeg franchise in the defunct Major Junior Hockey League say they have withdrawn from the league because they do not feel it will meet its original objectives.

George A. Keates and Denis Ball said in a statement that Ball left a meeting in Regina because "conditions set for us were, unfortunately, premature, and would not meet the objectives originally outlined by commissioner Frank Boucher."

The CMJHL loop includes Moose Jaw, Estevan, Regina, Weyburn and Saskatoon, all former members of the Saskatchewan Junior League, as well as Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

Brandon also withdrew at the meeting in Regina.

Dominion Shooting

Britons Saving Best Shots

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)— The British, whose team came to the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's annual meet complete with bartender, appear to be saving their best shots for the championships.

The 18 Britons—17 men and one woman—make up the team Canadians shot against last month at the Commonwealth rifle championships at Bisley, England.

Along with 35 British shots they are shooting for honors with more than 500 Canadians in the annual week - long matches.

And they're more than holding their own, much to the satisfaction of their commandant, Stanley Wheeler of Bisley.

"The conditions are naturally very strange to us here but I'm very satisfied with our shooting so far," he said in an interview Wednesday night.

HE'S SUCCESSFUL

Most observers on the team has been Jim Fitch of Weybridge, Surrey. The 33-year-old marksman, making his first appearance here, had the top aggregate score in the entire British team after seven of the first two days of shooting.

Fitch has won the J. Pennington aggregate and the Tuesday aggregate. He had a score of 197 out of 200 to win the two events based on performances in the Macdougall and Bankers' matches.

The British Army cadets swept the top three places in the Gooding Junior match. The match is based on aggregate scores in the Tyro event—for competitors who have never competed in the Macdougall and Bankers'.

Jerome Favored For 100

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)— The experts have picked Harry Jerome of Vancouver as the favorite in the 100-yard dash at the British Empire Games, which open here today but the same experts are quick to point out that the favorite has rarely won the print since the Second World War.

Jerome was also the favorite in the 100 - yard dash at Perth, but Seraphino Antao of Kenya won with the Vancouver sprinter finishing dead last in the final after injuring his leg. Keith Gardner was not the favorite in 1958, but won the 100-yard race.

The same could be said of Milt Campbell of Toronto during the 1954 Games when he won.

Paul Poce, coach of the Canadian track and field team, doesn't buy the experts theory, however.

"He's caught fire in a way that I've never seen an athlete in. I watched the early Games trials and he tore down the straight as if he were being chased by the devil himself. I pick him for the 100 and why not for the double (220-yard dash)."

Jerome, meanwhile, has drawn the No. 7 lane in the first heat of the 100-yard event Friday, and should have little trouble advancing to the second round. With four qualifying heats, there is also a possibility that Hesrne Trenilson of Vancouver will also advance although he's in tough company. The second will run in the heat against Tom Robinson of The Bahamas, who shares the Games record of 9.4 seconds.

Close Eye On Marathon

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)— Horrified Vancouver spectators watched on a hot summer day as a British marathon runner Jimmy Peters vainly tried to crawl his last few miles to the finish line.

A week from today, in a similar hot, humid setting, another British marathon was a good wealth Games marathon gets under way and some experts predict that before it ends some runners will make Peters look healthy by comparison.

Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal, the Canadian team doctor and a former international competitor. He said in an interview Wednesday that conditions are the same as they were in 1954.

"This will definitely not be another Peters marathon," said Edwards. Peters won a gold medal in the 880-yard race for British Guiana in 1934 B. E. Canes and captured bronze medals for Canada in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin and the 1938 B. E. Games. He moved to Montreal in 1935 to complete his medical studies.

He pointed out that the Vancouver marathon was run in the hot first of the day while the runners will start at 5:30 a.m. and temperatures are expected to be in the high 80s when the race ends about 8 a.m. How-

Edwards said the runners' chief trouble will be caused by the fact they have been forced to get up by 2:30 a.m.

Similar conditions will apply in the 20-mile walk, which starts at 6 a.m. Cyclists in the 120-mile road race start at 6:30 so they should finish before the heat becomes a problem.

Edwards said the runners' chief trouble will be caused by the early starting hours.

Edwards said the runners' chief trouble will be caused by the early starting hours.

"The kids looked tired before their last workout this morning (Wednesday) but swam faster than ever," said swim coach Phil Sierpina of Vancouver. "That may have taught them to relax a little more and play a little less table tennis."

Athletics — seed Canadian Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., plays sixth-seed Canadian Gary Fasquier of Toronto and-second-seed foreigner Allen Stone of Australia Keith Richardson of Montreal, the third-seed Canadian.

Stone, unofficially ranked 20th in Australia, disposed of seventh-seeded Don Footana of Toronto 6-3, 6-4 Wednesday.

Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., top - seeded Canadian, beat unranked Linda Schellenberg of New York City, 6-2, 6-1 to advance against fourth foreign seed Jean Wilson of Manchester, England.

Rita Bentley of Manchester, top foreign seed, will play today against fourth Canadian seed Eleanor Constable of Montreal. Miss Bentley won her third round match 6-0, 6-1 over Ann Bedard of Sherbrooke.

Swims 12 Races In Six Days

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Elaine Tanner, 15-year-old West Vancouver ageint swimmer, is going to have a tough time keeping herself occupied since the British Empire Games—her coach is only letting her swim in 12 races in six days.

Coach Ted Thompson of Vancouver decided Wednesday to scratch the versatile, 110-pound teenager from the 110-yard free-style event that leaves her in the 110- and 220-yard butterfly, the 110- and 220-yard backstroke, the 440-yard individual medley and two relays.

Assuming Elaine survives the heats in her five individual events—and few swimming observers are betting against it—that means she'll get wet an even dozen times before competition ends. No heats are being held in the relays.

Allen Harvey of Vancouver, swimming team manager, can't find enough superlatives to describe Elaine.

ALWAYS WORKED HARD

"For seven years she has practised and competed harder than any kid you could name. She never has an indifferent practice," he said.

"I used to bet that when she got bigger and faster and reached her peak she'd get sick of it. So far she hasn't."

Simpson said Elaine isn't likely to be overwhelmed by her first crack at Games competition. "She was in just as tough a situation when she won at the United States nationals this year."

Simpson was happy with Wednesday's workout—the last before competition starts Friday—in which the team generally squalled or exceeded its best times.

"They're confident—and close to their peak," Simpson said.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Sharp 'N Smart won the first of two stakes division dashes in the $6,725 Canadian Standardbred Horse Society's Futurity Wednesday night at Greenwood Raceway.

The two-year-old, owned by John Hayes of Oshawa and Bob Shapiro of Montreal, was clocked in 2:05 3-5 in posting a two-length victory. The payoff price was $3.15.

OTTAWA (CP) — Scotch Tailest won the featured $800 pace at Rideau Carleton Raceway Wednesday night.

Driven by Gerard Bouvrette, Scotch Talent held off the late-closing rush of Scotch Lobell and Scotch Andy for the victory in a time of 2:07 1-5 over the mile.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Coalition, owned by Kurt Hellberg of Mellerud, Sweden, led all the way Wednesday night to win the $7,500 W. N. Reynolds Memorial Stakes for three-year-old fillies at Buffalo Raceway.

Shirley Express, owned by George Craig of Atlas Craig, Ont., and Gordon Houghton of London, Ont., won the second race.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—One of Canada's top riders, Avelino Gomez, gave notice Wednesday he's back in contention, by posting his 100th victory at Fort Erie race track.

Gomez returned to action after being suspended by the stewards July 26 for interfering with horses coming out of the starting gate on July 22. The suspension caused him to skip from first to fifth place in rider standings here.

Gomez needed an assist from the stewards to register Wednesday's victory, aboard the Victara Stable's Distic. He was the 143rd winner Gomez has ridden this season.

The daily double of Daring Daryl and No Passes Par returned $56.60 for $2. The exactor of Brother Leo and Nearctic Heir paid $11.40.

Trap and Gun Results

Earl Marvin continued his crack-pot shooting in the Quinte Trap and Gun Club as he scored a perfect 25 last night.

L. Hines, D. Thomson, D. Greenfield, G. Roberts, and L. Harrington followed with scores of 24.

R. Rosatte, D. Johnston and Lynn Reynolds had 22, and H. Farnell 21.

Vagabond Lover 65 Today; Know Him and You Are Aging

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Up and down long alleyways, nimble as a mountain goat, Rudy Vallee led a tour of his hilltop mansion.

To a photographer and a reporter trailing him, he bawled cheerfully:

"No pictures with the damned megaphones! The hell with the megaphones! I live in the present and the future."

To a generation of his fans it may seem unbelievable, but today the grand-daddy of crooners is 65 years old.

Vallee 637 That slim, smooth fellow with the sax who led the Connecticut Yankees dance band? How long ago could it have been that you danced dreamily past the bandstand with Rudy standing there before the icecream panda, smiling suavely leading the musicians?

In his early days he sang through a megaphone. Remember I'm Just a Vagabond Lover, The Maine Stein Song, The Whiffenpoof Song, The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze? Him 637 Impossible!

Yes, said Vallee:

"I've made out my medicare forms, and like (the late) Adolphe Menjou probably will drive to the social security office and get my $125 any month I don't work."

WORKS ON BIRTHDAY

On his birthday he plans to be starring at the Melodyland Theatre in suburban Anaheim in a musical called Business Without Really Trying. The Pulitzer Prize musical comedy brought his name from obscurity to three triumphant years on Broadway.

He has recently completed his same role of pompous, snappish business tycoon in a movie version of the play, his first major film assignment since The Heiko Morgan Story, in 1957.

After Melodyland there will be a month stands in How To Succeed at Nyack, N.Y., and Houston, Tex., and "then probably Las Vegas or another pitch here."

Did the prospect of turning 65 hold dismay?

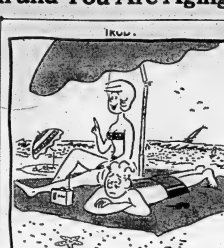
"Not in the slightest. I don't feel it and I don't look it." He has a modest paunch, but the greying hair is still thick and crinkly, the pale blue eyes still twinkle.

Since 1941 he has owned the huge, English-style house, built in 1930 by Ann Harding on the crest of one of Beverly's highest hills.

The front-door chimes ring for the first few notes of his old theme song, "Time Is Your Time — faintly on the first "time" because he has found room to repair the mechanism.

A chamber beneath and as big as the tennis court has a rubber d o o r m a t announcing "Rue de Vallee."

SAVES ARRANGEMENTS



There are great racks of Vallee orchestrations — "$250,000 worth," he said. . . Stacks of sheet music with his picture on the cover—Betty Coed, Every Little Girl Wants a Rudy Vallee . . . All of the scripts from his famous radio hour, which spanned the decade 1929-39 and was second only to Amos 'n' Andy in popularity.

Every record he ever made is stored, every movie script, every program from tens of thousands of appearances.

There are panels of photos: Radio co-star John Barrymore; Stepmate John Glenn and President John F. Kennedy at How to Succeed; some of the stars whose radio careers he helped launch, such as Kate Smith, Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen, Red Skelton, Bob Burns.

There are great racks of bottled wine, much of it spoiled. "I just stupidly never used it," said Vallee. There are shelves full of large scrapbooks, now numbering 422, in which he pastes newspaper clippings, letters, photos, theatre programs and other memories.

On other shelves are Vallee's old saxophones, and megaphones from his vaudeville days. "In the boxes they said they couldn't hear me. The first megaphone was made by a harness maker from a piece of black shirt. Then they said they couldn't see me, so I had one made of glass."

"NOW I remember what became of that sun-tan oil! Ted, remember the fried fish we had yesterday?"

George Hamilton Becoming The Centre of Controversy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I've and you can't dividea man and always felt that if some one who knows you makes a critical or derogatory remark, it's something to pay attention to," said actor George Hamilton. "But if it comes from any other source, ignore it."

The tall young bachelor was referring, without being specific, to all the attention he has received since he began acquiring Lynda Bird Johnson.

Hamilton was interviewed between takes in his portable dressing room on the set of The Long Ride Home, a film in which he plays the bad guy.

The object of the interview was to plug an NBC special taped almost two weeks ago, Class of '67, of which he is host.

Hamilton's dates with the president's daughter have moved him to the centre of controversy.

Asked whether he is distressed that his name is becoming so well known, not because of his performance but because of his social life, the Memphis-born actor said:

"As a human being I've had to establish my own identity his work. And you can't pay attention to everything people say."

Will he be among the guests in Washington Saturday, for Luci Johnson's wedding?

"At the moment I can't say," he replied, "for many have no takes and I'm under contract. Of course, if I can get away, I'll try to get there."

Class of '67 is designed to serve as a pilot show for a future series aimed at graduates of high school and college ages—treating campus fads, music and dances. It will be broadcast Sept. 10.

SAYS HE'S OUT

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Rick Reichardt said Wednesday he doesn't expect to be able to play baseball the rest of the 1966 season. The Los Angeles outfielder, signed for a reported $200,000 two years ago, said he had missed about 30 games this season because of a hemorrhaging finger and a blockage of the kidney. He is undergoing tests here at the Mayo Clinic.

Charles Brickford Launches First Television Series

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Charles Bickford was a young stock company actor, an old man carrying a shabby suitcase passed him on the street, a derelict.

"He'd been an actor 30 years and I thought me everything I know," Bickford recalls. "Everything he owned was in that suitcase. I made up my mind that wouldn't happen to me."

Counting the value of his investments, Bickford now is a millionaire, owning three companies that employ nearly 100 persons.

And at 75 he's still working, launching his first television series as the ranch owner in NBC's weekly 30-minute The Virginian, based on Owen Wister's novel.

Retire? Why should I? There are things I want to do," growled the screen veteran, a rebellious Irishman who has scrapped with movie moguls over contracts.

"I've been everywhere, seen practically everything. I don't have to work, but I would miss it if I didn't."

Bickford is a Cambridge, Mass., native who was a logger, sailor, lumberjack, prospector and vaudeville performer en route to Broadway and then movie stardom.

His business sidelines are 6 Massachusetts beef farms he acquired in 1936 also produce lemons.

"Competent managers" help him run his sideliines.

Biting into a steak sandwich, the man with pale blue eyes, scraggly reddish eyebrows and gray-white hair said that except for a crick knee he feels "as good as when I was a kid." He was born in 1901 when he was riding horseback.

Steelworkers May Return to Jobs for Week

Contract Formally Signed

HAMILTON (CP) — A hope for a break in a violence-spattered wildcat strike which has left some 17,000 employees of Steel Co. of Canada and other firms idle here came shortly before noon today.

Standing on the shoulders of two burly steelworkers, striker Ian McDougall told massed pickets that a provisional membership meeting will be held as soon as possible to discuss the possibility of a return to work.

This return would be contingent on the union negotiating committee coming up with a satisfactory settlement within one week.

"Otherwise we're back on the streets again," shouted Mr. McDougall.

He said attempts were being made to have charges dropped, which were laid against strikers today and Thursday following picketline disturbances.

POLICE FORCE LINE

An impressive display of police strength today opened the main Wilcox Street gate at Stelco for the first time since the strike started Wednesday evening.

More than 150 office and supervisory personnel drove unmolested through picket lines, officials said. They were followed by masses of police officers.

An attempt to move a freight train of scrap steel past Burlington Street into the plant brought violence shortly before 10 a.m. when a crowd of strikers rushed a police line which tried to form a human barricade on both sides of the railway right-of-line.

At least five strikers were handcuffed and hustled into paddy wagons during the following melee.

Police-lines finally gave way and strikers massed on Burlington Street, sufficiently blocking the train tracks. The railway crew decided not to try to force a passage and retreated about 100 yards down the track.

About 12:30 a.m. another police line was formed on the ground and four or five more strikers taken into custody during a wild clash with on Burlington Street.

Earlier police reinforcements were summoned to help deal with the situation, which worsened with strikers beginning stiffening to block all gate entrances to the giant plant.

Three automobiles were reported overturned Thursday and a fourth burned near the plant. No charges have been laid.

The union executive originally asked that three mop chosen from each of the seven units to main, Stelco property gates at

Britons Find Food Prices Up

LONDON (CP)—British consumers, their pockets made less by the government's wage-and-price freeze, ventured in force again today as food prices continued to rise and mortgage men spoke of another increase in mortgage rates in October.

The government quickly made clear that headlines in many morning newspapers were wrong —that there is no green light as yet on by-balking societies' demand that the existing interest rate be allowed to go up to 7½ per cent from 6¾ Oct. 1.

The premature elation of the mortgage men resulted from a post-midnight statement by Economics Secretary George Brown that the government's bill on the six-month freeze would not include compulsory powers over interest rates. Reporters at the parliamentary committee meeting rushed out with what appeared to be hot news of the first big crack in the defence against inflation.

Still in the committee at 4 a.m., Brown said the reporters had it wrong. While there would be no compulsion over interest rates, the government still had

Rescue Six West Germans By Copter From Mt. Blanc

AOSTA, Italy (Reuters)—Six West German climbers missing on blizzard-swept Mont Blanc since Monday were rescued by helicopter today, police said.

They were taken to Courmayeur on the Italian side of the 15,782-foot peak.

Their condition appeared to be reasonably good, first reports said.

Four climbers have died in a three-day blizzard on the peak.

Police did not indicate whether the six were the same as a student German-Swiss team sought by rescuers from Chamonix, on the French side of the mountain.

At Chamonix, helicopters and rescue teams also seeking two Frenchmen and two Japanese climbers were waiting for a break in the weather to resume operations.

Conditions were better than Thursday, when snow and 60-mile-an-hour winds swept Mont Blanc, but officials preferred to wait for further improvement.

During a break in the weather Thursday a helicopter rescued five frostbitten French climbers from a snow cave on the summit after they had spent the night beside the body of an unidentified British climber.

The body of another Briton, Colin Thomas Sprecy, of Newcastle upon Tyne, was still on the mountain and a police helicopter Thursday night found the bodies of two French climbers killed by exposure near the summit of the 15,626-foot Col Major.

Plan Private Radio Network To Replace Pirate Stations

LONDON (AP)—A 200-station commercial radio network is being planned by the British government to replace pirate stations which operate off the coast, informed sources said today.

The surprise proposal is contained in a white paper on broadcasting now awaiting cabinet approval, the sources said.

Members of the ruling Labor party, traditionally opposed to commercial broadcasting, are likely to give the idea a rough reception.

The government has pledged to scuttle the pirate radios which broadcast pop music from ships and disused forts off the coast.

A bill to outlaw them is expected to be on the law next February. But this would be unpopular with the pirates' enormous audience and could cost the government support among the electorate. . . .

The legal broadcasting in Britain is confined to the BBC, a state-chartered organization which does not accept commercials.

The sources said the projected privately - run stations would carry advertising spots at regular intervals in a program of day-long music.

A government-appointed board would oversee their activities, the sources said, adding that the new stations could be operating in the middle of next year.

One of the main reasons for government action against the pirates is that they are transmitting on wavelengths allocated to other countries.

1,200 CNR Freight Handlers Continue Strike, CPR Back

Air Raid Sirens Shorted

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 1,200 CNR workers handling express freight at Montreal carried on with their wildcat strike today and others in Toronto also were off the job.

The work stoppages, which began Monday, resulted in an embargo on CNR express shipments of freight between the two cities.

Similar CPR workers in both cities voted Thursday to resume work after they too had walked off their jobs.

W. J. Smith, head of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), said in Ottawa Thursday night union members had been urged by their leaders to resume work. But he had no idea when they would go back.

A CNR spokesman said express services to and from the Atlantic region are being affected by the work stoppages. No express freight or piggyback traffic is being accepted for Montreal and areas served by Montreal.

About half of the CPR handlers on the Thursday afternoon shift at Toronto reduced to work after the union said it was going to investigate the cause of the strike there.

The Montreal CPR employees had been persuaded of the folishness of walking out, said officials of their CLC union, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees.

IGNORE LEADERS

The CPR men walked off the job against the advice of their union leaders to protest against a conciliation report handed down last week by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of Vancouver.

They resumed work in Montreal after being told their union intends to call a protest strike for the earliest possible date after a vote has been taken by the membership across the country," said their union chairman, William McGregor.

Mr. Justice Munroe's report recommended a 40-cent increase in hourly rates over a two-year period. The union is asking for a 57-cent an hour increase and more fringe benefits in a three-year contract.

The strike vote held by the express handlers' union is part of a campaign to build bargaining strength among the nation's 90,000 non - operating railway employees in preparation for the fall current conciliation board re-

Union officials said they expect the vote to be completed by Aug. 20.

The CNR express handlers are demanding that Judge C. A. Cameron, head of the conciliation board which settled the dispute, hurry up with his report. That is due Aug. 25.

The last contract for all the nib-ops, who now average $2.23 an hour, expired Dec. 31, 1965. Since then they have been divided into three groups for consideration of their demands.

The CNR employees are demanding a 87-cent increase in their hourly wages.

Four Firemen Die in Blast At Cleveland

CLEVELAND- (AP) — Exploding manganese dust killed four firemen and injured five others Thursday after an industrial fire at a metallurgical plant.

Chief Edward Thatcher said his men were trying to release molten metal from a hopper when the thing let go.

The dust, collected above the hopper, apparently was touched off by heat from a fire that had been put out, fire officials said, but the exact cause was unknown.

All workmen had evacuated the building after the first small fire, Thatcher said, but returned to make manganese pellets for steel companies and is located in a heavy industrial complex.

Plan Secluded Honeymoon After White House Reception

WASHINGTON (CP) — The daughter of the president of the United States and a boy from Illinois exchange marriage vows here Saturday and hope to have a secluded honeymoon after a White House reception.

The marriage of Luci Baines Johnson, 19, and Patrick Nugent, 20, of Waukegan, Ill., will culminate a romance that began in June, 1965. Some of the event is the Roman Catholic Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Luci, youngest child of U.S. President and Mrs. Johnson, and Patrick met through mutual friends at Marquette University in Milwaukee, where their first date was at his senior prom.

When Luci was baptized into the Roman Catholic Church—she was an Episcopalian (Anglican) before—Nugent was present and it was during this period that their relationship grew close.

Saturday's marriage and wedding reception follow a series of gatherings and parties this week during which the families of the bride and groom met the diplomatic corps of Washington.

The diplomatic corps presented Luci and Patrick with a gleaming six - piece silver tea service which cost $1,000.

It was the first time that all of the Nugents had gathered with the Johnsons since the after the engagement was announced last Christmas Eve.

After graduating from Marquette University, Patrick Nugent went to business and a job with the advisory council on higher education of the District of Columbia. Later he became associate director of a counseling firm which aims to help underprivileged colleges in applying for federal funds.

Luci said her honeymoon will last a week or 10 days. She is scheduled to be a bridesmaid at a Texas wedding only two weeks after her own marriage.

The couple then plan to attend the University of Texas, with Patrick enrolled for a master's degree in business administration, and Luci studying yet-undecided subjects.

At the wedding most of the nuptial mass, as well as the marriage rite itself, will be in English. Formerly the mass was celebrated in Latin but a recent decision stemming from the Vatican Council permits much of the Roman Catholic liturgy to be conducted in the vernacular. . . .

The three priests who will celebrate the mass are Arch. bishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington, Rev. John Rooks of Chicago, and Rev. William J. Kaiser, associate professor of theology at Georgetown University.

President Johnson's wedding gift to Luci was a "substantial" savings bond.

It has been reported that President and Mrs. Johnson have earmarked the Texas ranch, one of the Texas properties they own near their Johnson City, Tex., home, for the young couple. But the word from the White House was that it won't be turned over to them just yet.

Loneliest Men in Viet Nam On International Commission

SAIGON (Reuters) — U.S. bombing of the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Viet Nam has focused attention on "the loneliest men in Viet Nam"—members of the International Control Commission.

The commission was set up in 1954 under the Geneva agreements which ended the 7½-year French Indo-China war and partitioned Viet Nam. India was appointed chairman with Canada and Poland the other two members.

The 1,000 - military command here said the air-mile-wide buffer zone was bombed only after positive reports were received of North Vietnamese infiltration into the south through the territorial territory.

The commission has said it is unable to verify these charges because of lack of facilities.

About 300 men are attached to the commission with Indians, many of whom are serving administrative and communications staff, accounting for more than half the total.

Unlike the International peacekeeping forces on the Gaza Strip on the borders of Israel and in Cyprus, the commission has no military role. In cases of violations, it can do little but issue reports.

The commission has attempted to ensure that the provisions of the Geneva accords are observed, but its task is complicated by the fact that South Viet Nam and the United States did not sign the agreement.

The Geneva agreement established several control points both in the north and the south to prevent military equipment being imported and the commission was to be informed well in advance of any replacement of men and supplies brought into the country.

But, observers say, this provision has largely become a dead letter, with the extensive military buildup in the north and south and the constant air bombardment of the north.

The commission teams are in the following points in South Viet Nam, but the North Vietnam government has a last year ordered the teams evacuated from all points except Hanoi as the bombing raids increased in intensity.

The Geneva agreements provide for the respective governments to guarantee the security of the teams making on-the-spot investigations of alleged violations, but both governments

Industry Appears Victor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A united steel industry appeared to have emerged the victor today in a war of nerves to raise prices on some of its products in the face of pressure by the U.S. government to hold the line.

The 52- and 26-a-ton increases in the price of steel sheet and strip—the kind used in automobiles and other consumer goods —were called moderate and inconsequential by the industry but denounced by the Johnson administration as irresponsible and inflationary.

Through Thursday night, however, 11 companies had announced their individual effective next Wednesday on about 20 per cent of their output.

After the White House reports Johnson definitely has decided to let the steel price increases stand. The final word on the second major economic defeat for the Johnson administration within a week.

MACHINISTS BACKED

Only last weekend, striking machinists' machinists overwhelmingly rejected a contract agreement worked out under White House auspices which called for a six-to-seven-per-cent increase in wages and other benefits, well beyond the administration's 3.2-per-cent wage - price guidelines. Those same guidelines call for relative price stability.

Johnson withheld direct comment on the steel price increases which snowballed Thursday with announcements by eight companies. Three others had announced increases earlier, beginning with Inland Steel Tuesday night.

Bill D. Moyers, White House press secretary, said the president felt the public interest was violated by the price decisions. He said it is the president's view that the effect of the price increases will be visible immediately but will show up later.

Moyers declined to say what further action, if any might be taken.

The industry cited increased labor and material costs as factors in the decision to boost prices.

The three largest producers — U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic — announced increases Thursday.

Higher Prices for Fruits, Canned Goods Result From Lack of Rainfall in July

Higher prices for fruits and canned goods were the result of the lack of rainfall during the month of July, according to canning industry spokesmen.

Drought in Eastern Ontario has cut the green pea crop to 40 per cent of normal, according to James Hepburn, general manager of Waupoos Canning Company near Picton.

Pea harvesting was completed in late July with production in the Prince Edward county area only about 960 pounds per acre as compared with the yearly average of about 2,400 pounds per acre.

Meanwhile the price of some fruits and vegetables are unusually high for this time of year.

CROPS SEARCELY REPRODUCE

Lack of rain sharply reduced the raspberry crop with result that some fruits this year were exceptionally high. Red raspberries during the season sold at 75 cents per quart and blue raspberries at 70 cents.

Huckleberries are now beginning to appear on the market and are being quoted at 75 cents per quart.

Sour cherries this year are up 15 to 20 cents per basket while lettuce, celery and other vegetables are being quoted at higher prices due to dry weather conditions.

Canning industry spokesmen say that canned tomatoes, cherries, strawberries, peas, cherry pie filling and some jams and jellies will rise in price because of increased payments made to farmers.

SOUR CHERRIES SHOT

The sour cherry crop this year is said to be the smallest in ten years with farmers in the Niagara district being paid $250 per ton, up 73 per cent from the $150 paid last year.

The price paid for black sweet cherries have risen to $340 per ton from $310.

A late frost severely damaged the blossoms is blamed mainly for the reduced crop of cherries, according to one Prince Edward county orchardist.

The Bay of Quinte area this year has had one inch of rain in July on record with only 1.56 inch of rain received during the month. Total precipitation was 3.21 inches received in July 1965. The average July rainfall in this area in the past 44 years has been 2.52 inches.

In 1964 however, only 1.80 inch of rain was received.

The dry weather is seriously hampering the second crop of hay and is also having an effect on the ripening of spring and fall grain crops.

Pastures too are drying up with cattle in some instances already receiving supplementary feeding.

Construction Roundup

Wilson Concrete of Belleville have been awarded a sub-contract to supply precast columns, beams, slabs, and panels for the new $1.7 million addition to the Napanee District High School. The project is now at the drawing board stage and it will likely be a month or more before actual plant production on the contract is underway.

Another Wilson project is a contract for supplying some 20,000 square feet of precast floor and roof members for the new Senior Citizens Housing Unit in Belleville. General contractor for this construction work is Maurice Bellina of Belleville.

Two large playground areas at the east side of Nicholson Catholic College and St. Michael's Academy have been improved during the past several weeks. Lightfoot Construction and Hastings Asphalt Ltd., of Belleville have been grading and paving the two playgrounds, as well as installing drainage facilities. When work is completed, it is expected that three tennis courts will be laid out on the asphalt surface.

Harry Carr - Brant and Sons Construction are currently working on a small bridge near Codrington and also have a contract for an addition to Bath Separate School.

The structure of the new addition to Belleville General Hospital comprises, for the most part, a reinforced concrete frame with the basement concrete slab of Block "B" have been poured to date.

Housing starts in Canadian urban centres of 5,000 people or more to the end of April this year were down 27 per cent below the comparable four-month period in 1965. The drop in apartment dwelling starts was more than 36 percent. The housing industry is also accounted for about $2.3 billion of Canada's Gross National Product of $32 billion.

The program, running from Aug. 2 to Aug. 26, will include instruction in swimming, diving, gymnastics, trampoline, track and field, softball, soccer and golf. All sessions will be held in the morning, and it is probable that Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings will be full morning programs, with swimming and diving only on Tuesday and Thursday.

Boys should register immediately at the Y.M.C.A. office, 433 Victoria Ave., phone 962-9245.

Lawrence Larry Claus, 17, of R.R. 2, Belleville, was fined $25 and costs in court this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of failing to report an accident.

Police said that Claus had been proceeding west on Dundas St. E. April 23 at 9.36 p.m., driving a neighbor's car, when he turned over in the north side of the road, over the curb and struck a street name sign at Dundas St., knocking the sign off at ground level.

Claus left the scene without reporting the accident, but car was spotted later that night on Highway 2 and he was questioned by police. He had backed the car left with him at the time and gave his brother's name to the police when he left the car.

However, further investigation by city police showed he had been the driver and not his brother.

Damage to the car in the accident was $200, and to the street name sign $25.

Claus is currently on leave from the navy in Halifax.

North Front Street Work Is Now in Final Phases

After weeks of traffic and sodding of boulevards and business disruption with flagmen and one way traffic being the order of the day, paving on North Front got under way the city's "motor row" has now been completed, with only cleanup work remaining to be done.

Paving operations were completed a week or so ago and today Deputy Chief Engineer Richard Kraft said that all work up the public sidewalks were also finished.

Cleanup operations and paving of private driveway entrances are now underway while private lawn edging is still to be done.

Mr. Kraft said sodding would be postponed until September to take advantage of fall rains and that reduce grass "kill" because of dry weather.

New concrete sidewalks have been laid to Tracey street on the west side of the apartment Amodeo's on the east side.

North Front street businessmen agree generally that the new four lane roadway is "nice" but a few are still waiting for the private driveway entrances to be paved.

One auto dealer on the artery said today that he hoped the work would be completed soon.

Loyalist Days Start Monday

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's week-long Loyalist celebrations begin on Monday, with a big parade to open the events. The parade will leave the fair grounds at one o'clock.

Highlights include contest day including a contest to select a Centennial Queen for Hallowell and Prince Edward county, Ireland's day, including a street dance at Benson Park, on Wednesday, culminating in "Battle of the Bands" at the County Centre; and Rotary Day with carnival, variety show and dance in Picton Armouries on Saturday. The Rotarians are providing a prominent array of talent from Toronto for this Saturday event; dancing will also be held to Denny Sheehan's Band from Toronto.

Sold Meat To Firms In Belleville

TORONTO (Canadian Press) — Tiefenbach and Eli Neiger, partners in Abe's Kosher Meat Market in Toronto, fined $200 each Thursday for selling hamburger containing an illegal preservative.

Magistrate Norman Gisanelli was told that the meat was sold to a Belleville motel and bakery.

Magistrate Gisanelli was told the preservative, a sulphurous acid salt, "gives meat a fresh look—redness & up." It was not in itself injurious to health, but could hide something injurious.

Tiefenbach and Neiger were given a month to pay their fines or serve 30 days in jail.

have declined to shoulder this responsibility in recent years.

Charges and counter - charges thus go unchecked and take on a purely academic appearance at time goes on. The examination receives an average of one note daily from North Viet Nam protesting alleged violations of the Geneva agreements, but it is unable to verify them.

Apart from an incident in 1955 when Saigon-mobs attacked the hotel where communism members were staying, the commission has been remarkably well treated.

They almost suffered their first casualties last September when American fighter planes strafed the Ben Hai River bridge on the frontier between North and South Viet Nam as one of the teams was crossing it.

The team dived for cover just before the strafing, which the Americans said was accidental.

Both North and South Viet Nam tend to regard the commission with some embarrassment, but neither party apparently wants the commission to wind up its affairs.

Should they finally come to the conference table, the services of this impartial group could well hasten a peace settlement.

Widow of CO of Guards Presents Ceremonial Sword

PICTON (STAFF) — An informal but nevertheless impressive event occurred at Camp Picton on Thursday afternoon when Mrs. Mulherin, wife of the late Lt. Col. H. W. Mulherin presented to the Commanding Officer of the First Canadian Guards, Lt. Col. J. G. W. Haynes, a sword in memory of her husband. Speaking in the Officers' Mess to a large gathering of officers, senior NCO's and associate members, Mrs. Mulherin thanked those present for the wonderful memories accrued during the years they were connected with the Battalion. Most of her married life, she said, had been spent as a wife of the Commanding Officer of the Guards. She said her husband, during the time he was with the Battalion, lived by certain principles that of loyalty, integrity, courage and one probably more important to him, charity.

Lt. Col. Mulherin was Commanding Officer of the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards from 1961, to 1965. He died suddenly while touring overseas.

The memorial sword, presented to Lt. Col. Haynes, was in turn passed to the Drum Major of the Battalion, Richard Cook of Simcoe, Ont. The sword, inscribed on the hilt, will be passed down to succeeding Drum Majors with the Battalion.

Directional Signs Will Show Fairgoers Way to Grounds

Commencing next Saturday, August 13, all roads in the Bay of Quinte district will lead to Belleville Fair.

And fair-goers will have no trouble finding the grounds by the most direct route and with the least inconvenience from crowded traffic.

No matter from what direction fairgoers come there will be signs leading to the fair grounds by the most direct route and circumventing downtown traffic.

Fair secretary Everett Gowsell says that directional signs leading to the fairgrounds will start five miles outside the city on all highway routes and other main arteries.

ENTRANCE GETS MOVED

At the fairgrounds arrangements are being made to redirected traffic to avoid the confusion of two-way traffic at the entrance gates.

This year the entrance gates on the south side of the grounds opposite the grandstand have been moved further west leading directly into the parking area west of the curling rink.

To avoid confusion outside the fair gates plans are being considered for parking restrictions on the Yeomans and West Bridge street areas.

There will still be ample off-street parking, however, with Fair President Dr. Harry Burns and his directors having made arrangements for use of a 20-acre field immediately west of the Coca Cola plant and across Bridge Street from the fairgrounds.

Parking space will have parking accommodation for between three and four thousand autos. Additional exits from the parking grounds will be provided to speed away following fair performances.

besides Inland which also announced increases through Thursday night were Amco, Ivers, Canada Steel and Tube and Interlake.

Bethlehem said the increases were made to meet the material for a clothes dryer by 27 cents, a room air conditioner by 30 cents and steel by three-tenths of a cent and an automobile by $3.87.

Auto manufacturers had no official comment on the price hikes, but unofficially car industry spokesmen indicated hope the steel increases could be absorbed along with increased labor costs and the higher costs of other materials.

Announcement of the increases spurred the stock market to another big gain Thursday, its second in two days. The Dow Jones industrial price boost spread and withstood the White House rebuke with steel company stocks leading the way.

Council Desires Tightening Control of Private Flyers

TRENTON—Trenton council meeting last night endorsed a resolution from the Town of Orillia calling for the Federal government to review the policies regulating flying.

The resolution was designed to assist authorities in curbing the increasing number of searches for missing aircraft. It emphasized the need for aircraft to be equipped with two-way radio, a homing device and flares and stressed the importance for insisting aircraft operators register a flight plan before making a flight.

Fine bones for the convenience of the driving public in the town's business district may be installed soon as a result of council's endorsation of the idea.

The suggestion was raised during discussion about diverting meter fines to the Parking Authority, a move which council decided required the opinion of the finance committee. Council backed the Parking Authority seeking an extension of the meter maids' duties in dealing with parking violators. Councillor Ross Bugg asked the Parking Authority to review its policy covering truck parking permits. In seeking equal parking assessment, Councillor Burtt noted that parking rates for private citizens had been raised but he was not aware of any increase in the truck operator's levy.

STUDY CABLE PLAN

Council on councillor D. R. Fraser's suggestion agreed further discussion was necessary before acting on the Public Utilities Commission's request that consideration be given the spending of $11,000 for underground cable installation at the approach to the new overhead bridge. The concensus was that the highway span would be made more attractive if the cable were buried and that maintenance cost of the cable would be minimal. The estimated rice of installing cable on poles on the bridge is $2,500.

The report on the activities of the Trenton firemen during July, read by protection of persons and property chairman Ed Todd, showed they had attended to 34 outbreaks. On five occasions they were summoned by the neighboring community of Ameliasburg township, and on three times by Murray township.

Councillor Paul Tripp said he intended to turn in a comprehensive report from the industrial and economic development committee, including information concerning improvements to the wharf and docks.

Council considered two applications for providing a cleaning service at the town hall. Garfield Stapley proposed to do the job for $3,200 a year and Alyea's Cleaning Service tender was for $280 a month. Both communications were referred to the recreation and community services committee.

ACCEPT TENDER

A tender of the H. J. McFarland Construction company in the amount of $4,882.50 for surface treating roads for the year was accepted. Subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, council authorized the mayor and clerk to sign a contract with Carr's Electric Limited of Trenton for installing parts A and C of the Front Street sanitary trunk sewer.

The contract in the amount of $60,062 covers installations on Front Street from Division Street to Bondhead Street.

Council approved third and final readings of by-laws authorizing the signing of an agreement with J. Zigman, relative to the erection of a service station approach to his new place of business on north Sidney Street; to dedicate a street allowance within the Community Centre area; to authorize conveyance of land to W. E. Preston.

lend the meeting but about 30 persons turned up.

The strikers, protesting the executive's slowness in reaching a contract agreement, have blocked all entrances to the plan, shutting out about 3,500 union office employees. About 400 maintenance men and supervisory staff are reported to have settled into the plant with bedding and a large supply of food.

No official spokesman for the strikers has yet come forward. Union leaders have bitterly criticized the strike which started Monday night, adding that a conciliation board in Toronto was hoping to have proposals for a new contract by Sunday.

Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, conciliation board chairman, said negotiations will be suspended until the employees return to work. Discussions over wage parity between United States and Canadian steelworkers have been going on for four months. The oil contract expired Monday.

The union is asking a 90-cent-an-hour increase over two years. The average basic wage for 30 separate job classifications is $2.74. The company has offered a 62-cent package over three years.

OPP Sergeant Says Men Show No Favor at Strike

MILLHAVEN, Ont. (CP) — Sgt. G. L. Langton of the Ontario Provincial Police said on Thursday his men show no favors in policing the picket line of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC) at the Millhaven Fibres Ltd. plant here.

James Bell, president of the striking local 9-670, said in a statement Wednesday the OPP are "favoring scabs and company officials" and provoking incidents on the picket line at the plant.

Mr. Bell also said the union was preferring charges against a plant official in Kingston because it had been unable to lay the charges in the Napanee district.

Sgt. Langton said he had not seen the union officer's statement.

He said: "Our officers are there to see that the peace is kept. We show no favors. It is our policy in treat management and union alike and we will take action against either side if the law is broken."

The plant, a subsidiary of Canadian Industries Ltd. which manufactures ammonia and a synthetic fibre, has remained in operation since the union went on strike July 12.

There have been no negotiations since the strike began. The union sought a wage increase of 45 cents an hour; the company's latest offer was between 27 and 35 cents in a two-year contract. Base pay at the plant now is between $1.96 and $2.60. Millhaven is 30 miles west of Kingston.

Cannot Keep Wild Life In Captivity

TRENTON — Those people who commune with nature and feel they are doing wildlife a favor by "rescuing" fowl and animals from what appears to be a dangerous predicament could be doing the birds and beasts of the woods a disservice and wind up paying a stiff fine for breaking the law in the bargain.

A Lands and Forests officer at Tweed explained yesterday his department had sent out notices warning people against picking up birds and animals that seemed to have strayed and become lost. "Often the mother will reject her offspring after it has been handled by humans", he said. Without the protection of the parent...it is at the mercy of predators or dies of starvation, he pointed out. It is illegal to keep wildlife in captivity and violators are subject in court action if they are caught by a law enforcement officer.

CANAL TRAFFIC UP

To date marine traffic on both the Murray and Trent canal systems has shown a appreciable increase over last year. The tally at No. 1 lock on the Trent Waterways stands at 2520 over 1200 more than in 1959 for the same period. In the same period swings at the 33 Highway bridge number 1287 some 200 ahead of last year's total recorded at the end of July. According to a Murray canal bridge tender more sailing craft have been noticed on the Inland route this season.

Doubts About Medicare

Reservations expressed in provincial government circles at the time the federal government first aired its Medicare proposals months ago clearly are no nearer to being resolved as a result of the provincial premiers' meeting in Toronto.

The federal body's proposals were attacked once again on the grounds of cost (some $170 to individual Canadians) and Ottawa's failure to consult the provinces before announcing its intentions.

To say the provincial leaders are lukewarm about the whole business is putting it mildly. Only Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan supports Medicare without reservations. The prairie province of course long since pioneered such a plan, so that Mr .Thatcher is able to say with truth that the province has nothing to lose if the measures are implemented.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick believes the plan will go through, but only after revisions are made. But time is passing and Ottawa's deadline for implementation of Medicare is July 1, 1967. Between now and then a much greater degree of accord will be necessary between the governments if the plan is to be accepted.

Ontario Premier Robarts remains as vague as ever on the plan. He says his government is prepared to make changes in medical care insurance legislation to meet federal requirements, but not necessarily as they stand now.

All this suggests that Ottawa may be trying to push through a plan which nobody wants as constituted at present. And the feeling among the premiers seems to be that the federal government has adopted a take-it-or-leave-it attitude which makes negotiations on the subject difficult.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, for example, describes the federal proposals as "unnecessarily rigid," and says the provinces have tried to "budge them (Ottawa) but without success."

Obviously further talks are necessary on Medicare. Thus the suggestion of several premiers for a federal-provincial conference to discuss the medical insurance plan has merit. As things stand at present there is too little confidence in the plan, and in Ottawa's handling of it to justify its implementation.

Texas Terror

The father of multiple-killer Charles Joseph Whitman expressed public reaction to the slayings as effectively as any. "My son," he said, "has committed a crime, that is a great horror to the whole world."

Many explanations have been offered for the 25-year-old university student's murder rampage — that it took very little to provoke him to feelings of hostility, that he hated his father, had been severely harried by his engineering studies and, according to a note he left, felt pressures building up that included an urge to kill. Not the least of Whitman's problems, as shown by an autopsy, is the fact he had a small brain tumor.

What else could lie behind such a terrifying day under the hot Texas sun — the kind of day President Kennedy was killed in Dallas in 1963? The United States unfortunately has a history of violence permeating every strata of its complex society. The material advances that have made it the most progressive and wealthy country on earth also contain the seeds of mental and spiritual breakdown. In the United States it is truly a case of the survival of the fittest.

Although this was by far the worst, sudden inexplicable happenings like Whitman's rampage in Austin have occurred before. The most recent was the slaying of eight young nurses by a man who broke into their Chicago hospital residence.

Such events have been known to set in motion dark forces in the minds of others of uncertain mental stability. As Dr. Frederick Wertham of New York, put it: "Murder is contagious — just like measles." An authority on criminal violence, he said the Texas shootings were "definitely connected" with last month's mass murder in Chicago.

Not only should the kind of society that is the United States has much to do with it. Dr. Wertham placed part of the blame on the "violent era we live in" and the "complacent attitude of our society towards violence of all kinds."

In contemplating such events Canadians have no reason to feel smug. Violent deeds have left their mark on the face of our society too, but nothing of the kind witnessed in Austin. And if there is any moral in this it is that Canada still is a gentler, infinitely more relaxed country, than our giant neighbor.

"Now, go out there and mingle with the heavy spenders!"

Letter to the Editor

Nemesis at the Outlet

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Picture a young married working couple with their three little children on a recent, very hot Afternoon at the Outlet Beach on a weekday.

They sit quietly, minding their own business, watching their children play and look forward to their modest picnic supper.

They are stone cold sober.

Unknown to them, they have a modest time bomb snuggled up against the ice in their food-chest in the shape of two pints of beer.

They don't have a dozen beer — they are not a rowdy, noisy, shouting, yelling and dancing the frug — they are not driving conventional up and down the sand — they are not making the air hideous or annoying anybody. They are just quiet, respectable citizens watching their children, cooling off after a hard week's work.

They have only one pint of beer for each of them! These dastardly criminals have broken the Liquor Control Act and they are guilty of a criminal offence for having a cold beer each on the beach, although they could have had half a dozen at their home.

As they sit there, their acute sense of hostile fault is magnified by the boots of a posse of Provincial policemen who storm down upon them. They produce their two pints of beer. The police don't believe them and ransack all their possessions. The police depart triumphantly with the horrible evidence of delirious of our moribund archaic state — two pints of beer!

A short distance down the beach in the camping area as distinct from the picnicking area, campers may sit in their tent-like structures outside their tents and drink beer until their hearts are content.

Any lunatic can see the sense in this law.

American tourists on the beach are subjected to the same unominious treatment and many on that beach that day will never return as tourists to this country.

Subsequently, our couple receive the notice in mail a summons telling them that they have been charged with the offence of having possession of liquor in a place other than a licensed premises. They are requested to pay a fine of $25 to expiate their terrible criminal conduct.

The minimum fine under this Section is $10.00!

Now, let your mind turn to a different scene in Sudbury, where a gang of over-zealous, armed with lead pipes, rocks and clubs on an illegal strike against the wishes of their own union, cast up roadblocks of large boulders across the street and terrify both office staff and any other workers and execute from entering or leaving one of Canada's best run mines, the production of which has done a great deal to establish prosperity in our country.

Whatever grievances they may have (I do not even recognize) by their own union as sufficient to justify a strike, the Concise Oxford Dictionary is a "concerted refusal to work by employees until certain grievances is remedied."

The essence of a strike is the simultaneous departure of a large group of the workers, thereby presumably paralyzing an industrial plant, that is by the simultaneous withdrawal of their labor.

A strike is not a form of medieval siege in which the striking labor force is permitted by law to set up roadblocks and barricades by terror, prevent people from walking on streets and going into buildings and otherwise carrying on their lawful occupations!

I feel I have to make this clear, in view of some labor union statements in the last several months, to the contrary.

To come back to my terrible criminals on the beach with their two pints of beer and the other side of the coin presented by this unfortunate situation. At the request of the Mayor of Sudbury, the Provincial Police send 30 constables to the scene.

Did they come at the head of the lead pipes or the sticks and stones? Did they disperse this crowd of ruffians who were preventing people from doing what they were entitled to do?

No, they simply did nothing.

This is in part a tale of two cities.

This is in part a contrast in the manner of treatment by government of large scale wielding organized segments of society as compared with law enforcement treats you, Mr. Individual Citizen.

Frankly it is a disgrace that this law is still on the books, but it is even more of a disgrace for the law officers of the Crown and the Government at Toronto to enforce such a law.

Our only hope is that they may have been doing this with a view to stirring up the public to the abolition of legislation representing the spleen and venom of a bygone era, and organized with a religion in which any alcohol was the sinful.

A cold pint of beer — just one pint of beer out on the beach — should not even to put into that category.

Canadian individual citizens are not from their more organized groups such as militant tractor-driving farmers, and a wide variety of organized labor's groups, are sheep for the plucking of the politician. We protest the Canadian Citizen's apathetic bunch of sheep-citizens, perhaps found for the long history of organized mankind.

But hark! Perhaps we can feel the faint chill breath stirring of a different sentiment. Elections in Ontario, Quebec, Prince Edward, Manitoba and other places producing as they did bare majority governments may be the first chill breath of the resentment of the public fatally to over-government, over-taxation, pap pusillanimity and the production of proper government to the nattering of little men.

One of these days the little men will be swept out with the big broom of public indignation.

Sacrifice

The Regina Leader-Post

While the average size of Saskatchewan's farms is now in about 640 acres, there are many smaller farmers with less acreage.

Every one of these men is better off financially by working in a factory.

However, they prefer the independence of being a tiller of the soil, and they are prepared to make a financial sacrifice to remain on the farm.

Small Town Police Work

Ottawa Journal

The problems of the small-town policeman are nothing new. The generally low pay, long hours and frequently odd jobs nature of the work have meant a high turnover in such policemen.

But better salaries and working conditions, needed as they are in many villages, would not remove the pressure a policeman in a small community faces working among people he knows well or comes to know well.

Ontario should be grateful that there are so many small-community policemen who perform their trying duties with honor, tact and ability. They are the answer to the over-simplified argument that the provincial police had best take over law enforcement in every small community.

Turning village protection entirely over to provincial policemen with responsibility for a wide area is not the best solution. The good village policeman with a thorough knowledge of his own community offers a form of protection that provincial policemen can not give. And the local man's knowledge can be of great help to outside police agencies called in on major cases.

Life would be easier for small-town "lawmen" — and big-town too, for that matter — if more citizens could remember that the best policeman is one who knows that his neighbors will support him in his duty.

Former Republican president Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for the progressive party by the first of the United States' three Progressive parties 42 years ago today—in 1912—after a revolt within the Republican party in opposition to President William Howard Taft.

Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy split the Republican vote so badly that although it totalled more than 4,000,000 votes more than the Democrat vote, the Democrat Woodrow Wilson won by a majority of 2,000,000 votes but eight states. Although Republican harmony was restored by 1916, Wilson remained in office through the First World War. Later Progressive parties nominated Robert La Follette for president in 1924 and Henry Wallace in 1948, both with equal lack of success.

Continual Exhaustion Cure Is to Have Fun

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 34 and the mother of five children. Exhaustion walks with me from morning till night. All I want to do is sleep but even that doesn't dispel the fatigue.

It is getting increasingly difficult for me to clean the house, or even make decisions. I yell at the children constantly and feel close to tears over nothing.

A complete physical examination shows nothing wrong, so no one seems to understand my feelings. Even tranquilizers only make me more tired and depressed. I wish I could lie down and sleep forever. What's wrong with me? — Q.

It sounds to me like what an astute physician labeled the "tired housewife syndrome" it is sending low, and it's not limited to housewives.

I doubt very much whether anyone, male or female, ever went through life without having at least one hard attack of it.

Medically there are things to look for: low blood sugar, faulty nutrition, anemia, a glandular infection, underactive thyroid or adrenal gland. But after a thorough checkup shows nothing calculated to make you so tired, then what?

Can we fairly describe your problem as simply that the fun has gone out of life?

A lot of us let it happen to ourselves, and it can cause more misery than many real physical ailments.

How old is the adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy?" Well, all work and no fun makes Jill a tired girl who yells at the children, and why rest doesn't stop her from being tired, and wishes she could "lie down and sleep forever."

How long since you've hired someone to come in and take care of the kids for an afternoon so you could go to a movie or go shopping or do whatever you feel like doing?

How long since you and your husband have managed to go on a vacation trip, even for a few days, without the children? Certainly you love 'em, but even a short separation makes them suddenly much more lovable. (I have some children; I know.)

Nearly all of us can do two or three times more work without exhaustion, provided we allow some time for recreation, and do some things we really want to do.

Nobody denies that a man needs a vacation from his job. Well, a woman also needs an occasional vacation from hers.

A little dose of sheer fun, even in moderation, can be one of the most important medicines known. It can do things no drug can accomplish. Try it, and let me know.

Dear Dr. Molner: My baby, three months old, has a protruding navel. My sister recommended taping an inverted bottle cap over it, but others say no. — Mrs. M.A.

Most baby's protruding navel returns to normal by itself, but there is no harm in taping it firmly to speed the process. Rather than a bottle cap, I prefer a flat object such as a coin (say a half dollar). To prevent irritation, first paint the skin where the tape will be attached with tincture of benzoin. Let it dry before applying the tape. Change every three or four days. If the skin becomes irritated, change the angle of the tape so it is attached at a different place.

Note to Mrs. J. S.: The rays don't "return" after a series of cobalt treatments, but it is a potent form of therapy, and some after effects are usual. Report this to your doctor, but you will unquestionably have to allow time for healing.

Strictly Personal

City Time and Rural Time

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What we call "the ease of time" is not only different for town and for country, for adult and for children, for the Occident and for the Orient — it is also vastly different for the urban and the rural regions. Unless you understand this, you will never get along in the country.

In his new book, "The Psychology of Time," Prof. Paul Fraisse of the Sorbonne points out that the proportion of people who wear a watch in any town increases as its population grows. Fewer farmers wear watches than townspeople, and fewer townspeople than city folk.

The rural rhythm is one of seasons more than of days or weeks. Crops grow slowly; nature moves with grave deliberation; and the closer a nature a man is, the more he tends to resist and resent socially imposed time.

When the man at the store says he hopes to get in a certain product in "a few days," what he really means is a few weeks, if at all the season. And the mechanic may promise to have your car repaired by tomorrow—and mean it — but his promise is qualified by many factors unexpressed to you.

He means if the part he telephoned for shows up in time; if he isn't too busy with previous promises tomorrow; if his assistant doesn't go fishing; if he hasn't to help someone who has it, and aren't just pressuring him because you're a high tension type. Any worker in Ontario who wants everything done for him is snap-finger time.

Now part of this leisurely attitude, I am sure, springs from the rurality's long-standing hostility to the urban dweller in his midst. But a lot of it is simply not wearing the same kind of watch, and the city watches have been the same around here out like time, and nothing much is going to change it a new faucet is put in on Monday or Friday.

"I'll do it when I get around to it" is the unspoken (and perhaps unthought) creed of the countryman. And he generally sees around to it depends upon (a) what else he can do (b) what he weather is like (c) whatever else is competing for his attention at the time, and he knows you and how long you've lived here.

The same space, in intensely parochial in rural areas. I once asked a caretaker's wife if she originally came from the area about. "Oh, no," she answered, "I'm from Microcepik also." Microcepik is about eight miles down the road.

That's quite a ways off, almost in another county; and so to-morrow quite a ways off, generally if you're a stranger and the electric window on the car won't go up and it's rain in pitchfork. It may be hell on the upholstery friend, but it's great for the crops.

Urban Growth Gobbles Land

Windsor Star

Urban expansion is continuing to engulf large sections of land across Southern Ontario and unless steps are taken to preserve areas for recreation and conservation, future generations will find themselves living in brick and concrete jungles.

This is the government's warning to Ontario talk about conservation. It is becoming more and more evident that they are not doing their job. Urban growth is no longer confined to the major cities; it can be found in every town, village or hamlet in the province.

The provincial government, along with the local municipal officials, should sit down and take a good hard look at the situation. There are natural areas which should be preserved for future park and recreation use, but which today are being lost to urban development.

The time has arrived for our government to study the situation. The streams, valleys and ponds now open for development by private and municipal corporation purposes should be protected, in years to come they will provide a haven for the urban resident, if they are not protected and developed, artificial facilities will fill the demand, but at much greater cost.

States Beatle Lennon Not Irreverent, But Deplored Christianity's Weakness

LONDON (AP) — Maureen Cleave, whose interview with John Lennon set off a wave of Beatle banning in the United States, said today that Lennon actually deplores the fact that some people know The Beatles better than they know Christ.

"I do not think for moment that he intended to be flippant or irreverent," said Miss Cleave. "He was certainly not comparing The Beatles with Christ.

"He was simply observing that so weak was the state of Christianity that The Beatles were, to many people, better known. He was deploring rather than approving this.

"Scenes of the American public's reaction to Lennon have given an impression of his views that is totally absurd."

Remarks by Lennon about Christianity, quoted by Miss Cleave in an interview that was reprinted in an American magazine this week, aroused a storm in some U.S. radio stations, particularly in the southern Bible belt. A number of stations banned the quartet's records and urged listeners to join the boycott.

At least one Canadian station has joined the boycott.

Miss Cleave's interview with Lennon was first published in the London Evening Standard in March.

She quoted Lennon as saying: "Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that. I'm right and I will be proved right.

MORE POPULAR

"We're more popular than Jesus now. I don't know which will go first—rock 'n' roll or Christianity. Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary. I'm telling the truth, it's bad for me."

That was all the 1,600-word article had to say about religion. In a telephone interview today Miss Cleave commented: "I am astonished that John's quotation should have been taken out of the context of my article and misinterpreted in this way."

Of the four mop-headed musicians, only Paul McCartney has commented, saying, "people should not take all our interviews seriously."

Their manager, Brian Epstein, left a sickbed Thursday to fly to the United States to assess the situation. Arriving in New York Thursday night, Epstein said he thought it unlikely that The Beatles North American tour scheduled for later this month will be cancelled because of the protests.

The Beatles are scheduled to appear in Toronto Aug. 17.

CHUM, the only Toronto radio station to feature Beatle music and a co-sponsor of The Beatles' Toronto appearance, said it plans no ban on The Beatles.

CHOV in Pembroke, Ont., has banned the British group's records. Manager Bill Kay said the statement attributed to Lennon was in extremely bad taste.

Impairment Brings Fine, Loss of Licence

Richard Allan Harvey of Toronto was fined $50, and costs for impaired driving and $10, and costs for having liquor in a place other than his home after he pleaded guilty to both charges before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today. His driver's licence was also suspended for three months.

Police said they were called to the rear of a hotel July 30 at 2:45 p.m. and found Harvey in his car slumped towards the passenger side, sleeping with the car keys in his hand. The ignition was still turned on.

A witness told police that he saw Halfriffey drive in, scrape then ide of the building, then back into another car. There was no property damage however.

Police said Harvey was unsteady on his feet and he had a strong smell of alcohol on his breath. There was also a quantity of beer round in his car.

He was given two weeks to pay his fines.

Prices of hundreds of grocery items have been increased by wholesalers confronted by higher taxation and by higher prices of imports. More than one-half of Britain's food is imported.

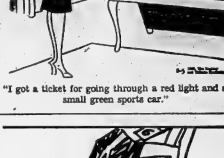
Frank Cousins Quits Wage Freeze Study

LONDON (Reuters) — A former Labor cabinet minister walked out of a parliamentary committee today after stormy all-night debate on the government's controversial prices and wages freeze.



As he quit the meeting, Frank Cousins, labor union leader who recently resigned as minister for technology because of the freeze, said he will boycott further sessions.

He left after heated dispute with Deputy Prime Minister George Brown, who suggested Cousins was siding with the Conservative Opposition.

Cousins protested against powers the government is seeking to enforce a wages standstill. He voted Thursday against a clause in the prices and incomes bill providing for £200 ($1,200) fines for breach of a year-long prices and incomes freeze. The clause was approved by a 13 to 11 vote. Another Labor member of the committee abstained.

The 25 committee members are preparing the bill so it can be rushed through Parliament before the summer recess.

that's how a gin should be!

That's how White Satin is. Still made to Sir Robert Burnett's original 1770 London Dry formula; still exactly as dry and satin-smooth today as it ever was. After all, when great taste can keep a gin famous for generations on both sides of the ocean—we wouldn't dream of changing it. What we have done, though, is change the White Satin bottle. New Fashion Collection Was Full of Surprises

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Yves St. Laurent's new fashion collection shown today was as full of surprises as Pandora's box. It ranged from the kooky modern art designs inspired by Salvador Dali to the romantic peasant clothes of the 19th century.

Yves called this his anniversary collection as it is the 19th one since he founded his own house after leaving Christian Dior.

The three dominant themes in the new collection were the art dresses, the military trend in daywear which replaced last season's nautical fashions and the tender heroines of 19th-century literature that set the trend in formal fashion.

DRESSED WORE FACES

The hookiest clothes were the wool jersey sheath and chemises with Dali - inspired appliques faced on to the entire front of the dress.

A woman's face seen in profile divided a dress into two vertical sections from one shoulder to the hemline. The profile was complete with a black-and-white eye and red lips.

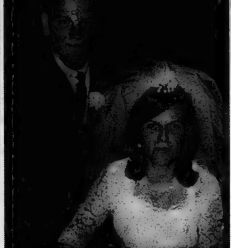
He repeated the same idea on a small - length evening gown with a life-sized profile of a body slanted from shoulder to hemline with the bosom and hips corresponding to the model's own proportions.

Another evening dress had a giant-size pair of red lips which were padded out in relief effects which covered the bosom like a brassiere.

St. Laurent always features an unembodied style bridal gown but the latest bride is literally "all lit up" before the wedding.

She wore a full tent-shaped white velvet gown with green bell hem and leaves trailing down the front beneath a giant porcelain easter lily which flashes on and off like a neon light.

The model carried the flower in her arms like a traditional bouquet and operated the battery which flashes the lights.



NOW ITS WAVES

The cubist style of Mondrian was replaced by wavy undulating sections of contrasting colors which were slanted obliquely across the body.

Wool jersey shifts were divided into three or four diagonal sections, outlined in these slanting wavy lines.

St. Laurent's skirts were among the shortest in Paris. They were three and four inches above the knee with coats which also cleared the tops of the knee.

Models were fancy-patterned stockings in dark-toned fishnet or lace designs and gold or silver lame hosiery with floral fashions.

MR. AND MRS. DUANE C. DYCK

Dyck — Platt

Frankford United Church was the scene of the wedding on July 30, 1966, at 2:00 p.m. of Brenda Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Platt, R. R. 2, Frankford and Duane Cameron Dyck, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Dyck of Unity, Saskatchewan. Rev. C. Dugan was the officiating clergyman and Mrs. E. Sykes played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white full-length gown with Alencon lace bodice and lily point sleeves. The neckline was edged with the same lace, which continued down the full skirt to form an apron effect and around the hemline of the skirt's chapel-length train. Her three-tier scalloped silk illusion shoulder-length veil was held with small rosettes sprinkled with seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ray Spence, sister of the bride, and her bridesmaid, Miss Lesley Hockey, were dressed alike in powder blue nylon over taffeta gowns with three-quarter length sleeves and rosettes trailing down the backs.

Gary Dyck, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and the ushers were Myron Dyck, brother of the bridegroom, and David Ing.

At the reception at Rose Lawyn Hall the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a Capri blue crepe dress with Chantilly lace sleeves and a corsage of white 'mums. To assist, the bridegroom's mother wore a mauve two-piece dress of linen and a corsage of white 'mums.

For her wedding trip to Niagara Falls the bride donned a navy chevarette suit.

On their return the couple will live at 96 Catherine Street, Belleville.

August Birthstones Not Particularly Precious and Never Especially Popular

By MARGARET NESS

TORONTO (CP) — August's birthstones, green peridot or red-brown sardonyx, are not particularly precious but fit has distinguished daughters: Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother (born Aug. 4) and Princess Margaret (Aug. 21.)

The peridot (pronounced pair-a-doe) has never been especially popular. Often called the evening emerald, it is not expensive and so was not, like the real emerald, coveted by queens and noble ladies. It was collected by church officials in early times, however, and may have fallen out of favor with everyone. In fact, today few women ask for or even recognize peridots.

This is largely due to the fact that not too many jewellers carry true peridots. Synthetic ones are usually a wishy-washy green, almost white. But the best peridots, which come from an island in the Red Sea, are a lovely olive color and worth consideration by any woman, August-born or not. A peridot will look well in rings and stones in New Mexico and Arizona. And some lighter shades are found in Australia.

Peridot rings can be most interesting, for the cutting brings out different patterns and varying degrees of transparency. A square-cut peridot, for example, throws off broad flashes. Peridot rings average between $30 and $50, depending on the size of the stone. One ring with a 12-carat stone set with small pearls was priced by Henry Birks at $950.

LOST IN LOVE

Both the peridot and the sardonyx are supposed to bring happiness in love if worn by the August-born, but the historical record is not good.

It is not known whether Madame du Barry, born in August, 1746, owned any of her birthstones. She married a count who groomed her to be the king of France's official mistress, but the revolution came and she died on the guillotine, aged 47. Empress Josephine had a handsome necklace of 12 sardonyx engraved with classical subjects, but they did not protect her from divorces by Napoleon.

A sardonyx ring did not save Lord Exeter of England. Given him by Queen Elizabeth, he is supposed to have thrown it out of his cell window, when imprisoned in the Tower of London, with an appeal for help. But he still lost his head.

The sardonyx is a mineral quartz, striped red-orange and white, which the Romans prized because it could be carved into cameos.

A famous cameo of 17 AD shows Emperor Tiberius, dressed as the god Jupiter, surrounded by his family and attended by his dead ancestors above and conquered peoples below—all on a five-layered sardonyx 12 inches by 10½.

The Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto has two sardonyx pieces dating back to Roman times, about the third century AD. Is a ring, the sardonyx is in the shape of a bracelet of openwork banding, the stone is set in an eight-pointed star effect.

The early European source in Germany for sardonyxes is almost depleted. Now the stones come from Brazil, Uruguay, Madagascar and India. While mostly layered in reddish-orange and white, they can be found in any color in an extremely beautiful or a seal ring for women. But mostly the sardonyx is worn by men, as a ring or cuff links.

It is not an expensive stone. The price depends mostly on the mounting. A good ring averages $25 to $75.

Both the peridot and the sardonyx are supposed to grant eloquence and persuasiveness to their wearers, as well as married happiness.

Successful Living

Mother's Unsanitary Food Habits Dangerous

DEAR DORIS: One mother I know keeps her fridge clean and healthy; she does not load it down with stale leftovers — the mother with the clean and healthy fridge has a happy family.

What do you think about a mother who forces her children to eat from a worm-infested fridge?

Doris, if you could write a letter to smarten this mother up, you deserve a gold medal on better living. If you could make her throw away some of the poison food in her unhealthy fridge perhaps you could save the life of one good boy. — JUST WONDERING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JUST: Worm-infested? How do any of us live long alive? Food poisoning comes of just such carelessness.

My home-economist consultant describes a "food offender" as:

"One who does not wash vegetables before storing in crisper; one who does not cover butter, meat, mayonnaise, cream, egg whites, fruit juices, in refrigerator."

And I add: One who stores away scraps and leftovers for days, sometimes weeks, eventually consigning them, not to the garbage where they belong, but to a melting pot to be set before her unwary and dearest.

For the sake of the positive approach, I'm sending you the leaflet "Refrigerator Housekeeping," which lists some good basic rules for handling and protecting fresh food. (Available to readers for ten cents and a stamped envelope.)

Could you unobtrusively drop it in the mail box of the careless (or careless) mother?

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION: Guess who asked the question this time? Me! A group of food editors was invited to the Canada Department of Agriculture Research Station at Harrow, Ontario. On the lawn under the trees about 30 parched travellers were served delicious ice cold lemonade. As one woman they asked for the recipe. Very shortly after I returned home I received a neatly typed copy and want to share it with our readers. This syrup keeps excellently in covered jars in the refrigerator.

ANSWER: (From Department of Agriculture Research Station at Harrow, Ont.)

Mother Marie Leonie May Be Second Canadian-Born Nun to Be Beatified

By Jonsued Jeerderhan

MONTREAL (CP) — Mother Maria Leonie, founder of the community of the Little Sisters of the Holy Family in 1880 at Memramcook, N.B., may soon become the second Canadian-born nun to be beatified by the Vatican.

Already beatified is Mother Marguerite d'Youville who founded the order of Grey Nuns.

Beatification, a step towards sainthood, carries with it the title of "blessed."

A person called "blessed" may be venerated publicly in a limited part of the Roman Catholic world—in this case probably North America.

Born Virginie Alodie Paradis on May 22, 1840, in the New Brunswick village of Ste. Marguerite de Blairfindie, Mother Leonie was throughout her life a paradoxical alliance of delicate health and indomitable faith.

Her father, Joseph Paradis, was a farmer and a miller.

Responding early to the call of her spiritual destiny, Virginie joined the Holy Cross Marianites when she was barely 14 to specialize in domestic service.

PUT HEALTH FIRST

The frail, consumptive girl, frequently subject to acute bronchitis and pulmonary hemorrhage, had decided to devote her life caring for the physical well-being of priests, too busy to eat and live properly.

If she had a motto it probably was: "A sound body for a sound soul."

So convinced was she of the need for good health that when in the 1800s diversification of duties of the Holy Cross sisters directed them towards teaching as well, Mother Leonie fought the change on grounds that education was worth nothing if the body was not properly nurtured.

The vow of poverty which nuns and priests make does not mean they should neglect their body," she said.

She won her case and in 1880, after a few years in Indiana, founded at Memramcook her own community aimed at providing domestics in the homes of the clergy and in seminaries.

In 1905, she accepted an invitation of Bishop Paul Laroque to open a novitiate at Sherbrooke, Que. She remained there until her death in 1912.

After her death, people began praying to her to ask for her intercession in heaven. Subsequently, the Vatican was asked to study the possibility of her being declared a saint. The church's lengthy investigation into all phases of her life began in 1934 and is still continuing.

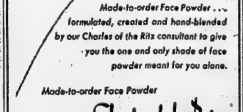
Among the things being investigated are reports of miraculous cures claimed by four persons who prayed to Mother Leonie.

In spite of her pious striving to serve religious orders which earned her the title Servant of God, Mother Leonie managed to find time for writing as well.

Her reflections, characterized by good humor and serenity, were assembled and compiled into 11 volumes totalling 6,000 pages by an apostolical tribunal in Sherbrooke and handed to the Vatican Congregation of Rites.

"Never talk about people," she advised, "for fear of causing them harm."

Intently supporting the beatification is Mother Leonie's Holy Family community which today counts more than 1,200 nuns in 77 houses in Canada, the U.S., Brazil, Italy and British Honduras.



Mother's Helper

A KEY to developing creative talents in your child is simply exposure. Have supplies around with which he can experiment: paints, clay, new plastics, musical instruments. Expose him to art shows, musical performances, and adult conversations among creative and interesting people. If you are interested and enjoy the artistry some of it will rub off on Junior. Not Only Sales Folk Lured Away by Phone

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why did you have to single out store clerks for leaving customers to take phone calls? We aren't the only ones who are guilty.

Yesterday it happened to me three times. I went to my dentist in the morning and while he was working on my teeth he cradled the phone between his shoulder and his ear and continued to drill while he carried on a long-winded conversation with his wife.

During lunch hour I went to my lawyer's office to sign papers. While I was there he took a phone call and motioned for me to sign on the bottom line. He never even said good-bye. He waved.

ANN LANDERS

At 3:00 p.m. my psychiatrist did me in the same way. He used up 20 of my 45 minutes talking to another patient. Twice he said, "You must sublimate." I asked, "Are you speaking to me?" He said, "No. I'm on the phone."

So please, Ann, don't give us sales people a black eye for rude behavior that is universal. — DOUBLE DUTY.

DEAR DUTY: I didn't single out sales people. The complaint came from a reader. I agreed, however, that it was outrageous for a clerk to leave a customer standing while he talked on the phone.

And now I'll agree with you. Your dentist was rude. Your lawyer was rude and your psychiatrist was rude. I could say more on this subject, Dearie, but my phone is ringing. So sublimate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell your readers what R.S.V.P. means? I gave a bridal shower this afternoon and only one third of the people I invited showed up. It was a humiliating experience.

I borrowed dishes, rearranged my living room furniture and baked three times as much dessert as was needed.

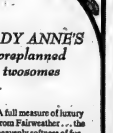
Tell the slobs in your reading audience that R.S.V.P. means the hostess is expecting them unless they call to say they will not attend. — LEFTOVERS.

DEAR LEFTOVERS: I'm afraid you don't know what R.S.V.P. means, so please listen.

R.S.V.P. is French, for, "Answer, if you please." This means the person should respond with either an acceptance or refusal. The hostess should not prepare for guests who do not respond.

The safest bet is to call the clunks who don't answer and ask if they received the invitation. A nuisance, yes, but better than being stuck with 48 cream puffs and 34 eclairs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a good provider, a hard worker and a fairly intelligent person, but he will argue with anybody about anything.



Sunday our children had some guests over and my husband picked an argument with them over sports. He went into a rage and made such a fool of himself that I really admired those teen-agers for having been so respectful.

Is this a medical problem or what? What causes a grown man to behave this way? — TROUBLED WIFE.

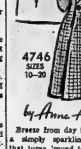
DEAR WIFE: Your husband feels so inadequate that he must pick fights and pop off to make certain someone will pay attention to him.

If something could be done to bolster his ego he would behave in a more civilized manner.

Susanna's Family Fair

Dear Susanna: If you notice a certain chair or table is being rubbed against a portion of the wall, don't allow this to continue until the wall is badly marked. Place an inconspicuous piece of finished wood such as flooring or quarterwood (depending on the width required) on the floor between the wall and the back legs of the offending piece of furniture. — Fussy Missy

Hi Suzy: I went to dig a trench along beside my driveway with a pick axe one evening, only in spite of the regularity with which I find the handle too loose to work with properly.



I soaked the lower half in the laundry tub overnight, and the wood swelled and tightened up the join enough so that I was able to finish the job the next morning. — Jim Landry.

August the 13th this year marks the 25th anniversary of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and the World War 2 C.W.A.C. veterans decided that the best way to celebrate this auspicious occasion was to assemble again in a Canada-wide reunion.

The Canadian Corps Association C.W.A.C. They, have consequently sent communications to many hundreds of World War 2 C.W.A.C.

In addition to the many interesting Canadian Women's Army Corps veterans who will be gathered at this time, there will be assembled many dignitaries, particularly during the banquet event on Saturday in the Crystal ballroom of the King Edward Hotel. Among these will be Miss Judy LaMarsh, Canada's Secretary of State (also a World War 2 C.W.A.C. veteran).

Linda Coulson Chosen Miss Penny Carnival At Playgrounds Night

A penny won't buy much more than your thoughts at most carnivals these days but the lowly cent piece was the key to all doors at the Belleville Playgrounds' Annual Penny Carnival last night. Several hundred people tried their luck at fish ponds, penny drops, bingo, cake draws, and ball throws, and watched the Miss Penny Carnival Contest at the East Hill playground.

For the second year in a row Queen Elizabeth playground took home the glory as 9-year-old Linda Coulson was chosen Miss Penny Carnival. Judges Alderman Don Joss and Art Keegan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellis and Mrs. White selected Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Coulson of 69 MacDonald Gardens, from among twenty-one entrants, one from each of the city's playgrounds.

Alderman Don Williams, Chairman of the Parks Board, opened the carnival. Preparations for it have occupied the playgrounds all this week while Thursday morning and afternoon saw the booths assembled at East Hill under the supervision of Norm Carter, Assistant Recreation Director, and George Campbell, Supervisor of Playgrounds.

Judges had difficulty in coming to a decision in awarding the Miss Penny Carnival crown. Several tie breaking votes were necessary before the winner was chosen. Runners-up were Janice Hannah, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hannah of 16 King George Square and 9-year-old Robin Masterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Masterson of 46 Mikel Avenue. Janice, from King George Playground, came second while Robin represented Churchill Heights and was third.

FEED BIRDS AS CHARITY

REGINA (CP)—Donations to citizens' fund to feed wintering birds at the Waascana Waterfowl Park have been declared deductible for federal income tax purposes.

THE PARTY'S OVER — Parkdale Supervisor Marion Ketcheson helps dismantle the carnival. This morning East Hill playground was back to normal with no sign of last night's festivities. Penny Carnival is over for another year.

RUNNERS-UP in the Miss Penny Carnival contest were three-year-old Robin Masterson (left) of Churchill Heights with her supervisor, Jan Worrell, and three-year-old Janice Hannah of King George with her supervisor, Carol Bender. Robin, who placed third, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Masterson, 46 Mikel Avenue. The second place winner, Janice, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hannah, 16 King George Square.

THE EYES HAVE IT — An eagle eye was required at this Penny Drop, a booth in last night's Playground Penny Carnival. Here a young miss tries her skill under the gaze of an interested audience. Almost everyone won a prize.

CONTESTANTS PARADE FOR JUDGES — Seven of the twenty-one entrants in the Miss Penny Carnival contest parade before the judges at the East Hill playground last night. Each of the city's playgrounds selected its own queen who in turn participated in this contest.

Population Of Canada Is 19,919,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population at June 1 was 19,919,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates in a report released Thursday.

The total represents a growth of 1,081,000 or 8.2 per cent in the five-year period since the 1961 census.

The slowdown in growth from increases of 12.4 per cent and 14.8 per cent in previous five-year periods is due to the dropping birth rate, DBS says.

The rate was 28.1 per 1,000 population in 1961. Last year it was 21.4. Canada had 132,000 fewer births between June 1, 1961, and June 1, 1966, than in the preceding five-year period. Deaths were 45,000 higher.

The immigration rate now is climbing rapidly but as a net figure over the 1961-66 period it was 222,000 lower than the five preceding years at 330,000.

"Immigration in 1965 amounted to 146,758, more than double the figure of 71,689 in the calendar year 1956," the report said.

"Current monthly figures on immigration suggest a further rise in 1966. In the 12 months up to June 1, of this year, immigrants to Canada numbered 165,986."

ALL GAIN

All provinces showed a net population increase over the previous five years.

British Columbia was the biggest gainer with a 14.5-per-cent increase to 1,982,000. Of the 233,000 new residents, 200,000 came from other provinces.

Ontario grew by 659,000 or 10.6 per cent to 6,865,000 and Quebec by 485,000 or 8.2 per cent to 5,744,000.

Province - by - province population (increases by number and percentage since 1961 are bracketed):

Newfoundland 505,000 (48,000 and 10.3); Prince Edward Island 109,000 (4,000 and 3.8); Nova Scotia 760,000 (23,000 and 3.1); New Brunswick 627,000 (29,000 and 4.8); Quebec 5,744,000 (485,000 and 9.2); Ontario 6,865,000 (659,000 and 10.6); Manitoba (36,000 and 3.9); Saskatchewan 954,000 (29,000 and 3.1); Alberta 1,464,000 (122,000 and 9.9); British Columbia 1,982,000 (233,000 and 14.3); Yukon 15,000 (1,000 and 7.1); Northwest Territories 36,000 (5,000 and 15).

Ontario received 287,000 immigrants during the five years, more than half of all arrivals. But the 10-per-cent increase in Newfoundland was almost entirely the result of a two-per-cent natural growth anomaly.

Alberta and Quebec about matched the national average but the Maritimes, Manitoba and Saskatchewan grew by less than one per cent a year. The estimates by provinces are derived from statistics since 1961 for births, deaths, immigration, emigration and interprovincial migration. Family allowance data on interprovincial changes of address are used to trace interprovincial migration.

MEMO TO THE MINOR HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

Next year, 1967 is Canada's 100th birthday. From coast to coast committees from settlement to metropolis have earmarked projects to commemorate the centennial.

As far as minor hockey is concerned it will be the big year for the midget teams of the nation.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has arranged a nation-wide tournament to mark the event with what is known as the Canadian Midget Hockey Association Championships.

In Ontario the OHA has taken up the cudgels. The onus falls on your parent body the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

Doug Patterson, president of the OMHA tells me that every community within the body's jurisdiction boasting a midget team or league was invited to take part in elimination tournaments.

This was only fair, but many did not enter. Trenton, to my surprise, did not enter a club.

The eastern zone has been divided into four groups ranging from Woodridge in Kingston. This city's particular group is "E" comprising teams from Kingston, Belleville, Napanee and Picton. OMHA executive member Lou Jeffries of Gananoque is the convener.

Thirty-two teams will play in the tournaments ranging from all parts of the province and including the two leaders outside the OMHA, the Northern Ontario Hockey Association and the Toronto Metropolitan League.

The OMHA playoffs will be held in Walkerton, Ont. during the Christmas holidays. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will stage the national championships in Kingston, 56 miles east of Belleville, during the New Easter holidays.

And here, gentlemen is where you come in.

I do not know at this writing what plans you have made — after all it's a trifle early — but my impressions are that we have a better-than-mill-run midget potential in this city.

I honestly believe that our "kids" can take the measure of the clubs involved in their group, but you have to act quickly to get them into shape to compete during the Christmas holidays.

And here is what can be done player-wise.

In a television conversation with OMHA president Doug Patterson, I was told you have a drawing potential on players outside the city.

I am not saying you should do this — but it is a fact worth knowing.

Personally I do not believe in packed teams. A club that has played together has all that it takes. But it can be bolstered by outside stars in the pinch of competition.

Here is the player-setup as told me by OMHA president Patterson.

Centres of 60-79,999 population can add one player from outside teams. Teams from communities between 50-60,000 can add two players. Between 40-50,000 three players. From 30,000 to 40,000 four players.

BUT .....

And here's the gimmick.

If a team draws from another community, the community's population must be added to that of the drawing team. For instance if you draw a player from Trenton it puts this city into the 62,000 bracket. And so on down the line.

As of now you can draw four players from such centres as Wellington and others which put you below the 60,000 bracket.

From here in it is up to you.

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Henry Jerome, the splendid sprinter from Vancouver, lays his spikes deep today in the first track event of the eighth British Empire Games, the 220-yard dash, beginning the arduous 48-hour process of qualifying for the final.

He and Bill Crothers, the Markham, Ont., half-miler, are rated as two of the best chances Canada has of picking up gold medals, along with Elaine Tanner, 15-year-old swimmer from West Vancouver.

Crothers is entered in the qualifying round of the 440-yard run today and Miss Tanner, the "mighty mouse" of the 108-member Canadian team, anchors the 440-yard freestyle relay swimming team.

For Jerome, his eye is on a gold medal to erase some of the stigma from his failure to win one at two Olympics—Rome in 1960 and Tokyo in 1964—and the British Empire Games four years ago in Perth, Australia, when a leg injury almost finished his track career.

HOLDS FIRES

He is the first man in track history to share both the 100-yard and 100-metre records and he has done it twice.

His latest record clocking was 9.1 seconds last July 16 in the Edmonton trials for the Games, equaling the world 100-yard mark held by Bob Hayes of the United States.

The 100-yard dash carries a good deal of glitter because it has drawn a field of the world's top sprinters besides Jerome. The semi-finals and final will be run off Saturday.

The Games, with a total of 1,027 athletes from 34 countries, officially opened Thursday night and will continue until Aug. 13. There are nine sports—track and field, swimming, boxing, weightlifting, wrestling, badminton, fencing, cycling and shooting.

Gold medals were to be awarded today in such events as the women's 400 freestyle relay swim, the men's 880-yard freestyle relay, men's full fencing and the bantamweight and featherweight weightlifting classes.

After more than four years of planning and an expenditure of $1,000,000, not including the cost of the venues where the nine sports are being held, the Games were opened by Prince Philip before a roaring crowd of 30,000 in National Stadium Thursday night.

Athletes showed off splashy dress uniforms and sticking out were the Canadians, particularly the women athletes, who sparkled in their red blazers, white pleated skirts and dinky straw hats.

For a brief spell, the Games had a chaotic start with hundreds of angry athletes almost missing the colorful ceremony.

The city's worst-ever traffic jam made what should have been a 15-minute journey by bus for the ceremony a nightmare for the athletes. Many of them got out and walked.

The athletes were in a happy and relaxed mood when they left the Games village in 22 buses. But by the time they arrived at the stadium more than 30 minutes later they were angry and frustrated in the humid heat.

David Jones, England's hope in the 220-yard sprint, said: "It was hell, like the Black Hole of Calcutta."

On the way back to the village site the athletes got a police escort.

A minor incident at the opening ceremony brought howls of laughter from the gaily-garbed crowd. Princess Anne, who accompanied her father in the royal car, fell backwards on to the seat when she waved to the crowd as the car turned into the stadium. But she soon recovered her feet and happily waved to the cheering throng, with Prince Charles alongside her.

Prince Philip in declaring the Games open, and the Queen in her message to competitors, both referred to the events starting today as the "family games."

He thanked the organizers for all their hard work and said: "From now on, all depends on the sportsmanship in which competitors and spectators under the competitions."

There was no prouder man on parade than heavyweight weightlifter Louis Martin. The bearded Jamaican was given the honor of carrying the St. George Cross of England, where he now resides, before his home people.

The men to take the oath of sportsmanship on behalf of the competitors was Mal Spence, the world - class quarter - miler who is captain of the Jamaican squad.

Australia started off the parade and Jamaica, as the host country, wound it up.

Carrying the flag for Canada's team was Crothers, who hopes to win a gold in the 880, his specialty.

Dominion Shooters

Canadians Share Spotlight

By PETE McNAUGHTON

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—A pair of Canadian marksmen with outstanding records shared the spotlight Thursday as competition at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association champion-ships reached the crucial stages.

Bob Pitcairn of Richmond, B.C., Canadian Pacific Airlines pilot, fired a perfect 105 in the Letson Match, first of three stages in the important Governor-General's Trophy event.

Pitcairn, who became the youngest winner of the event four years ago at 24, and then one of the double winners in two years later, led a field of more than 30 marksmen with his flawless performance from 200, 300 and 600 yards on the Connaught range near the village west of Ottawa.

The former air force flight lieutenant, a native of Chatham, strengthened his bid to join Canada's team for the Commonwealth champion-ships at Bisley, England, for the fourth time. He also hopes to become the second man in the 94-year history of the matches to win the "Governor's" three times.

The only three-time winner, Norm Sackett of Ancaster, Ont., Thursday had to settle for a score of 96.

ADVANCE TO FINAL

The top 200 shooters in the Letson and the Connaught and President's, to be fired today, advance to the final round Saturday.

Russ Poitier of Ancaster, Ont., put on an even closer performance than Pitcairn in the two major matches Thursday.

The veteran Bisley campaigner was second to Pitcairn in the Letson with 104, one short of perfect, and then turned in a flawless performance in the City of Ottawa Match with a score of 100 on 20 straight bullseyes from 200 and 900 yards. This gave Poitier the best combined score of the day, one point better than Pitcairn who had 99 out of 100 in the City of Ottawa Match.

Poitier tied for first place in the City of Ottawa with John Byles, 33, a ship's doctor from Bickley, Kent. In the shoot-off, Byles scored a perfect 23 to take the $30 first prize. Poitier settled for a score of 22 in the shoot-off and second - prize money of $20.

A team of crack Canadian shots defeated the British by one point in the Canada Match, fired from 200, 500 and 600 yards. The Canadians had 1,120 out of 1,200.

Canadian Tennis

Best Reach Semi-Finals

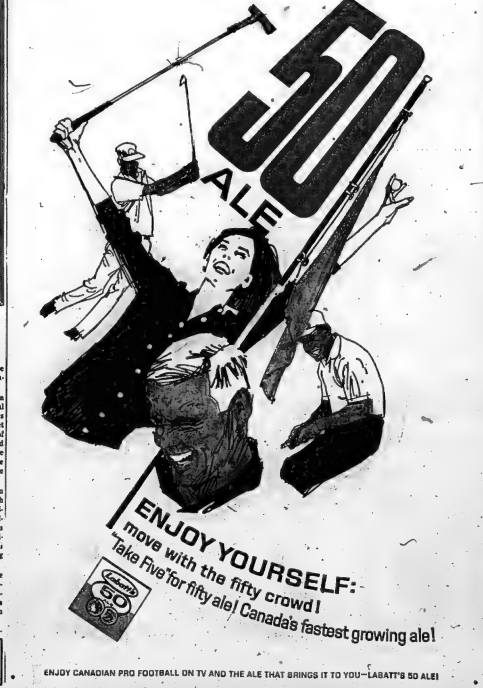
VANCOUVER (CP)—The best are all that remain as the Canadian lawn tennis championships head into the semi-finals today.

Only Mike Belkin of Montreal, the top-seeded Canadian, will be missing from action today. He suffered the only real upset of the six-day tournament when he lost 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 in a hard-fought quarter-final match with Bob Potthast of Los Angeles, fourth-seeded foreign entry.

Belkin was the only top seed to be eliminated by a lesser seed.

Several of the lesser-seeded foreign men were toppled by unranked players early in the tournament, but there were no upsets in either the ladies' singles and doubles, the men's doubles or mixed doubles up to the close of the third day of play Thursday.

In today's semi-finals, Allen Fox of Los Angeles, the top-seeded foreigner, meets second seed Canadian Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que



Fox ran c lose to being upset Thursday in a bitter duel with his doubles partner John Sharpe of Toronto, fourth-seeded Canadian.

The bearded American won the first set 8-3 with a powerful serve, but lost the next 9-7 as Sharpe stuck close to the net and smashed home most of Fox's drives. Sharpe almost had the match in the bag at one point in the final set, but he double-faulted giving Fox the game and finally the set 6-4.

Potthast's win over Belkin gave him a semi-final berth against Allen Stone of Melbourne, Australia, the second-seeded foreigner. Potthast is captain of the Southern California tennis team and Stone is ranked as unofficial 12th among Australian tennis players.

In the women's singles, Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., the top-seeded Canadian, meets second-seeded foreigner Susan Butt, a Victoria native now living in Chicago.

Lightfoots Shade Cheesemen

Lightfoot Construction grabbed lone-possession of third place in the Commercial Softball league last night as they edged Black Diamond 8-7.

The win put Lightfoots two points ahead of the Cheesemen and four ahead of City Hotel in the battle for the final two play-off spots.

The winners had to fight for the two points, however, as they trailed by a run going into the bottom of the final frame. In that inning they tied the score at 7-7, and Rusty Garvin rounded the bases after a two-out single to score the winning run.

The losers had taken the lead in the top of the seventh after trailing for most of the game.

George Young gave up 12 hits and fanned four in pitching the victory, while opposing pitcher Sonny Holoway allowed ten hits and fanned five.

Les Hall continued his heavy-hitting with a pair of home runs for Lightfoots. Frank Murray and Rusty Garvin had two singles each, and Don Whitlock and Don Smith doubled. Joe Clapp, and Don Dolan safefied.

Jack Fraser allowed four hits, a double and three singles, to lead the losers. Jack Douglas and Gene Francis had two base-hits each, while Doug Archer tripled and Sonny Holoway doubled. Bob Cruikshank and Ross Empey singled.

B. D. Semi-Finals Opener

Trudeau Trim Bobcats

By ROBERT SNIEVELLA
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Trudeau Motors are paying no attention to the fact that Temple Bobcats finished in first place in the B. and D. league. The Motor-men pounded the Vets 30-4 last night at the Alemite, in the first game of the two teams' best-of-seven semi-final series.

The winners knocked out 12 hits off Bobcat pitcher Joe Barrons, in the one-sided, unpolished affair.

Four name in this series is slated for Tuesday, at the Alemite.

Stu Muirhead turned into a one-man army as he stroked two doubles and two singles, drove in four runs, and scored a pair, for Trudeau.

Larry Mavety blasted a home run, double and single, scoring two runs. Lead-off hitter Roger Drake also rounded the bases twice, besides hitting a double and pair of singles. Pete Weston banged out a double, and Bob Wannamaker and John Baker had singles, to round out the hitting.

Howard Jeffs, on the Trudeau mound, stopped the losers on eight hits. Paul Meraw tripled in the eighth and scored on Rick Locke's single, for the losers only run.

Jeffs threw third strikes past three and walked one.

For the Bobcats, Barrons struck out six and walked four, while hitting two batters.

Paul Meraw had a single to go with his triple, Rick Locke slammed two singles, and Paul Zakes, John McGibbon, Joe Barrons and Leon Mowat each singled once, for Bobcats.

Sawchuk Said "Feeling Like A Rookie"

UNION LAKE, Mich. (AP)— An eight-selle hike with his son earlier this week prompted Terry Sawchuk, goalkeeper of the Toronto Maple Leafs, to say Thursday he expects to report to hockey camp this year "feeling like a rookie."

Sawchuk, who recently underwent surgery to correct a back ailment, said he got permission from his doctor to begin training for the forthcoming National Hockey League season.

Sawchuk made the hike from his home with his son and said he got a ride back after completing the 2½-hour journey.

"I've had this trouble with the lower part of my back and my legs for some time and I just felt it was about time to do something about it," Sawchuk said.

"I know one thing—I'll be in good shape when I report."

Sawchuk, who will be 39 in December, is the dean of NHL goalies. He has played 36 seasons, most of them with the Detroit Red Wings. He played two years at Boston and was drafted by the Maple Leafs in 1966.

Pointers Decision City Hotel

City Hotel scored six runs in the first two innings and then folded to drop a 10-6 decision to league-leading Point Anne in Commercial softball play last night at Point Anne.

The City Hotel loss kept them two points out of a play-off position with only a few games left to play in the schedule. Point Anne, meanwhile, increased their league-lead to 19 points over second place Stewart Warner.

The losers got three runs in each of the first two frames but gave back six in the third to Point Anne.

Ron Marcie worked the distance for the Pointers. He gave up five hits while getting six on third strikes and walking eight.

Larry Hull took the loss, giving up 11 hits and fanning two.

Eric Maher slammed a homer and two singles and Ron Marcie had a double and single for the winners. Jim Horwood had two hits, and Miss Cook, Rick Rosebush, Garry Maher and Dave Akey had singletons.

Moe Bilinski had two safeties for the losers. Tom Cooley, Doug Murray and Doug Mercer hit for One.

Missed No-Hitter By Pitch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toledo Mud Hens of the International League have a way of building left-hander Billy Rohr up for the big kill.

Rohr, 21, was one pitch away from the first no-hit performance of his career Thursday night when the Mud Hens collected two hits in their 4-0 loss to Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I had a no-hitter going into the seventh inning against the same club last year, and I lost 1-0," Rohr said after the game. The next were out in the ninth inning when Mike Ferraro came to the plate for the Hens. Rohr walked the count to 3-2 and Ferraro fouled off the next two pitches before smashing a single. Bob Schmidt followed with another single.

SUNS SPLIT

Elsewhere, Buffalo Bisons defeated Columbus Jets 8-3, and Syracuse Chiefs won the first game of a doubleheader against Jacksonville 10-3 before losing 4-1 to the Suns in the nightcap.

Bucs' Turn To Lead Leap-Frog Race

Whip Dodgers 8-1

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Swoboda, unlike fighting, has struck twice in the same place, and Bill Henry has een left smoking.

Just two weeks ago, Swoboda lashed off the New York Mets' bench and lofted fireman Henry sky alarming the veteran reliever for a ninth inning homer that gave the Mets a 3-2 victory over San Francisco Giants.

Thursday, the 22 - year - old right - handed hitter reduced city Henry to ashes, again coming off the bench in the ninth with a three-run clout that carried the Mets to an 8-6 triumph.

"It was just like a fairy tale," said Swoboda, relegated to pinch hitting this season when he opposition starts a right-hander.

"I couldn't help thinking about the earlier homer when I went to the plate."

DROP TO SECOND

The earlier home run kept the Giants out of a virtual tie for first place in the National League. This one dropped them into second place, two percentage points behind Pittsburgh Pirates, who hammered Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1.

Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds continued their push toward the top as the Phillies trounced Houston Astros 12-2 for thrift seventh straight triumph and the Reds won their fifth in a row, beating St. Louis Cardinals 7-5.

Chicago Cubs tripped Atlanta Braves 5-2 in the other game on Ernie Banks's three - run homer.

The Mets trailed 6-4 entering the ninth when Ken Boyer started their thunder with a homer off Juan Marichal, seeking his 18th victory. Lindy McDaniel, who took the loss, relieved and gave up singles to Ed Bressoud and John Stephenson. Then Henry entered and moments later Swoboda struck.

Marichal, who had beaten the Mets 17 times in his career without a loss and retired the first 17 hitters Thursday, thus managed to slip off the book.

GOT THREE HOMERS

Willie McCovey, Jim Hart and Tom Haller homered for the Giants and Bob Johnson also connected for the Mets.

The Pirates had little trouble as they dropped the third-place Dodgers two games back with a 16-hit attack, most against Los Angeles pitching this season.

Manny Mota led the onslaught with two triples, two runs batted in and three runs scored.

Vern Law scattered six hits for his first complete game since July 8 and seventh triumph in 12 decisions.

The Phils erupt within 4½ games of Pittsburgh as they bombed Dave Giusti and relievers for five runs in the third inning and six in the fifth to give Jim Bunning his 12th victory against seven setbacks.

Cookie Rojas belted a three-run homer and Johnny Briggs drove in four runs with a homer and double.

A revived Sam Ellis, who has won three straight and now is 8-14, gave the Reds their 10th success in 11 games and 15th in 18 as they swept their four-game set with the Cardinals.

Dick Simpson opened the Reds' scoring with his third home run and Tommy Harper extended his hitting streak to 20 games. Cincinnati climbed within a half-game of the fifth-place Cardinals, who have dropped five in a row.

Banks's seventh homer, in the first inning, overcame a 2-0 Atlanta lead and gave Dick Ellsworth, a 11-game loser, his fifth victory. Randy Hundley homered in the second off loser Denny Lemaster.

Second Loss In Row

Indians Clip Orioles' Wings 3-1

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rookie pitcher Jim Nash used to be able to get into a ball game only when there was a fight on the field and he would sneak out to throw a few punches.

But now there is a growing number of American League batters who wouldn't mind committing a little mayhem on the 22-year-old Georgian. He beat Washington Senators 4-3 Thursday for his fifth straight victory without a loss since joining Kansas City Athletics a month ago.

Nash was signed by the Athletics in 1964 and sent to a farm team in Daytona Beach, Fla., whose manager was told that under no circumstances was the six - foot - five 225 - pound right-hander to be used in a game. The Athletics wanted to hide him from the rookie draft and didn't want any of the other league teams to know he existed.

Since coming up from Mobile of the Southern League in July, Nash has compiled a 2.65 earned-run average and struck out 43 men besides winning five games the seven games he's been in.

In other games Thursday, Cleveland Indians beat first-place Baltimore Orioles 3-1, Minnesota Twins clipped Boston Red Sox 2-1, and California Angels sank New York Yankees 11-7.

Phil Roof drove in two runs with a single in Kansas City's triumph and Jack Aker came in for Nash in the seventh inning and picked up his 17th save of the season.

HURLS THREE-HITTER

Gary Bell held the Orioles to three hits and Leon Wagner drove in one run and scored another in the Indians' victory. It was Cleveland's second straight win over the Birds. Brooks Robinson got two Baltimore hits.

Jim Kaat threw a four-hitter at the Red Sox, but the game was deadlocked until the eighth inning when Jim Hall's 12th homer of the season for the Twins settled matters. Jose Santiago had only given up four hits to Minnesota before Hall's shot.

Kaat, who got his 15th victory and now leads the league in that department, retired only one hit through the first eight innings, but was touched for three more in the eighth.

The Angels rallied for five runs in the eighth to defeat the Yanks. Bob Rodgers drove in the tie-breaker with a double. New York threw a wild pitch from a five-run deficit to take a 7-6 lead in the eighth on a homer by Elston Howard, Jack Sanford, who went the final inning, was the winner.

Tigers Argos Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — The grudge, the thing that has made Hamilton Tiger - Cats the toughest in the Eastern Football Conference, will once again be in their favor when the Grey Cup champions go against Toronto Argonauts tonight.

It's no secret that the Ticats always play their best when they have a loss to avenge and they haven't forgotten the 41-37 loss to Toronto in an exhibition game a few weeks ago.

The Ticats' main target in the first regular game of the season for both clubs will be rookie quarterback Wally Gabler, 22, whose throwing shredded the Hamilton defence in the exhibition encounter.

"We'll put on a pretty good show," Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio said Thursday.

"But I don't think that's the automatic key to winning in Toronto. I watched movies of Gabler's game against British Columbia Lions last week. They rushed him plenty and it didn't disturb him at all."

Toronto coach Bob Shaw doesn't think Hamilton's awesome record over the last decade will intimidate his rejuvenated squad.

"This year I think we have some boys who really want to play," he said.

In addition to Gabler, more than half of Toronto's 32-man roster—17—did not play with the EFC's last-place finishers last season.

Said Gabler: "I don't think any of us care about what happened in the past. We don't even want to hear about it. We're confident we have a good team that is going to win."

But the Tiger-Cats' defensive cast has the same ominous characters that have provided stone-wall resistance for several years. The mainstays are John Barrow, Angelo Mosca, Herb Paterra, Zeno Karcz and Billy Ray Locklin.

PLAY TO DRAW

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Ukrania and Toronto Hellas played to a 2-2 draw Thursday night in a National Soccer League game. Ukrania was leading 2-0 on two goals by Wally Skocen until John Zorbas and Leo Koytsoyiidis scored within 30 seconds of each other at the 30-minute mark of the second half.

Quarterback Gets Total Of $915,000

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Quarterback John Brodie may have become the highest paid athlete in sports history by coming to terms with San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League.

In a copyright story Thursday, The Tribune said Brodie got a total of $915,000 to sign his contract. The story broke it down as $250,000 a year for the next three years, $90,000 for 1969 and $75,000 in legal fees with payment of the entire sum spread over 10 years for income-tax purposes.

Houston Oilers of the American Football League, the newspaper said, would split the cost with the 49ers except for the $90,000 for 1969. Brodie, 31, got an estimated $35,000 last year in the best of the 10 seasons he's played for San Francisco.

Brodie led the NFL in almost all passing departments last year. He then visited Houston, where he was offered a reported $750,000 to jump leagues. But the two pro loops merged in June and the deal died.

Brodie, however, had enlisted the help of San Francisco lawyer John Elliott Cook before going to Houston. Apparently, they had a wedge to gain a huge settlement — perhaps a three-year-end antitrust suit against the merger based on the Houston offer.

Girl All-Stars Play Madoc On Saturday

MADOC — Don't look now but this village's 1965 all-Ontario juvenile softball champions may be in for a jolt.

They tangle with the Toronto Ladies All-Star team in an exhibition game here tomorrow night and they'd better be on their best diamond behavior.

The Queen city gals have been around. There is a possibility they might be selected to represent Canada in the world softball tournament.

They defeated a strong men's team from Port Erie and also made a top Chicago girls team say "uncle" on one occasion.

The juveniles well know they've been in a softball game before the final out.

The game is scheduled for the ball park here and gets under way at sharp 8:30.

Minor Baseball Results

The Little Oven Bakery defeated the C.N. Firemen 11-6 in a BMAA tyke tilt at the Ainslie last night.

Jerry Cunningham and Rick Bell shared the winner's pitching chore, giving up seven hits and fanning nine.

Jack Sweet was pounded for 11 hits while whiffing 8 in the Firemen's mound.

Rick Bell rapoded a pair of home runs and a single, and Jerry Cunningham had a triple and single, for the Bakery. Steve Cowan hit two safeties, and Murray Dales, Mark Kent and Don Cowan had one each.

John Schwager banged a double and two singles, and Greg Cronkright a double and one single, for the Firemen. Rick Sweet and D. O'Hara stroked one base-hit each.

Departmental Softball

City Hall whipped the Firemen 5-2 in the first game of their best-of-seven semi-final series, at Hillcrest last night.

Gary Reid hurled a seven-hit victory for the "Hall", striking out three and walking two.

Craig Rump allowed seven hits in his losing effort. He threw third strikes past five and walked three.

C. Kitchen slammed three hits and Graydon Rodgers two for the winners.

Bob Lloyd led the Firemen with four hits.

Tyke Bears Get Barbecue Treat

The West Hill Tykes Division Bears ran eat bbs they play softball — in championship form.

Coaches Ken Brooks and Cam Smith believe if they can't be beaten — barbecue 'em.

The undefeated team which won the Trail playoffs 111t were guests of the coachs at the home of Howard Skelly at Consecon beach.

It was their way of saying thanks for a fine season. Brooks and Smith may be in for something.

If these youngsters win the championship they must put the "bite" on the coaches for a ten-course dinner.

First Negro Coach Unworried

ANDOVER, Mass. (AP) — Rommie Loudd of Boston Patriots, the first Negro coach in the American Football League, has slipped into his job without any fanfare by "leaving racial matters in the realm of the government and concerning myself with developing linebackers."

That's the only way to gain acceptance, said Loudd who played professional ball with San Diego and Boston.

"You have to come in with an open mind. If you get involved in too many political matters you're out of it.

"I'm here as a football coach. That's all."

Betty Ingram Wins Picton Field Day

Betty Ingram who won the Watertown Ladies' Invitational Tournament a week ago with an 81 added another laurel to her crown yesterday.

She took the Picton Golf Club Ladies' Field Day Tournament yesterday after tieing Mildred Robinson, Glen Lawrence, with an 84.

Mrs. Ingram won the tourney on back-nine play.

Over forty Bay of Quinte ladies played in the tournament with 18 coming home with prizes and awards.

A golf oddity was recorded during the play.

Fran Bannon drove off the fourth and failed to locate her ball.

She was wandering around the rough near a tree when Betty Walmsley teed off.

The Walmsley ball struck a branch of the tree — and you guessed it.

Fran Bannon's ball fell to the ground.

Green Bay Packers Meet All-Stars

CHICAGO (AP)—More than $4,000,000 worth of pro football rookies, known as the College All-Stars—try to prove they can prospect for more than gilt-edge contracts tonight against Green Bay Packers.

The game in Soldier Field, 32rd in the All-Star series sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities Inc., will be unique because of the dollar value involved. The 46 collegians already have signed pro pacts, some at fantastic amounts in a battle of dollars now apparently ended with the merger of the National Football League and the American Football League.

The classic, which has the NFL champions holding a 21-8-2 edge, will be televised by ABC starting at 10 p.m. EDT. A crowd of about 65,000 is expected to watch in perfect weather.

The NFL champion Packers rate as 13- to 15-point favorites.

Canadian Joins Maple Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—One of the few Canadians in professional baseball has joined the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

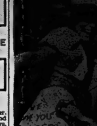
Oshawa-born John Ryan, 25, joined the Leafs Thursday from Pittsfield, Mass., of the Eastern Professional Baseball League.

Ryan won't get a regular spot in the lineup yet. He has nice stitches on his right wrist after slipping in a locker - room shower 10 days ago and putting his hand through a window.

While at Pittsfield the left-handed batter hit .290 and knocked in two home runs. He played third base for Pittsfield but is listed as a utility man for Toronto.

Ryan played minor league baseball with Toronto's Leaside team. After graduating from Oshawa collegiate in 1952 he went to Michigan State University in Lansing where he was picked up by the Detroit Tigers.

He signed a "D contract" with the Tigers and was sent to Decatur of the Midwest League in 1960. In 1963 he was called up to Syracuse of the International League.



He played for Syracuse last season, batting .261.

Harris Tops At Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Labron Harris Jr., former U.S. amateur champion shot a blistering six-under-par 66 Thursday and took the first round lead in the $100,000 Cleveland open golf tournament.

The 25-year-old Harris toured the par 36-35—71 Lakewood Country Club course with a barrage of seven birdies on the way to 32 and 33 rounds. He was one shot off the course record.

Harris held a one-stroke advantage over Johnny Pott.

Saskys, Bombers Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It should be quite a football game in Regina Sunday with Saskatchewan Roughriders striving to make sure changes of their offensive firepower — and Winnipeg Blue Bombers' decade-recorded defensive stalwarts looking the Riders right in the eye.

Riders opened the Western Football Conference season a week ago and buried the rookie-filled Edmonton Eskimos 40-13, Tuesday it was Winnipeg's turn, the Bombers blasting the Calgary Stampeders 36-7.

Coaches for both clubs said Thursday night they plan no major lineup changes for Sunday's game, although Bud Grant had a long talk with his charges about Winnipeg's inability to score a touchdown in the second half.

Grant has also introduced a gimmick to give his defensive corps recognition—a blue football-shaped decal transfer for every pass intercepted.

In Regina, coach Eagle Keys praised the Bombers for "toughest in the league right now because they haven't made any changes since they went to the Grey Cup last year."

But even though all-star defensive halfback Dale West and linebacker Wally Dempsey will not play because of injuries, there'll be no major shuffling of the ranks. Keys also said defensive halfback Larry Dumelie, with a bad ankle is a doubtful starter.

LIONS WILL WATCH

More than interested onlookers—the game will be televised in the West on the CTV network —will be British Columbia Lions, still full of growl and roar following their 31-3 triumph over Calgary Stampeders Wednesday night.

The Lions hope to gain from the Regina game by testing the two tough clubs knock heads while the Leos go to work on the no-for-easy Eskimos in Vancouver Monday night.

Judy Carne Made Series After Two Had Foundered

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There is a widely-held belief among actors, undoubtedly fostered by budget-minded producers, that a weekly TV series, helps a fledgling career.

"Forget it," said Judy Carne, who encountered her busiest days after her two frail comedy barks foundered in network channels with all hands aboard.

Judy, who had replaced Julie Andrews in the London production of The Boy Friend, was next imported five years ago to play the young English girl in the ill-fated Pair Exchange.

Then, a couple of seasons back, she had a spot in Baileys of Balboa, another disappointment. Now she is co-star in ABC's upcoming young-marrieds comedy, Love on a Rooftop.

But it was not previous experience that won her a third chance. It was an elimination contest that started 2,000 girls, among them Nancy Sinatra. And Judy worked hard, with a coach and a recorder, to eliminate her British accents.

The elimination prove for Love on a Rooftop was an ordeal. After the 20 girls had been arbitrarily reduced, to four, each girl was subjected to a "personality test." They involved sitting down in front of a camera to be interviewed by a director who had a bit of free time.

Ultimately she was told she probably would be the choice—but only for the pilot episode of an unsold program, maybe that's a week's work. Then came two months while they were testing for the boy who would play her husband—a difficult time when she could not take any acting jobs that would tie her up for more than a few days at a time.

This went on from September until they finally shot the one-hour pilot in December.

The series is built around the adventures of a young $85-a-week apprentice architect and his bride (Judy), an uninhibited art student.

Movie Column

Many Moviegoers Cannot Recall Name of Actor

By MICHAEL SHORT

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—He reminds some observers of Harold Lloyd. He reminds his producer of Buddy Rogers.

Those who see him in the roaring 30s spoof Thoroughly Modern Millie may be reminded of almost anyone except the actor himself and the parts he has played.

James Fox probably has been seen by more moviegoers who can't recall his name than any other young leading man in Hollywood.

Versatility may be the reason his professional reputation outstrips his box office appeal. He was named Most Promising Actor of the Year by the Variety Club of Britain after playing an effete, upper-class Englishman victimized by his butler in Joseph Losey's prestigious The Servant. From there he went on to play a pilot in Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines and a prisoner of war in King Rat.

After another serious role in The Chase, he turned to farce in Millie which will be finished next month. As a bespectacled playboy with a taste for frenetic dance called the tapioca and scales a building in a comic reminiscence of classic Harold Lloyd comedy from the 1930s.

NAME IMPORTANT

Fox's name means little to the public, much to producers. Why?

"There's a kind of gap all over the world for my type," Fox said. The type is the young leading man with polish, a type not seen much since Leslie Howard's and Ronald Colman's day.

Fox is tall, blonde, slender and what a writer might call sensitive-featured. He speaks with the clarity, precision and style of an Englishman brought up conversationally and not to Harrow, which he is.

Like other British actors, Fox came to Hollywood already trained. You don't learn here, he said.

"Hollywood is the place you come to deliver."

MADE SACRIFICE

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters)—Five Indians have been charged with murder after a young Indian girl and her illegitimate baby daughter were strangled in what police claim was a sacrifice to a pagan god.

Nanpanee — William Jackson waited on the Napanee Town council Tuesday evening requesting that water be installed for the use in the used car lot which he has on the south - west corner of Centre and Dundas Streets."A motion to grant his request was defeated when Mayor Lorne Smart broke the four - four tie. He felt that the items should first be worked out.

The following evening the council and the Public Utilities Commission met in special joint session, and after a policy under which Mr. Jackson and residents or businesses on that side of Ontario Street will be furnished with water. Next Monday evening the P.U.C. will meet to discuss the details of the condition.

The problem is a complex one. The north side of Ontario St., popularly known as William St., is in the town of Napanee. The south side is in North Fredericksburgh. A watermain has been installed on the north side with the householders, over the years, paying 50 per cent of the cost of installation, and Napanee the balance. Several North Fredericksburgh property owners have expressed the wish, in the formally, to have the water made available to them. They have been told, just as informally, that some arrangement could probably be made, but Jackson's formal application to Council Tuesday evening brought the matter to a head.

The P.U.C. has plenty of water to sell, but the Council feels that the North Fredericksburgh users should share the 50 per cent cost of installation with the town residents as the water rate to all non-residents is one and a half times the rate to residents.

Tentative details of the policy have been laid by the P.U.C. to the waterworks manager, Roy Lawrence, to be worked out. He will bring his plan to the meeting Monday evening for their consideration, and the plan, perhaps revised, will be sent to the Council for its consideration.

Farmers Will Continue Demonstrations

MARYSVILLE — Farmers in the Marysville area have not yet decided on what steps to take next to draw attention to the conditions they face, but meanwhile, are continuing their demonstrations on a reduced scale. One factor was on Hwy. 2 for a few hours Tuesday, another Wednesday and a third Thursday.

Harold Murphy, president of local 181 of the O.F.U., believes that the tractorcades have served a useful purpose. They have at least created publicity, and have drawn the attention of the general public, especially in urban areas, to the latest anger felt by most farmers. "They say that one picture is worth a thousand words. I believe that one tractor demonstrating on the highway is worth a thousand words. It is something concrete." Murphy continued. will leave more of an impression than a newspaper paragraph," Mr. Murphy said.

The problem is a complex one. The north side of Ontario St., popularly known as William St., is in the town of Napanee. The south side is in North Fredericksburgh. A watermain has been installed on the north side with the householders, over the years, paying 50 per cent of the cost of installation, and Napanee the balance. Child Killed, Runs Into Path Of Passing Car

NAPANEE — Nine-year-old Nancy Bush is dead as the result of a traffic accident three miles east of Napanee near her home Thursday morning about 9:30. She ran across the road from behind a west-bound car into the path of an east-bound car driven by Delbert Dixon of R. R. 3, Napanee. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jennelle Bush of R. R. 1, Napanee.

Nancy and her ten-year-old brother Jennelle were waiting on the roadside about a quarter of a mile from their home, when their father stopped her car and waited for them to get in. Nancy waited for the one car to pass, but did not notice the car coming in the other direction. Kenneth, 12 years old, was with his sister. She has a younger sister, Penny, eight years old.

Mr. Bush is an employee of the Aluminum Co. of Canada in Kingston.

Rev. Brand Bergstrome of Napanee was called and she was removed to the Lennox and Addington Hospital, where she was pronounced dead.

Constables James Elliott and Ray Henderson are still investigating the accident.

MASON ESCAPES

LUTENBURG, West Germany (AP)—An 18-year-old apprentice mason early Thursday made good his second attempt to flee from East to West Germany, customs officials reported. He swam across a body of water dividing East from West Germany.

Farmer Gives Impressions Of Western Ontario Visit

NAPANEE — "Farmers in Western Ontario are at least five years ahead of farmers in Lennox and Addington, methods and crops we are only experimenting with have been in use there for years." This is the opinion of Howard Ketcheson, of the Hamborough, Road, one of the 63 county farmers who made the two-day bus trip to the experimental farms at Ford, and Kent last Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Huff farms 300 acres of land, all arable, has 100 Holsteins, with the milk from his 40 cows going to a Kingston dairy. He gained a lot of useful information on his two-day trip, when nine farms were visited.

Asked how he could afford to take time to go on the trip, Mr. Huff said, "I could not afford not to go". He learned something useful at each farm, ideas which he can adapt. In some cases it was a warning not to copy a certain method, as in the case of the one farm where the potatoes in a bin had grown into a hog barn, with the animals badly overcrowded. The practice of pasture rotation is in good condition, and Mr. Huff disapproved of the feeding methods. He got some ideas from Mr. Huff Huff brought home one idea he will use. Corn cribs are prominent in that part of the province, some of them up to 200 feet long. They are constructed of posts supported by wire mesh which is used for the sides. On this particular farm, parallel corn cribs had been constructed far enough apart to form a storage shed for machinery in the roofed-over space between. This shelter would protect a load of hay or grain overnight.

He also contrasted two farms where beef cattle were raised and the methods used to cut down on labor. In one case, everything was automatic, but the cost was prohibitive for the average farmer, probably up to $15,000. In the other case, the Kerr farm near Chatham, there were two feed lots, one with 450 steers and the other with 500, but one man could feed them all in 20 minutes, and the initial cost of the scheme could not have been more than $2,000.

Mr. Huff says that now he understands why hybrid corn seed is so expensive, as they visited one farm which grows it.

The method involves a great deal of labor, and if the weather is not exactly right at the right moment when the seed-bearing plants must be detasseled, the crop can be sold only for feed.

Sunday School Lesson

God's Way in the Home

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

In a fit of temper, a youth once said to his mother, "I did not ask to be born." Commenting on this cruel remark, Dr. Carlyle Marney said, "Son, the shoe is on the other foot. Your parents didn't have to have you." Every person alive is a person because his parents brought him into being, and for innate is the child who is born into a happy, loving home.

In the physical world, there are two kinds of force — centripetal forces that pushes in toward the centre, and centrifugal forces that propels out from the centre. In olden times, families enjoyed many centripetal social forces. Even the houses were heated in such a way as to draw the family together around the fireplace or stove. Today, the family is at the mercy of centrifugal social forces. Myriad attractions exist outside the home. Yet the family is the most important of all social groups. Whatever strikes at the family, strikes at civilization itself.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 7: "God's Way in the Home," Exodus 20:12; Proverbs 4:3-5; Mark 10:13-16; Luke 2:51-52; Ephesians 6:1-4.

It is significant that when the ten commandments turn away from a person's primary relationship to God, the first thing they mention is a person's relationship to his family. "Honor your father and your mother." (Ex. 20:12 RSV)

IMPORTANT RELATIONSHIPS

No other unit is as important as the family. Here are drawn two people into life's closest relationships., Here children are born and reared. Here life-long attitudes and habits are formed. Here this foundation is laid for character and maturity.

Happy families don't just happen. They result from patience, understanding, and love. The understanding never completes. Even in the most holy family, Mary said to her Son, Jesus, "Son why hast you treated us so?" (Luke 2:48 RSV) Jesus was surprised. He naturally assumed His parents would understand His overpowering interest in the temple.

It is not always easy to handle life clash of interests between parents and children. Children have boundless energy. Adults often get tired. Children live the new. Parents often prefer the ways of their youth.

Parents can stave off a nervous breakdown by displaying a sign that says, "This stage will pass." When parents shudder at boys with long bangs, girls with short dresses, loud and raucous musical combos, it might help to remember that bell-bottom trousers, striped blazers, coonskin coats, painted legs, the Charleston have all had their day and are now passed into oblivion.

DEDICATED, NOT DISTRACTED

A happy and well - adjusted family calls for dedication. People often talk about prodigal sons. All too little is said about prodigal parents who go off into the far country of their own interests and neglect their children. Even when they are with their children, many parents are so wrapped up in their own affairs, they give our partial attention to their children's needs.

In addition to dedication, it takes understanding. This is not always easy. What appeals to 16 may not appeal to 40. Children want more freedom than their parents know it is wise for them to have. Parents know from experience dangers of which children are not yet aware. Yet too tight a rein can keep children from learning for themselves.

While it is not as popular, no family can be happy and well-adjusted without some discipline. Even Jesus had to be obedient to His parents. (Luke 2:51) Children need to know where they stand; what is expected of them. In former days, parents were apt to be more strict. Today they are apt to be too lenient. A happy balance must be reached between the obedience of children and considerate treatment from parents. (Eph. 6:14)

Families must plan to do things together. This is especially important when the children are small. Families should work together, play together, and, above all, remember to worship together.

There is much truth in the statement, "The family that prays together, stays together." Regardless of what parents say, children learn from their actions what is important. The father who sends his children to church, but stays home himself, is saying by his actions that the worship of God is not important. The parent who, worships with his children is giving them an example of his faith in God.

MODEL OF CANAL — Engineers at the Suez Canal Authority research centre study the model of a typical freighter built as it "steams" through a miniature copy of the Suez Canal. They are measuring waves and wake set up at different speeds. The tests help determine balance between speeds for canal users on the one hand and safety and protection of canal banks on the other. For example, too much speed can set up currents and pressures that damage canal banks. (CP Photo)

Suez Canal Operates Serenely But Testing Times Lie Ahead

Widening and dredging have led to increased traffic on the Suez Canal since Egypt nationalized it 10 years ago. But further improvements are needed to meet competition from supertankers travelling around Africa, A Canadian Press reporter on a tour of Egypt reveals that the canal has fared under nationalization.

By CARL MOLLINS

ISMAILIA, Egypt (CP)— Ten years after Egypt nationalized the Suez Canal and provoked a world crisis the enterprise runs serenely under Arab management.

The canal has a somnolent air that masks its importance as one of the world's major public utilities, a cause of war and a symbol of Arab ambition fulfilled.

Big oil tankers and cargo tramps slide by at a regulation eight miles an hour, barely outpacing the canal convoys that plod the yellow desert on either bank. Here on the dividing sector of Lake Timsah, midway along the canal, you might be at a backwater port.

But Ismailia is the headquarters of an expanding industry that earned $100,000,000 last year, a source of do-it-yourself pride matched only by the High Dam as evidence of Egyptian self - reliance and progress.

Yet there are gaps in the progress, lapses in efficiency and the next decade on the canal could be a tougher test of Egypt's ability to match action to ambition.

CANAL BLOCKED

President Gamal Abdel Nasser startled the world and prompted predictions of disaster from user nations when he announced seizure of the canal in an Alexandria speech July 26, 1956—one week after the United States and Britain abruptly withdrew offers to help finance the Aswan dam.

Nasser had upset the West by purchasing Communist arms. He upset Britain and France even more by foreclosing 12 years early on their 99 year lease of the canal zone that began when Empress Eugenie of France formally opened the 101-mile waterway Nov. 17, 1869.

Britain and France demanded international control of the canal, predicting turmoil in world trade if Egypt were left in charge.

Canal traffic did cease three months after nationalization when Egypt—under attack by Israel, Britain and France—sank ships to block the waterway to the enemy.

The United Nations helped clear the canal under a peace settlement by the following April. By then Mahmoud Younis, the go-ahead military engineer who headed the Egyptian Suez Canal Authority until last fall, was at work on plans to expand and improve the canal.

CARGOES BIGGER

As a result of widening and dredging programs, annual traffic increased to 20,266 last year from 14,666 in 1955. The annual freight load more than doubled in the decade to 220,600,000 tons. Suez carries more than five times the traffic that earns canal dues as much to tolls as the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Expansion projects mean that tankers—over 70 per cent of Suez traffic—can now carry loads of almost 60,000 tons each compared with half that amount 10 years ago. Further, engineer Mashour Abmed Mashour, Younis's successor, says more dredging will make cargoes of 100,000 tons possible by 1970.

The authority's new expansion program is being developed in its own research centre in Ismailia, another innovation of Egypt's management.

The canal authority has spurred development in other directions — shipbuilding, dry dock services and harbor improvement at Port Said, Tewfik, hospitals and training schools have been built for its 12,000 employes. Floortile and light-bulb factories and a printing plant operate at Ismailia. A towering new headquarters building opened here this summer.

At the Ismailia Beach Club, once the preserve of Europeans, young Egyptian executives discuss their achievements as if the job is complete now that they have proved they can run a major industry. But some Western experts detect trouble signs that could slow the rate of progress.

SHORT OF PILOTS

The fact that the authority's Fort Fuad shipyard employs 4,000 men on a production schedule that has launched 10 small ships in five years is cited as an example of flabbiness in some efforts.

The opposite vice, underinvestment, is blamed for a shortage of canal pilots. How pilots are being trained—all but 30 of the 230 are Egyptians now — but more are needed to keep pace with increasing traffic. One Egyptian pilot said in an interview that he works up to 36 days a month.

Mashour's expansion program must be pushed if the canal is to avoid losing business to supertankers travelling around Africa. The authority will need an estimated $240,000,000 for the job, but funds are scarce in the taut Egyptian economy. Canal dues were raised one per cent July 1 for the third year in succession, but the government has been siphoning off at least 30 per cent of Suez earnings for other projects.

The Egyptians running the canal have moved fast in the 10 years since they took control. They may have to run faster still to keep ahead of demands in the next decade.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Many letters are received from readers who complain that others are using their property for shortcuts, driveways and parking without their permission. In many cases a property owner, either out of a desire to be neighborly or reluctance to cause trouble, will allow this use to continue without realizing that this unauthorized use with a passage of time can become an irrevokable legal right.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our property is located at, the terminus of a dead-end street. There is a highway in back of our property and a bus stop is at the corner of our ground.

For years, neighbors have been cutting across our lot to get to the bus stop rather than walking three blocks. After years of use the path is now full of holes and ruts. I have asked the neighbors to pay part of the cost to build a concrete walk but they refused. I am afraid that someone will fall and get hurt. If this happens can they sue us? — G. N.

ANSWER: By concentrating on your property line you problem our correspondent has lost sight of the real problem. When the property owner's rights of others for walks, roads and access with a passage of a specified period of time an easement can be acquired by prescription. This means that a legal right for such use now exists (an easement) which the owner cannot terminate,

If the use is allowed to continue, the shortcut will become a public walk. Not only will the property owner be burdened by having a public walk through his property, but, worse yet, the value of his real estate will be adversely and significantly effected.

The walk should be closed off immediately. It may appear, at first, unneighborly. However, if explained to property owners in the light of harm they are still sympathies with the erosion of property rights that the shortcut is creating.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My taxes were too low. They should have been at least $300 but they were only $180. I complained to our township assessor. He treated me like a mental case. He said that in 30 years on the job he has never met anyone who had thought their taxes were too low. But I persisted. He finally increased my taxes, not in $300 but to $500. Now I'm angry once more, but the assessor refuses to talk to me. How do you make an assessor talk on the subject of taxes? — Insistent

ANSWER: Some assessors I know can talk without any subject at all. But I'm afraid your problem is beyond talk because you shattered the man's 30-year image of human nature. Give him time to get over the shock and then in a non-insistent way go back. I'll bet you get results.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Arrests Cool Strikers After Fighting Police

THREE-TO-ONE HE WON'T GET AWAY — Four Hamilton, Ont., policemen grit their teeth as they hustle away a striker from the Steel Company of Canada plant in Hamilton Friday. A number of strikers were arrested after clashing with police outside the plant. (CP Photo)

By GORDON GRANT

HAMILTON (CP) — Wildcat strikers outside the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plant behaved Friday night and the overworked local police, who had arrested 28 strikers during the day, beaved a relieved sigh.

Police said the last striker had been hauled away to jail at 5:30 p.m. after a day of violence during which pot-fighting steelworkers battled about 70 policemen.

The strikers were released on $200 bail each. Most of them had been charged with obstructing police, creating a disturbance or assault.

The report that 15 men were arrested in the evening for throwing stones at a truck entering Canada's largest steel plant was denied by police.

To avoid any recurrence of he day's skirmishes police had heir day staff work overtime to nonplement the night staff. At 3 p.m. when the pickets changed, about 80 policemen were on duty at the main gate of the Hilton Works, the largest plant in Steleo's vast operations.

PUB CLOSED

In another attempt to curb violence, the Bridgeside Tavern, which stands beside the plant, closed at 5 p.m. The spot is a handy drinking place for steelers. and police advised the owner to close the bar, which he did willingly.

A crowd, estimated at 1,000, gathered at the main gate late in the evening, but only about 500 were steelworkers. The remainder were spectators.

The pickets, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), formed their scrimmage line by cursing passing motorists and walking slowly in front of traffic which the police were trying to keep moving.

By midnight, when it appeared there wouldn't be any fighting, most of the crowd went home at which time the police force was reduced to about 30 men. About 70 pickets remained.

The main clash, which flared just before 2 p.m. when a striker called a company supervisor "scab", followed these events:

—An attempt to move a train loaded with scrap metal into the plant failed when 300 strikers rushed a police line.

At least two officers were knocked to the ground and five strikers were arrested.

—A mass sit-down by strikers on Burlington Street near the plant's main gate blocked traffic.

—Police arrested 11 pickets during the morning after attacking planes, but all missed. The U.S. command reported no planes lost to ground fire Friday.

B.C. Vote Set For Sept. 12

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia goes to the polls Sept. 12 in Canada's fourth provincial election of the year, an election opposition leaders say is unwanted and unnecessary.

Premier Bennett announced the election Friday night at a press conference. He said the redistribution of electoral districts in March, increasing the number of seats in the provincial legislature to 35 from 52, was a "turning point" for British Columbia and that it is the duty of a government to go before the people when a turning point is reached.

New Democratic MLA Alex Macdonald, who attended the press conference, called the redistribution report "just an excuse dreamed up by some public relations speech writer."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault said Mr. Bennett had been desperately and unsuccessfully trying to seek an election issue for a number of months.

"It is apparent" he said, "that Bennett and his followers are more interested in retaining political power than in administering the affairs of the province."

FIFTH IN 14 YEARS

The election will be the fifth since Premier Bennett's Social Credit government was first elected in 1952. The last one was Sept. 30, 1965, when the Socreds elected 33, NDP 14 and Liberals five.

Mr. Bennett said that though the government could stay in office five years, it was traditional to hold an election every three years or so.

Although there has been speculation in B.C. since March that there would be an election Sept. 24, Mr. Bennett said the date was set only Friday afternoon.

Racial Violence Flares in Chicago, Dr. King Injured

CHICAGO (AP)—Racial violence wracked an all - white neighborhood Friday for the second time this week and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., felled by a rock, said the eruption was fostered by the worst hate he has ever seen.

King promised the marchers would return to the area.

More than 6,000 frenzied white residents of the southwest side Chicago Lawn neighborhood rioted during and after a march by 600 civil rights demonstrators.

The civil rights group is demanding open housing. The Chicago Lawn residents say they had built up the neighborhood and that Negroes would degrade it.

A 19 - year - old white youth was wounded in the shoulder by a knife thrown towards King during a march. The youth was released after hospital treatment.

Police arrested 30 white persons, including three women. Hospitals said 38 persons were brought in with injuries, including two persons on stretchers, an unconscious man, a little girl whose eyes were cut by flying glass and three policemen.

NOT AN INJURY

"It hurts, but it's not an injury," King shouted above the cursing, screaming mob in Marquette Park after he fell to one knee when a rock hit his head.

"I've never seen such hostility in a demonstration before and I've been all over the south," King said.

"I have to do this—to expose myself—to bring this hate into the open," King shouted to reporters. "I've never seen such hate—not in Mississippi or Alabama—as I see here in Chicago."

King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, got to his feet, ripped off his tie and began forming the demonstrators into a line for the march.

The violence occurred in a Polish - Irish - Lithuanian middle-class neighborhood. The residents are mostly Roman Catholic.

Violence first broke out in Chicago Lawn, 7½ miles from downtown Chicago, last Sunday. Sixty persons were injured. 17 were arrested and more than 20 of the marchers' cars were burned.

MET WITH JEERS

The demonstration began in the racially - tense area when four groups went to separate real estate offices to picket. When the demonstrators rallied into Marquette Park, a scenic recreation area, a form of the march, they were met with jeers, catcalls, curses, rocks and bottles from the white residents, mostly youths.

More than 3,000 whites rallied

Handlers End Strike In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Handlers of CNR express freight have ended their wildcat strike with a vote to resume work—at least for 11 days.

The strikers voted for an immediate work resumption Friday night, ending a stoppage that had started Monday and helped snarl freight traffic between Montreal and Toronto.

The men had been reported filing back to their jobs throughout Friday.

Originally 1,300 in number, 600 of them participated in the formal meeting Friday night.

They said they will stick to their CNR duties until Aug. 17, when a strike following the filing of a conciliation report on the long-standing dispute will be legally possible.

The strikers are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC).

On Aug. 10, Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron of Ottawa, federal conciliator in a dispute connected with contract negotiations involving their union, is scheduled to bring in his conciliation report.

The wildcat strikers walked out in protest against alleged delays in the handing down of the report.

Living Costs Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—Food prices rose in July resulting in another record for the Consumer Price Index which jumped to 144.3 from 143.8 in June.

The July figure, reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was almost five points above last year's level of 139.5. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Although the seasonal rise in food costs was the main trigger, a small advance in housing costs also occurred between early June and early July to contribute to the index jump.

Expressed in percentages, the July price index was three-tenths of one per cent higher than June's and 3.4 per cent above July, 1965.

Food prices usually rise in early July, the period between heavy spring vegetable movements and the arrival of the first local vegetable crops. Imports domicate the markets.

A drop in food costs can be expected this month.

DAIRY ITEMS RISE

DBS said its July survey of food prices showed increases in most dairy products, all fats except lard, most beef and pork cuts, tea, coffee, grapefruit, oranges, apples, frozen orange juice, turnips, tomatoes, celery and lettuce.

Those gains more than outweighed scattered price declines for sugar, pickles, jelly powder, evaporated milk, eggs, chicken, turkey, lard, hamburg, smoked ham, sausages, bananas, grapes, strawberries, most processed fruits, potatoes, carrots, cabbage and tomato juice.

The index was up to move to food sub-index, which along with housing accounts for half the total. It rose to 136 from 134.2 in June and 130 in July, 1965.

The Consumer Price Index has been on the rise for 30 straight months starting from last September when it was 130.1. It is the main barometer of living costs in Canada.

There is no comparable available for exact comparison. Closest is the DBS survey of average weekly industrial wages, based on 1961 equaling 100. This stood at 128.8 in March, the latest month available.

The July housing sub-index, reflecting costs of shelter and household operation, rose to 144.8 from 144.4 in June.

$120 Million Pulp, Paper Mill for Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood Friday announced a fourth pulp and paper mill for Newfoundland.

Mr. Smallwood said the $120,000,000 project would include a $20,000,000 chip plant to be built near Happy Valley on Labrador's Lake Melville.

He told a news conference Melville Pulp and Cellulose Co. Ltd. will operate the Stephenville Mill, expected to be in production by 1969, providing employment for men who lost their jobs with the closure of the United States' Harmon air force base.

The province now has two paper mills — Price (Nfld.) Bros., formerly Anglo - Newfoundland - Development Co. at Grand Falls and Bowaters Nfld. Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. at Corner Brook.

Mr. Smallwood said in April a third mill would be built at Come-by-Chance at a cost of $67,000,000 through New York Interests.

In addition to the mill and chip plant, Mr. Smallwood said, two 65,000 - ton ships will be built at a cost of $16,000,000 to carry the chips to the mill from Labrador.

He said the mill, at Stephenville, is to be built by Canadian Javelin Ltd., Europe's Schneider - Creusot group and United States interests.

Prime contractor is ENSA of Paris, wholly - owned within the Schneider-Creusot group, which has been allotted development costs of about $8,000,000 and $21,000,000 in working capital.

Mr. Smallwood said government guarantees had made the mill possible and a special legislature session might have to be called for ratification. He said he would not give details of the guarantees before their tabling in the house.

He said ENSA would hold a five - per - cent equity, leaving Javelin with about 70 per cent control.

The paper mill will turn out 1,000 tons a day for the first 12 months and then 1,200 tons a day for an unspecified period.

Planes Pound Oil Depots, Radar Sites

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers pounded oil depots and radar sites near the North Vietnamese port city of Haiphong Friday, the U.S. military command said.

Meanwhile, the American troop buildup moved forward with 3,000 troops landing at Qui Nhon about 280 miles northeast of Saigon just after dawn today.

Navy planes attacked the Do Son oil dump 17 miles southeast of Haiphong while air force planes hit radar sites 10 to 15 miles northwest of the port city.

Six Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles were fired at the attacking planes, but all missed. The U.S. command reported no planes lost to ground fire Friday.

Father Threatening Son Dropped by Police Fire

TREVOSE, Pa. (AP)—"Sure there was a chance of hitting baby, but they'd had to take it," said Police Chief William F. Riempp after two of his men shot the 35-year-old father who was threatening to kill the nine-month-old son he held in front.

Two slugs from the .38-calibre service revolver of patrolman John Robinson hit Charles Roschen in the shoulder and groin Friday night. Other policemen grabbed the baby as the wounded man dropped him.

Robinson and Sgt. Johnson fired at Roschen from about 40 feet away as he stood in his backyard while his home burned behind him. Riempp said Roschen's bullets hit the men.

Roschen, father of five, had terrorized the neighborhood for more than half an hour by first setting fire to his own home and then threatening to kill his baby son Henry with a 10-inch kitchen knife, Riempp said.

Firemen called to the scene were unable to fight the blaze which spread to Roschen's adjacent auto and garage, because they said the threat ended:

"If you pour one drop of water on that house, I'll kill the kid."

Earlier, Roeschen's wife, Susan, 23, took her four older children and fled to the nearby home of relatives.

Police said Roschen shot six steel - tipped arrows, and buried beer bottles at police when they arrived at his home.

After he was wounded, he was taken to hospital for treatment. He was reported in "good" condition.

Chief Riempp said he intended to have Roschen admitted to a state hospital for mental tests before any charges would be filed.

Apartheid in Universities Under Fire in South Africa

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—Proposed legislation to enforce racial segregation on the campuses of South African universities has come under attack from English-language students and newspapers.

One of two new bills published Thursday bars non-white university students from belonging to any association of students of any ethnic group other than their own unless it is directly connected with their studies.

This will hamper the activities of the multi-racial and strongly anti-government National Union of South African students at the country's four English-language universities.

The other bill bars universities from discriminating against students or staff members who advocate racial discrimination and will prevent university councils from withholding recognition from "white" organizations, as happened last year in Cape Town.

Prof. Owen Horwood, principal of the University of Natal, has been appointed by the committee of English-language university principals to head a three-man deputation which will interview Education Minister Jan de Klerk here next week about the proposed legislation.

Horwood said today the bills filled him with "the gravest misgivings."

The country's largest-selling newspaper, the Johannesburg Star, says it was natural for students at the English-language universities to associate across the color-line.

"Now, not content with virtually having barred non-whites from these institutions, the handful that still squeeze in are to be denied elementary student rights and isolated still more effectively," it says.

Luci Johnson Wed To Patrick Nugent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Johnson, the president's younger daughter, marries Patrick J. Nugent, 23, today amid a blending of triumphal music and ecumenical and religious traditions.

Months in the planning, the wedding will take a little more than an hour to complete.

Weather for the wedding day was expected to be partly cloudy with a high temperature in the lower 80s.

It all comes to a climax at high noon, after an hour - long carillon concert, as President Johnson escorts his vivacious 19 - year - old daughter to the great marble altar in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception—the largest Roman Catholic church in the U.S.

Seven hundred family friends —some of them high level officials—and relatives were invited to view the marriage. Luci is the eighth daughter of a president to marry while her father was in office.

With Non-ops Strike Virtually Assured in Sept. Freight Embargo Coming

By DAVE BUTLER

MONTREAL (CP) — With a country-wide strike of the 98,000-member non-operating unions virtually assured for early September, Canada's railways are beginning a messing dance same-as to when—and if—they should start placing embargos on freight and passenger shipments.

A railway spokesman described it Friday as an exercise in correct timing. If the embargos come too late, tons of goods will be caught in railway freight sheds. If the embargos come too early, or if the strike does not materialize, the railways would lose revenue.

The non-ops can call a strike at any time, providing there has been a seven-day period following the presentation of a report by a conciliation officer to the federal labor department.

Two groups of the non-ops representing 76,000 employees have rejected the conciliation report of Judge Orville Craig Monroe of Vancouver.

The third group, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CBRT), cannot legally strike until Aug. 31, seven days after Aug. 16 when Mr. Justice C. A. Cimmerman of Ottawa, federal conciliator in that dispute, is to hand in his report.

MAY HOLD OFF

The CBRT is expected to hold off on a strike until the other non-op groups, with the bulk of the members, have set a date. Union spokesmen have said it will probably come early in September.

Although several dates have been guessed at, the favorite speculation is Sept. 6, two days after Labor Day.

The reasoning is that by waiting until after Labor Day, the men would receive the extra pay for working on the holiday—or, if would still be close enough to Labor Day to capitalize on the meaning of calling a strike so close to the day that commemorates the Labor movement.

The last contract between the unions and the railways expired last Dec. 31. Negotiations for the new contract began last November but all talks had ended by the end of February.

The calculable demands of the unions, the railways say, amount to more than $200,000,000 or more than 25 per cent of the CNR and CPR. This would add more than $67,000,000 to the labor costs of CNR alone.

AVERAGE $2.23

The average hourly wage of the non-ops is $2.23. The railways say they have been unable to come up with a projected average hourly wage under the union's demands, the job demands are too involved and complex.

However, the demanded increases are expected to amount to between 35 cents and $1.30 an hour.

There is a possibility of a special emergency session of Parliament late this month to pass legislation prohibiting a national railway strike.

Informed sources in Ottawa said recently key members of the House of Commons staff have been told to be available during late August or early September for a brief special session.

The wildcat walkout this week of 1,300 freight and express handlers of the CNR in Montreal is not considered to be a certain-raiser for the big show to come.

OTHERS WALKED OUT

Sympathy walkouts among CNR and CNR non-ops in Toronto as well as some CNR employees in Montreal ended Thursday when union leaders talked the men into ending the strike.

The men, said they walked out because of the slowness of Mr. Justice Cameron in presenting his report.

Until contract negotiations started last year, the non-operating unions had bargained as a single unit. The factions with in the unit could not agree on the CBRT's demands, which led to the split.

The non-operating unions represent those employees who are not directly concerned with the operation of the train. They include such employees as ticket agents, machine shop employees and porters.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Employer Relations Officer

Canada's expanding economy is demanding more skilled and higher educational qualifications or, a combination of both, from its current labor force. This community is no exception. Many local industrial plants are producing, or contemplating the production of, items of a more sophisticated nature. This type of production requires skill and education. Many people in this age find it difficult to realize the extent to which machines can replace men at work. The computer is, of course, a classic example. However, this electric brain requires highly skilled and educated technicians, not only to feed the data into the machine but to analyse and implement the results.

Today, many people are unemployed because they do not possess either the degree of skill or the education which would enable them to compete successfully in the modern labor market. Such unemployed persons should seriously consider the opportunities now existing at the various Canadian Vocational Training Centres throughout Ontario.

The following job opportunities represent only a few of those now available at the local National Employment Service office:

In the neighbouring town of Trenton, a new industry engaged in the manufacture of small engines has a definite requirement for female factory workers. Although the majority of these positions are for plant assembly work, a few other vacancies are available in the Jobs in the warehouse. The requirements call for a high degree of manual dexterity, Grade 10 level of education, to be single, over 18 years of age and with a height of at least 5 ft. 2 in. This plant will operate on a shift production basis. Anyone interested in this type of work is requested to contact either the Trenton or Belleville NES Offices, as soon as possible.

A local plant is seeking the services of a few experienced electrical equipment assemblers. It is preferred that the applicants have previous experience in the electrical and radio assembly field. The anticipated employment period is from three to six months. Another attractive position calls for a receptionist who must be experienced in typing and shorthand. Other opportunities offer female employment as cover waitresses, a housekeeper, short order cooks, a parking attendant, order clerk and a part-time office clerk.

SEEK CRANEMAN

In the male division locally, there is at present an opportunity for a licensed crane operator. Experienced crane cutters are required for a plant expansion project. The work is expected to last three months and if it was expected the overpass would be completed by mid-November. Contract price is $295,750.00.

Local O.P.P. On Patrol at Mariposa

Some people go to the Mariposa Folk Festival to enjoy and even sing folk music, but others go to be entertained by the activities in mind. It is for the benefit of those that attend the annual festival every year to listen to the music that the Ontario Provincial Police is sending some 100 of its officers along to "control that the large crowds present don't get out of control.

Four O.P.P. officers from the Belleville Detachment, Constables Dale Hulme, Ross, and MacDonnell, left Belleville Friday morning to join the rest of the police contingent at the festival.

Increasing occurrences and complaints of hooliganism, rowdy behavior, and disrespect for private property by "folk-niks" attending the festival forced the organizers of the event to request the original aim of the pageant near the small Ontario centre of Orillia.

Last year and this, the festival has been liberally hidden away from "civilization" near the small community of Caledon East, some 10 miles north of Brampton, where the four Belleville O.P.P. constables will be staying over the weekend

Barring any unforseen events, the four will return to Belleville Sunday evening.

When you were called to rest.
We've learned with patient effort,
To live each day alone,
To cherish daily the footprints,
You've left in the home.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Jack and Mary.
Peace, perfect peace, in this dark world of sin,
The blood of Jesus whispers peace within.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, Jack and Mary.

BOYLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Verner Boyle, who passed away August 6, 1965.
Lovingly kept with memories,
Of one so dear to us.
We bless the years we had with him,
And miss him.
And leave the rest to God.
—Sadly missed by with loving affection.

24-hour Clock System To Be Used

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR announced Friday it will introduce time tables using the 24-hour clock system, starting October 30.

The move will do away with the present system of indicating a.m. and p.m. by light and dark type in the public time table.

All train arrivals and departures will be listed in terms of the 24-hour clock but travelers will follow the simple rule of thumb of deducting 1200 from any time of 1300 hours and up.

Costly Storm Sewer Project In East End of City Underway

MECHANICAL SHOVEL is used to swing heavy sections of 36-inch concrete pipe into position as laying of new $230,000 storm sewer in East Belleville gets underway.

With contract approval given only late last month, the Trathem Company of Belleville has had no time in getting one of the city's most ambitious storm sewer projects underway.

The project is the east Belleville storm sewer, costing in the neighborhood of $230,000, which will see surface drainage provided for a large area in the "new" part of the city. The work will be paid for out of the general rate.

The sewer will drain the area from Rollins Drive and Edgehill Road on the north down through Parrot Drive, across Bridge Street and down past Elizabeth Crescent to Dundas Street and eventually into the bay.

The area to be drained also includes Stanley Park, Moira Crescent, Lee Ave., and Sunset Crescent.

COMPLETE PROJECT

Deputy city engineer Richard Kraft says the work is a complete storm sewer project, including the necessary laterals, with no major extensions planned for the future.

A major portion of the main sewer system will be through 36-inch concrete pipe leading into a 42 - inch pipe at Elizabeth Crescent and across Dundas Street and beneath the CPR tracks.

Other comparatively large city sewer projects in recent years were the Fahey Street area, Harry Sewer, which extended north of College Street into the Parkdale area, and the Herchimer Ave. storm sewer.

During the construction of the Water Pollution Control Plant, of course, large collecting sewers were installed along Dundas St. West, and to the east end of the city.

One of the reasons for completion of the current storm sewer project all in one swoop is that many of the streets affected have asphalt paving scheduled. Accordingly it was considered advisable to get the storm sewers in before the paving work was started.

The main sewer will run across Bridge Street, up the west side of Parrot Drive and then west along Victoria Ave.

600 Expected To Attend Assembly

George Alton of 379 Front Street has been named to head the Rooming Department for the forth coming Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held in Campbellford August 19-21. In making the announcement Mr. Thor. Jensen, presiding minister of the Belleville congregation said that about 110 delegates from Belleville are expected to attend the three-day convention in the District High School.

Mr. Jensen said, "The assembly will begin Friday evening with two ministerial training sessions. The second of these sessions will deal with the importance of each witness being a qualified minister." Mr. Jensen continued, "An integral part of the assembly is the baptismal service to be held Saturday afternoon. Besides that, Jehovah's Witnesses will have opportunity to use the instructions received at the assembly. They will be visiting the people of Campbellford in their homes and discussing the Bible with them."

The principal speaker at the convention will be Mr. Clare Statton of Toronto. He will deliver the public lecture on Sunday at 2 p.m., "Does God have Influence in this Twentieth Century?"

It is expected that over 600 will attend the assembly from area.

Sniper Did Not Expect to Survive Violence Inflicted Notes Revealed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—"I am prepared to die. After my death I wish an autopsy on me to be performed to see if there's any mental disorders."

Charles J. Whitman thus revealed—in notes left near the murdered bodies of his wife and mother—that he did not expect to survive the violence he inflicted Monday on the University of Texas campus.

The Associated Press learned exclusively Friday the precise wording of major portions of the notes.

The source, a law official who requested anonymity, declined to divulge large portions of the two notes which he said included "statements about Whitman's father."

In a two-page note left in his Austin apartment, near the nude body of his pretty blonde wife, Whitman wrote of his impulses and pain and compulsions that mystified him.

"I don't quite understand what is compelling me to type this note," he began.

"I've been to a psychiatrist, I've been having fears and violent impulses. I've had some tremendous headaches in the past.

ASKED FOR AUTOPSY

"I am prepared to die. After my death, I wish an autopsy on me to be performed to see if there's any mental disorders."

There followed one of numerous statements about his father, the source said, and then Whitman told his plans for his wife.

"I've decided to kill Kathy (Kathleen Whitman, his wife) tonight. I love her very much," Whitman then again wrote of his father.

Then:

"I intend to kill my wife after I pick her up from work. I don't want her to have to face the embarrassment that my actions will surely cause her."

At this point, Whitman apparently was interrupted. The rest of the note began:

"At 3 a.m. both dead."

HATED HIS FATHER

The rest of the note, the source said, concerned Whitman's feelings and his relationship with his father. According to statements released from other sources, the University of Texas student mentioned in the handwritten portion that he "hated his father with a mortal passion."

The neatly hand-printed note was found at the posh apartment of his mother was addressed to To Whom It May Concern and began:

"I have just killed my mother. If there's a heaven she is going there. If there's not a heaven, she is out of her pain and misery."

"I love my mother with all my heart."

Once again, Whitman wrote at attack on his father, mentioning his opinions about the relationship of his parents.

The grand jury Thursday withheld the notes from the public because they "contained unverified statements of an insane killer concerning an innocent individual. . . ."

Japanese Writers in Canada On 50,000-mile World Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—Five Japanese writers and photographers are determined that in the next eight months they will know all about the Western Hemisphere.

By next April they will have travelled 50,000 miles in their two small Japanese cars, taken some 50,000 pictures, shot about 50,000 feet of film and have criss-crossed three continents.

"We want to know everything about the people who live here," said Juichi Kaku, 34, leader of the group, who kept up a stream of questions about Canadians during an interview Friday.

Mr. Kaku thought of the trip 10 years ago while in Tokyo University. He recruited his four partners and the group has saved $25,000 when they left Japan two months ago.

Their trip will take them to 20 countries.

Mr. Kaku said the highlight of their trip through Canada was a ferry ride from Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert in British Columbia. The beauty of the Pacific coast impressed them.

Much of the Canadian trip has been taken up in the Prairie provinces where the Japanese recorded farming operations.

In Vancouver, cameraman Nishida Hiroyuki, 26, shot footage of the fishing industry while writer Jiro Koitabashi, 29, and photographer Yoshiaki Shirotsubo, 26, toured factories. Tape recordings for radio stations are done by Yosi Jinno, 26.

From Ottawa, the group drive to Quebec City and then hope to continue to Boston and criss-cross the United States and South America before leaving early next year for the Antarctica by plane from Chile. They expect to conclude their tour in Brazil.

Liberal Leader Of Ont. Will Tour District

The Ontario Liberal Leader, Andrew Thompson, continues a campaign-like pace through Eastern Ontario next week touring four provincial ridings in the Belleville and Kingston areas.

The three-day tour, beginning Monday, August 8th, will take the Opposition Leader to a total of about a dozen cities and towns in the ridings of Quinte, Prince Edward-Lennox, Hastings and Frontenac-Addington.

Just two weeks ago, Mr. Thompson wound up a six-day organizational and fact-finding trip through ridings in the Ottawa Valley.

Next week's tour includes visits to four industrial plants, three institutions, a tour of a proposed Lake Ontario parkway, a visit with parents of mentally retarded children, an open line radio program and at least nine executive or organizational meetings.

Mr. Thompson said "One of the characteristics of the present provincial administration is that it is drifting away from the people of this province. I think it is vital to maintain continuous communication with residents of Ontario so that we, as legislators, can know and help to solve their problems."

During each of the Liberal leader's three major tours over the past three months, the day has begun shortly after six in the morning and continued uninterrupted often well past midnight.

"I believe in getting up early in the morning," said Mr. Thompson, "and I recommend it as a tonic for members of the government."

Mr. Thompson travels through the Kitchener-Waterloo, Guelph, Brantford, Woodstock and Stratford areas the following week (August 15th-20th.)

French Immigrants

Immigration Minister Marchand is reported to have questioned officials in France on the reasons for the low immigration from that country.

More bluntly, he wanted to know why many French immigrants "don't feel at home."

It is a significant question, and Mr. Marchand should be interested in the views of a Frenchman we met three years ago on a Europe-bound jet.

He had spent some time in Montreal, which is the largest centre of French culture and traditions outside France itself, second only to Paris.

He was not a professional man, not a lawyer or an engineer or a doctor, but had worked as a cook and at several other casual jobs.

Now he was going home, and from his broken English one gathered his main complaint about Canada, or big city life at any rate, was its impersonality. Like many people in areas of large population he was lonely, homesick.

Life in this country, he said, lacked "joie de vivre," as the French themselves put it so vividly.

So there you are Mr. Marchand! Many others would echo the young man's sentiments, although it was surprising to hear them expressed by a resident of French Canada where the "camaraderie" traditionally is warmer than in English Canada. As Toronto columnist Richard J. Needham put it recently, "Canadians are terrified of showing affection or warmth or joy or enthusiasm."

Another thing that may keep the French away from Canada is what might be termed snobbishness, a feeling perhaps that Canada is still a young country without the traditions of the old country, coupled with a new pride in France's resurgence as a power in the world under President de Gaulle.

Then again, naive French people, Parisians anyway, find that French as spoken in Canada is a sort of corruption of the real thing. Words and phrases sometimes mean different things to the Parisian and Montrealer respectively. This too may account for a somewhat haughty attitude toward the new world on the part of Frenchmen.

However, we wish Mr. Marchand luck in his quest for more French immigrants. During his recent four-day visit" he found out that France appeared to have a surplus of technicians, and professional groups there told him many engineers were unemployed.

More Strikes

The wildcat strike at the Steel Company of Canada Ltd. is a symbol of growing irresponsibility among the Canadian work force.

The Hamilton walkout is said to have been sparked by fewer than 200 workers, many of whom, according to one report, roamed the plants intimidating other workers to leave their jobs.

Whoever was behind it, or whatever group — "young hotheads," communists, and a splinter group within the union all have been mentioned — it all came back to growing disorder in the use of the strike weapon.

Meanwhile some workers of a rather different type have been making their presence felt. Transient workers employed at harvesting tobacco in the area of Delhi, Ontario, they marched into the town demanding better food and lodging at a nearby tent community. One complaint was that they were cold at night, and it is certainly true that recent nights have been on the chilly side.

Here we have a case of two walkouts, the one in Hamilton, and the other, more in the nature of a protest march than a strike, of tobacco workers. Both are apparently without any real important industry, one that is vital to the entire economy, while the other is concerned more with simple creature comforts. But both are a reflection of restless times.

Nigerian Unrest

Nigeria, which at one time showed promise of turning into one of the most stable of the newly-independent states in Africa, now shows signs of increasing disorder.

Maj.-Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi, the young officer who had led the military government in power last January, is reported to have been slain, together with the military governor of the Western region. Thus, he apparently has suffered the fate of the prime minister of the last government to power before the January coup.

Nigeria for some time has been plagued by tribal- and regional differences which have compounded the difficulties of successive administrations in Lagos.

With another military coup, it is clear that there is a continuing struggle for power among army officers. Yakubu Gowon, the 31-year-old northern region officer, who has assumed power, is a lieutenant-colonel. If he lasts, it is likely he will promote himself to the rank of general in the manner of the Congo's General Mobutu, a one-time sergeant.

So Nigeria events are taking a peculiarly Latin American turn. Even that region has been calm for the last few years compared with Africa.

Sukarno in Candid Mood

Hamilton Spectator

President Sukarno of Indonesia has deservedly and publicly acknowledged that he is a megalomaniac, meaning that in his opinion he is, in the words of the Oxford Dictionary, a victim of "insane self - exaltation."

Such candor is, of course, exceedingly refreshing. And it doesn't surprise us a bit, coming from a man like Sukarno.

We don't believe him, however. For all his faults, Sukarno is no megalomaniac. He has, for instance, a polished sense of humor. He can laugh at himself, and often does. He pokes fun at himself in public and he can be a good listener as well as a good talker. Fun and games are part of his life, and a big part. The classic megalomaniac takes himself so seriously that he could never admit he was one. He is usually an arrogant, touchy, holier-than-thou person, a humorless prig with a few big, wildest stretch of the imagination conclusion that he is the public.

There are megalomaniacs on the world scene, men of enormous power who think of themselves as deities. Even Canada's history contains a few. Jean Rebellion is not one, nor were Khrushchev, Churchill, Kennedy or Truman. Cheaters are there aren't more than a half dozen famous names of recent years who would qualify for a place on the original maniac stage. Hitler is one, Mussolini another, and then, of course, there is . . .

To Your Good Health

Are Several Causes, Cures for Laryngitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss the cause and remedy for laryngitis. — Mrs. A. S.

If you'll make that plural — causes and remedies — we'll get somewhere. Laryngitis is irritation or swelling of the tissues of the larynx, or "voice box," which includes the vocal cords.

Acute laryngitis is the kind that usually stems from a common cold. The throat is sore. There's hoarseness, often a cough. Smoke, dust or fumes may also cause laryngitis.

This type of laryngitis subsides quickly when the original cause — the cold or exposure to irritants — clears up.

But at this time of year I imagine that you aren't referring to simple laryngitis, but rather to the chronic type, and with that we have to be more cautious.

When laryngitis hangs on — and let's say that means anything beyond two weeks — it's time to look for some other cause.

Because laryngitis from a cold, which otherwise, could be expected to clear up in a few days, may be prolonged if a person persists in smoking. Remedy: stop smoking. If laryngitis doesn't subside then, consult your doctor.

Smoking also can gradually bring on a raspy voice and an uncomfortable throat. So can a chronic discharge from the back of the throat — the postnasal drip from nose or sinuses. Treatment of the affected part is the only effective remedy.

Singers and speakers can develop nodules, which are go hoarse, or even lose their voices. For that, the best and urgent treatment is rest for the weary, irritated larynx. Remaining silent for a number of days may be necessary. Anyone who uses his voice a great deal should be willing to give it some hours of rest every day. Even if one doesn't lose his voice, the constant irritation will gradually thicken the membranes disadvantageously.

We must always, when laryngitis hangs on, consider the possibility of a growth, a benign tumor, or, more perilous, a malignant one. Cancer of the larynx is not uncommon, so any hang or growth there should be examined by biopsy, for immediate removal if it is malignant.

Four out of five cases, when discovered soon, are cured successfully. Only one in five is cured if it is allowed to spread to the lymph glands. Can you think of a better reason for having your doctor take a look if you have hoarseness that lasts two weeks or more?

Less frequent causes of laryngitis can be tuberculosis of the T.B. germs infecting the larynx; or syphilitis; or unusual dryness of the membranes due to a disorder or failure of the moisture-producing mucus glands.

Therefore the remedy for laryngitis may be one or several of the following: steam inhalations; giving up smoking; avoiding irritant fumes or dust; correction of defects of the nose or sinus; control of infection a other than those originating in the nose or throat; resting the voice; surgery if a tumor is there. No one punishment fits the crime; make the remedy fit the cause.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told it is unwise for anyone with glaucoma to eat certain foods. What is a proper diet? — Mrs. V. Z.

I'm afraid your informant is in error. There is no special diet (and no special food) which will retard or prevent glaucoma.

Note to M.B.: On a low-salt diet, so do not use bouillon cubes. They are quite salty.

U.S. Tackles Pollution

Christian Science Monitor

"Must progress engulf us? Shall we choke on our own success? Does our society need more highways, more concrete, and air, strangled cities, tangled roads?" To these questions, posed by President Johnson, the United States Senate replied, in part, with a thunderous no.

In rapid succession it struck two blows in the nationwide effort to end pollution of the environment. By a vote of 80-0 it passed clean air legislation and then it gave its approval to a mammoth program to clean up America's water resources. Now the eyes of all concerned should turn to the House of Representatives which has yet to act.

One excellent feature of the water pollution measure is the provision for heavy fines for dumping oil into river or coastal waters. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D) of Massachusetts and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D) of Maine, not only recently "has the sheldfish area started to clear." Oil is, of course, by no means confined fouling the waters. The sum total constitute a national disgrace.

If the Water Pollution Abatement bill, as passed by the Senate, should become law, it could spark a massive effort — national, state and local. Providing $2 billion in federal aid over a six - year period and tying much of this aid to state and local programs, the bill is expected to generate around $20 billion for new treatment and the like.

In voicing this figure the Senate continued the recent practice of Congress to provide more money than the President requested. It left Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall in the incongruous position of testifying that the will might be more than competing demands for funds to put behind it, they're — you're — actually the boss, and have the justify. Yet responsible estimates for a truly effective program would include that, if the job is to be done, the sum is by no means too high.

The opportunity for cooperating industries are important to the success of the program, we hope that Mr. Udall will recommend them, as he said he was "leaning toward" doing. America can have clean air and clean water provided government at all levels and private enterprise have the will to work together toward the common goal.

Northland Lures Many

Montreal Gazette

A few weeks ago Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing complained that Canadians seemed to lack the adventurous spirit to work in Northern Canada. This week his department reported that more than 200 letters have come in from Canadians ready to "Go North."

The Department has not been being besieged with telephone calls. The letters and calls are coming from old and young, married and unmarried, and from people in a wide cross section of professions and trades. Interviews are being arranged. Some of the many vacancies that now exist in the Northern Affairs Department will be filled.

It may be that one of the reasons for the flood of applications is a misunderstanding on with the minister's statement that Canadians could become more easily assimilated for life after working 10 years in the north, because the isolation allowances and extra benefits were so high.

But even if the financial lure is somewhat, the response to the minister's remarks has been quite astounding. Mr. Laing had the last word on this when he said the response proves "there's nothing wrong with Canadian pioneer blood, young or old, except that from time to time it needs stirring."

Mr. Laing obviously has a knack for stirring it up.

Tiresome

Ottawa Journal

If there were no summer, man would probably have to invent one to give relief to those active people in the community who find themselves attending one meeting after another through the rest of the year. Meetings are necessary in most forms of community service but the people who actually enjoy them are few and far between.

Year-Round Schedule Is Proposed for Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Now that they've been home some three weeks, and probably been well chewed-out by those of their constituents who refer to things Federal as "the mess in Ottawa," some of the Honorable Members may be recalling an idea they had that just might polish up Parliament's unshining image.

It was first kicked around in the Conservative lobby where it originated.

Then, as Parliament's really a club, perhaps the nation's most exclusive, a select circle where everybody quickly gets to know everybody's else's business, it was knocked about at the Liberal Caucus.

And who knows, it might even have been tossed onto the table for a work-out at Cabinet.

The proposition is:

Simple. Basic.

Put Parliament to work.

Make it the full - time job Prime Minister Pearson three years ago said it must become when he asked MPs pay to $15,000 plus such fringe benefit goodies as free weekly Air Canada flips home and back, free long distance phone service and free trips abroad.

Put it on a work schedule that, except for short breaks at Christmas, Easter and a couple of weeks in mid-Summer, would keep it in business 12 months a year.

Just like the taxpayers.

GOODY HOW GOOD?

Initially the idea sprung from the agile mind of David Pugh, four-term Conservative MP for Okanagan-Boundary.

Actually, it was a holiday proposal — if in reverse — no Parliamentary session.

Instead of knocking off for 13 weeks — as it is doing this Summer, albeit, sometimes, a little shorter in other years — let it adjourn at the end of every third week of the month, when MPs are going home for the fourth.

That way the Parliamentarians could properly attend to both their jobs.

The one here in the Commons representing their constituents.

And the other back in the constituency justifying that representation.

It just possibly might have the added effect of making, more politically, the chronic Commons' illness of absenteeism.

Like the fall of a series of votes in the House on the Old Age Pensions issue just before the Summer recess, only 249 MPs were there to be counted — practically another 200 who might have been expected to stand up on such a hotly controversial right-wing proposition.

If the MPs knew that for one out of every four weeks they'd could return — in fact, be expected to go back to their constituencies — to do their homework, then just possibly they might be persuaded to spend the other three more regularly in the Commons.

Since Parliament recessed, the Ottawa rumor mill up, the number of MPs' secretaries who are mailing out thousands upon thousands of letters, questionnaires, reporting, among other things, just how profitably good their work for the public interest has been these recent weeks.

Good, perhaps, for some. But little for others.

True or false, in varying degrees, about each claims of excellence really have to be left to MPs?

Wouldn't the job speak for itself if it were all that good?

And if it really was the quality of Parliamentary work that we are claiming — how come so little, if actually anything, was done about it in the face of ever rapidly rising cost of living, the real key to so many pressingly needed social improvements.

But put Parliament to work on a regular year-round schedule, as Dave Pugh suggests, and things might be different.

The taxpayers don't work just seven, eight, or at most, nine months a year, nor do many of their elected MPs. Why should face it, they're — you're — actually the boss, and have the

Quebec Views of Exchanges

Montreal Gazette

It is often said — so often it has become a Canadian cliche — that French Canadians know English Canadians better and vice-versa, relations between the two peoples would not now be in a state of crisis.

Well, some 1,200 young people from Ontario have just returned after spending two weeks in Quebec staying with families in Quebec City and their reactions to the visit (now that they've had time to think, young people) says a great deal about this Canadian cliche.

Some of the Ontario teenagers thought Quebec was Victorian, others thought French-Canadian girls were real swingers. "We'd go to a dance and the mother would dance with us," said one Ontario student from Brantford. .

Most of the students praised the hospitality and some were enthusiastic about the food. "You sit down to dinner and they keep piling it on the plate," said another boy from Ontario.

"We don't hear enough about the poetry, the art and the culture," said a 16-year-old Toronto girl.

What all of them seemed to be saying as well is that they had been taught about Quebec or read about Quebec did not measure up to the reality. It can be anticipated that the fellow young people, returned from their visit to Quebec will say the same thing about Ontario.

One dictionary defines cliche as "an overworked idea." Is it overworked? I said one problem, more likely is that it hasn't been worked enough.

3 Parts Perfect

No Pill for Shrinking Violet To Combat Beanpole Shyness

DEAR DORIS: My problem is making me look a sky interpreter. It concerns my height. I am 15 years old and five feet ten inches tall. I feel and look like a giraffe with my five foot five inch girl friend. You may tell me that being tall is an asset but it isn't when you're almost six feet tall. When I go to a dance I just stand around all night feeling like a beanpole. I am sneered at and called names behind my back. Even the tall boys don't seem to like me. They act as if a tall girl is a freak or something.

Do you know of any pills or other such things that will make me shrink? I'll do practically anything to shrink at least two inches. — JUST A GIRAFFE.

DEAR JUST A: You may feel like a shrinking violet, but there's no pill to make you look that way.

Far better to study the styles and dress to make the most of your figure. Fashion pictures make their models tall. Canada's First Lady, Madame Vanier, is strikingly tall and lovely.

If the boys avoid you, your shyness is showing — more than your height. Come out of your shell by learning a special social skill, like piano, or dramatics, or candid-camera fun; and give the shorties a run for their money.

DEAR DORIS: I just saw a TV show in which a woman was changed wonderfully with some help from a hairdresser and a girl who did some make-up. It was just a miracle.

I need some help too with buying some make-up and a good hairdo; also some advice about a girdle. I am 38, four children, a big fat tummy and heavy in the seat.

I would like to look more attractive for my family. I find that most of the saleslad ies are just handovers. Do you know ladies who can advice me with all these things? — WANTS MAKE-OVER.

DEAR WANTS: Miracles happen regularly with the help of hairdressers, cosmetic demonstrators, foundation saleladies. Not to mention diet specialists.

It's still good thinking to take a good look at the subject of the make-over — you — to discover your good points; then the remodelling will be individually designed to accent the right things and play down the not-so-perfect.

You'll simply have to shop until you find the practitioners who show the know-how to bring out your particular kind of beauty.

* * *

TO EXPECTANT MOTHER: We like to think the day is past when the price of a baby is the mother's teeth. Yet pregnant women still get unwelcome cavities and do lose teeth; all for lack of the right foods.

Not only that, but the little one's teeth depend to a great extent on whether his mother ate right before he made his appearance.

The story is condensed in a neat little folder called "Baby Steps to Good Health," by the Information Division, Department of National Health and Welfare. Ask for it at your local or provincial health department, or write to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

Tough Test For Nurses In Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — The traditional image of the American nurse—a cool, professional approach tempered with the warmth that helps mend men's souls—is standing up well to the tough test of the war in Viet Nam.

Hundreds of women nurses are assigned to field hospitals, operating rooms and wards from Can Tho in the Mekong delta to Pleiku in the highlands to Da Nang in the north.

They are at Vung Tau, Cu Chi, Saigon, An Khe, Qui Nhon and a half-dozen other places, including the U.S. navy hospital ship Repose off the coast in the South China Sea.

They treat mostly American troops but it is not unusual for them to nurse a Vietnamese child or even a wounded Viet Cong guerrilla who has been captured.

The majority of women nurses are in the U.S. Army—about 272 now, with more on the way. All are officers.

One of the largest staffs of nurses is at the 300-bed 93rd Evacuation Hospital at Long Binh, about 15 miles from Saigon. There are 62 nurses, 51 of them women.

The wards are filled with American wounded brought by helicopter directly from the fields of battle and with men suffering from malaria and other tropical diseases.

In their Quonset hut barracks, a typical nurse has to herself a space about 10 feet square. It will hold a bed, a foot locker, and if she's lucky and can get it, a chair.

The work is hard and luxuries are rare. But there is little serious complaining.

As one officer put it: "If these women were looking for luxuries, they wouldn't be here." The normal tour is one year.

TRAIN INDIAN FIREMEN

More than 900 Indians in northern Ontario have been specially trained to fight forest fires.

Careless Usage Has Given Eglomise General Meaning

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

"Eglomist" is another of the technical antique terms that has been given a more general meaning through careless usage. French decorators covered a sheet of glass with foil then drew a line engraving on the foil covered sheet. The open lines were later colored.

Many people now believe eglomise is any type of painted glass. Paint used in antique mirrors, clocks or furniture.

The name comes from Mr. Glome, a French decorator of the late 18th century. The true eglomise process was used in the Near East and Italy before that time.

Q. I have heard many discussions about how old something must be before it is an antique. Some say 100 years old, others say 40. Which is correct?

A. There are several definitions for an antique. For example an antique auto is one of the oldest of its type. The United States Government still rules that an antique is something made first before 1930. The law was passed in 1930 so at that time an antique was 100 years old. Today the average collector considers many types of antiques — Victorian, art nouveau, and even what is now called "new antiques." Most of these are pieces of decorative art that are no longer being produced. Many items made as late as 1920 are now classed as "new antiques."

Q. My thin silver spoon is marked "J. Draper." When was it made?

A. Joseph Draper made coin silver in Wilmington, Delaware from about 1816 to 1822. He moved to Cincinnati about 1849 and worked there and in Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

Q. What do "REG" numbers mean on a piece of glassware?

A "REG" stands for registered. It is a mark used by the English glass makers to record their patterns. It is possible to get the history of the pattern and the name of the maker of the glass from the Registry Office in London, England.

Horsehair fabric is being made today that is very similar to the Victorian upholstery fabric. It can be ordered from any good decorating shop.

"Is it, enough that a child, regardless of age, is required only to be able to see over the windsteld to operate a boat?

"Our Bay of Quinte Squadronettes don't think so and we are doing something about it," writes Mrs. Robert (Dorothy) MacKillop, A.F.M. R. 7, of Belleville, in this issue of The Port Hole. This is a magazine published in the interest of Canadian Power Squadrons, an organization of individual local squadrons banded together by districts into a national body to promote safety and more pleasant boating through proper training.

"With the co-operation of the Superintendent of Public Schools in Belleville," Mrs. Mac Killop continues, "Mr. L. A. Kelly, last spring the Squadronettes initiated a class of instruction in safe boating for Grade 7 pupils.

"With just two Squadronettes free to teach, we could only accept 40 of the 100 children who applied. Fortunately, enough sunshine and baseball cut into our classes, as children wrote the examination and 29 received their certificates.

"To the many children we could not reach with our classes, one of our Squadronettes showed safety films and gave a short talk on boat safety.

"Past Squadronette Commander June Reid, a public school teacher, compiled and wrote our manual for this spring's classes and we are preparing a teacher's manual as we go along.

"CPS members FCC Alex Neville, AP, RCYC. Deane Churchill B, and VC B. Dr. Hale Culloch N, made contributions on weather, anchoring and small boat handling.

"To raise money to cover expenses involved, last September Commander Lenore Mould and launched a Christmas card selling project, and Squadronette Jean Willis knitted an Irish fisherman's sweater to be raffled.

"Printing was still too expensive, so we reproduced our material with stencils.

"This summer classes started on April 25, to give us eight weeks before summer holidays. Our hope is that the children would be fresh in the children's minds during their s u m m e r activities.

"Classes were held once a week after school for half an hour from 4:00 to 4:30. A large part of class time was taken up with demonstrations and visual aids. Members' boats and Mac-

Lady Summerskill Wants Pledge On 'Worldly Goods' Taken Literally

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Meeting Baroness Summerskill of Kenwood, it is hard to recall the days when this tall, aristocratic - looking woman with the warm, friendly manner was bound to raise someone's blood pressure every time she rose in Parliament.

Yet five years in the House of Lords have softened and to blunt the reforming zeal of Ashfield Summerskill, the socialist doctor - politician who has endured more hard knocks for the nation's health than what is good for it than any other woman at Westminster.

Mrs. Summerskill, the government and Labor's long years of opposition, she was a front bench spokesman and political wits for her feminist fervor, her crusade against the drug trade and her able job in the austerity era of persuading people to eat less alcohol than we like it.

Now a mellow, dignified 65, she still loves to stir things up in the more sedate atmosphere of the Lords. Passionately concerned as ever to achieve a society in which married women, particularly married women, Lady Summerskill is currently battling for the right of wives to the matrimonial home.

An British law now stands, if a marriage breaks up, the wife has no security in a home she doesn't legally own.

CONTINUES TO STIR UP BLOOD PRESSURES — Baroness Summerskill of Kenwood, who used to get a rise out of someone every time she rose in the British Parliament, has been in the House of Lords for five years now but her reforming zeal hasn't diminished. mity emerges strongly.

"I look at people through the eyes of a doctor," she says, but the blue eyes hold something more than that detached professional kindness of the physician and are alive with humor and sensitivity.

She came to politics through medicine and her political convictions grew from seeing children in her doctor father's consulting-room suffering from terrible slum-area diseases.

As an aspiring Labor Party candidate in the 1930s, when she was one of 24 socialist doctors who drew up the first blueprint for a national health service, Edith Summerskill was haunted by the image of "crooked - backed children" with rickets, tubercular spines and other crippling ailments originating in diseased milk.

In 1947, she recalled with a touch of emotion, "I got up in the House of Commons and presented the Clean Milk Bill and I said: 'Mr. Speaker, this is my finest hour.'"

SNOEK WAS FLOP

The milk bill was a triumph amid a generally testing time for Edith Summerskill. As parliamentary secretary to the food minister in the 1945 Attlee government, she had the thankless task of touring women's club meetings, assuring housewives in boom meat - starved Britain that whale steaks and South African "snoek," a kind of tuna fish, were as good in food value as beef.

"We made a mistake with snoek," she laughed. "I knew we should have changed the name."

Later in the Attlee administration she became pensions minister. Pitiful tales of ruined woman cabinet minister and her first married woman to achieve cabinet rank. Today she is proud to be part of the four-woman team at Westminster, redheaded daughter Shirley, 34, who is the Labor Party member for the Yorkshire wool town of Halifax.

None of Edith Summerskill's three children have proved so much male anger and ridicule as her outspoken crusade to abolish professional boxing. As a doctor she deplores the fact that 10,000 brain injuries caused by prizefighting.

"People are gradually condemning it," she said, citing her father's consulting-room suffering from terrible slum-area diseases.

"When I first started, every time I got up in the House the word fell on me. Now about me down. But it's become quieter and quieter. In 1962, my boxing bill lost by only seven votes in the Lords —and there was silence."

Aside from abolishing boxing, her big remaining ambition is to see equal pay for women become law.

ANN LANDERS

Personnel Director Gives Valuable Tips

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am employed as a personnel director of a large company. Every day I interview dozens of young men and women who are looking for jobs. Some days I could cry.

Scads of teen-agers come in without high school diplomas. They want to work but they are not qualified to do anything. They must start at the bottom of the ladder. And they are doomed to stay there.

I hear the same story all day long. "I hate school. I want to get a job so my boy friend and I can get married. I want to move out of the house and be on my own."

Please let them see the following advice. Maybe they'll take it from you, Ann Landers.

(1) Finish high school before you go job-hunting.

(2) Dress appropriately when you apply for a job.

(3) Don't crack gum or blow smoke in the interviewer's face.

(4) Come in by yourself. Don't bring a girl friend, a boy friend, or a relative.

(5) Act as if you really want to work.

(6) Don't inquire about a pension plan when you come in for an interview.

(7) Answer every question on the application. If you don't know the answer, put a dash beside the question so the personnel director will know you haven't overlooked it.

This letter in print could do an awful lot of good. — DEEPLY CONCERNED.

DEAR DEEPLY: I checked your suggestions with one of the top personnel directors in Chicago and he could add nothing to your list. Thank you for your fine counsel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You recently printed a letter from a woman who signed her letter "Love Thy What?" I think I have her beat.

Whenever our neighbor sees company drive up to our house, she decides to sweep out her street gutter or clip her front bushes. At first she is content to just eavesdrop (we entertain often in the yard) but after a few minutes she horns in and joins the conversation as if she were an invited guest.

In one of her more benevolent moments she telephoned to say the lampshade in the front window was crooked and she was sure I'd want to straighten it.

Although we resent the old buzzard we feel secure when ever we leave the house. She watches our place as closely as the F.B.I., the C.I.A. and Big Brother combined.

I won't sign my name to this letter because Mrs. Nosy-All probably has her telescope trained on me at this very moment. — BELLWOOD BELLE.

DEAR BELLE: There can't be many women in Bellwood who have called up a neighbor lately to clue her in on a crooked lampshade. So how the old buzzard knows when you feel. You just may be free of her permanently.

Confidential to COLUMBUS TOOK A CHANCE: True, but he had Queen Isabella behind him. You have neither the training, the experience, nor the backing to make such a hazardous move. My advice is to wait until you are 21 and then see if it still looks good to you.

The Experts Say
Utensils May Be Cause Of New Recipe Flop

By ANNE MASON

EDMONTON (CP) — If you ever try a new recipe and have it flop don't immediately curse the cookbook. Your cooking utensils may be to blame.

Successful baking depends on your knowledge of the cooking utensils you have or may buy, says Carolann Rees, assistant home service director at Northwestern Utilities Ltd.

Without this knowledge all the advanced automatic conveniences featuring in into your range can give disappointing results.

Miss Rees's recipe use bright aluminum or tin utensils for recipes and cooking charts. If you're using something different, slight adjustments will give you better results, says Miss Rees.

Glass and tarnished black metal absorb heat a great deal faster than bright aluminum, and old aluminum absorbs it faster than the new.

Foods cooked in such metals require less oven heat and a higher rack position.

Color, size, material and even the brightness of utensils affect cooking results.

VARY HEAT

For instance, if you're baking a two-crust fruit pie in bright aluminum or tin, bake it at 450 degrees for 40-50 minutes, one stage lower than the centre rack position.

If you do it in glass, use the centre rack position and bake it for the same time at 400 degrees.

Using darkened or tarnished metal is recipe for porcelain, centre rack position, baking it at 400 degrees for 35-45 minutes; or 425 degrees for 30 minutes, then 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes.

The first few times brand new aluminum or tin pans are used, the baking may be slightly lighter in color than you want. This is normal, says Miss Rees, and baking color will improve with use of the utensil.

Miss Rees also has some tips for the use of a gas range.

She recommends keeping it clean for most efficient use, making sure that the jets are not clogged. All the parts of the burners that need to be cleaned are easily removable and can be washed in soap and water and dried in a warm oven.

And if you find light goes out, there's an automatic gas cutoff.

MAKING BREAD RISE

Miss Rees, who has a B.Sc. in home economics from the University of Alberta, has also some helpful kitchen hints.

If you have a gas range and make homemade bread, just put in the cold oven to rise and the warmth from the pilot light will do the trick nicely.

Eggs give better volume if they are removed from the refrigerator long enough to warm to room temperature before beating. But whites and yolks separate more easily when chilled.

To sour milk, add one tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar to a cup of sweet milk and let stand at room temperature for half an hour.

To prevent chop sticky fruits, heat the knife or scissors thoroughly in boiling water.

To melt chocolate without a gooey mess in the pan, place it in a pan in a saucepan over extremely low heat. The pan remains clean and the melted chocolate can easily be removed from the wax paper.

Hibbard of Belleville and Denis Wesley Edwards of Mimico, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Edwards of Belleville. Mrs. H. C. Brown was organist and Mrs. Anne Newton, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white pure silk chiffon, fashioned with sheath skirt, Empire waistline, Mona Lisa sleeves, re - embroidered Alencon lace trim at the waistline and sleeves and a Watteau back with headdress of chiffon leaves and clustered roses and seed pearls held her four - tier cathedral length veil of silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of three white orchids, ivy and stephanotis.

Miss Trudy Hibbard of Belleville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss George Anne McBrien of Toronto, cousin of the bride and Mrs. Nancy Finkle of Cooksville. All wore sheath dresses with Empire waistlines and scoop necklines, fashioned of butterscup yellow re - embroidered chantilly lace. Cape overblouse tops with matching peau de soie bows completed their ensembles, and their headpieces were butterscup yellow sheer leaves with orange blossoms and silk illusion veils. They carried baskets of yellow Shasta and bronze daisies.

Miss Barbara Ann Edwards, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid and Miss Heather McBrien, cousin of the bride, were in empire style dresses of silk in white chiffon over taffeta floor length gowns with matching sashes, Empire waists and butterscup yellow ribbon trim. They were headpieces of yellow Shasta daisies and carried baskets of flowers similar to, but smaller than those of the other attendants.

Mr. Frank Edwards, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. William Hibbard, brother of the bride, Mr. William Finkle, Jr., of Cookeville and Mr. Gary Edwards, brother of the bridegroom, as junior usher. Mark Edwards, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring-bearer.

Mr. William Finkle Jr. was master of ceremonies at the reception held at the Belleville Shrine Club. To receive the guests, the bride's mother chose a silk linen ensemble in shell pink with full-length coat, matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a linen sheath dress in Sauge green with white lace trim, white accessories and corsage of a single white orchid.

For her wedding trip to Cape Cod and the eastern United States, the bride chose a three-piece ensemble of natural imported linen with cape jacket, matching accessories and a mauve orchid corsage.

On their return, the couple will live in Belleville until September and then in Toronto.

Golden Curry Rice Salad

QUESTION: Would you have the recipe for Curried Rice as a cold salad with dressing? I tasted some with celery, onion, peas, and bits of ham and it was delicious. Mrs. E. W.

ANSWER: Golden Curry Rice Salad fits your description.

GOLDEN CURRY RICE SALAD

(serves 8)

¾ cup raw long grain rice
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 chicken bouillon cube
1½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 tablespoon vinegar
shake of pepper
½ cup ripe olives coarsely chopped
¼ cup finely chopped inner celery
1 small green onion finely chopped
½ cup cooked new or fresh frozen green peas
¼ to 1 cup diced ham or chicken
¾ cup (approximately) mayonnaise

In heavy saucepan with tight - fitting lid mix together the raw rice rice, salt and curry powder. Add bouillon cube, pour in boiling water over, bring to boil, cover, turn off heat and let stand 8 minutes. Turn heat on low for 25 minutes when rice will be tender and all liquid absorbed.

Blend together the salad oil, vinegar and pepper and pour over hot rice. Gently mix, allow to cool. When cool add all remaining ingredients and chill thoroughly. Serve on crisped lettuce leaves garnished with slices of hard - cooked egg and ripe olives. A lovely salad and a good substitute and change from potato salad for a summer buffet.

A Lift for Living

Even Weeds Share Sun Among Them

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Take a common weed in your hands. Twist it between your fingers, turning it about. Count the revolutions the stem must make before a leaf projects directly above the leaf where you began your count.

Leaves do not grow in random fashion upon a stem. They spring from their support in a stem in such a way as to give each other an equal amount of light. It would almost seem as if the Creator has blessed even the most common leaf on a roadside weed with a kindly consideration for all the other leaves on that plant, since each one is so positioned as to give every other one its share of sunshine.

One of the most important things that can happen to a person occurs when his interests grow outward toward other people, so that he recognizes their needs, desires and rights and wants them to have their share of life's good things.

We begin life as self-centred creatures. The things that interest us then are that directly serve our elemental needs — the mother who nurses us, the bottle that pacifies us, the toy rattle that entertains us.

The emotional growth of some people is stunted at this stage. They remain forever self-insulated, too much absorbed in self to see the beauty of the world, the dignity of human life or to think about the greatness and goodness of God. They are insistent upon the recognition of their own needs and rights and neglectful of the needs and rights of others. They are most likely to serve the people around them than to exploit them.

Whenever such people declare "I love you," they really mean "I love me, and want you to make me happy." And they cannot even appreciate the love and consideration that parents, spouses and friends lavish upon them, for such devotion is accepted as a matter of course. It is due them.

ESSENTIAL LESSON

One of the first lessons a child must be taught (and no one is truly adult, no matter his age, until he learns this lesson) is that he must adjust to the fact that there are others in his environment who have needs and desires that are just as real and just as urgent as his own.

Therefore, he cannot take whatever he wishes, because others have wants as great as his own. He cannot do or say whatever he pleases because others have feelings as sensitive as his own. The person who grows emotionally and spiritually becomes more and more conscious of others and their needs. He tries to keep himself out of their way, so that they can get their share of the sunlight.

Moreover, as we grow toward spiritual maturity we become more aware of how much others have contributed to our welfare. We are carried out of ourselves, beyond egotism, so that we acknowledge that other lives have been blended with ours, enriching us.

Marian Anderson, the great Negro contralto, usually uses the impersonal "we" instead of "I" in her conversation. This gives her speech a touch of formality that seems to be found objectionable. During a trip to Asia a Buddhist scholar questioned her about this habit.

Marian Anderson replied, "One realizes, the longer one lives, that there is no particular thing that one can do alone. Many people are involved in the work we do — those who wrote the music, those who made the pianos on which the accompanist plays, the accompanist who actually lends music to the performance. To go out without any of these things, to stand on your own — even the voice, the breath, the everything — it isn't your doing. So the 'I' in it is very small, after all."

Yes, in the good life the "I" is very small. When we are at our best we know that God is big, and we are grateful for His light falling upon us. We restrain ourselves from overshadowing others, who should get their share of Heaven's blessings and we rejoice in all of those who have not selfishly absorbed all they could of God's gifts, but have passed God's goodness our way.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Then He arose and rebuked the winds and the seas; and there was a great calm."

St. Matthew 8:26

One of the most beautiful religious art windows in America is that above the altar in the chapel of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

Placed by members of the naval class of 1899 as a memorial to Admiral David D. Porter, always.

"Eternal Father Strong To Save"

Eternal Father, strong to save,
Whose arm doth bind the restless wave,
Who bidd'st the mighty ocean deep,
Its own appointed limits keep;
O hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Saviour, whose almighty word
The winds and waves submissive heard;
Who walkedst on the foaming deep,
And calm amid its rage did sleep;
O, hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Sacred Spirit, who didst brood
Upon the chaos dark and rude;
Who bad'st its angry tumult cease,
And gavest life, and light, and peace;
O hear us when we cry to Thee
For those in peril on the sea!

O Trinity of love and power,
Our brethren shield in danger's hour;
From rock and tempest, fire and foe,
Protect them wheresoever they go;
And ever let there rise to Thee
Glad hymns of praise from land and sea.

It portrays the Saviour walking upon the water as described in the Bible. At every religious service it reminds worshipers that Jesus is still the Ruler of the winds and the seas.

It is a tradition of the Naval Academy to close chapel services with the singing of the hymn. Every naval graduate of Annapolis has sung it countless times and will remember it for many years.

And for navy men and officers serving on ships throughout the world, there is something satisfying in the knowledge that they are being "remembered" regularly by kneeling congregations in the navy's mother church. The hymn was written in 1860 by William Whiting, a clergyman of the Anglican Church of England, for confirmation in a volume of "Hymns Ancient and Modern."

Lines on Life

When to Speak Up

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

When should a man speak up? When must he speak up?

When we are convinced that we are speaking in behalf of those who have been wronged — and not for petty self-defences — we must speak up and out!

When we truly feel the hurt ourselves — as if we were the victims — then we are obligated to seek redress. When another man has been wronged, our face turns red in shame. It is not enough to turn our other cheek, we must openly protest the wrong. Real concern cannot end up in indifference and it must move us to recognize that all of society is endangered when the defenceless go unprotected because the protected do not protest. Those who stand idly by when the blood of others is shed become kinsmen to the murderer. They have hunted with and buried with the dead.

Nor is the obligation to protest laid upon a man only when violence and feol-play are brutally obvious. Often, a much more subtle form of hurt is at work, and it requires even greater courage than physical might.

In the Germany of Hitler, great scientists, men of philosophy, experts at technology sat in their academies and spoke nary a word of protest against Nazism. They were not asked to kill Jews, nor later, were they asked to slay Catholics or to destroy some outspoken Protestant churchmen. This would be too brutal a thing to suggest to professors! They were asked to do something much more subtle — to engage in a much more discreet form of violence.

They were instructed to develop fantastic theories and philosophies and to give these fantasies of super-race the stamp of their intellectual approval. What did these nice, harmless philosophers and scientists do? Nothing; nothing at all. They merely sat on their hands while their colleagues, with whom they had studied and from whom they had learned, were annihilated. These innocuous good people, had harmed nobody, since all they did was to propound theories — about war and race and science. These writers of big-lie theories, after all, took no lives. All they did was to make possible concentration camps; to bring about crematoria; to justify mass deportations.

Beware, then, the educated, good people. They will harm no one — no one in their own families, their carefully protected circles, or their tight little islands. The good people love to be in the majority. That way they can easily hide their cowardice and their callousness. They can get lost in the crowd; they can keep quiet.

Why do good people forget?

Lighting the Way

CAUGHT BY CAMERA

In Burlington, Massachusetts, the Fire Department had been responding to an unusual number of false alarms. The Police Department installed an automatic hidden camera for the purpose of identifying the troublemakers. The camera used infra-red films with invisible flash.

Within a few days of the installation, pictures appeared in many newspapers across the country, showing two boys ringing a false alarm. Using the photo, the Police quickly identified the boys who confessed to ringing a whole series of these alarms. They were disciplined accordingly.

Robert Louis Stevenson wrote, "We are condemned to some responsibility." What he meant was that we cannot do wrong without suffering punishment. There is a hidden camera placed within us known as "conscience." Even though our sins may be undetected by others, conscience will see to it that we punish ourselves. We never really get away with doing wrong.

New Mood of Self-criticism Becomes Evident in Egypt

Egyptians are groping cautiously towards criticism of the state and President Nasser in encouraging this attitude. But it doesn't extend to basic policies. The new mood of self-examination is discussed by a Canadian Press reporter who visited Egypt.

By CARL MOLLINS

CAIRO (CP)—The hero of an Egyptian novel just published in English translation behaves like cautiously contemporary Egypt itself: ambitious, often suspicious and sometimes unscrupulous in a push for the secure life.

But the central character of Fathy Ghanem's The Man Who Lost His Shadow has another quality that this one-party state has only recently and haltingly begun to display —a readiness to criticize with brutal candor his own actions and motives.

Near the end of the book, the hero Yusif speaks to Egypt in thought:

"If you, the people, could bear to confront the truth as it really is. . . then you would know with what mixed motives and lies defending Egypt: principle confused with lack of scruple, honor concealed with fear. We live in a wretched splendor."

Ghanem, an accepted political theorist who is not a novelist, is asking a lot of any state in his plea for completely honest self-criticism. For Egypt at this time, he would be content with what he calls "some of the truth and no poison."

The fact that Ghanem can publish such views argues that Egypt enjoys greater freedom of expression. Further, Ghanem is reported to be a favorite author of President Gamal Abdel Nasser. He is one of a group of politically journalists who act as conscience for the Egyptian revolution. He is not a defender of official policy as well as leading it.

A lawyer who turned to creative writing 16 years ago and to political journalism in 1956, Ghanem was a top pointed chairman of the state-supported Arab Socialist Union Nasser Agency in the spring.

He says the Suez crisis of 1956, when Egypt was under attack by Britain, France and Israel, "made me realize with a shock that an interest in history, philosophy and the arts was not enough—I had a responsibility to think about politics."

CRITICIZE FAILINGS

His thinking led him to believe that official political truths were probably inevitable after the 1952 revolution, when the government was striving to consolidate its position and rally a population made apathetic by generations of suppression.

"But I believe now is the time for a thinker to speak the whole truth," Ghanem said in an interview. "We must face reality. For example, we cannot place the entire blame for our backwardness on foreign occupation and interference. We must take responsibility now for our poverty."

Ghanem's campaign has coincided with a new mood of criticism: self-examination encouraged publicly by Nasser.

Members of the government periodically appear on television to answer pointed questions. Public discussion of the five - year development plan that ended last year agonized over shortcomings as well as lauding achievements.

Ghanem himself is intent on transforming MENA into "a professional news agency, not just a newspaper organ for the government—although, of course, we support the basic aims of the government."

Critical discussion has not yet touched basics. It would be dangerous to dig at entrenched policies, as Arabs learned when Tunisia's Habib Bourguiba was furiously ostracized for suggesting accommodation with Israel.

WASTE OF ENERGY

Policies that appear negative and wasteful even to sympathetic Egyptians remain immune to criticism in Egypt.

"If only the Egyptians would stop wasting energy and money in that stupid Yemen war, drop some of their suspicions about the West, forget about Israel and ignore the inevitable clash of Saudi Arabia, their economy would be better off," an American resident of Cairo remarked in exasperation.

Officially, all those policies are logical expressions of the very foundations of the Egyptian revolution: to support progress and fight alien interference in the Arab world. By the reasoning of the revolution, the Yemeni republicans represent progress, Saudi Arabia signifies reaction to progress and Israel is a creature of Western efforts to thwart Arab ambition.

Even if the less sympathetic American were correct, the Egyptian leaders would answer that it is better to stand by principles and live in "wretched splendor" than abandon revolutionary ideals and live in affluent surrender.

The majority of Egyptians might well agree. But the question remains closed to discussion, despite the Fathy Ghanems.

Nobody in Egypt is yet able to ask, in the words of Ghanem's fictional hero, whether in any of the entrenched policies Egypt is confusing honor with greed or principle with lack of scruple.

LAWYERS MEET

QUEBEC (CP)—The annual congress of the International Academy of Trial Lawyers, being held for the first time in Canada, opened Friday under the chairmanship of Mr. James Dempsey of New York. There are only two Canadian legal experts among the 334 members of the academy, whose head office is here in New York. They are Douglas Hislops, a Toronto criminologist, and Isidore Levinter also of Toronto.

PLANS REORGANIZATION — Fathy Ghanem, 41, a novelist and short-story writer, is the newly-appointed board chairman of Middle East News Agency and in many ways represents a new generation of Egyptians. His assignment with the agency is to reorganize. "We tried to be a big international newsagency and failed because we had not established a sound base — we were not even covering our own country properly," he says.

Luci Johnson

planned for the 36-member wedding party after a 30-minute drive in limousines from the White House to the curving driveway of the church.

The wedding party steps out before a battery of television cameras to make a long climb up 37 steps to the high-arched doorway of the church.

Luci's 12 bridesmaids, including her sister, Lynda, the maid of honor, and the junior bridesmaid in the stately floor-length pink dresses down the 250-foot-long aisle to the accompaniment of a 150-voice male choir and a twin pipe organ.

The groomsmen, Nugent and his 12 groomsmen wore striped trousers and morning coats for the occasion.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington Solus in the celebration of the nuptial mass along with two priests who had been religious advisers of the bride and groom.

The marriage ceremony itself begins a few minutes after the mass starts.

VERY RESTRICTED

Most of the wedding guests, as well as the president and Mrs. Johnson who have front-row seats, will have trouble seeing the ceremony which takes place in the vast sanctuary of the church—more than 100 feet from the first row of pews.

The setting is splendid. From an arch behind the altar, a great gold - and - red mosaic Christ in Majesty—3,600 square feet—looks down.

Luci and Nugent kneel on white satin pillows in front of the altar for the 10-minute wedding ceremony performed by Rev. John A. Kusinskas of Chicago, a lifelong friend of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Johnson wore a silk-and-lace yellow dress and coat ensemble by New York designer Adele Simpson, with a matching yellow chiffon turban. Mrs. Nugent was in aquamarine lace and net short coat and dress by designer Virginia Fraser of Lake Forest, Ill. She wore a veil.

Luzy and her bridegroom met only a little over a year ago and became engaged last Christmas Eve. Their friendship blossomed at the time Luci converted to Catholicism on her 19th birthday in July, 1965.

Police Present July Report

NAPANEE — Nothing much happens in this little town of fewer than 5,000 souls, but the police force of six, including the chief, presented a report to the Town Council this week which proved that they had been anything but idle during July.

During the month they investigated four accidents where the damage was over $100 and two minor ones where it was less. One person was injured. They laid two charges under the criminal code, 12 under the Liquor Control Act, one under the Highway Traffic Act, and nine against a motorist who broke the town by-law forbidding a left-hand turn at the Post Office corner. Fifty-five people had overparked. Summonses were served to four people wanted by the Police in other places.

Complaints made by 91 people were investigated. 11 merchants had forgotten to lock their doors, and the policemen kept their eyes on three houses whose owners were on holiday.

There were four breakins, but in only one did the thieves make a haul. Here they took property which cannot be replaced for less than $375. One adult was reported missing by his wife, and was located for her by the police in another county. Three children had to be looked for, two girls who stayed out too late, and a tiny tot who was found a few blocks from home.

Police viewed as a result of charges laid by the police force totalled $774 under the criminal code, $231 under the Highway Traffic Act, $195 for breaches of the Liquor Control Act and $5.50 for breaking by-law.

During the month holidays taken by the men added up to 29 days but they worked 39 hours overtime. The police cruiser travelled 2,825 miles just on the streets of the town.

ered the wildcat walkout which has put some 17,000 men out of work.

One striker said "I think we will be asking for back-to-work Monday and give the company seven days to come up with a new contract.

"If we do go back, then the company will be forced to come up with the contract we demand because if they don't we will turn out again and it'll cost them millions."

A company official estimated Friday night that Sielge is losing $1,250,000 a day in sales and the workers are losing $250,000 a day.

The contract between Sielco and the Steelworkers expired July 31 and the workers walked out Wednesday night, complaining of the slow pace of contract negotiations.

MINOR ACCIDENT

NAPANEE — An accident in Napanee at the Centre St. - Dundas St. intersection Friday morning spoiled the motor holiday of two Pennsylvania people. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zarefoss of Somerset, Pa., when driving east on Dundas St. shortly after eight o'clock were in a collision with a car driven by Robert Hagerman, proceeding north on Centre St. Estimate of the damage in the Mitchell car is $300. The Zarefoss car received approximately $150 damage. There were no injuries, and both cars were able to go on their way. The accident is under investigation.

JAYCEES SUPPORT GREEN BELT

At their dinner meeting last week, the Jaycees brought up the question of the proposed Green Belt, planned by retired from the western outskirts of Napanee and follow the river to Highway 401. Sections have been developed, and other sections, still undeveloped, are owned by the Napanee Realty Township. There is a growing feeling that land in between these sections should be acquired now before they are privately developed, thus shutting off the public from the river entirely. The Jaycees agreed to give their support to a movement to urge the authorities to purchase this land now before it is too late. They have offered their assistance in whatever way they can be of help. They are hoping that other service clubs in the town will follow their example.

RECEIVE APPLICATIONS FOR CONSTABLE

Eight applications have been received by the Napanee Town Council for the position of police constable. They were in reply to an advertisement inserted in local and nearby newspapers following the resignation of Constable Thomas McCrae, who is retiring October 30. Applications were received until July 29. No decision has yet been reached by Deputy - Reeve W. R. Douglas informed the council that a meeting of the Police Committee, of which he is chairman, had not yet been held.

SPORTS SLICES

Cassius Clay heard Big Ben chime revelly; stirred in his silken whatever-he-wears in bed, yawned and looked at the calendar.

He woke a puzzled look. His handsome brow wrinkled (the new light came on. "Yeah, yeah, I knew there was sumpin I have to do tonight. Seems to me I have a sparrin' date with some English bloke named London."

If you're interested you can get a first-hand glimpse of the gloved festivities. It's being carried on CBC, CTV and ABC television networks starting five o'clock this evening. That is just about now.

Muhammad Ali tangles with Britisher Brian London in what is tabbed as a world heavyweight championship bout, but in Ali's opinion just another workout and a golden lining for a depleted exchequer.

Cassius has a lean and hungry money look. He needs the dinero. So does his beautiful ex-wife now a nightclub star who has an alimony tab on the Clay bankroll for the next ten years.

Clay faces a thirty-days all-expense paid vacation in the bachelor's suite of an American jail if he doesn't come through with the alimony allotment within a month.

An advance on tonight's stipend probably took care of that. Outside of one last-minute taunt Clay has been absorbing his disdain for his opponent by assuming an attitude of complete boredom. He substituted the yawn for the tomahay blast.

Yesterday he sat around doing nothing the most of the day, then attending a movie and when he watched "buddy Jim Brown, late of the Cleveland Browns, work before the cameras.

He took time out to toss a verbal barb at London in a lone reversal to Ali fistic form.

"Put your wife and children in the ringside" he taunted. "Remember that you're fighting for them. Then, if you hit the champ, and he don't fall, run."

But Britain's 32-year-old challenger who is a modest champion, retorted "I don't take much notice of what Clay says. It's going to be a tough hard fight. I feel fit. I have everything to gain and nothing to lose. The ambition is to make an honest money and I can for my wife and children. I am always a writer."

London, whose forte in fighting is not finesse but strength, like former Clay pigeons hopes to aim his attack on Ali. He says, and rightly so, that he is unlikely to outpoint the fleet-footed champion.

The handsome wild-o-the-wisp Muhammad is the epitome of gliding grace. In more sophisticated spheres of athletic endeavour, the critics call it "poetry of motion."

Clay has displayed his disdain for London by doing a minimum of sparring. However he has yet to prove his carriage a solid knockout punch. With this in mind he has been blasting the heavy bag with a venom he's rarely displayed before.

London who trained in Blackpool arrived in London yesterday with his wife, brother, a doctor, and a 16-year-old horsebreeder, the eyewitness said.

The fight is being held in the Earls Court indoor stadium which has an 18,000 capacity. The place is a sellout which will provide gross receipts of $548,000.

Twenty closed television circuits in Britain could bring an additional $300,00. Clay will harvest $253,000, London, $112,000.

A Gory Story

Main Bouters See "Red"

By ROBERT SNEYDLLA
Staff Sportswriter

BEtieville wrestling fans were treated to plenty of uproarious action at the Memorial Arena last night, as the groans, lunges and hubbub of professional wrestling returned for another Friday.

Three top - flight bouts, climaxed by a two-fall match between Billy Cash and arch - villain Terry Garvin, were witnessed by a capacity crowd.

The main event pitted the black - hearted Garvin team against the ponderously slow hero, Bib Cash. What began as a care - free frolick around the ring turned into a blood - bath for both fighters.

The battle started with Cash downing Garvin regularly. Garvin would fall prey to Cash's punch to the midsection, and fold in a huge blob on the mat. Garvin's abdomen soon seemed to sag even more than usual.

Garvin stubbornly fought back with a perpetual attack on Cash's forehead, which split and poured forth blood.

Not to be outdone, Cash flung Garvin's 230 pound frame nose - first into the corner post, to start a beak - bleed. Both men fought the remainder of the bout with red faces.

The villain realized that Cash's noggin was too tough a nut to crack, and therefore turned his attention to the hero's leg. Cash and his leg fell in a heap onto the floor, and "both" were unable to continue. Garvin was thus declared winner, while the beaten Cash was carried to the dressing room.

In the preliminary, Bill Williams and Don Serrino fought to an exciting draw. Williams faithfully attacked Serrino's arm while Serrino just-as-faithfully tried to scamper out of the ring, and it made for exciting bowing.

In the second match, Ron Gavrin, junior member of the Garvin family promoter, took on Chief Swimmer "Badges" Prince

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters)—Janet Steinbeck, a 15-year-old Australian swimmer, surprised Prince Charles Friday when she stepped forward and pinned her Commonwealth Games kangaroo team badge on his tie.

The prince was touring the Games village with his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, and his sister, Princess Anne, when he was surprised by Miss Steinbeck.

Australian athletes hurriedly decided to give Princess Anne a badge, too, and high jumper Robyn Wood, house ran to the girls' quarters to get one. She returned with her hat in hand it to the princess through a car window as the royal party departed.

Teen Swimmers Set World Record

By ED SIMON

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP) — Canada's teen-age women swimmers reigned as the best team some in the world today, cracking Australia's long dominance in water sports.

Canada and Australia each smashed a world record Friday night to share the first two gold medals handed out at the British Empire Games pool.

The opening - day performances of the Canadian team, particularly the swimmers, was one of the best showings by Canada since before the Second World War, and it wound up with the Canadians grabbing four medals—one gold, one silver and two bronze.

Five championships were decided Friday and 13 more are on tap today in track and field, swimming and diving, women's fencing and weightlifting.

The first world mark fell to Canada in the women's 440-yard freestyle relay when Marion Lay, a Vancouver-born resident, Corvina, Calif., outswam Australian ace Lyn Bell by a foot as the anchor leg to give the Canadians a time of four minutes, 10.8 seconds. This was two-tenths of a second off the previous mark, set by the Australian team including Miss Bell and Dawn Fraser at the 1962 Games in Perth.

REPLY SWIFT

The Australians replied impressively in the men's 880-yard freestyle relay, turning in a magic eight-minute barrier for the first time.

The Aussie team blazed home in 7:38.5, far ahead of second place Canada and 7.6 seconds under the world record set last in Leipzig last summer by a German team.

The other members of the record-breaking Canadian women's team beside Miss Lay were Elaine Tanner and Marilyn Wilson of Vancouver and Louise Kennedy of London, Ont. The Australian team which set the mark missed the old mark at 4:12.3 included Jan Murphy, Jenny Steinbeck and Marilyn Conway.

Miss Tanner, the versatile 15 year-old who probably will swim another 11 races before the end of day swimming program ends, swam a 1:01.6 opening leg to touch about a second for the lead. Miss Steinbeck led Miss Hughes by about one-half length on the second leg but Miss Kennedy had earlier qualified for today's final of the 110-yard freestyle, holding on the cake, Gilchrist and Kasting made it to the final of the men's freestyle sprint; Peter Avison of Montreal and Jacks qualified for the 110-yard butterfly final, and Gilchrist and Hutton will join Monday in the final of the 440 individual medley events.

Workhorse Gilchrist twice broke Games records. He started off with a 55.5 time in the 110 freestyle, one of three swimmers to break the record held by 1962 Games champion Dick Pound of Montreal, who has retired, and Bob McGregor of Scotland. He followed with a 5:30.7 clocking in the individual medley, compared with the Games mark of 5:35.3 set by Alex Alexander of Australia in 1962.

Hutton placed second to Gilchrist in their medley effort with a time of 5:05.5. Five others exceeded the old mark.

"Our fellows swim right west out to qualify," Simpson said. "I think Sandy can go another 2:30 seconds faster in the final."

Coach Elated Over Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—"Okay, kids, let's get out of here and home to bed because we've got a big day tomorrow to do."

That's how Ted Simpson of Vancouver, coach of Canada's British Empire Games swimming team, greeted his world record - making women's medley yard freestyle relay team shortly after they had given Canada its first gold medal of the eighth Games Friday night.

But the 29-year-old coach said that a huge grin that probably wouldn't wipe off his face. He greeted each member of the quartet, Elaine Tanner, Jane Hughes and Marion Lay, all of Vancouver, and Louise Kennedy of London, Ont., with an affectionate hug and words of praise.

The dazzling teen-agers had just shattered the world mark of 4:11.0 set by Australia's Perth team at Perth in 1962 with a fantastic clocking of 4:10.8. And in the process they had beaten the Australian team for the gold medals with great teams in 1958 and again at Tokyo with the Canada Dawn Fraser swimming the anchor leg each time.

ELATED FOR SECOND

But Friday night, the Australians had to settle for the second spot.

"This is only the first night of swimming in these Games and we've got proven ourselves anonymous," Simpson said in an interview. "This gold medal will fire up our whole team, I'm sure of that."

But he wouldn't change his pre-game predictions that Canada would place behind Australia in the relay. "And we'll have to wait and see what happens," he continued.

Tanner, the mighty mouse of the team, opened a one-length lead in the first leg after what she called a "great start."

"I had been practising my starts all week," she said. "I was really wanted to win it but we didn't think that we'd get the world record."

Because of the wet conditions, both teams had trouble hanging on to the ball. Hamilton fumbled three times, losing two, and Toronto lost its only fumble.

Peters snatched Van Burkleo's wobbly pass on the Toronto 15 in the third quarter and rambled into the end zone for Hamilton's first touchdown. Gabler returned to the quarterback slot and his first pass was picked off by Jim Reynolds on the Toronto 45.

Three plays later, Sutherin kicked a 42-yard field goal.

Hamilton then began to tighten up its defence and it appeared Argos were through for the night. But Taylor broke down the sidelines, leaped high into the air, latched on to Gabler's 45-yard toss and stepped over the goal line for the score.

Hamilton kept the ball on the ground following Taylor's touchdown and sent up yardage before Kunts ended the scoring for the night.

Peters snatched 17 first downs, Toronto 15. Gabler completed 12 of 25 passes.

Matched Hamilton Air Attack
Argonauts Bow To Ti-Cats 18-8

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats whose defence ages like good wine, held Toronto Argonauts to 127 yards along Exhibition Stadium's playing surface and added the patented Tiger-Cat offensive attack to complete a big win Friday night.

But the Argonauts appeared to have ended a long search for an adequate aerial attack, matching Hamilton's 189 yards and scoring touchdowns through the throwing of rookie Wally Gabler in the first Eastern Football Conference game of the season for both clubs.

A crowd of 29,364 saw the two clubs collide-bout 1-1 after a defensive first half before the Tiger-Cats put on the pressure and scored touchdowns in each of the final two quarters.

Joe Zuger piloted club well on offence, running for 51 yards and completing 10 of 18 pass attempts. Hamilton, veterans Angelo Mosca, John Barrow and Marty Martinello spearheaded the defence.

Gabler, who established himself as a fine passer and strong runner, was yanked after he matched Zuger's passing with 189 yards.

Bobby Taylor, Gabler's favorite receiver, picked off nine passes for 126 yards, including a 46-yard touchdown, but Gabler was acquired by the Argos this winter from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference and looks like he will be a standout for coach Bob Shaw's club.

Halfback Bobby Kunts and defensive halfback Herb Paterra of Hamilton touchdowned with veteran Don Sutherin adding two converts and a field goal. Hamilton's other touchdown came when Toronto recovered a Tiger-Cat fumble in the end zone in the first quarter.

Taylor's touchdown, a convert by Sutherin Vilinas and a single point following a quick kick by Bill Van Burkleo accounted for Toronto's points.

A steady rain fell throughout most of the first half, sending both quarterbacks to the air.

Orioles Drop Three In Row

Lead Cut To 11

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles were wild about Jim Hannan, but they certainly don't want to miss Bob Humphreys again.

The Orioles lunged on Hannan for two runs on three walks, a wild pitch and a grounder in the first inning, then were stymied by Humphreys and his strikeout pitch for the next seven innings as they bowed 4-2 to Washington Senators Friday night.

When Hannan started the second inning with a walk to Dave Johnson, Senators' manager Gil Hodges brought in Humphreys.

The right-hander proceeded to retire 11 Orioles in a row, striking out four of them. Luis Aparicio broke the string with a fifth-inning single but Humphreys merely started over, setting down the next seven batters, three on strikeouts.

In all, Humphreys allowed just two singles while striking out eight in seven innings.

The Orioles' hit output gave them five in the last two games and the defeat gave them a three-game losing streak. That marks only the fourth time this year, and only the second time since late in May, that Baltimore has lost three or more games in a row.

Despite the losing streak, the Orioles still hold an 12-game lead in the American League and it will take a lot more than three straight defeats to whittle that down very far.

In other games, Detroit Tigers blanked Boston Red Sox 2-0, Chicago White Sox defeated California Angels 3-1, Cleveland Indians edged New York Yankees 3-4 before bowing 3-0 and Kansas City Athletics trimmed Minnesota Twins 4-2.

By the time Humphreys entered the game, Washington already had taken a 2-0 lead. Ken McMullen hit a two-run homer and Fred Valentine followed with a bases-empty blast in the bottom of the first.

Interprovincial Golf

Alberta Team Favored

MONTREAL (CP) — Alberta, boasting three veterans from the 1965 Willingdon Cup championship team, is favored to repeat in this year's 36-hole interprovincial matches at Summerlea Golf Club Aug. 6-8.

The nine four-man provincial teams — New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island play as a unit—meet Monday and Tuesday, playing 18 holes each day.

Individual scores of the 36 team players will also count as their scores in the qualifying round for the Canadian amateur tournament starting Wednesday with match play.

A field of 160 is expected to play in the 36-hole qualifying round, from which the 64 low scorers will start out in the amateur. Last year's winner of the amateur was George (Bunky) Henry of Valdosta, Ga., who also must make a qualifying effort.

Summerlea's two courses will be stalked in the Cup and qualifying play—the front nine of the Dorion course and the back nine of the Cascades layout.

Bob Wylie, Doug Silverberg and Keith Alexander, all of Calgary, and Edmonton's John Kilburn make up the Alberta contingent. In 1965, Alberta, with the same makeup, except for Kilburn, won its third Willingdon Cup in five years.

PONE THERAPY

The teams from Ontario and British Columbia pose the biggest threat to the defending champions — the eastern province on the strength of Kitchener's Gary Cowan, Doug Mossop of Toronto and Burlington's Nick Weslock and Paul Williams.

The coast province features' John Johnston, John Russell, Wayne Vollmer and Art Donaldson, all of Vancouver.

Dodgers Whip Astros 12-1

Santo's 2 Homers, Single Beat Giants

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

They're throwing at Ron Santo's head again, but his bat keeps getting in the way.

The Chicago Cubs third baseman was out of the lineup for 10 days earlier this season with a fractured cheekbone courtesy of a fast pitch by Jack Fisher of New York Mets, Friday, Bob Bolin of San Francisco Giants took a couple of shots at him.

But Santo bit two home runs and a two-run single off Bolin that gave Chicago a 4-3 victory.

Santo's first homer came off Bolin in the second inning and when Ron appeared at the plate again in the third he fell to avoid a close pitch. Eventually, Bolin struck him out.

Bolin tried it again when Santo led off the bottom of the ninth with San Francisco leading 3-1. But he climbed out of the dirt and hit his 29th homer of the season, sending the game into overtime.

DODGERS WALLOP ASTROS

In other games, Cincinnati Reds beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4, St. Louis Cardinals New York 7-4, Atlanta Braves crushed Philadelphia Phillies 8-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers bounced Houston Astros 12-1.

By the time Santo came up to the 10th, Bolin had given way to Frank Linzy but the Giants had gone ahead 3-2 on Dick Tracewski's homer in the top of the inning. The Cubs loaded the bases, however, and with one out Ron cracked the single that won it.

It was the second day running the Giants had lost after being two outs from victory. Thursday, Ron Swoboda's three-run homer did the job.

The Giants now are one percentage point behind the league-leading Pirates, who bowed to Gordy Coleman's tie-breaking home run in the ninth inning. The victory was the Reds' sixth in a row, fifth of their last 12 and 16th of their last 18.

Teen Diver Pulls Surprise

By ED SIMON

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Beverly Boys, a freckled-faced little tow-head who wasn't in her best event, surprised Canadian officials Friday with a strong bid for a British Empire Games medal in springboard diving.

The 15-year-old Toronto district youngster, who trained team-mate Kathy McDonald of Vancouver in the national springboard championship, finished the compulsory half of the Games competition in second place with a point score of 304.8, within striking distance of the leader, Kathleen Rowlatt of England, who had 323.3.

In third place in the field of seven was defending champion Susan Knight of Australia at 299.8, who had been running second until Beverley Boys hauled her with the last of her five dives. The competition ends today.

Miss McDonald started shakily and was well back in sixth place with a score of 249.69 that left her virtually no chance of catching the leaders.

Packers Blank Stars

CHICAGO (AP) — "Revenge!"

Vince Lombardi mulled the word, then said:

"I don't believe in the word. I can't remember as far back as 1961."

But everyone knows that elephants and Vince Lombardi never forget, and in 1961 the College All-Stars whipped Lombardi's Green Bay Packers 20-17.

So even Lombardi had to admit that "the boys were really up for this" when they completely crushed the richest assemblage of All-Star talent in football Friday before a crowd of 72,000.

The National Football League champions ran amok the biggest previous shutout in the 33-game series while amassing 308 yards on the ground and in the air.

Running backs Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung combined with fullback Bart Starr as the Packers rolled relentlessly through the All-Star defense.

Taylor ripped off 75 yards in 15 carries and scored on runs of one and 13 yards. Hornung carried nine times for 44 yards and set up one touchdown before he had the wind knocked out of him and left. Starr completed 13 of 22 passes for 177 yards, hitting Boyd Dowler with a 15-yard touchdown pass and firing a 13-yard scoring strike to Bill Anderson.

Brewer, Goalby Tied

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gay Brewer finished with three under-par 67 Friday to tie Bob Goalby for the victory lead in the $100,000 Cleveland open golf tournament with a 36-hole score of 135.

It looked like a three-way tie for the lead when Phil Rodgers also came in with a 68, but the LaJolla, Calif., golfer was disqualified for failing to sign his score card.

The 35-year-old Goalby shot a 67 Friday morning with the help of an eagle and assumed the early lead.

But Brewer rallied for a share of the lead. He and Goalby were seven under for the 36 holes as the first of 64 pros making the $30,000 first prize continued its assault on par.

SETS COURSE RECORD

The front-runners withstood a brilliant 64 by veteran Julius Boros that set the course record over the Lakewood Country Club's par 36-35—71, 4,777-yard layout.

Boros' hot round, added to his opening 72, put him only one stroke off the pace and in a tie at 136 with Johnny Pott, who shot 70.

Two strokes off the pace at 137 was a group of 10, including Labron Harris Jr., Thursday's first-round leader with a 65, who slipped to a 72.

Mike Souchak shot a 66 after an opening 74. He was one of 16 players still in contention at 140. This group also included Arnold Palmer, who had 71, and U.S. Open king Billy Casper, who carded a three-under 68.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 70 giving him a total of 142.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Noel Turcotte, 34 - year - old jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., moved ahead Friday by a length to retain the riding crown he won last year as top winner at Fort Erie race track.

He rode three winners, to give him a total of 19 in 17 days and put him in a tie with Hugo Ditufsch atop the rider standings at the track.

Besides the three victories Turcotte placed second with three other of his seven mounts. Winning mounts were Third Rule in the fifth race, Blue Sol in the sixth and Tutordem in the seventh.

The daily double of Some Miracle and Lesley returned $96.20. The exactor of Blue Sol and Attention Hero paid $28.90.

Drag-Racing Tomorrow At Mohawk

The premier event for Canadian drag racing competitors and fans alike, gets under way, this coming Sunday, August 7th, at the Mohawk Dragway, Deseronto, Ont.

Drag racing has grown in popularity by leaps and bounds over the past few years and the annual Mohawk event, for Canada's drag racing fraternity, is shaping up to be more exciting than ever before.

Headlining the list of top names Canadian and U.S. drivers will be Eastern Ontario's own Jim Reul, last year's Canadian National Drag Racing Champion. Jim Reul, of the AA/FD team of the Reul Brothers hails from Kingston, Ont.

In other drag racing action, the Super - Stockers, Drag Racing's new, highly modified, late model automobiles, are expected to stage a show, equal to the Super Stock National event, held this past May at Mohawk Dragway.

Sanctioned by the NHRA (National Hot Rod Association), some 400 competitors are expected to fill the 103 classes that will be open during the event.

$5,000.00 in cash prize money and an extra contingency money is awaiting the fortunate winners. Special Saturday night camping facilities are being made available for the many fans expected to come early and it is expected that the competitors will be out at the crack of dawn, warming up, to run for the big money.

Ontario Junior Best-Ball

TORONTO (CP)—John Short of Toronto and Ken Trowbridge of Brampton combined Friday for a six-under-par 65 to win the Ontario Junior best-ball championship by four strokes.

The score was enough to break a tournament record of 66 set by Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., in 1949.

Defending champions Peter Turner and Wayne McDonald, both of Toronto, scored a 69 for second place.

Ian Thomas of London, Ont., and Tim McCutcheon of Peterborough were tied with Jim Dysart and Dave Bevan, both of Hamilton, at 71.

Don Copeland and John Newton, both of Dundas, Ont., won the junior net honors with a 64½.

Dominion Shooting

Spectacular Efforts

BY PETE McNAUGHTON

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Near-perfect shooting weather and the incentive of a trip to the Commonwealth shooting championships combined Friday to draw spectacular performances from marksmen at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association championships.

The week - long annual matches conclude this afternoon with the top single event in Canadian shooting, the Governor-General's match—and the announcement by the DCRA of the 13 Canadians whose shooting earned them berths on the team going to the Commonwealth championships at Bisley, England, next summer.

Competition for the Governor-General's event has been narrowed to a field of 300 on the basis of shooting in two preliminary stages. The second-stage, consisting of the Connaught and President's matches Friday, produced 15 perfect scores.

In the Connaught, fired from 30 yards at the government's Connaught Range near this community west of Ottawa on seven sharp shooters pumped. 15 straight shots into the bullseye for the 105-point cut for top spot later in the day.

VETERAN WINS

Alex Grant, a 65-year-old veteran competitor from Ottawa who has been coming to the DCRA matches off and on since 1926, won the shoot-off with seven more bullseyes.

Grant and a British marksman, 23-year-old Dick Horrocks of Turton, Lancashire, were tied with perfect scores of 15 in the shoot-off which Grant won on one second extra shot with a bullseye.

Eight competitors, including two women, qualified scores of 50 in the President's match from 600 yards. Irvine Brooks of Halifax was the shoot-off with three straight bullseyes after he and PO Dave Phoenix of Summerside, P.E.I., tied with 50 in the first five extra shots. Phoenix had two bullseyes and an inner in his three shoot-off shots.

HAS PERFECT SCORE

Bob Plenius of Richmond, B.C., a pilot for Canadian Pacific Airlines, won the first stage of the Governor's Thursday with a perfect score of 125. He is trying to become the second double winner in the history of the Governor's.

Gunnar Westling of New Westminster, B.C., was the leader in the grand aggregate with a whopping 10-point lead over Private and Lance-Corporal Hayes, LAC Jim Hennok of Cold Lake, Alta., who had scores of 669 in the eight matches making up the grand aggregate.

Two British marksmen took second and third spots behind Westling in the aggregate. Jim Hitch, a 34-year-old bookmaker from Weybridge, Surrey, had 674 while Horrocks had 670.

U.S. Troops in Viet Nam Liked Sutton's Routine

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Sutton's advice to performers who go to Viet Nam to entertain troops is: Keep it clean.

Legends of barracks risqûery notwithstanding, Sutton says:

"Don't use blue material. They don't like it. It's a form of talking down to them."

Sutton, the gravel - voiced, bulldog-faced sergeant who harasses Jim Nabors on television's Gomer Pyle, USMC, went to Viet Nam during the show's summer recess from filming.

He paid his own way to Saigon by commercial airliner. Then he did 36 one-man shows in eight days for marine corps audiences ranging from 18 to 1,000 men.

A writer-actor friend, Larry Hovis, who plays a GI prisoner in Hogan's Heroes, wrote Sutton's 25-minute routine.

MORE GOMERS?

Does the U.S. Marine Corps really have such inept characters as the fumbling though well - meaning Gomer Pyle? Here's Sutton's comment:

"In every outfit you would say, 'you've got to see our Gomer Pyle,' and then call out: 'you get no-and-so.'"

Green-eyed and 42, with crewcut brown hair, Sutton got his training for the TV role as a real-life sergeant in the Second World War. He took part in 14 Pacific beachhead assaults.

Born in Clarksville, Tenn., he came to Hollywood movies and television via summer stock and Broadway. He has a wife, Toby, and two children.

His harsh voice is the result of a node on a vocal chord. A doctor checks it periodically and could remove it. But Sutton says that might soften the timbre of his voice.

"I don't want to change the character."

Duck-hunters Will Require Federal Permit

OTTAWA (CP)—Every waterfowl hunter in Canada must purchase a $2 federal permit to shoot this year.

The northern affairs department announced Thursday the permits and accompanying stamps holders complete will enable the Canadian wildlife service to compile important information.

The permits are already being sold and will expire.

The wildlife service hopes to determine more accurately the numbers of waterfowl hunters, where and when they hunt, how many birds of each species are killed and where and when the birds are killed.

The department also announced bag and possession limits for all provinces.

Relaxed bag and possession limits in the Prairie provinces feature the new regulations, indicating more than water conditions and higher bird populations.

Numbers nevertheless remain below the long-term averages.

Bag limits are up to six from the present five and up to 12 from 10 for both ducks and geese. Not more than half of the bag may be made up of species more than five of the six geese may be Canada geese.

In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, only provinces with quotas for sandhill cranes, the daily limit increases to four from two and the possession limit to eight from four.

In Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia the black duck season is two to three weeks later. The only other major change occurs in British Columbia, where the limit for black brant goose increases to four from three.

OUTLINE LIMITS

Newfoundland and Labrador retain a bag limit of six ducks and five geese with no possession limit. The season opening Sept. 1 in Labrador and Sept. 12 in Newfoundland.

Limits in the Maritimes are six ducks daily and 12 in possession, five geese daily and 10 in possession, with the season in most areas starting Oct. 1. Dates for black-duck hunting vary.

Quebec hunters may shoot six ducks daily with 12 in possession, and five geese with 10 in possession. Season openings vary from Sept. 1 in Ungava to Sept. 24 in southern areas.

Ontario limits are five daily and 10 in possession for both ducks and geese, with season openings of Sept. 15 in the north, Sept. 24 in the central district and Oct. 1 in southern areas.

Manitoba openings range from Sept. 1 north of the 57th parallel to Sept. 9 between the 53rd and 57th parallel and Sept. 23 south of the 53rd parallel.

Most Saskatchewan openings are Sept. 18, with the exception of a Sept. 5 date for northern areas.

Alberta openings are Sept. 1 in the north and Sept. 16 in the south.

British Columbia will retain its long and intricate date schedule for hunters.

CONDITIONS GOOD

Officials of the wildlife service said water conditions become progressively better from east to west across the prairies.

The total duck population this year for the Prairies and North-west Territories is estimated at about 9,000,000, almost 3,000,000 higher than last year but fully 4,500,000 below the 10-year peak reached in 1959.

The mallard population is the second-lowest in the last 10 years at 2,000,000, less than 40 per cent of the peak population of 5,500,000 in 1958.

WINS ACCLAIM

TORONTO (CP) — Composer Oskar Morawetz of Toronto last week won the Critics' Award at the 1966 International Composers' Competition in Cava dei Tirreni, Italy. It was announced Thursday. Critics Canadian conductor Ernesto Barbini made the announcement on his return from the competitions.

Mud Hens Beat Leafs, Chiefs Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Ryan of Oshawa, Ont., went to bat for the first time for Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League Friday night, hit a double and scored a run.

But the effort was not enough as Toledo Mud Hens, rain and a thunderstorm combined to defeat the Leafs 12-6. Ryan came to Toronto earlier this week from Pittsfield of the Eastern Professional League.

Elsewhere, Richmond Braves defeated Rochester Red Wings 5-4 before losing the second game 3-0, Buffalo Bisons defeated Syracuse Chiefs downed Jacksonville Suns 4-1.

BOUGHT HUGE TRACT

Largest land purchase in history was the 1802 purchase by Canada of 1,500,000 square miles of land from the Hudson's Bay Company.

You will get a great deal more control of your swing — and of your shots — if you can keep your right elbow in fairly close to your right side at the top of your backswing.

It is true that Jack Nicklaus and Gay Brewer have had good success despite a flying right elbow (No. 1). However, both of these players have outstanding coordination and rhythm. They can return their right elbow to their side early in their downswings without adversely affecting their timing. Most golfers, however, will suffer from an improper swing plane and a premature uncocking of their wrists if they let their elbow fly.

Keep your right elbow in fairly tight as I am doing in illustration No. 2 and then return it to the right side (No. 3) on the short of the downswing. You'll get more power and more accuracy.

Chicago Whites Stone Negroes' Sunday March

CHICAGO (AP)—Some 1,500 civil rights demonstrators marched through a crowd of some 2,000 hostile, rock-throwing whites Sunday in an all-white neighborhood on Chicago's Northwest Side.

Solid walls of police protected the integrated band of marchers as they took their demands for open housing back to the streets of the Cragin section of Chicago for the third time. It was the largest protest group to march since demonstrations calling for open housing began in white neighborhoods 12 days ago.

Intense hostility flared in the first half hour of the march. Firecrackers exploded at the feet of marchers. Rocks and bottles rained on the marchers.

Police squadrons charged the beckers. Several white persons who refused to obey police and fought back were clubbed and thrown into police vans.

A policeman fired several times above the heads of the mob.

DRENCHED IN STORM

Then a summer thunderstorm unleashed a torrent of rain. Sirens and police alike and took the edge off the violence.

The marchers came on in the rain, trailed by bands of hooting white teen-agers.

They stopped twice for brief prayers in the rain.

By the end of the nearly four miles of march, 21 white hecklers were under arrested and dozens were injured.

The marchers were led by Al Raby, head of the Co-ordinating Council of Community Organizations, and Rev. James Bevel and Rev. Jesse Jackson, aides to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Workers At Inco End Strike

SUDBURY (CP)—Officials at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. here said today it would be three weeks before the plant is back to normal following Saturday's back - to - work vote by strikers.

More than 17,000 Inco employees here and at Port Colborne voted to return to work and end a three-week walkout that crippled Inco's vast operations.

Morris Keck, representative of Local 6200 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said Port Colborne union official will ask management today to arrange for the back to work movement.

Meanwhile in Sudbury, back-to-work notices were sent Sunday to Inco's 18,000 district employees, members of Local 6500.

PLANT OPENS

About 200 maintenance, mechanical and electrical workers returned to the nickel belt today and smelter workers are expected back tonight.

A company statement said the men will be notified to return to their jobs as they are needed.

Contract negotiations at Toronto broke off last Thursday.

The Sudbury workers walked off Oct 1 Saturday to return to work and complete conciliation. But the steelworkers, rejected the company's latest offer, a 47-cents-an-hour wage increase in a 18-to - a year agreement.

Tony Soden, president of Local 6500, told the Saturday meeting Inco's offer "provides absolutely nothing in the area of group welfare and pension plan."

DEMANDS PACKAGE

The union is demanding a package increase of wages and benefits of $1.20 an hour in a one - year contract. Basic wage for miners now is $2.5214 an hour. Surface workers receive $2.22½.

After the Saturday meeting, union and management met to iron out details for a new bargaining sessions.

The walkout started as negotiations for a new contract covering both Sudbury and Port Colborne were in the conciliation stage.

More than 200 men walked off their jobs at Inco's Levack mine, 35 miles northwest of here, when a shift boss ordered several workers to the surface July 14 in a dispute about eating lunch before beginning work.

It quickly spread to the main smelter at Copper Cliff and other areas around. Port Colborne workers left their jobs the following week.

The strike was marked with violence and outbreaks of violence. A man was stabbed, one burned, windows smashed, power and water lines were cut at some plants and the company used a helicopter to ferry supplies into the strikebound mines.

Today's Chuckle

The world is full of willing people. Some are willing to work; others are willing to let them.

Stelco Strike Ended

HAMILTON (CP) — Day - shift workers streamed into Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plants this morning without interference. There was no sign of pickets.

Local union leaders stood outside the main gates at Stelco's largest plant, the Hilton works, prepared to lead workers across any picket lines that were thrown up by dissatisfied members of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

The steelworkers—about 12,500 of them—walked off the job Wednesday night to halt operations at Canada's largest steel company.

It was estimated the company lost $1,250,000 a day in sales and workers $250,000 a day in wages.

The decision to return to work came after a secret ballot at a two-hour meeting.

VOTE TO RETURN

A total of 4,319 union members voted to return today with 1,142 against.

Since the strike, 34 persons have been arrested although some were not employed by Stelco.

Cars have been burned and overturned, windows smashed, policemen jostled, newspaper men roughed up and their cameras smashed.

At Sunday's meeting, John Mortimer, president of the local, and Stew Cooke, USW international area supervisor, explained the strike was illegal and suggested the men return to work pending completion of conciliation board meetings.

Spokesmen invited from rank and file members were also given an opportunity to address the meeting.

Mr. Cooke said Stelco's contract expired July 31 and negotiations for a new one began in May. It went to a conciliation board, June 28.

She was the 16th person to die from the killing rampage.

Man Who First Flew Over Rockies Sees Plaque Unveiled 47 Years Later

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—"I'm much more nervous now than when I came here the first time," Captain Ernest C. Hoy said Sunday.

He was referring to his pioneer flight Aug. 7, 1919, in which he became the first man to fly across the Rocky Mountains.

A plaque commemorating the flight—from Vancouver to Lethbridge—was unveiled here at ceremonies attended by Capt. Hoy, 71, who lives in retirement in Toccoa, Ga.

Capt. Hoy's flight was made in a fabric-covered, open-cockpit Curtiss JN4, the famous Jenny. He completed the trip—with intermediate stops—in 14 hours and eight minutes.

Capt. Hoy said the biggest problem on his trip was "blind-by" clouds with granite centers "clouds with granite centers mountains shrouded in cloud. He recalled flying through one pass, uncertain that he had either the space or altitude to make it.

"What could I do? Only where I had to go and there wasn't room to turn around."

His little Jenny could be coaxed to only 7,000 feet, not as high as many of the mountains near his route. He was forced to fly through passes and around mountains because he couldn't fly over them.

Capt. Hoy's flight was instigated by John Nelson, owner of the old Vancouver Daily World. It was sponsored by The Daily World, The Lethbridge Herald and The Calgary Herald.

Capt. Hoy picked up about $1,000 for the flight, keeping half and turning the other half over to the Vancouver branch of the Aerial League.

He last piloted an airplane in 1930.

RADIANT — Newlywed Luci Johnson Nugent and her husband, Pat, are a smiling couple leaving the scene of their marriage — the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, on Saturday.

Secluded Waterfront Villa Home for Honeymoon Couple

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Patrick and Luci Johnson Nugent were honeymooning today at a spacious and secluded waterfront villa.

The U.S. president's daughter, who wore dark glasses, and her husband, using the name "Mr. and Mrs. Fribee," went practically unrecognized on the Air Jamaica flight from New York Sunday along with six other honeymoon couples.

At Kennedy Airport only one man turned to his wife and said, "there's Luci Johnson."

Preceded by two secret service men, the newlyweds were the last passengers to board the plane at Kennedy and the first to leave the Pan American jet when it touched down here. A waiting limousine whisked them away to "Caricton," the $250,000 home of Mrs. Rebekah Harkness - Kean, socially - prominent philanthropist.

After the couple were driven to the villa, a chain was quickly placed across the drive. "Caricorn" is about eight miles west of Nassau, on the western side of New Providence Island. Thick foliage borders the estate on three sides and on the fourth lies a private, white sand beach.

Pat, 23, and Luci, 19, apparently will stay at the villa for a week. Their airline tickets indicated they plan to visit Eleuthera Island next Sunday. Eleuthera is 30 miles east of New Providence.

The wedding ceremony took place in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, the world's seventh largest church.

President Johnson gave the bride away.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington, Patrick A. O'Boyle, presided at the nuptial mass for the first time since he or any of his associates could remember. At the end, he invoked God's blessing on the newlyweds, read a special blessing from Pope Paul, and made the sign of the cross.

The wedding was the first one ever permitted in the national shrine. Archbishop O'Boyle agreed to open the shrine for the services because of the national significance of the marriage of a presidential daughter. Only seven other daughters have been married while their fathers were in office.

Nebraska Jet Crash Kills 42

FALLS CITY, Neb. (AP)—Investigators learned today that one of two recording devices, which may have held a clue to the cause of Saturday night's airliner disaster, was burned beyond use in the crash that killed 42 persons.

The Braniff International Airways plane smashed in flames when it plunged from a cloud into a soybean field about eight miles northeast of here.

However, there was a chance that another recording device may still be useful.

Ed Slattery, spokesman for a 13-man U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board's investigating team, said Washington experts found best had destroyed any record that was in the flight recorder. The device, pulled from the wreckage Sunday, was designed to keep a record of the plane's position and movements in the air.

He said board and factory experts were trying to decipher information in the cockpit voice recorder, which should reveal any cockpit conversation which took place within 30 minutes before the crash.

An explosion flared as the plane hit the ground and a witness reported: "My God, the world is on fire."

Antone Schawang, owner of the 114 where the plane crashed, was with his family in an automobile when the disaster occurred.

"The sky seemed to light up," he said, as the burning plane passed overhead.

Schawang said:

"I could see this ball of flames descending almost straight down, then I saw the tip of a wing sticking out and I knew it was a plane.

"It came so close — a few more yards and our house and buildings would have been wiped out."

The plane was a BAC One-11, a 65 - seater, engine craft built by British, Aircraft Corp. and capable of carrying 65 persons. The Civil Aeronautics Board said this was the first fatal crash of a BAC One-11 in the United States.

Residents near this southeast Nebraska town of 5,000 said there was thunder and lightning before the crash and a heavy rain afterward.

Agricultural, Industrial Markets Merged in ECM

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—European Common Market officials and delegates are on a month's vacation, after tying up the biggest packages dealt by the market's nine - year history.

Before going away they agreed to merge agricultural and industrial markets of the six countries not later than July 1, 1968.

This means that the main pillars have been established for a single market for 200,000,000 Europeans.

The new agricultural policy is protectionist, with high prices for farm produce.

During long debates, the six —France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg—were reluctant to make concessions. The attractive side of the agreement was that the cost of buying exports and export subsidies will be financed from a common fund, to which the national treasuries contribute.

The fund's annual budget, almost $2,000,000,000 from 1970 onward, will cover part of the cost to modernize and mechanize farming.

The single market will make it easier for the Six to tackle some of the major problems of modernizing their farming. A higher productivity level, resulting in farm incomes consistently behind those of industrial workers, will be difficult for many farmers to stand up to competition.

Farmers make up 17 per cent of the market's 76,000,000 working population. They earn only eight per cent of the gross community product. Industrial workers make up about 43 per cent, earning about 63.5 per cent. Persons employed in the services represent 39 per cent, earning about 45.5 per cent.

About 400,000 farmers leave the land annually. More than one - third of all commercial farms are less than 25 acres. There is a lack of mobility due to high death levels, language, religion and tradition between the community's northern tip in Hamburg and its southern tip in Sicily.

Other problems are shortages and surpluses, and the lack of a stable balance of supply and demand, often due to climate.

A wider consumer market will improve sales prospects and enable farmers to specialize. To help the community's shortage of manpower in industry, a social fund will help finance co-ordinated vocational training schemes for people leaving the land.

Grapes will be grown in southern regions only, not in bothersome in Belgium and Holland. Southern Italy is to leave

Face Crisis In Canadian Labor Field

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A crisis in labor relations is facing many key sectors of Canadian industry during the next four weeks.

Disputes involving more than 172,000 workers are due to come to a head. Unless settlements are reached they threaten new or continued strikes that could put a severe crimp in the economy.

The spotlight situation is in the railway industry where 80,000 non-operating employees of 20,000 conductors and trainmen are poised for a walkout that would tie up the entire rail network.

It would come at a time when freight facilities are being strained to handle both record domestic traffic and the enormous export grain movement.

COULD FORCE SESSION

If all else fails, Parliament likely will be called into emergency session to force both sides into an agreement.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press pinpoints these four other major strike threats developing:

—At the country's biggest steel plant, the Steel Co. of Canada at Hamilton, 17,000workers are demanding a 65-cent hourly wage and benefit package on top of their present $2.50 rate—an 18 per cent increase.

—At International Nickel Co. of Canada, biggest nickel producer in the world, 18,000 Sudbury workers want $1.20 an hour in added wages. Base rate now is $2.52 for miners. Surface workers receive $2.22 an hour.

—Aluminum Co. of Canada at Kitimat, B.C., is facing unrest as about 2,000 employees of 2,100 workers who have rejected an offer to add 65 cents an hour to their present $2.43 base rate and will take a strike vote Tuesday.

—At six major British Columbia ports, 2,700 longshoremen are seeking a 65-cent hourly raise in their $3.33 rate.

Industrial walkouts, a growing feature of this year's labor unrest, already have occurred at Canada Packers Ltd. plants in Toronto across Canada, 5,000 at four Dominion Textile Co. plants, 4,500 in the construction workers on a hydro development northeast of Quebec City and 7,000 carpenters in British Columbia.

Another, then and potential major strikes involve about 178,000 workers. During all of

3 Texas Teenagers Slain

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A pretty blue-eyed teen-ager was raped and strangled, investigators said today, after her two companions were killed and their bodies stuffed in the trunk of a car.

Central Texas officers attributed the grisly crime late Sunday and charged them with what assistant District-Attorney Grady Hight said were sexually-motivated slayings.

Murder complaints were filed against Roy Green, 18, and Kenneth McGriff, 20, both from the Arlington area, Hight said rape charges also would be filed.

The multiple murder was the second case of Texas violence within a week, occurring less than a month after sniper Charles J. Whitman killed or critically wounded 18 at the University of Texas in Austin.

A fisherman stumbled across the bodies of Robert Brand, 19, Arlington, and Brand's cousin, Mark Dunnam, 18, of Paraza, Calif., shortly after dawn Sunday.

SQUEEZED INTO TRUNK

The bodies, punctured by multiple bullet wounds, were squeezed into the trunk of the Brand family car which had been abandoned on a lonely country road south of Fort Worth.

Investigators then ordered a widespread search for Edna Louise Sullivan, 18, of suburban Everman, who had accompanied young Brand and his cousin on a movie date Saturday night.

The body of the slender brown-haired girl was not recovered Sunday night although Hight said it apparently had not been taken far from Fort Worth.

Hight said she had been raped and choked to death but would not disclose the source of his information.

Officers found Edna Louise's name scrawled in lipstick or mascara across a window of the car they found and discovered her shoes and purse lying inside.

LIKE EXECUTION

Sheriff Leo Evans, who survived a gunshot wound in the two killings, said: "It looked like an execution."

Hight, on a tip, officers first arrested Green and then captured McGriff in the Dreamland Franklin area of central Texas some 123 miles south of Fort Worth.

Green surrendered without incident, officers said, but McDuff resisted and was slightly wounded after a burst of gunfire and a chase.

Barrage of Missiles Greets U. S. Raiders

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. military command announced today that American pilots encountered a heavy barrage of surface - to - air missiles over North Viet Nam Sunday when seven U.S. planes were attacked and one received heavy loss in a single day of the air war.

A spokesman refused to say whether any of the planes were hit by surface-to-air missiles. He said only that they were lost to ground fire rather than to enemy planes.

The spokesman said no missiles had been sighted Sunday. There was no confirmation of the change in the report.

Only two of the nine fighters were rescued as ground fire drove off U.S. rescue helicopters, a U.S. military spokesman said. The others were listed as missing in action.

Radio Hanoi, which also reported seven American planes downed Sunday, said some pi-

Both were captured. It did not give the number or any identities.

The week previous day for U.S. aircraft over the North was Aug. 13, 1965, when 24 planes went down.

The North Vietnamese shot down five air force F-105 Thunderchief jets, including a two F-105Fs packed with electronic gear for use against radar and missiles, and an air force RF-101 Voodoo reconnaissance jet, and a navy propeller-driven A-1 Skyraider.

They brought the number of planes reported downed over the Communist north to 236.

Meanwhile, a former vice-president, Richard M. Nixon, visited that U.S. officers in Saigon believe at least 300,000 U.S. troops are needed to win the war.

Nixon gave that estimate before leaving for Manila after a three-day visit.

"Russia First" Program Virtually Certain to Deepen Conflict in Red World Ranks

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Kremlin leaders at the recent Supreme Soviet session climaxed a "Russia first" program which virtually is certain to deepen the conflict in world Communist ranks.

The approach to foreign affairs was cautious and worried. On the domestic side, the session indicated continuing construction on a program to build the economy so that it might measure up to and compete effectively with capitalism, even if this might recede the use of capitalist tools.

The leadership let it be known that the content for friendly shrug by directly upon ministers and economic bosses to sweep away bureaucratic roadblocks. He talked profit and profitability like the "supreme criteria of the economy," and demanded social and international importance."

Attacking hard to all parliaments and governments, it said "there can be no delay in eliminating the seat of war and infectious peninsula . . . The serious danger threatening from the Far East is known."

Aware of the Russians about the international situation—which could interrupt the Soviet domestic economy effort—and the improvement in the statement by the Supreme Soviet.

Addressing itself to all parliaments and governments, it said "there can be no delay in eliminating the seat of war and infectious peninsula . . . The serious danger threatening from the Far East is known."

Thus far, the Kremlin has declined to take an initiative for a face-to-face talk. But an split with China deepens—as it probably will—the Soviet leaders may be less inhibited by Peking's accusations of a "holy alliance" with the U.S. to contain China.

Khrushchev's statement that economy and mean a drop in the pace of economic competition with capitalism."

Kozygin threatened stern measures against "drifters and spoilers" and those who put forth insufficient effort to raise labor productivity. The leadership, he said, was dissatisfied, too, with the pace of capital construction, adding that all this is "not only of economic but also of tremendous political and international importance."

In behalf of parity and government, he pinned responsibility

Y's Activities

The Belleville Family YMCA has concluded its 1960 season of Day Camp activities. In previous years Day Camp Children went by bus to the Y's day camp site at Oak Lake, where they spent each day, returning home in the evening. This year the program was changed to provide a more varied, exciting and educational one. Bus trips were arranged to points of interest surrounding Belleville. The Bata Shoe Company, the Foxboro Cheese Company, the R.C.A.F., Trenton, Museum were very kindly provided supervised tours. Mr. Jennings of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests made a special trip from Napanee to conduct a nature hike at the Oak Children water Park. During the second session, Mr. Earl Gray turned over his farm to the campers to 120 excited children who got a glimpse of farm life. Trips to Glenora Fish Hatchery, Adolphustown, Sandbanks and Outlet Provincial Parks, Old Fort Henry, O'Hara's Mills, Bethesda then Steel mine at Marmora were among the places enjoyed by the busy campers.

On days when bus trips were not scheduled the children remained at the Y's Day Camp for swimming, arts and crafts and other activities. During each session overnight camping trips were held at Oak Lake and were enjoyed by all who participated.

The increased enrollment of children (63 in the first period and 128 in the second period) that this phase of "Y" activity could be expanded next year to include a session or sessions in August.

CHILDREN SPONSORED

58 of the children taking part were sponsored in the program on the recommendation of various welfare agencies. This is in keeping with the Y.M.C.A.'s long-established policy, and as a participating agency, believes that no child should be denied membership because of parents are genuinely unable to pay a "Y" fee. Because of the latter, parents involved "Y" directors and other interested "Y" friends provided support to the camp fund for the worthy possibilia.

On behalf of the children, the "Y" wishes to express its thanks to all those people who gave freely of their time and effort to make this a most successful Day Camp. A special "Thank You" to the generous firms who provided transportation on the overnights and to Mr. G. Fitzgibbon of the Can Dept. of Transportment who aided tremendously in arranging for children to take part in the bus trips. The counselors who worked so hard and faithfully in supervising the children in their activities were — Sandra Clarke, Susan Booth, Kathy Casey, Suzanne Linscott, Dave Higgins, Gayle Flindall, Bob Murdoch, Roy Maddocks, Alan Broad, Peter Fleming, Ken Bowskill and Gordon Evans. Richard Thornton, as "aide de camp" to the directors was of tremendous assistance particularly in conducting the overnight sleepouts at Oak Lake. Dave Gray, director and organizer of the program was Miss Mildred Gray. When Miss Gray is having the second period to take training for a new job in Montreal, Latchford supervised activities for the balance of the program.

SPORTS SKILLS CLINIC FOR BOYS

As word spreads about the fine time they are having more and more boys each day are taking part in the Sports and August program - the sports skills clinic. Instruction has been given in swimming and diving, trampoline, gymnastics and softball. Golf, track and field and soccer are to be on the program. There is still room for more boys, 8 to 14 years of age, to take part mornings, Monday through Friday. Richard Thornton, who was so popular with the Day Camp children, is directing the program.

3 of Family Said Improving In Hospital

The condition of Mr. and Mrs Leo C. Woodley and their son, Garry, injured in a highway accident, Friday, July 29, is reported by relatives as "improved". Mr. and Mrs. Woodley, 29 Elmer St., Belleville, and Garry of Sudbury, are patients at Soldiers' Memorial Hospital in Orillia.

All three were seriously injured in a two-car accident on Highway 69, north of Brechin on the east river of Lake Couchiching. They were motoring from Sudbury to Belleville, when the accident occurred.

Dreaded Elm Tree Disease On Increase in Quinte Area

The number of diseased elm trees appears to be on the increase in the Bay of Quinte district this year, according to F. P. Edson, forester with the Napanee district division of the Department of Lands and Forests.

The countryside around Kingsbridge, Bayside, Wellington and Picton is dotted with dead and dying elm trees, evidence of the spread of the Dutch Elm disease.

In Belleville, the city works department has been busy since it started a program of removing dead and dying elms, thus slowing down the spread of this dreaded tree disease.

The Department of Lands and Forests started its fight in the province reports about new cases of Dutch elm disease almost daily. Edson states the reports deal with diseased trees which are situated in gardens and hedges but seldom in mass reported trees, however, are only a very small percentage of the elm trees in the area. He suggests asking what they could do to save the already diseased trees. The answer is that little or nothing can be done to prevent the further spread of the disease.

The next logical question which is so much more important.

Dutch elm disease is caused by the fungus Ceratocystis ulmi. As a parasite it develops in the water conducting tissues of the sapwood. The growth of the fungus fills the vessels and cuts off the flow of water and nutriture to the affected branches resulting in wilting and discoloration of the leaves.

The spread of the Dutch elm disease fungus from infected to healthy trees is largely through almost entirely on insects. The spores are sticky and so are not disseminated by the wind but it is usually the case with other insects. Specifically, they act here to the bodies of emerging adult beetles and are introduced into wounds made by the beetles enter the bark to feed or to establish brood tunnels. In addition they may be carried by the native elm bark beetle, and the smaller European elm bark beetle, a known vector for the spread of the fungus.

The adults of both species are in flight long and may be in color from brown to black.

Part of the continuing research there is no known remedy or cure for Dutch elm disease and there is no practically practical method devised yet to prevent the infection of healthy trees from the Dutch elm disease fungus.

It is true that a limited number of healthy trees can be successfully treated by injection of a newly developed highly poisonous chemical. However, however, this treatment is rather expensive and has to be repeated every year. Also it has very limited application, mainly in parks.

As of today the most important measure to prevent the spread of Dutch elm disease is the consistent and thorough removal elms as practised by a number of parks administrations and by conservation minded individuals.

SANITATION

Briefly, sanitation as a measure in the control of Dutch elm disease involves the destruction or treatment of material in which the beetles breed or develop. Freshly cut logs and firewood, dying and recently dead trees, broken branches and stumps of trees recently felled, provide ideal material to support heavy broods of beetles and the more of these much more important to destroy the type of material than to try to remove trees during the early stage of the disease; for when it has become a hazard to healthy elms until enough wood is killed to permit beetles to breed and emerge carrying fungus spores.

Unfortunately, there have already been many thousands of elms lost in the Quinte area and there are ugly gaps appearing in many beautiful streets and in elm tree groves throughout the countryside.

To fill those gaps the land owners are advised to plant other trees available from the Department of Lands and Forests nurseries or for ornamental purposes from commercial nurseries. Some of these are in a growing species and interested persons can write for information to the Department of Lands and Forests office in Belleville or can also obtain pulletin literature on Dutch elm disease, Napanee Division Office Phone, telephone EZ 8-2830; Cobb Ranger, Tweed, telephone 478-2338.

Sadly missed by Mother and Dad.
Aug. 7, 1960
Sweet hands still soho with sadness
And sweet eyes still flow,
Dear heart still aches with pain for you,
We miss you so.
When we are sad and lonely,
And feel that life is blue,
We seem to hear you both whisper
"We miss you too."
When we kneel to pray,
You seem to smile and say,
Don't grieve for me sweet mother,
I'm happy in heaven at play.

Despite Austerity Program Britons Are Packing Pubs

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Despite Prime Minister Wilson's austerity program, Britons are packing the pubs at lunch time and streaming into the betting shops. There's money around and jobs aplenty with an eye yet that belt-tightening in government is beginning to hurt.

But Britain today is a nation of underlying fears, confusion and doubts. The honeymoon days of the post-war welfare state—accepted by both Socialists and Tories alike—are over. The social services, including the health scheme, are here to stay but there could be some trimming.

Britain's political system could be at stake in the present crisis, too—a system that demands complete loyalty from parliamentary members of the party in power.

Wilson's Labor party, which depends for support largely on the trade unions, is torn by a revolt of a bloc of leftist legislators, who are openly fighting a wage freeze, and some big trade unions.

DISCIPLINE REBELS

Wilson has a comfortable 96 vote majority in the House of Commons. But growing talk about disciplinary action against the rebels could put his government in a shaky position.

Rebel leader Michael Foot last week told Parliament he is calling for a revolt against the wage freeze:

"If everyone took the course I'm advising my friends to take, the government would be defeated."

But no one takes seriously, at this stage, the possibility of a national — or coalition — government.

Wilson is expected, however, to shake up his cabinet.

Political commentator Harold Hutchisson, writing in The Sunday Telegraph, says Wilson must "one could sense in the last month or so that if there were a de Gaulle in Britain, his prospects would not be at all bad."

"If that is right, it is a serious danger signal."

At last count there were 454,000 unfilled jobs going in Britain and 280,000 people out of work.

But fears come from official warnings that the reductions could bring unemployment approaching half a million this winter.

HOLIDAYERS SUFFER

Bookings for holidays overseas were at record highs but the clamp down—limiting a £50 ($150) limit — on spending abroad has forced many to plan vacations at home.

Government explanations of the importance of having a British army in West Germany are fulfilling other overseas commitments to keep in the swim as a world power have not sunk in yet.

There's surprisingly little grumbling heard considering the ominous warnings of immediate sacrifices to save the pound.

But a new Beatles record, Taxman, goes like this: "I'm the taxman . . . if you drive a car, I'll tax the street . . . if you're feeling cold, I'll tax the heat . . . If you take a walk, I'll tax your feet."

RCMP Officer, Former Member Of Force, Killed

ST. CYRILLE, Que. (CP)—An RCMP officer and a former member of the force were killed early Sunday when their car struck a bridge abutment near this community, 60 miles northeast of Montreal.

Dead are Frank McGillevray, 22, of Sydney, N.S., an RCMP officer, and Donald A. Urquhart, 22, of Ottawa, a former RCMP officer.

The car went into a deep ditch after striking the bridge and was not found until several hours after the accident.

Folk Festival Successful at Innis Lake

INNIS LAKE, Ont. (CP)— About 12,000 paid admissions to the three-day Mariposa Folk Festival made it the most successful festival in its six years.

Top Canadian and American folk singers performed Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon in the middle of a cow pasture at this lake site about 30 miles northwest of Toronto.

Headlining the international talent were Pete Seeger, Tom Paxton and the Canadian Gordon Lightfoot.

The festival also featured Ian Tyson, of the Ian and Sylvia recording team, Carolyn Hester, balladeers Tom Kines and Tom Brandon, blues singer David Wilfen and Joni Mitchell, a young song-writer from Alberta.

Around the 'Cat'

The Molly Gait Memorial trophy for mixed doubles was played on the greens of the Kingston Lawn Bowling Club on Saturday and a Belleville Club pair, Mrs. Phyllis Graham and "Ab" Wennaccott came home withthe trophy and the accompanying prizes. It was a popular win and the couple received the congratulations of the visiting and local bowlers. Two other Belleville rinks won prizes. Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon of the Belleville Club and William Fuller of the Trenton Club won the two-high count while Mr and Mrs. William Wright also won a prize for two - high.

In the three-game high count Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Smith of Belleville won a prize from among the 30 rinks that were entered in the tourney. The Genea were in good condition and the hospitality was excellent, Mr. Gait, sponsor of the trophy and his son Hugh Gait, were on hand and made the presentation to the winning pair.

Other rinks from the local club to make the journey were Miss Margaret Fairbairn and Jack Avery, Mrs. Carm Moir and Wesley Elliott, Mrs. Vera McIntosh and Roy Hall, Mr. and Mrs. William VanTassel and Mrs. Grace Clapp and Claude D. Tice.

The winners in the Thursday afternoon league were rinks of Mrs. Flossie Coleman, Mrs. Cliff Argue with Miss Winnie Smith as skip and Mrs. Reta Coleman, Mrs. Vera McIntosh with Mrs. Carm Moir as skip. The two hostess was Mrs. Carm Mott.

Economic Boom—How Long?

If they think about it at all, Canadians probably regard Britain's new bout of austerity with something akin to a yawn.

In our own affluent society such measures seem incredible. As Canadian Press writer James Nelson has noted, they could not be enforced in this country, other than on a sort of honor system.

"If the stage should be reached in Canada that Ottawa felt similar measures were necessary, Parliament could act only in its federal field of jurisdiction and appeal to the provinces to act in theirs."

While there are no signs of an emergency arising here, warnings about inflationary pressures are being heard regularly. Carried to their logical conclusion they could result in measures to brake the economic expansion now taking place ,and reduce it to more manageable proportions.

Inflation is already rampant and is being kept under control only by the buoyancy of the current wave of prosperity. But as Nelson points out, economists and political leaders have been calling for restraint in expansion of the economy for about a year. Successive warnings have come from Prime Minister Pearson, the Economic Council of Canada ,and Finance Minister Sharp. Only the other day Trade Minister Winters added his voice when he made public a mid-year report on capital investment plans.

The implication of these warnings is clear. If some voluntary restraint is not applied with regard to unrestricted expansion, and on the consumer level with regard to spending and credit buying, then the day will surely come when stemmer government measures are necessary to avoid an economic crash.

Call of Adventure

What are people doing these days that is out of the ordinary? Plenty, judging by current news reports.

And we are not referring to wars or rumors of war, or to violent deeds such as occurred recently in Chicago and Austin. No, despite the pressures of everyday life, the pursuit of materialism and the worship of sundry other false Gods, there is still a fine spirit among many to the spirit of old-fashioned adventure.

Four Britons, for example, are rowing across the Atlantic in two small craft. And while the oarsmen cross the ocean, a Frenchman is engaged in another battle with the elements. Jean Pierre Marquant is walking across California's blazing hot Death Valley because he considers it a challenge.

In Death Valley the temperature has been known to reach 134 degrees, But Marquant is taking no chances, lest the vultures eye him greedily. With him is a support party, which meets him at designated points.

Not to be outdone, members of the opposite sex from the age of 15 to 70, are showing they have plenty of get-up-and-go. They include seven Ontario women, four of them in their teens, who completed a 30-mile canoe trip in July by way of emptying into Lake Superior ,using early maps listing shortcuts between bays and lakes in the Quetico Park area near the Minnesota-Ontario border. One map led them to a 100-foot high rock bearing Indian motifs painted more than 300 years ago.

And there was the story of Margaret Bates, who is a nurse in the Arctic. A 15-hour trip by outboard canoe through Lakes Hazen and Hall was one of Miss Bates' recent experiences in the course of her work. The New Lowell, Ontario, woman has been south twice for advanced training, and toured Europe in 1962, but like many others who go north she admits to being hooked by the frontier life.

Less in the line of work, but just as adventurous was the flight of Mrs. Marion Hart, a 74-year-old grandmother from Washington, D.C., who recently flew the Atlantic alone in her single-engined airplane.

About six weeks ago an Englishwoman, Sheila Scott, completed the longest solo flight ever made around the world, beating the previous record held by Mrs. Jerry Mock, of Columbus, Ohio. And two United States airline stewardesses, Michel Gonzales, 20, of Portland, Oregon, and Barbara Halverson, 21, of Sharon Hill, Pa., strikebound and unable to keep up their New York apartment, bought a second-hand motorcycle for $275 and rode 3,400 miles in 10 days through Canada to Portland.

And last but not least, Mrs. Paul Carlson, widow of a missionary killed by rebels nearly two years ago, is returning to the Congo to carry on the missionary and medical work begun by her husband. Accompanying her is her brother-in-law, Dr. Dwight Carlson.

The spirit of adventure stirs within all of us, and here, briefly, are the chronicles of a few who have done more than just sit at home and dream of faraway places.

More Praise for Belleville Book

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This week I received a letterr from a friend in Montreal whose name lived in Belleville and who is vice-president of one of our well-known industries. I am quoting an excerpt from the letter as follows:

"I must tell you about a book which Fraser brought me (on loan) you may already know of it, recently published, entitled "Mosaic of Belleville" history of the city, compiled by a Ukrainian emigre — Nikola Markoff. Mika who run a silk screening company in Belleville, it's beautifully gotten up — with illustrations hand screened by Mika.

He pays tribute to many people from Mayor, Clerk, Police Chief, Librarians Miss Delaney, Mrs. Steele, the Museum and the Historical Society for valued assistance during two years of research.

I have not yet looked through the book but the first illustration is the Tonti Memorial, Dundas St. West, built by William Hutton, grandfather of the late Col. Hutton. In early 1800 Dundas Street was a town.

I imagine the book will sell at $15 at least, but one can look at it in book shop or library. I want you, anyway, to know about it, as it's a marvellous accomplishment and great tribute to your city — above all to Mika a European, not a Canadian, did it."

I have looked through and read the "Mosaic of Belleville" and agree with all my friend has said of it. The price is much less than $15 though, and it is well worth it, especially to the older generation and former Belleville residents living afar.

Tunnel Puzzle

Montral Star

When Britain and France finally reached agreement in principle to build that English Channel tunnel they were told by Napoleon they agreed there were several serious details which would have to be resolved as time goes on.

And one of the more serious details unquestionably is: who is going to give way on the matter of driving on the left or on the right? Could be awkward at mid-tunnel without an agreement.

"Don't let me bother you, mes amis—I'm merely a casual observer."

Pure Ham Fat Gravy OK if You Work Hard

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I hope I'm not asking a foolish question but I would like to know why cholesterol is thought to be so dangerous, or animal fats so bad. My daddy, who lived to be 95, passed away two years ago, ate country ham and plenty of ham gravy poured over biscuits for breakfast all his life, and so did most farm people in our part of the country. — Mrs. L. T.

* * *

I guess (and I wish you'd told me) that perhaps your daddy also was a hard worker who worked hard physically. Such activity has a lot to do with things.

There is nothing wrong with cholesterol in itself. We need it. If we never ate any foods containing cholesterol our bodies would manufacture some from whatever other foods we ate. Even rabbits create cholesterol.

What happened in your daddy's case, I'm sure, was that he used up (by hard work) the fats, cholesterol and other unsaturated fats he food he ate. Had he eaten the same amount but not worked hard enough to use it up, he would have gotten fat and in all probability would have died many years sooner.

If too much cholesterol and other forms of fatty substances accumulate in the blood (that is, we have a "high serum cholesterol") there is a considerable evidence that this contributes to hardening of the arteries and the varigus ills which follow. However, the exact process by which the arteries harden is not understood.

It is my feeling that (although this will never happen!) if everybody became accustomed to active living and didn't get fat, the furor over cholesterol would die down and rightly so. It isn't the fat we eat that does the damage; it's the fat we eat and don't use up.

Relatively few people today live as energetically as farm folks had to live 85 (or even 50) years ago. Yet we continue eating high on the hog — which is more than a mere joke. Americans in general eat two or three times as much fat as they need.

There are other factors which doubtless were involved in your daddy's longevity. Heredity unquestionably had a lot to do with it. Some of us are born with arteries which resist hardening. Others aren't. Some of us get fat with ease; others of us, perhaps because our appetites were trained differently from childhood, or perhaps for other reasons as well, eat as much as we want, yet what we want isn't enough to make us fat.

I'm sure the studies of cholesterol will be helpful to us in the long run, but there's a lot more to health than the question of whether or not we have ham fat gravy for breakfast every day.

Dear Dr. Molner: What would make a navel sore? I keep two tight asbestos bandages on it all the time. — Sue

Two possibilities: There may be a pocket of infection. Or, as happens occasionally, the remnants of the extension of the umbilical cord inside your abdomen may not have shriveled and closed entirely. This tube connects with the bladder, and if it does not close competely, there can be seepage from the bladder. Take the adhesive bandages off long enough for a doctor to have a good look. You may need to have the condition corrected before a serious infection gets started.

Explanation to C. A. P.: One of the sturdiest myths existant is that you can reduce some particular part of the body and rout the rest, by so-called "spot reducing."

Servicing Cars is Costly

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The real problem of the auto companies is not going to be the safety factor—for that can and will, be easily enough taken care of. Once the lines are laid down, there will be little trouble in building much safer cars that are also attractive and marketable.

There is a much graver disease in the auto industry — and that is the relationship (or lack of it) between buying a car and getting it serviced. This is a problem, which is growing every year, has hardly begun to be tackled, even though it accounts for 90 percent of the auto buyers' frustrations.

For one thing, there are simply not enough mechanics being trained in this country. In the last half-dozen years, for instance, the number of mechanics among franchised service dealers has gone up about seven percent, but automobile registrations rose by more than 21 percent, or three times as fast.

Except for a house, an automobile is the most expensive single item a family ever buys, and takes a whopping share of the average wage-earner's annual income. Yet much, if not most, of the servicing of this expensive item is a haphazard, over-charged, sloppily performed, slow, and often unnecessary.

The auto companies have made a gesture in the right direction, in recent years, by their factory warranty of certain repairs for a stipulated time or a certain number of miles. But even here the promise is more substantial than the performance. Many new-car dealers are simply not interested in doing this kind of work — and when they do, often find other things wrong with the car that require payment.

A Gallup Poll not long ago showed that while 54 percent of people prefer to take their first car to a dealer for servicing, the same percentage go to a service station instead because they felt that dealer prices are too high, that unnecessary work was done and the service was unfeeling-ly slow.

How responsible should the auto companies be for the servicing of their products? Should they not require franchise dealers to provide adequate service? Should they not recruit and train qualified mechanics and put them into dealerships with expanded service facilities? The whole relations hip between the men who build cars and the men who sell them needs a complete clarification if the auto owner is to get his money's worth out of his most expensive purchase.

In cars proliferate faster than dealers, as sales continue to remain high each year, the lag between needs and services grows greater, and the motorist becomes more bitter and cynical about the whole business. The millions spent on public relations and "image" could be much more fruitfully spent on the actual attack to train more mechanics better, to give faster service, and to restrain avarice to the level of a fair return.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

August 2, 1965 . . .

A major Newfoundland in the early history of the Red Cross occurred at Geneva 102 years ago today—in 1864 when 12 governments drew up the first international treaty to care for the wounded of war, whether friend or foe. The outcome of this diplomatic conference was the first Geneva convention to protect war wounded personnel carrying for those and medical supplies for their use. The original convention was later revised and new conventions adopted to extend protection to victims of sea warfare 1907, to prisoners of war 1929, and to civilians in time of war 1949.

1815—Napoleon sailed for exile on Ste. Helena.

1829 — The first steam locomotive in the U.S., imported from England; was put into service in a Pennsylvania coal mine.

Wars Have Killed Billions

Ed Journal

Sometimes it is pretty hard to take U Thant, the Secretary General of the United Nations, without a grain of salt. Recently, when he described the Vietnam war as "one of the most barbarous wars in history," was one such time.

If we take barbarism to be any act that kills or mutilates unnecessarily both soldiers and civilians, then precisely what is more barbarous about this war than earlier wars within living memory?

By comparison with several conflicts within the past century or so, the Vietnam war — all the cries of the peaceniks notwithstanding — is pretty small potatoes.

The First World War resulted in 9,150,000 Russian, 7,142,558 German, 7,020,000 Austro-Hungarian 6,100,800 French, 3,100,-000 Commonwealth and 320,000 American casualties. It also saw the introduction of aerial bombardment and poison gas.

The Second World War cost Russia, China, Germany and Japan alone some 14,419,000 casualties, plus thousand Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The U.S. Civil War was a crucial and bitter one. It produced 772,000 casualties.

How does one measure "barbarity"?

By what is done to civilians and the innocents? The Assyrians, Hittites and Romans brought forth some chilling practices in that area.

By how much is killed? But surely it is no more brutal for American to kill Viet Cong with shrapnel exploding hundreds of feet in the air than for Cong to kill American soldiers and villagers with mines or mortars — or poison-tipped bamboo slikes.

All facile moral evaluations quickly break down. There have been 14,331 recorded wars in human history, and it is difficult indeed to say that this one is worse than all the rest.

Some Talk... Others Work

Pembroke Observer

It isn't always the rule, but too often we find that the most talk does the most talking does the least work. This applies to any situation, but in talking a look at Renfrew County's government, on a county and local level, the last couple years, the talk has stood up otherwise than it has been broken.

Stop for just a moment and take a look at your own municipality. The councillor who blows off at every opportunity uses the press as a vehicle to express his own views and attack other governmental officials and projects, is usually the man who has done the least to carry his share of the municipal load.

The evidence is there, all you have to do is study it.

On the county level we have had loud explosive members who were quick to leap to their feet and launch a verbal attack on anyone or anything within reach — especially if the press were present.

It is surprising how quiet municipal council meetings can be, should the press be absent.

Here in Pembroke we have had our share of the table-thumpers, but in most municipalities, they are outnumbered by the quiet, soft-spoken constructives, who, while the table - thumping is going on, usually manage to get the job done.

A Computer-Oriented World

Bruce West in The Globe and Mail

Although I greatly sympathize with the admirals and the members of the other branches of the military who are opposing integration of the Canadian armed forces, I can tell them right now that they're fighting a losing battle. The trouble is that sentiment probably enters into their objections, while the program of integration proposed by the Government has the strong support of those interested in efficiency on its side. And in this computer-oriented modern world, efficiency, not sentiment, will win out in the end.

The evidence of this almost fell all around us every day. To hell with such things as human emotions, say the big-domed improvers with the slide rules. If it works smoother this way let's do it this way. The end result is that in almost every case

Britain After Allies' Approval To Cut Troops in Germany

By MOSHEN ALI

LONDON (Reuters)—The government must decide soon whether to ask the Western European Union and NATO to give it the go-ahead for possible cuts in Britain's 55,000-member force in West Germany.

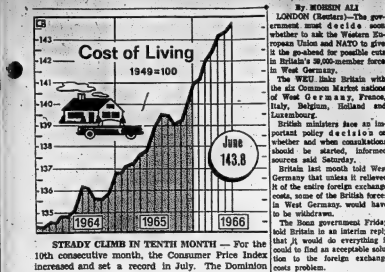
The WEU links Britain with the six Common Market nations of West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

British ministers face an important policy decision on whether and when conclusions should be started, informed sources said Saturday.

Britain last month told West Germany that unless it relieved it of the entire foreign exchange costs, some of the British forces in West Germany would have to be withdrawn.

The Bonn government Friday told Britain in an interim reply that it would do everything it could to find an acceptable solution to the foreign exchange costs problem.

But it said it could not give a full and final answer until the report of an Anglo-West German ministerial commission studying the problem had been received.



LITTLE HOPE SEEN

Meanwhile, the sources said, it was clear there was little hope of West Germany meeting the full British demand that it foot the entire foreign exchange costs bill.

But Bonn has reiterated assurances that it plans to meet its commitments fully under the present two-year offset exchange costs agreement scheduled to expire March 31.

The foreign exchange costs are running at about £94,000,000 ($280,000,000) annually. Of this West Germany has been willing to pay about £54,000,000 ($160,000,000) mainly through civil and military purchases in Britain.

Britain wants an early decision on the problem because—as part of its latest economic austerity measures aimed at improving its trading balance of payments—it wants to save as much foreign exchange as possible.

STEADY CLIMB IN TENTH MONTH — For the 10th consecutive month, the Consumer Price Index increased and set a record in July. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported the index reached 144.3 in July, a half-point higher than June and 4.8 points up from the same time last year. The increase was attributed mainly to higher food costs. (CP Newsmap)

Seeing Self On TV Restores Girl's Speech

LONDON (AP) — Seeing her face on television shocked a deaf-and-dumb girl out of her silence, Scotland Yard reported today.

"That's me," cried the 17-year-old girl as her picture appeared on the screen by her hospital bed.

She found vandering in a London street 12 days ago. She could only communicate with the police by writing answers to written questions.

In her scribbled notes, the girl said her name was Katherine Simms and she had been deaf and dumb since suffering a head injury a year ago. Her parents died in a car crash.

Police, unable to locate relatives arranged for Katherine's photograph to be shown on a TV news program.

"The shock of seeing herself on television brought back Katherine's hearing and speech," said a police spokesman.

"But she has not been able to tell us anything beyond her written statements, and we are still trying to find her relatives."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An earthquake felt in California and Arizona Saturday was centered near the Gulf of California where branches of the San Andreas fault enter the sea, scientists report.

There was shaking and swaying of buildings in San Diego officials reported.

Charles Howell of the San Diego State College geology department said the quake was probably the most severe felt in that area in years although no damage was reported.

1965 only 172,000 took part in strike action in Canada.

Already this is being talked about as the year of the "big push" for labor unions who have come under heavy pressure from their rank-and-file members in the vast major concessions from employers to counter rising prices.

Wage demands frequently range between 50 cents and $1 an hour, to be spread over two year contracts. Dozens of settlements have already been made in this range, most notably in the case of Ontario truck drivers, Quebec longshoremen and St. Lawrence Seaway workers.

Joe Morris, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress, says wildcats are mainly due to rank - and - file dissatisfaction over the legal delays caused by conciliation procedures. In most cases a strike could legally be called after seven days after a conciliation board files a report.

DEMAND ACTION

"Some times this procedure is dragged out for months," he said in an interview. "We must start demanding action and when the union can't give them action because of the law they take it on themselves."

So far this year labor unrest has been confined almost entirely to the three big industrial provinces—Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.

At the moment Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia each have only one small strike in progress. New Brunswick hasn't any.

There are two current strikes in Manitoba, one in Saskatchewan and three in Alberta.

Strikes in the past have been smaller provinces say the federally - imposed seaway settlement has caused little restlessness among unions. But in many areas 1966 is an off-year for contract renewals.

Quebec's labor situation this year has been centred on walkouts by school teachers and non-professional hospital workers. After settlement of the hospital strike Premier Johnson indicated he would introduce legislation to prevent such a situation ever rising again.

Mrs. J. Beal Suffers Cuts In Car Mishaps

TWEED — A two-car accident yesterday afternoon on Highway 37, three miles north of here, caused damage estimated at $600. A 1962 model car operated by John Beal, 59, of R.R.6, Belleville, and a 1957 model vehicle driven by Joseph Trudeau, 53, of Actinolite, were involved in the accident.

Mrs. John Beal, a passenger in her husband's car, was the only person injured in the mishap. She sustained lacerations to her face and received attention at a nearby home.

Mr. Trudeau was alone in his car.

Police say the Beal car was proceeding south on Highway 37 and the Trudeau automobile was travelling north when the accident occurred. Constable Larry McMaster of the Ontario Provincial Police Deseronto detachment investigated. Damage to the Beal car was set at $350 and to the Trudeau car, $250.

Peace Marchers Protest War In Viet Nam

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — More than 700 peace marchers, including bearded teen - agers carrying guitars, Saturday picketed international bridges at Queenston, Niagara Falls and Fort Erie.

The demonstrators from Hamilton, Toronto, St. Catharines and other Niagara Peninsula centres, handed out leaflets protesting the war in Viet Nam.

They demanded an immediate halt to the war and criticized the Canadian government support of the United States' position. Police did not interfere with the demonstration except to issue warnings not to impede traffic.

Later, the marchers were joined by William Kashtan, leader of the Communist Party in Canada. In an interview, Mr. Kashtan said he was looking for support to the marchers' cause.

He said he is not a member of the organizing group, the Toronto Co-ordinating Committee to End the War in Viet Nam, and "came as a private individual."

The Canadian demonstrations were matched by counter-protest groups on the U.S. side of the Niagara River who were marching the 21st anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima during the Second World War.

Wilson Annoyed by Rumors He Plans Cabinet Shuffle

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson was reported today incensed over persistent press reports that he plans a major cabinet shuffle of senior ministers.

Speculation continued, however, that the Labor premier is contemplating a re - political stroke to repair the damage caused by Britain's chronic economic problems and recent evidence of confusion at the top of his government.

A prominent Tory member of parliament speculates that Wilson may propose closer economic links with the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, rather than the much-scouted association with the European Common Market.

Comparisons are frequently made between Wilson's predicament now and that of Harold Macmillan, then Tory prime minister, in 1962. Macmillan's popularity was at a low ebb after he sacked half his cabinet but he recovered prestige by becoming champion of British unions with the Common Market.

Lord Lambton, writer and Tory member of Parliament, says in today's Evening Standard that Wilson may well be planning a similar stroke, but discarding the Common Market idea for the present because Prance still appears set against British entry under acceptable conditions.

Giving some substance to Lambton's speculation is a report by Hill Samuel, merchant bankers, which says British entry in the Common Market is doubtful and might be unwise.

Wilson was reported looking patience with speculation about cabinet changes expected before the Labor party's annual October conference.

TWO FRESH FRUIT PIES

Rashly we asked our weekend guests for special requests for desserts. Without hesitation one asked for fresh blueberry pie and another asked if plums were in season yet and if so he wanted juicy red plum pie. Ours to please.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Savory Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy; Baked New Potatoes; Mixed Green and Yellow Beans; Sliced Tomatoes on Lettuce; New Applesauce; Homemade Bread and Butter; Tea.

FRESH BLUEBERRY PIE

Blueberries are scarce and small in our area this season. We were lucky to find enough for a pie at a roadside stand but the price was shocking.

PASTRY:

2 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup best quality shortening
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons cold water

FILLING:

3½ cups picked over and washed and dried blueberries
2/3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
grated rind of one large lemon

Make the pastry first by cutting the shortening and butter into the flour and salt with pastry blender until they are the size of peas. Drizzle in the cold water one tablespoon at a time, while you toss with a fork, until flour is dampened enough to pack pastry into a ball between your warm palms. Roll out half of dough to fit 10" deep pie plate and chill it. Roll out second half of dough and fold it over and gash it deeply and often along fold.

Mix filling ingredients together gently and pour into prepared pastry - lined pie plate. Moisten rim of dough and cover with prepared top crust and seal edges. Brush top evenly with glaze made of 1 tablespoon each milk and sugar. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for and bake 30 or 40 minutes longer or until juice bubbles through gashes.

PLUM PIE

PASTRY:

Same as for Blueberry Pie above.

FILLING:

16 large Lombard (or Green gage) plums (about 4 cups when washed, stoned and cut into eighths)
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2/3 to ¾ cup sugar (amount depends on your sweet tooth)
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Follow method above for pastry and filling for Blueberry Pie, but use filling ingredients for Plum Pie above. Glaze and bake same as for Blueberry Pie.

Successful Living

Reassurance for Child Who Sublimates Fears

DEAR DORIS: I have one child of five. She has always played well with others, but now, just since early June, she doesn't want to leave our yard. If kids come to our place, fine; but she just won't go over there.

Also, since this started I have a problem with her going to Sunday School. She's been going since she was three so she cries every Sunday when she has to go. She goes but always has a long cry before settling down.

I'm trying to ignore it all but it worries me. — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: Something has frightened her — something strange DORIS CLARK enough that she fears to tell it. She fears that in some way it was her fault, or that you will scold her about it.

Who doesn't run for cover when they meet up with something to scold or handle?

By insisting on Sunday School you give her an aversion to it. Take her in your arms and say there is no need to venture beyond your door until she wants to. Remind her of how pleasant other places can be; then let her take her own time to try again.

DEAR DORIS: I'm a 13-year-old boy who weighs 150 pounds. My problem is that I'm fat. Can you picture a 150-pound boy who stands a mere 5' 3½"? Everybody (including my family doctor) tells me that around my age folks start to slim out. But Doris, that was last year and I haven't lost a pound since. I'm getting worried.

It's embarrassing to be fat and hand around with a few slim boys. It's also giving me an inferiority complex. I think everybody's watching me when I go anywhere. I wear light clothes to cover the fat but that doesn't seem to help.

My maternal parents won't let me diet. I've tried to ride off the fat but no luck. The fun parts of my life are just starting but I can't enjoy them with 30 extra pounds hanging around. — FAT STUFF.

DEAR FAT STUFF: I agree; it isn't funny to feel so different and awkward and lumpy. You will lengthen out, doubtless, but some thought to what is making the overweight is indicated. Eating habits which will last you a lifetime need to start now.

I'd guess you are heavy on starches and sweets: things like bread, potatoes, pie, cake, candy, ice cream, pop. Cut these down and put in their place all the vegetables and fruits you can get. Cut down on butter.

Don't let up on the proteins, though; you need them to grow tall. These are meat, cheese, milk, fish, eggs, nuts.

DEAR DORIS: As you know from your visit here we are a small community and we usually have our share of gossip. One lady in particular is doing herself the utmost harm by her malicious gossip about other persons (mostly women) when she listens.

My request is that you publish this letter with some words of advice to all persons of this type of mind. I am a regular churchgoer and have prayed for more guidance for this lady. This is my solution, a letter to you for help.

I, like many other persons here, am a friend of this lady and have tried very hard to drop hints as to the harm she may be doing herself as well as the person she is gossiping about, but all to no avail. — AN OLD-TIMER.

DEAR OLD-TIMER: A malicious gossip does harm all round — and to herself most of all. This fact is fast recognized by the offender.

Look at it this way: People come to know it when a loose talker is just that, and discounts her so-called information accordingly. So she is not believed.

Meanwhile, besides making folks shun her, she has put one more nail in her coffin — the coffin which will eventually hold a dead-as-a-doornail personality (even though her body may live on.) If we are not in this world to do something constructive, I'm a monkey's aunt.

Social-Business Rounds For Canadians Increasing

By ARCH McKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Washington may not swing as much as it likes to think. But cocktail swinging—usually in moderation—is an after-six-o'clock way of life here, as in any other capital.

In fact, the social-business rounds for Canadians and others seem to be increasing in tempo all the time.

"It's getting busier certainly," says Sheila Kinnear, the tall, blonde British-born girl who arrived here from Ottawa in 1953 and who for the last four years has been the Canadian embassy's social secretary.

There are 115 foreign missions here now, compared with 78 nine years ago. Entertaining for visiting Canadians has increased as trans - boundary travel expands.

Canada, with 140 people at its embassy and more than 100 scattered around town on military affairs, diligently pursues a "middle-size" course on the entertainment circuit.

PARTIES NOT MISERLY

Its own festivities are neither opulent nor miserly. It is away from the type of frolic represented recently by Morocco in providing a belly dancer for guests.

Miss Kinnear and more than half her social secretary counterparts—some of them American nationals working for foreign missions—have their own club. Sometimes embassies, the White House or private groups give receptions just for them.

It's a full-time job, answering invitations for the ambassador, rejecting some, passing some others on down the embassy line, doubling of even tripling up some nights to work in two cocktail parties plus a dinner.

It means helping run the ambassador's residence by shopping for, a new butler, chef or maid as needed; making arrangements when visiting Canadian cabinet ministers come to stay; drawing up guest lists for dinner parties or—more commonly—cocktail parties.

Miss Kinnear, who is returning to Ottawa Jan. 1, says weekends used to be sacrosanct, but increasingly there are opportunities for going out even then. Most Canadians here prefer a good book instead.

HAVE OWN ORBITS

On down the line in the embassy, the 35-odd foreign service officers and ranking officials of other Canadian departments here operate in their own individual social orbits, armed with entertainment allowances.

There, too, the pace has crept up. Most, depending on seniority of rank, give at least two major receptions annually. December is chockful and the May-June period also is brisk. Since the bulk of Canada's diplomatic activity here concerns bilateral trade matters, Americans are the most frequent foreign guests.

Politically, Canada's diplomatic figures on the social rounds in recent years here have been Rear Admiral Desmond Piers, retiring as chief of the military staff mission here, and his pretty brunette wife. The Piers are being relieved from the Navy but, from an apartment just across from renowned hostess Perle Mesta, they cut a pretty scintillating swath, sometimes borrowing the Mesta butler to help.

Diplomatic newcomers to Washington also operate on a strictly-reciprocal basis of "you - invited - me - and - I'm-inviting-you."

But one Canadian, posted here from a strategically-important area where the U.S. isn't represented, got such a social rush—and, besides, too—that he fast wearied of trying to keep his end up.

"I've decided Washington is one place where you don't have to entertain," he said. "They keep on asking you anyway."

Suggests Way to Help Prevent Drug Addiction

CALGARY (CP) — If social workers could "reach" people in their problem situations it would be a big step forward in helping to prevent drug addiction.

So says Joy Vernon of the Calgary Children's Aid department who conducted group therapy classes with addicts at the Mercer Reformatory for women in Toronto.

"I think," Miss Vernon said in an interview, "if social workers and other professionals could reach people in their problem situations in the family group where the person with the problem is situated, it would be a big step forward in helping to prevent addiction."

She said the trend in Alberta is recognition that experts in health, both mental and physical, in social work, in recreation and education must work together to help people with problems.

"I feel the problem of narcotics has been sensationalized to the point where we've been ignoring the cause."

VALUES DISTORTED

Of her first-hand experience with addicts, she said:

"I found they were usually intelligent people . . . they had to be to play the narcotics game because it's so risky. They not only had to worry about the law but about untrustworthy peddlers.

"In the dealings I had with addicts, I found their sense of values in everything was off-kilter. Many social pressures make life difficult for them in the hectic pace of society today, a lot of people are lost and looking for a way to find themselves. Drugs look like the solution. Most drug addicts have not had a stable family life. Their whole lives need re-focusing.

"Very few teen-agers are using heroin. They usually stick to marijuana. A heroin addict will usually do her best to keep others from becoming addicted."

Miss Vernon took nurses' training at Toronto Western Hospital. She has since studied social work at the University of British Columbia and at summer school at the University of Victoria.

Country Club Ladies Field Day

Playing facilities, not entry records, is the target for the Quinte Country Club's ladies' games captain Betty Walmsley and her committee for the upcoming annual Women's Field Day next Saturday.

Last year an all-time record of 168 entries marked the event but club facilities were stretched to the limit.

"The field this year is being limited to 150 entries," Mrs. Walmsley said. "This, we find, is the maximum number we can handle properly."

At stake is the hands on a Mead-Johnson Trophy won last year by Betty Ingram, on a back-nine score, after being tied with Betty Gilbert with 81.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club's annual women's field day has proven extremely popular with golfers from other clubs.

This year entries are in from Toronto to Peterborough to Kingston. They will be here, from Loudon, Hamilton, Barrie, Whitevale and also from Syracuse N.Y.

"We look for this tournament to be the best in the history of the club" Mrs. Walmsley said, "I have had great co-operation from the games committee Clare Hopwood — Jones, Betty Ingram and Lois Bell. The club pro George Balazs, and the stewards Elwood and Marg Haines have been wonderful."

The tournament draw will be published on Thursday.

Ann Landers

Swift Kick Cured Her 'Clumsy' Husband

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the wife whose husband interrupted her in front of friends reminded me of my marriage — many years ago. I solved the problem and I'd like to tell you how.

ANN LANDERS

"Rudy" is not a strong enough word to describe my husband's behavior in the early days of our marriage. He used to shut drawers on my fingers and knock off my hat when he reached over to make sure the car door was locked. Once he gave me two black eyes when he opened the cupboard door (he said he didn't know I was behind him.)

The interesting aspect of all these little "innocents" acts of mayhem was that he would pretend to be terribly sorry — and in a fakey voice I came to know so well he would say, "Oh, excuse me, Dear."

One evening we were hanging pictures. He was on the ladder and I was handing him things. I must have said something that irritated him, because suddenly he let the hammer fall on my head. I saw stars for five minutes. He became overly solicitous at once and gave me that, "Oh, excuse me, Dear" routine.

Later that night when we were getting ready for bed I saw him bending over tying his shoelaces. A great idea flashed across my mind. I came up from behind and gave him a swift kick in the rear that sent him sprawling on his face. Then I said in my best fakey voice, "Oh, excuse me, Dear."

Since that night I have never had any trouble with him. — FOUGHT BACK.

DEAR FOUGHT: Some people figure out the solutions at their problems without any outside help whatever. I don't recommend violence but parenthetically I'd like to offer my congratulations.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a teenager who has a problem that is driving me crazy. I wish it were a silly boy-girl thing or a gripe about not getting the family car, but I'm not that fortunate.

My mother had surgery a few months ago. It was a serious operation but she survived.

I have been worried ever since her operation that there was a malignancy and that she is not telling us because she doesn't want us to worry. I don't know if she goes for treatment. She hasn't said anything and I'm afraid to ask.

Please don't think I'm a mama's baby. We are a large family and mom never had any favorites. I had never felt particularly close to her until she became sick. Now I am worried to death about her and I can't get her off my mind. Can you tell me what to do? — CAN'T HELP IT.

DEAR CAN'T: You can help it — if you want to. A phone call to your mother's physician will relieve your anxiety. It is my hunch that you are worrying needlessly. Usually the doctor tells the family if the patient has a terminal illness. Make the phone call already and put an end to the torture.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been reading your column in the Arkansas Gazette for at least ten years. They use several different pictures of you but they all look as if they were taken thirty years ago.

I'll come right to the point. How old are you and are you still with your original husband? — JUST NOSEY.

DEAR JUST: I'll come right to the point, too. I was 48 years old on the 4th of July and I am still with my original husband. We have two very original grandchildren and if there's anything else you'd like to know, don't be bashful.

Family Reunions

DENTES CLAN

The Denyes family picnic was held recently at the Provincial Park at Adolphustown.

After dinner, the chairman, Walter Denyes of Belleville, conducted the business. Garnet Denyes of Holloway, was elected to be chairman. The secretary Miss Helen Sproule of Odessa, was requested to act for another year. The entertainment committee for next year is to be Ronald Denyes, Mrs. Ronald Denyes and Wayne Wake. One minute's silence was observed in memory of George Sleeman, Kingston, who had passed away during the year.

Fred Denyes, 84, of Belleville, was the oldest person present. Garnet Denyes and family had travelled the longest distance. Guests numbering over 80 were present from Wilmington, Trenton, Belleville, Holloway, Napanee, Morven, Odessa and Kingston.

The next get-together will be held on the second Sunday of July, 1967.

KETCHESON CLAN

One hundred and twenty-five descendants of William Ketcheson gathered recently at the original homestead on the fifth concession of Sidney for the ninth annual picnic and family reunion.

Mr. David Gamble of Sudbury displayed family Bibles, clippings and pictures, including a picture of the first reunion held in 1911 when over 200 people were present.

During the afternoon many people visited the nearby Ketcheson cemetery, where many of the pioneers are buried. Professor Jack Ketcheson of Guelph University compiled a family tree with the assistance of those present.

The chairman, Mr. Max Ketcheson of Peterborough, presided over a short business period. A minute's silence was observed for deceased members. It was decided to hold the picnic at Tweed on July 1967.

The existing committee was re-appointed. Members are: Past president, Mr. Allen Ketcheson of Madoc; president, Mr. Max Ketcheson of Peterborough; vice-president, Mr. Ross Ketchenon of Moira; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Nelson Welsh of R.R. 6 Belleville; historical secretary, Mrs. Taylor Franklin of Belleville; committee, Mrs. H. W. Rose of Frankford, Mr. Murray Demiks of Toronto, Clark Ketcheson of Guelph, Mrs. Jim Keene of Madoc, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Ketcheson of Tyendinaga, Mr. and Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson of Halloway.

Prizes were distributed to the following: Youngest baby, John Summers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burke Summers, R.R. 7, Belleville; newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. T. Gamble, Belleville; largest family present, Mr. and Mrs. D. Demike of Agincourt; person travelling farthest, Miss Kathy Dunlop, Devonport, Iowa; oldest person, Mr. Elliot Ketcheson of Reeslde; lucky number, Mrs. Nelson Welsh, Belleville; lucky guests, Mr. Taylor Franklin of Belleville, Mr. Bob Maloney of Windsor and Mr. Nelson Welsh of R.R. 6 Belleville.

A program of children's sports was conducted by Miss Ann Ketcheson of Guelph.

The Ketcheson homestead where the re-union was held, is now occupied by Mrs. Lawrence Ketcheson, her son Douglas and Griffin and Mrs. Griffin Ketcheson, Deanna, Ritchie and Robert. It was settled in 1800 by William Ketcheson, Loyalist refugee from Virginia, and his wife, Mary Bull.

ferred. If no trick is won after the revoke there is no penalty, and also, there is no penalty if attention is first drawn to the fact of the revoke after the round has ended.

All interested players are reminded of the next session of duplicate bridge on Tuesday evening, August 9th, at 7.30, at the Golf Club. Visitors are welcome.

Duplicate Bridge Session

REVOKES:

Failure to follow suit when possible to do so, constitutes a revoke. Any player, including dummy, may ask a player who failed to follow suit whether he has a card of the suit led, and may demand that an opponent correct his revoke.

A revoke becomes established wherever the offender or his partner leads or plays to the following trick, or scores the card, to be so played. After being established, the revoke cannot be corrected, and the trick on which the revoke occurred has to stand as played.

If a player becomes aware of his revoke before it becomes established, he must withdraw the card he played and follow suit. If from a defender's hand, the withdrawn card becomes a penalty card, but if from a declarer's hand or dummy, there is no penalty.

The establishment of a revoke causes two tricks to be transferred to the non - offending side, if two tricks were won after the revoke. The trick in which the revoke occurred is counted as having been won after the revoke. If only one trick was won, then it is transferred to the non-offending side.

Susanna's Family Fair

Brilliant, Towering, Artificial Flowers

Crazy; enormous, creepe paper flowers have taken over the country from coast to coast. The wilder, the bigger, the more brilliant, the better!

One sees massive displays of them in the more elegant department stores. The suggestion is that they may be used as artistic decoration in every room and area inside and outside the house or apartment — from powder room to patio and balcony.

The price of these beauties resembles their size — huge!

On the other hand, one need not be artistic or talented to make them at home, and the cost is fractional.

HOW TO MAKE AN ORIENTAL POPPY

Material needed — wire coat hanger for stem; colored crepe paper for petals, centres, stamens, stem covering and leaves; fine wire for fastening.

(Note: The only paper used is crepe paper, and all cutting should be across the grain of the paper.)

Procedure — centres: crush paper into ball-shaped wad with 3" diameter across top. Flatten top slightly and stretch and smooth a 6" square of paper over it. Pull ends straight down underneath. Tie with fine wire allowing "skirt" to hang down below.

Stamens — cut a 4" wide strip of dark brown or black paper 40" long. Stretch it lightly. With large scissors, fringe the outer edge to a depth of 2¼". Double lengthwise before winding it around the centre. Add a dab of glue now and then as you wrap it around to keep the stamens from slipping — use only white transparent or bondiast glue. Pat the fringes (or stamens) into place gently as you work, allowing the centre to show through at the top. Wire at base of centre.

Petals — design and cut your own large petals. About 5¼" by 3". Do eight at once. Place around base of centre and wire.

Stem — completely straighten a wire coat hanger with heavy pliers. Use ripply unwound neck section for top of stem, as it will hold better when wired. Lay this top end against the base of the flower. Wire it around and around, twisting it with pliers to tighten very securely.

Covering stem — cut a long 2" wide strip of green crepe paper (cut right through the entire package of paper).

Glue one end to the top of the hanger where it is held against the base. Start unrolling, stretching and wrapping it diagonally around everything as you continue on down the stem. At the same time, keep turning in the outer edge about ¼" to make firmer base. Don't glue here and there to help hold in place.

Leaves — simply designed green paper leaves can be inserted along the stem as it is cover.

One precaution — whatever you do, don't water them! — SUSANNA

Another Clay pigeon bit the dust Saturday and Britain's boxing "elite" added another member to its illustrious honor role of barbuntal heavyweights.

Some 15,000 Britons and assorted tourists who exchanged the weekend "wireless", darts and solid-a-bitters in favorite pubs for the punch-frenzied ring walnut, gave the pathetic display the British version of the Boston bung.

Brian London, the alleged Terrible-Tempered Thomas of Ashlon's pugilistic society, was as miscast in this near three-act comedy as Charlie Chaplin in a Macbeth.

Cassius Muhammad Ali Clay disdained to call the record which would end the hostilities. Outside of the taunting remark he showed his feelings for his opponent with an attitude of absolute contempt.

London, 32 is reported, once tried to impersonate the oldtime "ham-and-egg" fighter. It is said he butted a fan uncouncious in Liverpool after he lost a disputed decision. He was once fined $3,000 for assaulting the trainer of another fighter in a ring brawl.

He was said to be "a changed man" for his latest and possibly final fandango. He probably saw the hand writing on his career wall but he also noted with both eyes the bewitching specs on promoters cheques which could read from $112,000 to $125,000.

Clay after a dull but well-paying evening can add a quarter-million to his personal Fort Knox — but he sure does he go from here.

True, he is slated to fight a German in the near future and this could be his final stepping stone to nothing. What's left for him? Patterson, Lewis, Terrell? And where will he fight them.

All of which leads one to believe that Canada's George Chuvalo is not such a bad fighter, after all. At least he has done something to help bring heavyweight boxing shrvy gutter-level — and gave his viewing public at least a little for their money.

Red-blooded Canadian sports fans are getting tremendous thrills over the performances of our team in the British Empire Games now under way down there in the sunny Caribbean. The youngsters especially in track and field are turning in a sparkling the experts eyes with gold-medal performances.

Jerome, Crothers and those teen-age darlings in swim suits will sport the yellow medallions while others will wear the silver and bronze decorations with equal pride.

And Belleville's own Ken Carr-Brulat is doing extremely well. Ken is coach of the Canadian weightlifting team and at this writing has garnered two bronze medals. These will be the second and third bronzes to Ken's credit. He helped win another with John Lewis at the Pan-American Games in Sao-Paulo, Brazil, two years ago.

Twenty-two high-stepping harness youngsters will go to the post next Saturday evening at the Fair Grounds Raceway shooting for the top share of a $2,000 purse and the handsome Black Diamond Cheese Stakes Trophy. The entries are horses which have not won $200.

Incidentally the Fair opens on Saturday 6th the racing card of nine heats, four of them Independent dashes, the others five Black Diamond affairs with three eliminations, the final and consolation race.

The Hon. Earle Rowe, lieutenant governor of Ontario, himself an avid harness driver, owner and breeder, will open the Fair and present the Cheese Stakes Trophy to the winner.

The golfing gals of the Bay of Quinte Country club will play hosts to some 150 top counterparts at the annual Ladies Field Day next Saturday. Games captain Betty Walmsley says the field this year has been limited to that amount and has attracted women golfers from all parts of Ontario and some from Syracuse, N.Y. At stake is the handsome Head-Johnson Trophy. The draw will be published later.

MONTREAL (CP) — Halfback Amos Bullocks, released earlier by British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, signed a contract Sunday with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. Darrell Mudra, Als' head coach, said Bullocks was part of the club's search for a replacement for fullback J. W. Lockett, who has been sidelined by a fractured arm for eight to 10 weeks.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets bought pitcher Ralph Terry from Kansas City Athletics Saturday for a price a Mets spokesman said "was well over the waiver price." The waiver price is $20,000. John Roseboro, who objects to aspirin tablets, handed out some headaches as Los Angeles Dodgers trounced Houston Astros 16-3 and took over the National League lead Sunday.

The Dodgers grabbed a one-percentage-point lead over Pittsburgh Pirates, who lost to Cincinnati Reds 8-7, and a three-point margin over San Francisco Giants, who downed Chicago Cubs 9-6.

Roseboro contributed three hits to the Dodgers' 20-hit onslaught and scored three runs. "I used to hit, hit and hit some more in the cage," Roseboro explained, "I would have my timing down perfect. Then I would go into the game and I was no good. After batting-practice lollipops, pitches in the game looked like aspirin tablets."

In other games, Atlanta Braves blanked Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 and St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets split a pair of 4-1 games.

In Saturday's action, Chicago defeated San Francisco 5-2, Pittsburgh walloped Cincinnati 9-3, St. Louis edged New York 10-9, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 6-5, and Los Angeles defeated Houston 4-3.

Cincinnati's Deron Johnson helped drop Pittsburgh from first place. He drove in four runs, including three with a sixth-running double that proved decisive. Rose also helped drove in five Pirate runs, leading two singles and two homers.

San Francisco rallied for four runs in the seventh inning, the last two on Cap Peterson's single, in stopping a three-game losing streak. The rally wiped out Chicago's 4-3 lead that helped Gaylord Perry gain his 17th victory against two defeats.

Tony Cloninger pitched a four-hitter against Philadelphia. The Braves' hurler also doubled home a run in the seventh. Rico Carty homered for Atlanta in the second.

Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer in the sixth to power St. Louis past New York in the opener. Bob Gibson won his 14th game with nine-inning relief from Hal Woodeshick.

The Mets came back in the second game behind a pair of run scoring singles by Ron Swoboda. Jack Fisher stymied the Cardinals on six hits.

Leafs, Jets Divided Hitfest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a hitters' holiday Sunday as Columbus Jets and Toronto Maple Leafs scored a total of 36 runs on 31 hits as they split a doubleheader in International League baseball.

Toronto had 18 hits in the first game but couldn't outpunch the Jets, who won 15-10 with a rally in the later innings. In the second game Toronto downed Columbus 7-4.

In other action, Richmond Braves twice defeated Syracuse Chiefs 3-1 in a doubleheader at Richmond, Buffalo Bisons went into a 10th inning to edge Toledo Mud Hens 8-7, and Rochester's scheduled game at Jacksonville was postponed, because of rain.

SETS FREESTYLE RECORD

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Martha Randall, 18-year-old United States Olympian, broke the world record Saturday for the 200-metre freestyle in the fourth annual Eastern Girls' swimming and diving championships. Miss Randall was timed in 2:11.4, smashing the mark of 2:11.7 set Feb. 27, 1960, in Sydney, Australia, by Dawn Fraser.

Picton Blanks Juniors

By ROBERT SNEPSELLA
Staff Sportswriter

Picton Kinsmen have discovered a magic formula for winning ball games. They mix portion of good hitting, fine fielding and excellent pitching and presto, they come out ahead.

Saturday night at the Albemarle, Picton whipped Ellis Juniors 4-0 to take a 2-0 lead in the clubs' best-of-seven B. and D. semi-final playoffs, as say used the usual tactics.

Picton pitcher Ken DeMille crabbed most of the spotlight, as he set down the Juniors on seven hits and 14 strikeouts. DeMille received all the support he needed at the plate too, as the winners got 9 hits and plenty of errors off the Juniors.

The home squad played without starters Bob Meen, their pitcher, and big Bill Barbeau, stock, the loss of whom hurt their chances.

Bob Ethier, Ellis' pitching ace, did not have a particularly good night, as he walked four and managed only nine strikeouts, while giving up nine hits. Ethier they was the big hitter of the night for Picton, slamming a double and two triples, scoring one run, and knocking in another. Warren Ostrander stroked two doubles, scored one run and drove in one. Fletcher Kenonahips.

DeMille had two base hits, and Keith Stacey and Lee St. Denis one each.

For the losers, Bob Ethier and Carl Boomhower lined two singles each, Art Barker had a double, and Dan Gardner and Wayne Wood one hit each.

The next game of the series is slated for Wednesday, at Picton. Game time is 8:00 p.m.

Jerome Tops Four Gold ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Two Silver, Four Bronze

Canada Second In Medals Standing

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Canadian athletes, with 10 British Empire Games medals tucked into their strip bags, have big eyes for the 31 more up for the taking today.

As the Games go into the third day of competition with 17 finals, Canada has four gold medals, two second-place silvers and four other place bronzes.

In the 30 events of the first two days, Canadians won medals in 10 with a week to go.

Only one of the 10—the gold of Vancouver's Harry Jerome in the 100-yard dash—was a medal Canada had been counting on.

So far, others have come from:

Gold: Women's 440-yard free-style team; Ron Jacks, Vancouver, in the 100-yard breaststroke; Marion Lay, Vancouver, in the 110-yard freestyle.

MEDAL FOR DIVING

Silver: Men's 880-yard free-style team; Beverly Boys, Picking, Ont., in the women's springboard diving.

Bronze: Chan Hon Chan, Montreal, bantamweight weightlifter; Allen Baker, Ottawa, featherweight weightlifter; Nancy McCabe, Brampton, Ont., shot-putter; Gerry Moro, Trail, B.C., decathlon.

The showing put Canada in second place in the medals list between first-place England and Australia — the two countries which traditionally dominate these Games.

The Canadian crew heading into action today includes many picked to bring the Games to be tough to beat.

George Puce of Toronto heads a strong cinder contingent. Harry Jerome will be going after his double in the 220-yard sprint.

Bill Crothers, the flying pharmacist from Markham, Ont., will contest the 440 and the 880.

Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver will go against strong competition in the 110-yard final and the 220 semi-final.

STARS IN ACTION

Most of Canada's big guns in swimming will be in action—Sandy Gilchrist and Ralph Hutton, both of Ocean Falls, B.C., in the 440 individual medley; Ron Jacks and Montreal's Tom Arnaco in the 880 butterfly; Gilchrist and Hutton in the 440 freestyle.

Shared Whittaker of Toronto is making a strong bid for a double win in badminton, in the men's singles and with partner Rod Paterson of Vancouver in the mixed doubles.

Saturday's story was the victory of Jerome in the 100 yards, an event he had tried so win in the 1962 Pan-American Games in Chicago, in the 1960 Olympics at Rome, the 1962 British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, and the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo. The best he ever did was a third - place bronze medal in 1964.

The swimmers stole their share of the spotlight in the first two days of the Games, with their best showing in 28 years.

double victory as she picked up the gold medal in the 110-yard freestyle and anchored the 440-yard freestyle relay team to victory—in both events, outswimming Lyn Bell of Australia.

Miss Boys was pleased and amazed at her second-place finish which she preserved with her specialty, a forward 1½ somersault with double twist.

"It was supposed to be my best dive, but I've sure done it better. "But I don't care, I'm happy."

The first major upset came Saturday, when Naftali Temu, 22-year-old soldier from Kenya, ran favored Ron Clarke of Australia into the ground and took the gold medal for the six miles.

The stocky little private shattered the Games record, posting 27 minutes, 14.8 seconds to make a shambles of the 28:26.6 set four years ago by Bruce Kidd of Toronto.

Clarke, who holds the world record for the distance in 26:47.4, and Temu left all other competitors far behind from the start. Temu pulled ahead with about 1,200 yards to go.

Clarke held on for the silver medal, with Jim Alder of Scotland third.

Dave Ellis of Toronto and Andy Boychuk of Orono, Ont., finished sixth and eighth respectively.

Ten records were broken or tied in Saturday competition, three in swimming, six in track and one in weightlifting.

Ian O'Brien of Australia did the 220-yard breaststroke in 2:38 to break his former Games record of 2:38 and the world record of 2:30.8.

Linda Lodgrove of England, with a 1:09 in the 220 backstroke, toppled her Games mark of 1:10.8.

Mike Wenden of Australia swam the 110-yard freestyle in 54 seconds, tying the old Games mark.

England's John Fitzsimmons threw the 22-pound shot seven inches to top the old Games record of 56' 2.

Peter Walsh of New Zealand did the 3,000 metre steeplechase in 8:30.8. The old mark was 8:49.4.

Diana Burge of Australia knocked 0.4sh of a second off the Games record for the 100-yard dash with a 10.5 clocking.

The mark tied by Jerome and Robinson, 9.4, for the 100-yard dash, is shared by Keith Gardner, Jamaica; Seraphino Antao, Kenya, and Mike Cleary, Australia. Jerome is co-holder with Bob Hayes of the United States of the world record—9.1.

Valerie Young of New Zealand, with a throw of 56 feet, 10½ inches, set broke her Games mark of 51 feet.

The straining Hugo Gittens of Trinidad and Tobago, a light-weight, lifted 309¾ pounds to break the Games record of 790 pounds.

Jerome Medal-Happy

Nobody Said 'Quitter' This Time

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Nobody yelled "quitter" this time.

Harry Jerome wore a smile and a British Empire Games gold medal on a long, blue ribbon as he walked into the interview room under National Stadium here and ordered a drink.

"A glassful's punch, or anything like that," he requested. Harry, the smile, the medal and the victory drink had been a long time coming.

He was co-holder of the world 100-metre record when he went to the Rome Olympics in 1960. He was co-favorite to win, but the tall, sinewy man with the flashing spikes crumpled in a heap at the 50-metre mark in the semi-final.

He had injured a leg, but the first murmurs of "quitter" were heard.

HARRY JEROME

Two years later, the scene was the British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, and again Jerome was a favorite with a 9.2 clocking for the 100-yard dash. Again he blazed into the final and once again—with 15 yards to go—he pulled up lame. Later, his injury was diagnosed as a damaged thigh muscle.

In Rome and in Perth the post - race interviews were rough.

POSER QUESTION

One reporter in Perth stuck his nose within five inches of Jerome's face:

"Did you quit again, Harry? Tell us, did you?"

Jerome answered quietly: "No."

The picture was different in the steaming heat here Saturday night.

After one false start, the field had away, with Tom Robinson of the Bahamas out in front. Forty yards out Jerome caught up and the two hit the tape almost simultaneously. Both were clocked in 9.4 to equal the Games record.

Then came the anguish. For 42 minutes, Jerome fidgeted and fretted as the Canadians in the stands called encouragement to him and waved a large "Canada" banner.

It took 42 minutes to develop the photo-finish picture and declare Jerome the winner.

"I don't know," he said over and over. When the official announcement came, the Canadian contingent went wild.

Harry Jerome grinned and waved and trotted briskly across the track to the victory rostrum, and almost fell flat on his face as he stubbed a toe on a mat.

Then came the walk to the interview room and the drink he had made before in anguish. Inside he met men he had met before in anguish.

This time it was different.

Nobody mentioned Rome or Perth.

The game featured a number of stars from the National, Western and International leagues playing with junior and senior players.

The goals by Hull, of the NHL Chicago Black Hawks, brought the 3,500 fans to their feet.

France Leads Skiers

PORTILLO, Chile (CP) — Nancy Greene, a fiercely-competitive 23-year-old from Rossland, B.C., was to make the first run today in the women's downhill as skiers sought to crack French dominance in the world championships.

Frenchmen placed first and second Sunday in the men's downhill, shocking the experts and giving France a sweep of the championship to date.

Jean-Claude Killy, 22, completed the downhill in one minute, 54.40 seconds to grab the gold medal. The runner-up was another Frenchman, Leo Lacroix, 28, in 1:54.80.

The best Canadian showing was by Scot Henderson, 20, of Banff, Alta., who was 34th.

Friday, Annie Famose of France won the women's slalom, although Miss Greene had been leading until she fell one-third of the way through her second run.

Two Homers In Six Hits

Horton Was Top Tiger In Detroit Tank

BY RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Horton depends on his wife for such things as knowing his batting average or how much money he makes.

But there are other things he has to handle himself, such as breaking out of hitting slumps. Horton, who had two home runs, six hits and six runs batted in during Detroit Tigers' doubleheader split with Boston Red Sox Sunday, claims he never reads the papers and never sees his pay cheque.

"I don't even know what I was batting before the games," Willie said afterwards.

Horton started hitting in Detroit's opening-game 9-2 victory and Boston's 7-6 extra-innings triumph in the second game wasn't safe until Willie had been doubled off second on a sensational play by Boston catcher Mike Ryan.

CAUGHT HORTON

Ryan made a lunging drive of Orlando McFarlane's pop foul bunt attempt and caught Horton off second.

In other American League games, Washington Senators beat Baltimore Orioles 8-2, Chicago White Sox beat California Angels 9-8 in 10 innings, Cleveland Indians won a double-header from New York Yankees 8-4 and 5-3 and Minnesota Twins split a pair with Kansas City Athletics, 2-1 and 2-4.

Saturday Boston walloped Detroit 9-2, the Yankees edged Cleveland 7-6, the Orioles shut out Washington 4-0, Minnesota blanked the Athletics 5-0, and Chicago defeated California 7-3.

Ken McMullen's three - run homer gave the punch to Washington's four-run, sixth inning. Pete Richert gave up nine hits in the Birds, two of them homers by Brooks Robinson and Paul Blair.

Wayne Causey tripled home two runs in the 10th for Chicago as the White Sox scored four extra-inning runs in their victory over California.

Fred Whitfield hit two homers and drove in four runs in Cleveland's first game victory over New York and Rocky Colavito contributed the winning two-run double in the eighth inning of the nightcap. Chuck Hinton had five hits, including a homer, in the two games.

Don Mincher's two runs batted in gave Minnesota the opening - game victory and Dick Green's pair propelled Kansas City to the nightcap triumph.

Panasiuk Nips "Moe" Homenuik

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., won the Northern Ontario Professional Golfers' Association tournament Sunday with a five-under-par 139 for 36 holes.

Panasiuk, who shot a two-under-par 70 Sunday to go with his 69 Saturday, finished two strokes ahead of Moe Norman of Toronto and Bill Koak of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Panasiuk had three birdies in Sunday's round, including a 40-foot chip for a birdie two on the par-three 12th hole.

Homenuik went one over par on the eighth, ninth and 12th holes Sunday.

Ted Scheleske of Sault Ste. Marie and Pete Shymko of Kapuskasing went eight extra holes before Scheleske won a special $200 prize as top Northern Ontario golfer. Both had 153.

Third-Round Knockout

Cassius Fogs London

LONDON (AP)—Brian London strolled into Cassius Clay's dressing room after having knocked out by the world champ Saturday night and said:

"I'd like to have had only if you put a 56-pound weight on each ankle."

Clay, unusually profusely but unmarked, had to fight his way through admirers to his dressing room before finishing his title.

He said he knocked London out in the third with a series of punches starting with a left and finishing with a right.

The first was "a fast and snappy one," Clay said, "but it wasn't as hard as I could. I "London didn't fight the way I thought he would. He didn't charge like a bull, he didn't hit a low blow. He was a real gentleman.

"And he didn't deserve the boos that the crowd gave him afterwards."

DAZED BUT UNMARKED

London was dazed but unmarked when he was questioned in his dressing room, the hoots and jeers of the crowd still echoing through the stadium.

"I am sorry," he said.

"You told me he was good, but nobody told me he was that good," London added.

"It was not a question of luck. I just was not good enough. There were so many punches I didn't know where they were coming from.

"I went into that ring expecting to go the 15-round distance. I reckon I am as good as the best, but Cassius Clay is different. He's more than the greatest. I am disgusted with myself."

German Grand Prix To Brabham

ADENAU, West Germany (AP)—Jack Brabham of Australia flashed to his fourth straight triumph Sunday, the German Grand Prix, and virtually clinched his third Formula One world driving championship.

The 40-year-old Aussie, who won the world driving championships in 1959 and 1960, drove his Repco powered Brabham over the 312.7 mile course in two hours, 27.3 minutes at an average of 86.1 miles an hour.

It was the first time Brabham had ever won a Formula One race on the 14.5-mile Nurburgring.

Victory in this sixth of the nine races counting toward the championship gave Brabham 39 points, a driver need count only his six best performances in the point standings.

John Surtees of England was second Sunday in a Cooper-Maserati. He was followed by Australia Jochen Rindt in another Cooper-Maserati.

Kenyan Upsets Clarke

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)— Naftali Temu, a 23-year-old soldier from Kenya, scored a major upset Saturday night when he ran fawned Ron Clarke of Australia into the ground and captured the gold medal for the 10 miles at the eighth British Empire Games.

The stocky little private, who failed to finish the 10,000 metres at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, shattered the Games record for the event in subduing Clarke.

He covered the distance in 27 minutes, 14.6 seconds to make a shambles of a mark of 28:36.8 set by Bruce Kidd of Toronto four years ago when the Games were staged at Perth, Australia.

The unheralded Temu was surrounded by other athletes after his great run and his coach, John Velzian, asked him to do a "lap of honor" around the track to celebrate the victory.

Lancaster Threw 3 TD Passes

Saskys Drub Bombers

REGINA (CP) — Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders has long been known as a scrambling quarterback.

Ken Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has always been considered calm, cool and effective.

But Sunday, it was Ploen who scrambles as Roughriders pounded out a 38-34 victory over Winnipeg in a Western Football Conference game before 20,000 fans.

Saskatchewan's hard - charging line held Bombers to only 31 yards along the ground. And, although Ploen completed 27 of 39 passes for 326 yards, he was smothered five times before he could get the ball away.

Bomber coach Paul Great was high in his praise of the Roughriders.

"They were just great," he said in the dressing room after the game. "I'd feel a lot better if I could find one Rider who didn't play well."

PLAYS WENT WELL

Saskatchewan Bomber pass plays went reasonably well, but Riders took our ground offence away from us and you don't often win using the pass alone."

He said Lancaster's passing was great.

Lancaster hit flanker Hugh Campbell with three touchdown passes and Other Saskatchewan touchdowns were scored by guard Al Benecick on a fumbled punt reception, and by George Reed on a 45-yard run. Buck Abendschan converted four touchdowns and added a single and a field goal.

Bomber touchdowns were scored by Art Perkins and Dave Raimey. Norm Winton converted both.

Saskatchewan led 14-7 after the first quarter, 22-7 at the half and 29-14 after three quarters.

Three times the Bombers failed on third down and short yardage situations. Twice, they were stopped at the goal line, and the third time, Ken Reed intercepted a pass. The only other interception of the game came near the end when defensive halfback Gene Wlasiuk grabbed a pass intended for Winnipeg end Farrell Funston.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Victorian Era, four-year-old son of Victoria Park, set a track record of 1¼ miles to win the $10,000 added Auspicious Stakes Saturday at Fort Erie Race Track.

Ridden by Avelino Gomez, Victorian Era carried 121 pounds, the heaviest weight assigned a horse in competition in Ontario since Shepperton carried 162 pounds in 1942. He finished in 1:49 Saturday, cutting a full second off the record set by Wise Counsellor in 1961.

Whistling Sea, winner of the 1965 Queen's Plate and owned by Paul Oliver of Calgary, finished second while Good Old Mort came in third. Victorian Era paid $3.70, $2.40 and $2.10.

The exactor of Victorian Era and Whistling Sea returned $10.80.

Gomez won with Yorkdale in the Sweet and Star Grad in the second for a $23.90 daily double.

NEW YORK (CP) — Buckpasser used a typical stretch rally to edge Jolly Jet by a head, and wrap up the Arlington Park, Chicago.

Advocator was third, about a head behind Jolly Jet.

Buckpasser, in winning his eighth straight race including the Chicagoan and the Arlington Classic, the other legs on the Mid-Americas triple, was timed in 1:47. That smashed the Arlington track record by one-fifth of a second.

The world record for the distance is 1:46 1-5.

The victory was worth $84,100, boosting the Ogden Phipps horse's career earnings to $984,475.

Buckpasser returned $3.20, $2.60 and $2.30. Jolly Jet paid $7.20 and $4.40 and Advocator was $3.20 to show.

Lancaster Throws 3 TD Passes

Saskys Drub Bombers

REGINA (CP) — Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders has long been known as a scrambling quarterback.

Ken Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has always been considered calm, cool and effective.

But Sunday, it was Ploen who scrambles as Roughriders pounded out a 38-34 victory over Winnipeg in a Western Football Conference game before 20,000 fans.

Saskatchewan's hard - charging line held Bombers to only 31 yards along the ground. And, although Ploen completed 27 of 39 passes for 326 yards, he was smothered five times before he could get the ball away.

Bomber coach Paul Great was high in his praise of the Roughriders.

"They were just great," he said in the dressing room after the game. "I'd feel a lot better if I could find one Rider who didn't play well."

PLAYS WENT WELL

Saskatchewan Bomber pass plays went reasonably well, but Riders took our ground offence away from us and you don't often win using the pass alone."

He said Lancaster's passing was great.

Lancaster hit flanker Hugh Campbell with three touchdown passes and Other Saskatchewan touchdowns were scored by guard Al Benecick on a fumbled punt reception, and by George Reed on a 45-yard run. Buck Abendschan converted four touchdowns and added a single and a field goal.

Bomber touchdowns were scored by Art Perkins and Dave Raimey. Norm Winton converted both.

Saskatchewan led 14-7 after the first quarter, 22-7 at the half and 29-14 after three quarters.

Three times the Bombers failed on third down and short yardage situations. Twice, they were stopped at the goal line, and the third time, Ken Reed intercepted a pass. The only other interception of the game came near the end when defensive halfback Gene Wlasiuk grabbed a pass intended for Winnipeg end Farrell Funston.

First Canadian

Jerome Eyes Sprint Double

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)— Now it's the sprint double for Harry Jerome, Canada's three British Empire Games gold medal winner in the men's 100-yard dash in 36 years.

The 25 - year - old Vancouver sprinter must run three 220-yard heats today to qualify for the final Thursday.

No Canadian has been able to win the sprint double before although Jerome, another Commonwealth athletes have done it including Staphino Antao of Kenya in 1962.

But track coach Paul Poce of Toronto predicts that Jerome's first gold medal after, so many unsuccessful attempts to win one in Games international competition "should really fire him up."

"Watch him fly in the 220," said Poce. "No Canadian has ever won the furlong in the Games. There may be better than 220 men in the field they'll have to prove it to Jerome was flying at Edmonton in the Games trials, when he hit 20.4. He's got an excellent chance."

Seven years of humiliation, frustration and personal tragedy ended for Jerome with his gold medal. He won it Saturday night, and, as befitting this oft-troubled athlete, the circumstances were somewhat bizarre.

He had to fidget and fuss for 42 minutes while officials looked over the photo finish picture to decide that this son of a railway porter had beaten Tom Robinson of The Bahamas.

The only master of inches perhaps one inch for each year he has been blinded in his search for the glory and personal satisfaction that goes with a winner.

Jerome, the only man in history to twice match world records for both the 100 yards and 100 metres, is the first Canadian to win the short sprint since Percy Williams of Vancouver won the gold medal in the first Games at Hamilton, Ont., in 1930.

Jerome and Robinson were clocked in 9.4 seconds, equalling the Games record. The Canadian's time was for only his pending world mark of 9.1 for the distance, but that was incidental to him.

World records are meaningless if you can't come up as a champion. And that had been the story up to Saturday night at National Stadium—of Jerome's sometimes controversial life.

By DON McLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Conception Bay in Newfoundland appears to be headed for recognition as a tuna fishing area with a reported scout to that coast held by the world-west coast of Nova Scotia.

Ron Oliver Vardy, Newfoundland tourist director and himself a bluefin enthusiast with 60 of the big game fish to his credit, says this province is not seeking the International Tuna Cup Match. It has always been held at Wedgeport, N.S.

But since the international match ran into trouble in the late 1950's when few tuna showed at Wedgeport, with numerous catches began to be reported in Conception Bay, there has been talk of moving the event to Newfoundland.

"The international match is Nova Scotia's," says Vardy, "It's paid for by the provinces of Nova Scotia. We want to develop our own industry."

He says what is needed here now are more Canadian-international tournament is a fleet of charter boats operated by fishermen-guides.

One problem is that the cod season coincides with the tuna season. Cod fishing would make a poor tuna boat." But Vardy says he thinks cod fishermen could fulfill a dual-purpose craft.

There were 14 charter boats operating in Conception Bay last summer, all owned by businessmen. It is expected the number will be on the waters just 30 minutes' drive from St. John's summer.

Vardy says he thinks it is unlikely the Newfoundland government will ever subsidize a tournament in Conception Bay to the extent the Nova Scotia government has paid for the maintenance of the industry in the Wedgeport area, which is said to be $20,000 to $40,000 annually.

The Canadian Credit Men's association this year is planning what it bills as the second annual all-Canadian tournament June 13-15. Teams from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario are expected.

The International Tuna Cup Match is set for Aug. 16 to 18 at Wedgeport. First held in 1937 and an annual fair for 12 years, except during the Second World War, the match was recessed for seven years after no fish were caught in 1958. It was revived last summer and seven fish were taken, with the United States winning the top honors.

Eight tuna were caught in Conception Bay in 1958. Then a fish reached a record 316 in 1964 and 283 were taken last year.

The first bluefin was boated July 15 in Conception Bay waters this summer. A record daily catch of 25 was set July 21 and a total of 60 was taken during the first five days of this season.

Vardy says he hopes some day a 1,000-pounder will be caught in provincial waters. That would be the world record tuna; a 977-pounder boated in St. Ann's Bay in Nova Scotia in 1950.

An 871-pounder caught by Vardy is the biggest ever taken in Conception Bay. A sheltered body of water which he maintains is ideally suited for the sport because of its close proximity to St. John's.

Aldo Ray Making Switch To Roles for Brute Heavy

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The studio air conditioning is cut off for the next taks and the barroom set is simmering under a blaze of floodlights.

"Let the laugh go all the way this time, Aldo," says director-writer Burt Kennedy. "Relieber, you've never had more fun in your life."

Moments later massive Aldo Ray, a mad movie killer, smashes a bottle of whisky on the head of Lon Chaney and bartender Chaney goes off the payroll in an alcoholic bath.

Just possibly this will give you an idea that actor Ray is essaying a new screen image: Brute heavy.

You would be right.

"I think — I hope — this will give me about a 10-year boost in film roles," said Aldo, kicking aside the remnants of the sugar-bottle bottle and mopping tawny-white off his shirt.

"I've played heavies before, but usually in comedy or at least in parts that had some humorous overtones. But there is simply nothing like the heavy actor to arouse any sympathy for heavier. He epitomizes the devil."

In Welcome to Hard Times the only thing Aldo loves is violence. And it is a motiveless, psychopathic violence, during which he kills seven persons and burns down the town of Hard Time, supposedly in South Dakota.

When four survivors manage in a year to rebuild the little settlement, Aldo comes back and burns it down again. As you've already guessed, he dies with the village this time.

It's grim stuff indeed. Kennedy, who wrote the script, has made certain that no trace of sentiment is inspired by this sadistic bully who hasn't a name. He's known only as "the man from Brodee."

Aldo never speaks a word from start to finish in this saga of Hard Times. The only vocal sound he makes is the maniacal, mirthless laugh that breaks forth in the nastiest places.

All of this is a far cry from the Aldo Ray who met fame in Miss Sadie Thompson in 1954. All, except for the rasp in the laugh, which regularly reveals the gravelly speech that he became the film trademark over the years.

Giovanna Ralli Cannot Find Time to Have a Vacation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Giovanna Ralli is a small, striking, dark-haired Italian reminiscent of Sophia Loren and Natalie Wood.

She loves to work.

Miss Ralli spent much of a recent 12 - hour working day sweltering in a car before cameras at Paramount studios, a scene that will consume but a few seconds on screen.

The sequence for The Caper of the Golden Bulls shows a car being searched at the border between Gibraltar and Spain. The sun, at least, was authentic—but as Spain's.

Miss Ralli brushed back her hair with her hand, licked her lips, tugged at her gloves and waited while the technicians got to prepare for shooting. Movie lights added to the sun's glare. A few minutes later a relative and a take went satisfactorily.

Her shooting over for awhile, Miss Ralli jumped out of the car and walked away as if grilling under the sun were unimaginably entertaining.

Caper, a comedy - thriller about a jewel robbery at the Pamplona Festival in Spain, is the first movie Ralli's made more than 30 films since she became an actress at 13. She now is in her mid-30s. Asked why she almost never takes a vacation and rarely relaxes for more than a weekend, she replied: "I prefer to work."

She has been an established star in Italy since 1953 when she received the Italian film critics' silver ribbon as best actress for Carlo Spinola's La Fuga.

She is unmarried and has no definite plans other than continuing to work. Her biggest complaint, she says, is that she likes flying but her schedule leaves her no other way to travel.

When she finishes Caper next month Miss Ralli will rush off for a film in Italy, then one in Spain. Her future co-stars include Michael Caine and Dick Van Dyke.

The same fate befell Dick Suring of Toronto in "D" Class, 100 boats took part.

Male Nurses Still Scarce But Gain Ground Slowly

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—If you're a nurse, uniforms are a constant problem.

Either you forget to take them to the laundry, or you forget to pick them up. Or the ones you thought you had to preserve turns out to have gotten violet splashed on the front.

But there are three nurses at Ottawa Civic Hospital who never have to cope with a uniform crisis. Their wives do it for them.

Kenric Green, Jim Ruddock and Bryan Topping, all registered nurses with post-graduate training, are almost lost in a sea of 480 female nurses at this Civic. They admit they fight an odd public image.

"People think of male nurses as anything from deviate to eccentric or effeminate," says slight, soft-spoken Bryan Topping of the psychiatric wing.

Aspiring male nursing students risk shocked reactions from family, prospective parents-in-law, and even all-girl nursing schools and other (female) nurses.

Male nurses can't get commissions in the Canadian armed forces. In Quebec they can't even get licenses. Most hospitals they have been kept in certain wards, usually psychiatric, urology and orthopedics.

They're gaining ground, but slowly. In 1956 there were 343 male nurses in Canada. There are about 800, with 400 of those in Ontario, which also has 42,000 girl nurses.

One problem is, there's no place for boys to train, says English - born Mr. Topping. Only about 30 per cent of Canadian nursing schools will admit boys.

"Often small hospitals have taken the lead, but they lack the educational resources of the bigger hospitals in large cities."

He says ten - age boys wouldn't suffer any psychological scars from being the only boy in a lecture-hall full of girls.

"I was only the second man to graduate from my training school in England, and I didn't encounter any particular difficulties with lack of companionship.

"Of course it all depends on the individual. It might be tough at first, but I think it would snowball. If a school accepted one male student this year, next year there would be more."

Jim Ruddock, 44, a stocky bespectacled Scot who trained as a state registered nurse in Britain, is superintendent of the Civic hospital's 143 orderlies. He originally wanted to be a doctor, and only the nurse's pin on his white uniform identifies him otherwise to the patient.

A medical orderly in the Second World War, he trained in a mostly-male class in his native Glasgow, and says that some hospitals in England are completely staffed by male nurses.

"But Canada is a young country, and boys who might like to go into nursing here are afraid they may be considered a little bit daffy. I think male nurses are in the same position as women doctors used to be."

Kenric Green, 30, a native West Indian who trained in Saskatchewan, says he has never encountered hostility or shock either from patients or other nurses.

"Of course it depends on the personality of the person. You have to be ready to adapt yourself.

"And then in psychiatry we talk about repression of experiences you don't want to remember.

"Maybe that's what I'm doing when I say I've had no unpleasant experiences, but I don't think so."

The Civic is among the 70 per cent of Canadian hospitals that have never had a male student, although they do accept male affiliates from the Ontario Hospital at Brockville. Mr. Topping agrees with the royal commission on health services which said in its 1964 report that in view of the serious shortage of nurses, schools were limiting to large resources in freezing out boys.

"As far as individuals go, some men are better nurses than some women, and vice versa. But men would give the profession more stability."

Men don't stop work when they marry, and a family is instead of keeping them at home, keeps them at work. A family man isn't as easily tempted to take a job in another city, at the cost of uprooting his wife and children.

Car Brakes Not Always Up to Par

By EUGENE B. HILMOE

Let's say you're driving along a one-lane highway at 40 mph. Suddenly, a car comes to a dead standstill just 75 feet in front of you. Will you hit it? You will — unless you swing into the oncoming lane or go off the road.

Even if road conditions are ideal and brakes are at peak efficiency, you need a stopping distance of 100 feet or more at 40 mph — depending on your own reaction speed. And, if brakes are sub-par, it may take double this distance. That's why many accidents happen.

Brakes just aren't what they should be for emergency stops when drivers expect them to be. And, in 80 percent of the cases, car-owner neglect is the reason. Safety experts say brakes should be checked once at least twice a year — but that is not safe enough today.

Twice a season isn't too often when you consider the risks. But, you can't be a slave to a service schedule, either. Keep alert for even the slightest change in brake pedal response and braking action, and have it investigated immediately.

From C. Q.: "Two weeks ago, I had to put on a new fan belt. Since then either my heat or my fan operates when I accelerate . . . and the faster I go, the faster I get heat. Is this operation normal? At idle, however, everything is OK. Could the new belt be too tight?

Just the opposite — it's probably too loose!

W. P. writes: "Neither my left front nor left rear turn signal works, even with new bulbs. My brother thinks it may be due to a poor ground."

He could be right. The other signals are on an open circuit between the signal switch and lights.

B. P. asks: "When adding brake fluid, should I fill right up to the neck of the filler hole?"

No — keep the level about ½" to 1" below it.

From L. T.: "When I slow and make a turn, a squeaking noise comes from the right front wheel area. I don't have power steering, and I'm sure it's not from the tires because the noise is too metallic."

It could be shock absorber noise, due to looseness, linkage wear or lack of lube.

EXPERIMENT WITH DYES

LIMA, Peru (Reuters)—Dyes used by the Incas are being used experimentally in cancer diagnosis, it was revealed Saturday. The method was described by Peruvian Scientist Guillermo Cruz Sanchez. He said the dyes, obtained from cochineal and several wild - growing plants which abound in the Peruvian countryside, are injected into the patient's bloodstream and the presence of cancer may be determined later by microscopic analysis of blood samples.

Drought Threatens Hassan's Control of Kingdom of Moors

King Hassan of Morocco has survived a number of crises during his five-year reign. New drought conditions in the country may create another crisis for him. The problems he faces are outlined by a Canadian Press reporter who visited Morocco during a tour of North Africa.

By PETER BUCKLEY

RABAT (CP)—Crops withering in the parched valleys of Morocco are pointing to the yet another reason to wonder about the political stability of Hassan II, formidable young King of the Moors.

The rains that are the life blood of the North African coast have been generally sparse and untimely in Morocco this year.

Water rationing was started in many of the small dusty Moroccan villages even before the paralyzing heat of midsummer and now, when the first autumn rains could be expected, The vital grain crops in the semi-arid east of the kingdom look stunted and sickly. Predictions were for a harvest only half of last year's, itself insufficient to feed the country.

A drought as severe as the current one would be a political burden for any government. But in Morocco it is more than that.

The country's nationalist party strikes a major base of power for the young monarch. Despite traditionalist, often superstitious peasants who make up a majority of Morocco's population and provide the king with the bulk of his most loyal supporters.

The government has already arranged for imports of American wheat and other food supplies. Plans are also in hand for stepped-up public works to provide jobs for cropless farmers.

But the crisis is expected to be one of long duration and the five years that Hassan II has ruled this historic kingdom.

UPSET PREDICTIONS

It would be a mistake, however, to underestimate King Hassan's staying power, despite his problems.

When he succeeded the throne in 1961 on the sudden death of his father, Mohammed V, there were predictions that the monarchy could not survive. His father had been a brilliant leader in the organization of Morocco's struggle for an end to the joint French and Spanish protectorate.

Hassan's accession went without a hitch. Only 37 years old in July, he had surveyed a series of internal and external crises and now is generally regarded as a tough, intelligent and resourceful monarch.

Educated in both Arab and French traditions, he graduated as a lawyer from the University of Bordeaux and was a close adviser to his father while still in his 20s. In the first years after Morocco can independence in 1956.

His rule has been helped by the complex nature of the Moroccan monarchy. Hassan is temporal king in a land still firmly attached to the monarchy. He is the imam, or religious leader, among a people with a long history of Islamic zeal. And he is commander-in-chief of a 30,000-man military force, in a warrior nation. The aim of Moroccan founding who is a conquest once extended into much of West Africa and parts of Continental Europe.

OPPOSITION SPLIT

Against such a formidable combination, the Moroccan opposition has been largely hamstrung. It is split between the traditionalists of the Istiqlal (Independence) party, who fear the king is going too quickly with modernization, and the Union Nationale des Forces Populaires with its internal dissensions, urban-based appeal and hesitant republicanism.

The opposition gets considerable latitude to voice its views, but conservative party leaders are likely to be watched closely, observers say.

Various attempts were made by both Mohammed V and Hassan to establish a parliamentary democracy, but all failed. Now Hassan has dissolved Parliament and ruled absolutely, supported by a government of loyal "technicians."

The king travels constantly, visiting his palaces in the ancient royal capitals of Marrakesh, Meknes and Fez and making a great public appearances as both king and religious leader throughout the country.

Hassan has imported advisers from France, the United States and other countries and encouraged foreign investment as a means of helping the Morocco's enormous problems of underdevelopment, poverty, illiteracy and population growth.

But his efforts to modernize the kingdom could also undermine his own position. The political opposition gets its greatest support from the young, impatient workers of cities like Casablanca and Tangier, and their number is likely to increase as education and urban employment spread.

TIFF WITH FRANCE

Another major concern for Hassan is the restoration of diplomatic relations with France, broken off after the kidnapping and probable slaying of Moroccan opposition leader Mehdi Ben Barka in Paris last fall. France ac-

Rhodesian Talks Enter Third Round

Reds Bag 3 Planes, 9 Copters

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — North Viet Nam's anti - aircraft defences knocked down three more U.S. planes Monday as American jets pounded the Communist north. Ten American planes have been lost over North Viet Nam since Sunday.

Two planes were shot down 60 miles northwest of Hanoi Monday. The third was hit 55 miles southwest of Dong Hoi. Only one pilot was rescued, and two are missing.

Nine U.S. Army and marine helicopters were lost Monday, two in South Viet Nam's central highlands where a large Viet Cong force inflicted heavy casualties on a U.S. army company in a two-hour pitched battle.

The battle took place about 250 miles north of Saigon. The Cong losses were not immediately available.

The guerrillas, who outnumbered the Americans by an estimated three to one, withdrew when American reinforcements arrived, U.S. spokesmen said.

Perhaps 30 of the 150 U.S. troops were believed to have been killed or wounded.

The company was hit from three sides as it prowled the Ia Drang Valley, only a few miles from the Cambodian border, offering itself as bait.

The strategy, though costly, gave U.S. artillerymen and pilots a clear strike at the enemy. They poured 2,000 artillery shells and tons of searing napalm on the Communist positions in the thick elephant grass, sending the enemy reeling north with fresh U.S. troops heading after them.

In another strike, a small marine force stood off an estimated 150 North Vietnamese before helicopter-borne reinforcements and the enemy disappeared into the rugged jungle-covered hills.

In North Viet Nam, U.S. reconnaissance pilots picked up two wounded American pilots Monday.

One bailed out from reconnaissance jet which went down 100 miles north of Hanoi. The other crashed 55 miles northwest of Dong Hoi.

(The North Viet Nam news agency said six U.S. planes were brought down over the north Monday.)

The North Vietnamese shot down seven American planes Sunday, and although two of the flyers were rescued, all still are listed as missing.

The U.S. command reported that an air force jet crashed and burned in South Viet Nam Monday after a strafing run over Communist positions 25 miles north of Saigon. Both crew members were killed.

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia today welcomed a British announcement that exploratory talks to end the two countries' differences are to resume.

The talks are seeking a basis for negotiations to resolve the dispute which began when Rhodesia unilaterally declared itself independent of Britain in November, 1965.

"We must get on with solving this problem—and the only way we can do it is to start talking," Smith told reporters. "I think the position can only improve—I don't feel we can go backwards."

Britain refused to grant independence because there was no assurance that Rhodesian Negroes, who outnumber the whites 18 to one, would eventually be given the vote and other rights. The Smith government is all-white and few Negroes now have the vote.

U.K. UNDER PRESSURE

Britain is under heavy pressure from other African nations not to compromise on this issue.

Following the unilateral declaration of independence Britain imposed economic sanctions against Rhodesia which have been followed by most countries.

There have been two rounds of exploratory talks probing for a solution, the first in London and the second in Salisbury. Prime Minister Wilson of Britain said Monday the third round of talks also would be in Salisbury.

Sir S. Oakes Dies at Wheel Of Sports Car

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Sir Sydney Oakes, son of murdered Canadian millionaire Sir Harry Oakes, was killed Monday in a sports racing car that failed to make a highway curve.

Police said Sir Sydney, 39, close to this Sunbeam Alpine, apparently was heading from the exclusive Lyford Cay Club toward Nassau Airport when he lost control and snapped off a utilities pole.

Sir Harry was bludgeoned to death at his Nassau home in 1943. His son-in-law, Count Dennis Mahgrigy, was tried for the murder and acquitted.

The Oakes title now passes to Christopher Oakes, 17, Sir Sydney's eldest son by his first wife, Greta, a native of Copenhagen.

Indonesia and Malaysia Will Sign Peace Pact on Thursday

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Malaysia and Indonesia will sign a peace agreement here Thursday, Foreign Minister Adam Malik announced today.

Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak of Malaysia is scheduled to arrive in Jakarta Thursday morning for the signing of the agreement and talks with President Sukarno and army leader Gen. Suharto, Malik said.

Talks between Malik and Tun Razak in Bangkok in May led the way for the signing of the peace agreement and the end of Indonesia's "confrontation" — undeclared war — with Malaysia.

Indonesia launched the confrontation when Malaysia was formed in 1963 and Sukarno charged it was a neo-colonialist structure manipulated by the British.

During the next three years, Malaysia then made headway.

Indonesia infiltrators were landed in Malaysia and there was skirmishing around the jungled borders of Malaysia's Borneo territories, Sabah and Sarawak.

Britain sent in 50,000 troops to help Malaysia meet the challenge.

The confrontation was principally political and economic, however. It was a costly policy both for Indonesia, in severe economic distress, and for Malaysia.

The tension eased only after the crushing of an attempted Communist coup in Jakarta last October.

Faced by student demonstrations which the army did not break up, Sukarno handed over executive powers to Suharto, anti - Communist army strongman. Moves to make peace with the Malaysia then made headway.

Torture By Police Alleged

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—Zeph Mothopeng, a former executive member of the banned Pan-Africanist Congress said in the Supreme Court today he was given electric-shock treatment and assaulted by police in October, 1963.

Mothopeng is suing the justice minister, John Vorster for 5,000 rand ($7,000) for alleged maltreatment by police during his detention under the now-suspended 90-day detention law. Vorster denies the allegations.

Outlining Mothopeng's case, Lawyer G. Lowen said Mothopeng was arrested in April, 1963, for an alleged offence under the Suppression of Communism Act. He had already served two years' imprisonment for a political offence in 1960.

"When he was brought to trial on Aug. 7, 1963, the charges were withdrawn," Lowen said.

"On walking out of the court, he was immediately re-arrested under the 90 - day detainee clause."

HIT IN FACE

Lowen said that at the Pretoria police barracks Mothopeng was hit in the face and body and also was kicked. A bag was then put over his head. A stick was wedged between his elbows and knees while he was in a squatting position so that he could not move.

"Mothopeng felt wires being attached to his small fingers and index fingers. He again refused to speak. Mothopeng felt very severe electric shocks. It made him vibrate and feel considerable pain.

"Eventually Mothopeng cried out and asked for mercy and finally felt he was prepared to give information."

Later he was then taken to a Pretoria hospital.

U.S. Wants Atom Blast Ban on Peaceful Use Too

GENEVA (Reuters) — The United States proposed today that any future non-proliferation treaty should ban the agreed use of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes as well as for war weapons.

Chief U.S. delegate Adrian S. Fisher warned the 31-nation Geneva disarmament conference a nuclear explosive device intended for peaceful purposes could be used as a weapon or easily adapted for such use.

Fisher said a non - nuclear state which became able to detonate nuclear explosive devices for peaceful earth-moving projects such as digging canals or building dams also would be able to detonate nuclear bombs.

Nevertheless, Fisher said, the U.S. believes any possible future beneficial use of peaceful nuclear explosive devices should be available to all states, whether or not they possessed nuclear weapons.

As a solution he proposed nuclear weapon states should make available to other states nuclear explosive services for peaceful applications, if and when these proved technically and economically feasible, and were permitted under nuclear test ban treaty limitations.

Such explosions would be carried out under "appropriate international observation" with the nuclear device remaining under the custody and control of the state performing the services.

Canada Gains Trade Surplus With United States

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase of more than one-quarter in Canadian exports to the United States and countries outside the Commonwealth in the first half of 1966 gave Canada a narrow export trade surplus in the six months, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

Imports from all countries were 18.9 per cent higher at $6,706,700,000, but exports were 19.1 per cent higher at $6,786,-700,000 compared with the first half of 1965. This left Canada with an export surplus of $80,-000,000, compared with corresponding trade deficit of $51,600,-000 in the first six months last year.

Most dramatic growth was in trade with the United States. Exports in the first half of 1966 were up 20.2 per cent to $3,503,-800,000, while exports bounced upwards by 28.2 per cent to $3,982,800,000.

The deficit of $521,300,000 in trade with the U.S. little changed from the $527,800,000 in first six months of last year, but was more than covered by an export trade surplus with other countries, half of it with non-Commonwealth areas.

The six-month trade figures came from DBS when it announced import figures for June. They rose 13.2 per cent over last June to $869,200,-000. The bureau announced earlier that exports for the month were up 16.1 per cent to $737,-900,000 in trade with all countries.

PURCHASES UP

In trade with the United Kingdom, Canadian purchases rose $48,000,000, up 2.7 per cent from a year earlier, while sales to Britain were down 10.5 per cent to $86,800,000. In the six month period, imports were up nine per cent to $312,900,000, but exports were off nearly three per cent at $534,400,000.

This resulted in a smaller export balance in the first half of this year — $227,600,000 compared with $280,000,000 in the first six months of last year.

Canada's purchases from other Commonwealth countries and countries with which Canada has Commonwealth preference trade agreements were 11.8 per cent higher in June at $45,000,000 and 7.7 per cent higher in the half-year at $189,-600,000.

Imports to these countries, however, were down 25.4 per cent in June to $33,900,000. They were down 9.4 per cent in the six months to $200,800,000.

Police Toss Tear Gas Into Gangs

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Police tossed tear gas grenades Monday night into gangs of youths throwing fire bombs, bricks, pop bottles and sticks at passing cars.

Several persons were injured before the violence — second straight night of racial unrest in Lansing—was brought under control. Four persons were shot, none seriously.

At least a score of youths — both white and Negro — have been arrested since the racial flareups took a serious turn Sunday night.

"It looks like everything is under control now," said Mayor Max Murningham.

Clergymen were credited by officials with helping keep many youths off ... streets by talking with knots of teenagers throughout the city.

GANGS ROAM CITY

Some 200 city, state and county police were called into action as gangs of teen-agers roamed the city, smashing windows and beating up at least two youths.

Scores of officers sealed off a section of the city's predominantly - Negro west side when a mob of about 200 began tossing fire bombs at passing autos.

Armed with shotguns and axe handles, the police moved in and broke up the crowd.

Police Chief Charles Traliger said that unlike Sunday night when most of the violence was instigated by gangs of white youths attacking Negro teenagers, the latest flareup was caused mainly by Negroes, apparently in retaliation.

37-year-old Janitor Faces Murder Charge

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A murder charge was lodged Monday against a 37-year-old janitor at the University of Colorado in the slaying of a university co-ed a month ago.

District Attorney Rex M. Scott filed the information against Joseph D. Morse, who lives at the nearby city of Longmont.

Canada Asking West Germany For Explanation

OTTAWA (CP)—An external affairs department spokesman says Canada is asking West Germany to explain how most of the 90 jets sold to the Germans in 1957 have found their way into the Pakistani air force.

The spokesman said the planes have apparently been routed through Iran within the last six months, breaking a Canadian-German agreement.

Canada learned about the Pakistani implication a few weeks ago.

In the Indian parliament Monday, Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan said Pakistan has built up its air force with F-86 aircraft from West Germany and MiGs from China.

The government spokesman said the original 1957 contract stated West Germany must get Canadian approval for any re-sale of the fighter aircraft.

Canada acquiesced in January when Germany said it wanted to sell them to Iran.

It is understood that Canada was concerned from the start whether Iran's real intention was to keep the planes.

Lacking any legal title now to the jets, Canada would be obliged to accept West German assurances on this point.

Uneasy Peace at Stelco

HAMILTON (CP)—An uneasy peace at the Steel Company of Canada, where a five-day wildcat strike ended at 11 a.m. Monday, remained unbroken today although the union accused the company of discharging or disciplining 40 men.

A union spokesman later said all 40 men had been fired.

Other reports said 36 had been dismissed and 78 suspended while the company investigates their actions during the strike.

Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) said in a statement that 27 of the men have signed a leaflet, for distribution to its other 21,000 members, urging them to remain on the job. It promises that the matter of the disciplinary action will come up at conciliation hearings which resume in Toronto today.

The company said in a statement that it intends to take action against about 30 men for what it said was "violence and sabotage" on the picket lines set up last week after 3,000 men quit their jobs and the rest of the Steelworkers refused to cross their lines.

Violence last week led to the arrest of 33 men, not all of them employees of Stelco. Those charged appeared Monday and were remanded to September dates for hearings.

Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound broke off conciliation talks, aimed at finding a new contract, when the wildcat strike erupted. If he fails to settle the issues under dispute, the Steelworkers can strike legally seven days after his report to the minister of labor is made public.

The strike, which is estimated to have cost the workers $2,-000,000 in wages and the company more than $5,000,000 in lost production, began as a protest against lack of progress in contract negotiations.

In the contract negotiations, the Steelworkers are seeking an increase of 24½ cents on the basic wage rate, increases in the wage spread between job classifications costing an additional 35 cents an hour for each employee affected and an improved pension plan. ..

Danish Troops in Gaza Strip Critical of Canadian Cooking

COPENHAGEN (AP) — The Danish defence ministry is moving to solve a crisis in the Gaza desert of Palestine where differences of eating habits have disrupted the harmony of the United Nations peace force.

The Danes don't like the food and they blame it on the Canadians who are assigned the difficult task of cooking for the whole international force.

Danish UN soldiers, in a complaint to Defence Minister Victor Gram, said the food provided by the Canadians is "monotonous, insufficient and of a poor standard."

The defence ministry dispatched Maj.-Gen. O. Hoegberg, chief of military provisions, to Gaza to try to sort out matters.

A defence ministry spokesman did not outline reaction of other contingents, like the Norwegians, the Indians and the Yugoslavs.

He said that Danish complaints over the Canadians' white bread would be countered by special shipments of Danish rye bread.

Four Belleville Students Home From Maritimes Visit

Four Belleville secondary-school students returned on the weekend from a two - week visit in Nova Scotia. They were participating in the Centennial Youth Travel Program which is jointly sponsored by the provincial and federal governments through the Centennial Commission.

While in Nova Scotia, the four Belleville students along with 20 other students from Ontario communities, were billed with families there. They were Beth Putnam, Robert Beecher, Ola Pultz and Jocelyn McLaughlin.

More than 4,000 Canadian students participated in the Youth Travel Program this year. The program assists teenagers from across the country to travel and visit with people in other areas in order that they may discover and appreciate the scope and diversity of Canada. Each provinces and territory sends out and receives an identical number of groups of 24 students.

The group which included the Belleville students left for Nova Scotia from Kingston by train on July 30 and returned August 6. Etched vividly in their memories is the hospitality they were shown.

According to 16-year-old Beth Putnam of R. R. 2, Belleville, the visit to Nova Scotia was "terrific". A Grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary School, Beth refluned from the trip impressed with the "Acadian hospitality" shown the visitors from Ontario.

"We were given the best of everything. It was a wonderful experience and we all want to go back again some day."

Robert Beecher, 17, of 28 Goldfish Road observes that the trip provided an opportunity to gain an understanding of people in another part of Canada.

Barr Shores was the highlight of the trip. We stayed in the District of Clare where several small communities are grouped together and they boast the longest main street in the world—64 miles. It was all very worthwhile."

Sixteen-year-old Ola Pultz of 30 Highland Avenue and Jocelyn McLaughlin, 16, of 272 Coleman Street were the other local students on the trip. Neither was available for comment this morning. However, Ola's sister Beverly advised "Ola had never participated in a program like this one before and she thought the trip to Nova Scotia was pretty wonderful."

Students from Cloyne, Bloomfield, Tweed, Gananoque, Stella, Long Lake, Portland, Napanee, Bath, Madoc, Eldorado, Barrie, Campbellford and Trenton were in the group with the Belleville representatives.

Plan Tag Days To Aid War On Dystrophy

Belleville's firefighters and the Hastings and Prince Edward County Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada are holding their annual tag days for muscular dystrophy on Friday, August 12, and Saturday, August 13.

Campaign chairman is local chapter director Dr. A. L. Thornhill, who reports that there are fifteen victims of this disease registered with the local chapter. This disease which is a progressive degeneration of the voluntary muscles of the body, affects old and young alike, but is mostly prevalent in children, who rarely live beyond the age of nineteen.

In 1954 the firefighters of Canada pledged themselves to support the fight for muscular dystrophy until the cure is found. Since that date, the Belleville Firefighters Association, Local 470, and other firemen in the two counties have contributed greatly to the cause by holding tag days and other fund-raising events. Through the interest and work of the firefighters, the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada has been able to establish medical research centres in many of the major hospitals across Canada.

Again this year the local firefighters will have an exhibit at the Belleville Fair, and part of the funds raised will aside to display information on muscular dystrophy.

The local chapter chairman is Albert College schoolteacher Roy F. Hitchcock, and representing the local firefighters is Edward (Ted) Weseis. Those who would like to assist by selling tags, may purchase the local fireball, 962-6535.

Neither was available for comment this morning. However, Ola's sister Beverly advised "Ola had never participated in a program like this one before and she thought the trip to Nova Scotia was pretty wonderful."

Students from Cloyne, Bloomfield, Tweed, Gananoque, Stella, Long Lake, Portland, Napanee, Bath, Madoc, Eldorado, Barrie, Campbellford and Trenton were in the group with the Belleville representatives.

Suspend Sentence on Two Women

A woman and her 18-year-old daughter were each given a one year suspended sentences and had to pay a total of $16 in court costs after pleading guilty to theft of more than $100 worth of clothing merchandise from two Belleville stores.

The two were each charged twice in connection with a shoplifting incident investigated by Belleville City Police June 16. They chose to be tried by magistrate and entered guilty pleas to all charges in City Magistrate's Court this morning.

On the day in question, the two women were observed by a special female constable in charge of Fairweather's store in the Belleville Plaza as they placed various articles of clothing in the shopping bag and purse. They were apprehended outside of the store as they were leaving by the store's manager, who then called the police.

A subsequent investigation of the car of the two accused revealed a further number of clothing items, all fully tagged and unwrapped, bearing the names of two Plaza stores, Fairweather's and Reitman's.

The total value of the stolen merchandise recovered was $113.93.

The family physician of the elder of the two women Dr. S. W. D. Hart of Picton testified in his patient was suffering from stages of "depression and restlessness" during her menopausal state. He said, "Two symptoms will be a tendency in women during menopause to do things they wouldn't ordinarily do."

In passing sentence, Magistrate T. V. Wilkins said "it is clearly a case of this girl being dominated by her mother."

Expect Hog Marketings Will Increase

OTTAWA — Hog marketings in Canada are expected to show an increase over the next 12 months, according to the latest Canada Department of Agriculture forecast. The increase, however, is likely to shape up gradually, particularly during the coming six months.

The fall run, while probably up 3-6 per cent over last year, will average only 131-137,000 hogs per week, a volume which cannot be considered extremely large when compared to autumn levels of most recent years. Last year the fall hog run never really materialized, as the anticipated percentage increase predicted for this fall barely brings marketing back to what might be thought of more normal levels.

Fort Hennry Guard to Perform At Fair Here Next Thursday

Visitors to this year's Belleville Fair will get the opportunity to see Canada's renowned Fort Henry Guard at one evening performance. The famed precision-marching corps from Kingston will parade before the grandstand beginning at 7:45 on the evening of Thursday, August 18.

One of Canada's most effective goodwill and friendship throughout America and overseas, this group of marching soldiers has annually welded into a highly precisioned military unit during the summer months.

These scarlet-coated "soldiers of the Queen," echoing the military days of Canada's past, have won acclaim for their prowess and for Canada, wherever they have performed. They were accorded the unprecedented honor of an invitation to a second appearance at the Royal Tournament in London, England.

While the Fort Henry Guard has distinguished itself with appearances in the United States, England and elsewhere, its primary function is to present displays of military marching and drill, exhibitions by the fife-and-drum corps and the firing of artillery salutes with assisted musicale loading cannon as a daily feature at Old Fort Henry at Kingston.

The Fort Henry Guard was established along with the restoration of Fort Henry during the period 1936 - 38 as a living museum of Canadian history.

LOCAL BOYS IN GUARD

A great deal of the success of the Fort Henry Guard is due to the careful selection of its personnel. Each summer a fresh group of recruits is chosen from hundreds of applications from Canadian University students, interested in the living discipline of the Guard. There are always a number of Guardsmen with previous experience to form the core of the unit and some Canadian centres in the Guard even after graduation from university.

Local boys working with the Fort Henry Guard this summer are: L-Cpl R. G. (Wayne) Gilroy (Corbyville) 44 Cmdr St., Cadet R. W. (Rocky) Taylor (Quinte S.S.) 3 Cralg St.; Cadet J. G. (Jack) Sergeant (Quinte S.S.) 19 St. Charles St.; Cadet W. J. (Bill) Leslie (Quinte S.S.) 9 Cmdr St.; Cadet D. R. (Dwayne) Ellis (Quinte S.S.) 93 Dundas St. W., and Cadet R. T. Will Attempt to Snap Photos Of Hidden Far Side of Moon

CAPE KENNEDY (AP)—Lunar Orbiter, a flying photography lab, was poised for launching today toward a trip about the moon to snap pictures of the hidden far side, Surveyor I and nine potential astronaut landing sites.

An Atlas-Agena rocket was to lift the Orbiter into space at 4:42 p.m. EDT to start the 850-pound spacecraft on its intended 236,964-mile journey.

With its four solar panels folded down to give it the appearance of a giant four-leaf clover, Lunar Orbiter is to dart through the weightless world of space for 90 hours, reaching the vicinity of the moon Saturday afternoon.

If successful, it will be the first payload sent into orbit around the moon by the United States. Seven previous attempts failed, six in the early days of the Soviet Union. Russia's Luna 10 and Russia succeeded with Luna X last April but it carried no cameras.

TO TURN WITH MOON

About 550 miles from the moon a ground signal is to trigger the Orbiter's rockets and the capsule so the probe would be caught in the moon's gravity and pulled in.

For several days the craft is to circle 1,100 miles above the moon before the rockets are fired again to drop the low point to 30 miles above the surface.

While in the high orbit, Lunar Orbiter's two cameras are to take 205 photographic pictures, including glimpses of the side of the moon that never faces the earth.

Photos of the nine potential astronaut landing areas are to wait until the spacecraft dipped to the lower course, starting about Aug. 22.

Lunar Orbiter also carries instruments to measure radiation, micrometeoroids and to gauge the shape of the moon.

25,000 Sheep Slaughtered to Stop Disease

LONDON (CP) — Britain is fighting its worst foot - and - mouth disease outbreak in six years, with more than 25,000 sheep slaughtered as a result to the government of almost $1,000,000.

A two-week battle to halt spread of the disease in the big sheep-raising county of Northumberland, near the Scottish border, has left grave doubts about officials that the outbreak can be restricted to the 18 farms already blighted.

Farmers complain that between 500,000 and 1,000,000 sheep may have to be slaughtered if all the outbreak continues unabated.

John Woodcock, secretary of the Northumberland branch of the National Farmers' Union, told reporters during the weekend that if the disease penetrates the hills north of the Northumberland town of Hexham, there would be nothing to hold it back from Scotland and the neighboring counties of Cumberland and Durham.

The disease appears as a fever in cattle and animals. Carcasses must be destroyed to prevent spread of the disease. Farmers in Hexham area of Northumberland has been living under siege conditions for a fortnight. Affected farms have been sealed off with red posters and armed warning visitors: "Foot-and-mouth disease — do not admittance."

The disease has reached within a mile of Chevriot Hills, heart of Northumberland's sheep farms.

Rotary District Governor Pays Visit to Club

TRENTON — Rotary district 707 governor, James B. Doole of Orangeville, last night improved the program of the Trenton Rotary Club during a regulation meeting which was attended and a special club assembly later.

Governor Doole, who himself is involved in many facets of community service, discussed the local chapter's work in crippled children, the hockey program, and the swimming pool project with president Howard Hallick, secretary, Harold Clark and other executive officers and matters pertaining to Zone 7 activity with past president J. C. Ward, zone representative.

The governor spoke to the general membership of the project laid down by Rotary International president, Richard L. Evans.

Governor Doole had a suggestion to offer: he said if the local club was casting around for a project, the underprivileged club of Korea would appreciate moral and physical support.

Class Struggle Foe Arrested In Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP) — Supporters of writer Mihajlo Mihajlov were arrested today with plans to start an anti-The magazine despite Mihajlov's arrest for a Soviet journal's criticism of the Yugoslav government.

Mihajlov, a former university lecturer, who got into trouble a year ago for an article critical of the Soviet Union, was arrested today on a charge of spreading false rumors. Penalties are a fine or up to one year in prison.

In the text of a speech he was to have made today, Mihajlov declared that communism's idea of the class struggle could lead to the destruction of society.

"The split in all Marxist-ideologies," his speech said, "even the worst multi-party system is better than the best one-party system."

Mosquitoes Pick on Sick

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't operate his mouth.

Your skull is stronger and tougher than you think . . . it can withstand a weight of up to 3,000 pounds without being crushed.

It has been found that mosquitoes are more likely to bite sick than healthy persons . . . maybe it's because they figure that a guy with tired blood is also too tired to swat them.

Agriculture Minister Accused By Ontario Liberal Leader of Passing Buck With Farmers

Ontario Liberal leader Andrew R. Thompson today accused the provincial Minister of Agriculture, William A. Stewart, of "buck - passing" in the current problems in Ontario's agriculture community.

In a news conference at the Sun Valley Motor Inn today, Mr. Thompson said he is in favor of $4 manufactured milk price on the farm, and not just at the depot.

"The Minister (Mr. Stewart) says it must be an Ottawa decision and true, Ottawa will probably make a move in this direction, but until such time as they do, the provincial government should move in.

"I've been deeply concerned with the unfairness of the cost - price squeeze to farmers. The farmer works 70 to 80 hours a week and I think it's time he started to enjoy some of the benefits from our rising standard of living instead of being suffocated by it.

Mr. Thompson is on a tour of the provincial ridings of Quinte, Hastings, Prince - Edward Lennox and Frontenac - Addington. He arrived in Belleville last night and is spending some time here today and tomorrow.

He criticized the provincial government for not going out to meet the farmers face-to-face and discuss problems with them.

CAN SEE UNREST

"I've travelled some 70,000 miles in the last four months meeting farmers, talking with them. I could see the unrest rising steadily. It was no surprise to me that farmers, out of desperation, would try something to gain attention to their plight.

"I saw 60 farmers drive down from northern Ontario last winter because they were going to lose their farms, and the Minister (Mr. Stewart) didn't even give them the courtesy of an audience.

"He (Mr. Stewart) is still trying to hold his head over their eyes. You'll notice they came to Queen's Park. That's significant. They didn't drive their tractors to Ottawa because they know Queen's Park has a responsibility here.

"The whole area of agriculture has yet to have a tough, hard look by people who are concerned.

"I am deeply concerned with the exodus of farmers from the land and with the unfair returns a farmer gets for his labor."

Mr. Thompson said the beneficial government's legislation to provide farmers who have lost 25 per cent or more of their crop with a guaranteed interest-free loan of $1,000 for seed and fertilizer is not enough.

"I would like to see that $1,000 raised to $10,000. After all, $1,000 is only just enough nuts to a man who has lost $10,000 or $15,000."

He said he would also like to see the loans extended to a three-year period instead of the present one year. He would ask that the base be broadened to include not only fertilizer and seed but contractural payments on farm machinery and mortgage payments.

LEADER'S CRITICAL

He also criticized the provincial government's crop insurance program. He said it was not introduced soon enough and that many other provinces are ahead of Ontario in this field.

The Liberal leader said the Labor Relations Act should be reviewed. He said he was distressed with the state of labor in the province.

"The government of Ontario sees a problem and instead of doing something about it then, waits until it grows into a crisis. This is the crux of the problem in labor-management relationships.

"I believe forums should be set up for discussion between labor and management so they can talk over their problems over the years, not just at contract time, before a crisis develops.

"The strike is an unfortunate last measure labor has to take. In many cases, if we had forums, we might avoid the hostility that develops and results in a strike."

He said one of the first things he learned was that injunctions, particularly ex-parte injunctions, are a source of trouble. "This it had law, it irritates the labor movement and justifiably so.

"I would like to see it taken away from the courts and given to some type of labor relations board."

CRITICAL OF PREMIER

Mr. Thompson hit at Premier John Robarts for his "confused thinking" about Federalism and Provincialism.

"On the one hand he says he is a Canadian first, and then in order to have a united Canada he need a strong federal government and in order to have a strong federal government it needs funds to carry on country-wide programs.

"Yet the premier shows he wants to get as large a share of the pie as he can without recognition of the needs of a strong Canada.

"If he was a Canadian first, he'd be promoting such things as a Canada Pension Plan, a Medical Insurance Program, and equal dignity for senior citizens, which help unite Canadians, much as the railway did, rather than taking his own attitude that we'll start our own programs."

Mr. Thompson was at the Northern Electric Plant in Belleville at 6.45 a.m. today, greeting workers going into the plant. "The only way to learn the problems of the people is to talk with them."

He said there has been too much of a hypocrisy by the provincial government with Metro Toronto. "I believe fibers should be a decentralization of government offices away from Toronto. We should have regional offices and I think other provinces to keep in contact with the people."

Mr. Thompson said he was strongly in favor of a National Health Program across Canada. He said the Government's disapproval of Medicare is "again a typical demonstration of Tory disinterest in the welfare of the people."

TOURED COUNTY HOME

He said he was driven, through taxes, help pay for medical research, training of doctors and construction of hospitals. "It's time there was a fair distribution of health services to the people."

Mr. Thompson said there are not enough facilities in Ontario for handicapped persons.

"A barometer of a civilization is how it helps its handicapped people to help themselves."

He said that handicapped persons in some parts of Ontario, including Eastern Ontario, do not have the opportunities that they do in some of our larger centres.

"One thing that really bothers me is visiting rural homes and seeing some little fellow who's 12 or so, and who really is a dropout to society before he's started; doomed because he lives in a rural area and does not have the opportunity for proper care and instruction."

The Liberal visitor toured the Hastings County Home this morning. "I've been impressed with the government-sponsored Homes for the Aged in the province. What bothers me are the private nursing homes.

"Some of them are excellent,

LIBERAL LEADER — Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson visited the city today. He returns tomorrow to tour some of the local plants and the Ontario School for the Deaf.

but others are fire traps and must be places of despair for people in their old age. Some of them have been a provincial disgrace. The utter inadequacy of these places is appalling. Many are not fit for human habitation."

He said the party fought for a long time to get the government to move in this area and force private nursing homes to be licensed. He said action is now being taken to make this amendment.

HOMES LACK PLAY-SPACE

He said he was in Smiths Falls recently through the Home for Mentally Retarded. He said the staff was extremely dedicated but he was upset at the lack of play space for the children.

"To see these little human beings cramped into such small quarters really is sad. If anything burns me up, it's the lack of concern of the provincial government to do anything about things like this.

"I'm sure the people of the province are away ahead of the government in wanting to see facilities for handicapped persons and greater opportunities for them."

Mr. Thompson said the government should also make a greater effort in encouraging secondary industries to locate in parts of the province other than the Golden Horseshoe.

"I think there's a real opportunity for industry to be attracted to Belleville and I think the government should make a move in this direction."

RADAR SUGGESTIONS

He suggested such things as industrial parks, government loans, rate structures, development of roads and the extension of training centres, could be undertaken by the provincial government to encourage industry development.

He also expressed fears that the municipal governments have too heavy a burden without equivalent revenue to compensate. He said there are many things, such as administration of justice and education costs, that the provincial government could do more with to help the municipalities.

Mr. Thompson will be in Kingston later today and Picton tonight and will return to Belleville tomorrow to visit the Ontario School for the Deaf, Canada Cement, and Wilson's Concrete.

LOW EXPO FARE?

TORONTO (CP)—Air Canada said Monday night it will seek special low incentive fares for next year to attract travellers from Europe to Canada for Expo 67. Cash Receipts For Farmers Set Record

OTTAWA — Canadian farmers' cash receipts (net income) from farming operations in 1965 reached an all-time high of $3,775.8 million, according to D.B.S. This is 8.3% above the previous record set a year earlier in 1964.

The most important single contribution to the increase in farmers' cash receipts was made by cattle and calves; lesser increases of varying amounts also occurred in the case of hogs, poultry products, dairy products, potatoes, sugarbeet, barley, and Canadian Wheat Board participation payments. The most important offset to these gains was a substantial reduction in cash receipts from the sale of wheat. Much less significant reductions were recorded for flaxseed, soybeans, fruits and tobacco. Increases in cash receipts occurred in all provinces with the gains ranging all the way from about 8% in Saskatchewan and British Columbia to just over 27% in Prince Edward Island.

Receipts from livestock and livestock products brought producers $2,101.1 million in 1965, up 13% from 1964. As a result of increases in both prices and marketings, returns from cattle and calves moved sharply upward from $840.5 million in 1964 to $773.7 million in 1965, a gain of just over 20%. A substantial increase in average hog prices during 1965 far more than offset some reduction in marketing to give total cash receipts from this source of $378.7 million, nearly 18% above the total for 1964.

Britons Discontented, Ask Who Really Won War

LONDON (AP) — As Britain swings toward another winter of economic discontent, people here are again asking: "Who really won the last war?"

Britons look out from the island home they defended with blood and treasure. They see the French sitting on huge gold reserves and trying to dominate Europe. They see German workers going on Mediterranean vacations while British trips are cut short to save foreign currency. And they wince as Japanese trawlers cut into old markets.

The chief causes interlock. Insufficient and ill-judged investment leads to technological backwardness. Deep social conflicts between management and labor fuel a wage-price spiral. Britain's obligations as its international banker and international policeman put the economy in precarious balance.

West Germany, France and Japan have faced few of these problems, or not all at once. The French and Germans have almost trebled their national product since 1950. Britain's rose less than one-third.

SEED OF GROWTH

The seed of economic growth is investment—not only in industry but in its underpinnings such as roads, schools or ports. Lloyd's Bank calculates that in 1957-63, at the height of the postwar boom, Japan plowed back 33 per cent of its national income, West Germany 25 per cent, France 24, Britain 18.

Following tradition, Britons invested heavily abroad. For every three pounds invested at home, one went abroad. If those pounds had stayed home, Britain might be up with France or Germany.

Even during the post-war sterling days, when the United States lent Britain $3,800,000,000 for economic recovery, $4,300,000,000 went abroad in private capital—more than half of it to the United States.

CHOKED OFF BOOMS

Three separate booms have ended in trade deficits, heavy capital exports and shortages of labor that encourages workers to push for higher wages. Each time the government choked off the boom by boosting taxes and interest rates and cutting down on investment.

As accumulated for one of Britain's biggest unions casts an envious eye on his West German counterpart. "The unions there cooperated early in the 1950s and held back wage demands for jam tomorrow. The employers used the money to invest. Now they've got jam today. We want it now."

Why didn't the unions co-operate here—even under a Labor government? The answer lies in generations of social conflict. From 1895 to 1914, foreign investment tripled but the profits didn't enrich the British workmen. During that period, the labor ministry estimated that the pound's purchasing power declined 39 per cent while wages stayed steady.

What happened in France and Germany (and Japan) that did not happen here? Somebody gave a shove to national consciousness there as it surveyed the wreckage 20 years ago. The result was a national will to rebuild at home.

Spurning Grey Flannel Suits, Generation of Doers at Work

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — They come from the years of good times. They have grown up in their own self-doubt. They have just one call in common. They are young, and they know their youth is a precious and fleeting thing.

And one after another they say, "If I don't do it now, I never will do it."

So they go—to put the years of their young lives on the line. They go to jungles and rice paddy towns of distant places, or in the jungles of their own cities. They go to the wasteland of the United States.

Some are Peace Corps volunteers. Some are members of Vista, the domestic Peace Corps. Some serve through private charitable and religious or college campuses and college consciences.

Some are of the generation of "doers" — those who have spurned the apathy and the gray flannel suits of their own previous generation—seeking to shape the world in which they will live. Some are drop-outs. Their words are drowned out in the uproar of rebellions on college campuses. Their deeds are overshadowed by the picket signs and protest banners that have blossomed on the campus.

They say that there is not only much to be done, but that they live this is the time to do it.

YOUTH HAS SPIRIT

Suddenly youth has a job to do. It has a spirit to fit it, and they carry that spirit with them.

Do it is with Karen Behling. She is 21, a brown-eyed, ash-brown-haired junior at the University of Wisconsin. She is warm-natured and pretty. She lived, until recently, in the town of 3,500 people—Oconto Falls, Wis.

When she was much younger she used to tell her father that one day she would go to Peru. He would say:

"But—they," she says, "started taking anthropology, and he didn't laugh about it anymore."

Now Karen is a peace corps volunteer, probably in Peru to work in urban development. Karen is aware that her's has been a good life. Her father is a lawyer. She has two younger sisters. Their home is a comfortable contemporary house with white siding in the wooded hills that frame the Oconto River.

Karen feels a built-in obligation to offer to others some of her own good fortune, to give of herself, and to have some mark of her own on the world.

POVERTY STARES BACK

This is the other world for Susan King. She's 19, from Glendale, Calif., a Vista volunteer who stepped out of college after three months partly because she was tired of hearing the teen-age dramatics of "Joey didn't call. I'll never go out with Joey again."

At "The Outpost" she brings her trouble to a tenement she lives in the cold uncertainty of not enough money, not enough jobs, not enough education for them, she is a big sister, and a window of what the world might be.

Susan has volunteered for a year away from her family—a family that is spirit to the ra-ising above its own problems. Her mother isn't well. Her father has been in a wheel chair since he was 16 when polio struck him down. He does accounting and income tax work at home.

TAKE LONG WAY HOME

She lives on a street lined with what she called "shotgun rats." She and her roommate, Susan Beeby, 18, of Santa Cruz, Calif., have taken the long way to avoid the skid road that is but a block away from their apartment, which is the focus of their lives after working hours.

The psychiatrists who have to pick and choose between those who volunteer to serve and relegate the stated reasons. The kids want to help people, want to do something worthwhile, want to travel and see exotic places, want a new, challenge, or perhaps they are only saying off that last requirement—perhaps fear keeps them taking the work of adolescence—or they have ended or interrupted their own search for expediency.

Perhaps, he says, they are taking the lids off their consciences. "I think they've grown up with parental order, told how the world will be, told how they should be within the world. But now they are a little older, faced with some frightening drives within themselves, child-like views of sex and aggression and hostility. And now they have to find out for themselves and discover within themselves channels for these drives.

Harbor Authorities Probe Coal Dust Dumping in Bay

The Belleville Harbor Commission will make an investigation into quantities of coal dust which appeared in the Bay of Quinte Sunday morning, after washing ashore east of the government dock.

Officials at the Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant said the large patch of coal dust was first noticed about 11 o'clock. The patch of black dust was about 150 feet wide and extended into the bay as far as the eye could see.

Water samples containing the substance were taken by Plant washed ashore and Don Barbeck, local harbormaster, identified it as coal dust.

It is believed that the coal dust may have resulted from a coal carrier pumping out its bilges after unloading its load of coal.

Workers at the Water Pollution Control Plant said a coal boat had been noticed going up the bay earlier Sunday morning.

Normally with a west wind the coal dust would have been washed down the bay but Sunday morning there was a south wind and the coal dust washed ashore.

A Dunter ward resident said the dust "really made a mess of things."

Alternative to War?

There is an old saying on the subject of the human predicament which runs and on war in particular which avers that "as long as men are men there shall be wars."

Judging by historical fact alone there is truth in such a statement. Indeed, a recent news item mentioned that in the last 3,000 years or so fewer than 300 of them have been free of warfare.

War is destructive, wasteful and horrifying. In short war is hell, but it seems to fulfill a basic urge, perhaps even a fundamental need in the evolution of mankind. War is progress of a sort. However, as it becomes more deadly in its capacity to destroy armies, populations and economies, those who wage it are humbled by their own monstrous machines and murderous intentions, to the point where they abandon or get it over with as quickly as possible, turn over a new leaf and live in peace for a time at least.

Wars occur because man cannot live in a vacuum. Hostility is a convenient outlet for the baser instincts of homo sapiens, when he reaches one dead end or another. What better way for Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam to employ his restless and probably otherwise unoccupied young masses than by invading South Viet Nam. By the same token, what better way for the United States to keep its economy from stagnating or running out of steam than by taking up arms against that communistic hordes are not always fought for the most altruistic of motives, although it would be wrong to suppose that either side is fighting without the motivating force of high idealism, a belief that its cause is just.

At the root of all conflicts is prestige. It is a cardinal rule of nations, as of individuals, in maintaining their possessions and reputations, that they also defend their honor and dignity in the face of any threat from without. This lies at the very foundation of psychology. To lose face is something neither men nor nations can accept with equanimity.

To find some other way of settling disputes and quieting mankind's warlike instincts is of course the aim of the United Nations, which has succeeded to a large extent is a tribute to the members, to its chief executives (the late Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden, and Burma's U Thant, the present incumbent), and not least to the determined power of the united front.

But the world still badly needs something else, some other sublimating force capable of channeling man's warlike nature into more peaceful and positive realms. Primitive tribes are credited with some degree of sophistication in this regard. Instead of taking up arms they often work off their hostility in ritual dances and sacrificial rites. While the latter would scarcely fit into the 20th century European society the general idea of a peaceful alternative to war is one that might usefully be studied by those who are actively pursuing the cause of peace.

Newfoundland's Progress

A new series of illustrated books on the Canadian scene, province-by-province, has been published by The Macmillan Company of Canada Ltd., Toronto. Attractively illustrated, in color and black-and-white, the books should prove invaluable to students and adults alike.

One issue deals with Newfoundland and Labrador, with special emphasis on the island province's development since it entered Confederation in 1949.

Newfoundland is not letting the grass grow under its feet, to use an old expression in relation to a land noted for its cow picturesque speech. The announcement at the weekend that a fourth pulp and paper mill is to be constructed is proof of this.

Premier Joseph Smallwood says the $120 million project will include a $10 million chip plant to be built in Labrador. Scheduled to come into production in 1969, the mill will provide employment for men who lost their jobs with the closure of the United States' Harmon air force base.

In Newfoundland pride of race and rugged individuality are perhaps more intense than anywhere else in Canada, as befits the people of an island region. There they live close to the land and to the sea, their characters molded by a climate as varied and severe as any in this northern clime; and their place in the modern world stands out like a rock against the sea and the land, including the rich timber resources symbolized by the new mill.

Airport Facility

Moving sidewalks are filling a long-awaited need at Montreal airport. Built by Stephens-Adamson of Belleville, one is now in operation and three others will be in use about November.

The mobile walks save passengers and airport staff long treks to various parts of the airport, including departure points.

Public reaction is reported enthusiastic, and one passenger was heard to say they should have one in Copenhagen where a similar situation exists. One thing they do have at the latter airport is a scooter-type vehicle which ground stewardesses use to pedal swiftly and elegantly down the long corridors.

Today in History

The Hungarian Revolution was all but crushed 127 years ago today—in 1840—when the Hungarians were decisively defeated in the battle of Temesvar. Revolutionary sentiments, favoring responsible government and independence from the Hapsburg empire, had become strong early in 1848. The Hapsburgs gave the Magyars virtual independence in March, 1849, but plotted their suppression when Hungarian leaders openly supported revolutions in other countries. In April, 1849, the Hungarian Diet proclaimed a republic headed by Louis Kossuth. Chariot Russia and Austria both invaded the country, and the last of the revolutionary forces surrendered within days of the defeat at Temesvar.

1842 — The Ashburton-Webster Treaty was signed, settling U.S.-Canada boundary disputes by compromise.

Collector's Item

Ottawa Journal

People bid at antique auctions for different reasons. Some bid because they want to help it — a nervous condition, usually to be found in women. But those who bid with a purpose are not all looking for collector's items. A lefthanded spoke-shaver's corncle, even if genuine, isn't likely to appeal to many. Aunt Minnie doesn't particularly crave it what she got in a Ming vase — she only wants something she can make into a lamp.

Schools and Their Names

Stratford Beacon - Herald

The Stratford Board of Education is in the process of choosing a name for the new junior public school to be located north of Delamere Avenue.

Name choosing seems to become a difficult task because names are personal and each individual has his own preference. One board member has already had his choice rejected.

Board members decided that a list of suitable names of Shakespearean characters be prepared so that a choice can be made at the next meeting.

This is probably a step in the right direction, but the point of our comment here is to urge the Board to give more attention to naming its schools.

Months of planning go into a new school; surely some time should be spent in choosing a name, a name that becomes part of the community for decades at least.

King Lear Senior Public School has a strong name, easily identified with Stratford. Unfortunately, Stratford secondary schools, that touch the lives of so many thousands are still just nameless.

While choosing a name for the new school, the board might also consider identifying our secondary schools with names that would have some meaning in the community. Now would be a good time, on the eve of the 100th anniversary of Confederation.

Strictly Personal
Modern Kids Are Bigger

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Have you noticed how people are getting larger all the time? Last evening, sitting in a restaurant, I was practically dwarfed by a group of high school boys and girls having an afterthe-dance supper.

It's those vitamins and stuff they're feeding the infants these days, I'm sure. When I was a toddler, no one heard of vitamins; the most I ever got was a daily dose of repulsive cod liver oil, which may have been good for my "system," but didn't manage to get my stature up 3 feet 6.

Six-foot lads used to be a rarity when I was a lad; now one finds those length heads bobbing in the stratosphere all over the place. It can't be anything but changed dietary habits that does it. As Amram Scheinfeld, the population expert, recently remarked, "The human body is undergoing the most remarkable changes since the dawn of history."

This Alice - in - Wonderland mushrooming is even more startlingly evident, among the girls. I happened to be in a ladies's shoe store not long ago, and the salesman confided that women's feet are getting bigger every year. Sizes 9 and 10 are not at all uncommon, and a dainty 8 is virtually unheard of among high school girls nowadays.

In England, where no false coyness prevails, and where there is a club for everything, there has been formed a British Association of Women with Large Feet, which has a lot of pressuring manufacturers to produce more shoes in bigger sizes.)

The social and psychological problems of a tall girl can be extremely intricate, even with an increasing number of tall men around. Tall girls apparently find it hard to seem petite and graceful and feminine — and this very concern, of course, makes them more awkward and self-conscious.

There seems little doubt that growth can be controlled by diet; and it might be advisable for mothers to stop dropping vitamin pellets wildly into their girl babies' mouths, on the silly assumption that if one vitamin is good, six are six times as good. Vitamins are needed only when there is a real diet deficiency; and most Americans are not deficient in this respect.".

All the other animal species that spurted in size became extinct, like the dinosaur which grew too cumbersome to cope with its own bodily needs — and giant human beings don't live too long. When men get too much over six feet tall, their longevity drops in an alarming degree. It may be acceptable to breed our boys for basketb a ll teams — which is already approaching freakish proportions — but what in the world do we intend to do with all those elongated girls?

To Your Good Health
Continual Dreaming Sign of Light Sleeper

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER. M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I'd like to know why I dream all the time. I'm a very light sleeper and never eat or drink coffee before going to bed. Some days I feel so tired when I get up that it doesn't seem as though I'd rested much because of dreaming so much. — T. P.

* * *

I'm not sure I can tell why you "dream all the time," and the probability is that you don't. It just seems that way.

Sleep (and dreaming) has intrigued mankind for many centuries. But it's only fairly recently that we have had mechanical instruments to learn much about sleep.

There are four stages of sleep, ranging from light to very sound. You can fluctuate from one stage to another as often as 20 to 40 times a night. Dreams tend to appear when one approaches the light stage of sleep in these fluctuations.

Depth of sleep is measured by instruments which show the amount of eye movement. Eyes move more frequently in a dream. Perhaps because of efforts to "see" what we are dreaming about.

About 50 percent of dreaming occurs in the last third of a night's sleep, because that is when we more often emerge into the stage of light sleep. Electroencephalograms can show when a person is entering the stage when dreaming is possible, and the eye movement studies confirm it.

Everybody dreams. Whether you remember the dreams depends in large part on whether you awaken. If you lapse back into deep sleep there is less chance of remembering the dream.

Whether you are tired because you were dreaming is doubtful. More than likely the opposite is true. You tend to be a light sleeper; therefore you dream more. If you don't get enough sleep, you wake up tired. And you also dream!

We tend to be lighter sleepers as we grow older, and thus may have more opportunities to dream. You may move enough in your sleep to rouse yourself partially to the light stage of sleep. You may even have some responsibility on your mind and go to sleep with a feeling that you should be listening for something — to take care of someone else, or some other worry.

We know that people who complain of insomnia tend to dream more than good sleepers. This seems logical enough. The insomniac sleeps more than he realizes, but he isn't a deep sleeper.

Sleeping drugs and alcohol depress dream potential—I am not suggesting the latter, but your doctor might be giving you a mild sedative to help you stay longer in the deep phase of sleep.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to take a double every night? Is it safe to use vinegar every time? — Mrs. B. A. N.

My recommendation is that "no" be both questions. Daily douching is not necessary for a healthy woman, and can wash away natural secretions and add thus cause irritation. The best rule is to take a double only when your doctor prescribes it for some specific medical purpose. And in that case he will also advise you what to use and how often.

* * *

Note: To Mrs. B. C.: Xray should show whether a heel spur is causing pain or the bone) gives you that feeling of "something in your shoe." Cushioning or padding inside the heel of the shoe is the simplest answer and it often makes one comfortable. If not, surgical removal of the spur is the next alternative. If you are overweight, reduce to lessen pressure on your feet.

Espionage

Espionage cases brought to light recently both in the United States and Canada serve as a reminder that spying constitutes a continuing source of tension in the world. Espionage is conducted by many governments, both Communist and non-Communist. Where it is used in case is considered necessary in the national interest.

Shades of C.D. Howe and "What's a Million" (Dollars)!

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — What's a million?

To have heard the Opposition, 10 or so years ago, quote former Liberal Trade Minister C. D. "Trader" Howe, the answer was "nothing."

Of course, the old "Trader" never said it.

And it was always a mystery why this truly tremendous Parliamentarian who became the second right arm, even the deputy, of two Prime Ministers in their turn, Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent, never managed to set the record straight.

Perhaps he really never bothered to try, although it turned out to be one of the several related factors — all lumped under the general heading of "arrogance" — that helped topple the Liberals in the 1957 election after 22 years of uninterrupted power.

What "Trader" Howe actually said was that in the context of the multi-billion-dollar corporation that Big Government had become, a mere million wasn't all that important.

The Conservative Opposition, acutely aware of the high-vote value of a slogan, punchy phrase translated it as "What's a million!"

And neither C. D. Howe nor the Liberals ever finally could catch up with it long enough, once it was on its way, to pin it down and correct it.

Good thing or bad, C. D. Howe is around these days.

NOTHING MINUS

For if a decade or so ago he calculated a million was nothing more with only 14 spending loss.

Some of the Cabinet Ministers apparently didn't take the P.M. seriously. Thought, maybe, he was kidding.

Well, we be?

Hard to decide, from the way he told it at his press conference.

He had directed them to cut back, and cut back by a third, you can't fool me — for I know all the tricks."

Tricks?

Sure, tricks, like "padding" your departmental spending estimates, which explains the almost when you get that take-it-easy letter from the PM, you've got something you can't see, or something that won't hurt because it is on the less, and that will make you look good. In fact, make it look like you believe the PM means business and you do too.

How come the Prime Minister knew these "tricks?"

"I was," he explained, "a Minister myself once." (He was Trade Minister, and before that Deputy Minister of Eastern Affairs.)

Now how about that?

Killer Escapes the Noose

Ottawa Journal

The Cabinet has commuted the death sentence of Fernand Turcotte who shot the manager of a trust company branch in Vancouver.

The ministers, according to practice, gave no precise reasons for their decision.

The practice of secrecy on commutations should be reconsidered.

The jury, of course, is to insist that the Cabinet order the execution of everyone convicted of murder. The practice for many years has been to commute the sentences of those recommended to mercy by the jury. In the April debate it was noted that the Conservative Government of 1957-63 commuted the death sentence on 26 occasions where there had been no recommendation for mercy and the present Liberal administration on six occasions.

The House majority which voted to retain the death penalty was confident that it served as a deterrent. Mr. Pearson and some of his ministers, and a good many others across the country, disagree with the House vote. They believe that capital punishment foreith, but the law remains.

If Mr. Pearson and ministers of like mind continue to grant commutations in every case they will provide in due course that they defy the will of Parliament.

In this most recent commutation the ministers may have been influenced by the recommendation by the jury given one juror and by certain medical evidence on the prisoner's mental state given to the Department of Justice. These may have been excellent reasons for commutation and, in fairness, the Cabinet should not be prevented from stating publicly exactly why it decided the law should not take its course."

The cases of fourteen other convicted murderers have to be considered by Cabinet.

The Good Old Summer Time

Ottawa Journal

What this country needs, among a few other things, is a return to the days when haywing was a personal affair. A man, a friend, a friendly horses, a hayrake that a boy operated with his foot, and a teeder that passed him more efficiently than these modern exercise machines, made a farm lad look appreciation of the need for the hired hand.

Either or the hired man usually pitched on the load in the field, and 14-year olders pulled the big, awkward haycrake with the long, pointed teeth that jabbed a lad's heels. But the good old world that is missing in modern-day haying is the opportunity for a boy to ride on a load while the hay was pitched off.

No matter how a boy hustled he had to be hustled back under the eaves, the big, shaggy forkfuls came up from the load with disconcerting rapidity. If it looked like a shower, a grown man could unload with comparative speed.

The temperature in the loft under the barn roof was over 100 degrees and a boy proved down a lad's face and trickled down his back. Dirty hayseed filtered into his hair and worked into the top of his socks. A countryman feels that this country needs old-fashioned haying procedures. If life continues to become automatic and mechanized — only a few will appreciate what's butter of, milk and pound of butter used to mean in terms of human muscle power.

Want Correct Procedure For Expropriation Defined

TORONTO (CP) — Four provincial conservation authorities want the government to set up a "correct procedure" for the expropriation of land for conservation purposes.

The legislature's select committee on conservation was told Tuesday authorities sometimes are hampered in their land-acquisition programs "perhaps by an individual or several such attempting to hold up the plan by an unrealistic evaluation of his land."

"It has been our experience that when it becomes known that the conservation authority is interested in a piece of land, the price mysteriously rises," says a combined brief Tuesday from the Central Lake Ontario, Crowe Valley, Ganaraska and Otonabee Region authorities.

The authorities said they are reluctant to invoke expropriation but there are many cases where it is "absolutely essential to the successful completion of a project."

Quits Job Rather Than Shave Beard

TORONTO (CP) — Computer operator Herman Surkis, 21, said Sunday he has decided to quit his job rather than sit the National Cash Register Co. of Canada rather than shave his beard.

"I would find it difficult living with myself if I shaved it off," he said in an interview. "I decided to stick to my principles."

He said he had been told by an official of the company that he would be fired unless he shaved his beard.

"It is not so much the beard but the way it was handled. They gave me an ultimatum that was an infringement of my civil liberty.

"I might have shaved it off if they had asked me in the right way."

Mr. Surkis grew his beard to give an appearance of greater maturity. He said last week that he would, in time, shave it off to make himself look younger again.

A company official said last week the beard interfered with the company image. Mr. Surkis said this wasn't so since he worked a night shift and rarely met the public while on the job.

Will Appear In Two Weeks For Sentence

Magistrate T. Y. Wills reserved judgment in City Magistrate's Court this morning on a 41-year-old Hamilton man charged with five counts of obtaining money under false pretences and with intent to defraud by means of worthless cheques.

Robert O. Sagar, of 39 Great St. James Street pleaded guilty to the charges, which involved a total of $477. Four of the charges were laid involving incidents in June, and the other one in February.

Sagar, who had been remanded in custody since July 29 was told by the magistrate that he could sign a bond and be released, but that he was to appear in court in two weeks for sentence. Crown Attorney H. L. Graham suggested to Mr. Sagar that he be prepared to make restitution at that time.

Sheik's Ouster Seen as Object Lesson for All Arab Rulers

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sheik Shakbut bin Sultan, ruler of the Persian Gulf state of Abu Dhabi for 30 years, was deposed and exiled during the weekend by his own family, with British help.

But the old man was as much a victim of unaccustomed winds from the modern world as of Western oil prospectors, it generated.

His fall and exile to Bahrain is an object lesson to others among the 33 traditional tribal rulers on the Arabian Peninsula who attempt to hold back the irresistible advance of modern ideas of social and material progress.

Sheik Shakbut, in his early 60s, had managed to immunize his medieval domain of 30,000 citizens from significant outside influence until oil was discovered in Abu Dhabi.

ROYALTIES GREW

Oil production began in 1962 and the ruler's royalties grew annually to the present rate of over $75,000,000 a year. The sheik—aware of how oil money had undermined tribal and Islamic traditions along the Gulf in Qatar, Bahrain, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia—refused at one time to accept royalties, was persuaded with difficulty to bank the money instead of storing it under his bed.

Friends, family, British political officers and even Arab ambassadors pathetically failed to persuade Sheik Shakbut to part with much of his money for public works or welfare. Education, he once said, causes trouble. He had spent less than $10,000,000 on public projects out of an estimated personal fortune of $150,-000,000.

Circumstantial evidence suggests strongly Britain had a hand in the palace revolution. Britain has no legal right to intervention, but maintains responsibility for defence and external relations for Abu Dhabi and 10 other Gulf sheikdoms unitary trucies signed last century as part of a campaign to protect shipping from local pirates.

R. G. Balfour-Paul, British political resident in Bahrain, was in Abu Dhabi when the sheik was deposed and arranged his flight to Bahrain. The crucial Oman Scouts, a military force led by British officers, were on hand. Shakbut's brother, Sheik Zaid, took over as sheik after a visit to London —and was immediately welcomed as a more progressive ruler by British spokesmen in London.

Britain helped engineer the deposition in June, 1965, of the ruler of nearby Sharjah after that sheik had been encouraging those elements with the Egyptian-led Arab League.

The British statement announcing Sheik Shakbut's fall said he was deposed by his family "because of his manifest inability to govern properly or use the country's wealth in the interests of the people"

Diversion of Canadian Water To U.S. Not Now Negotiable

MONTREAL (CP) — Diversion of Canadian water to the United States is "not now negotiable, and I am not certain that it ever will be," Northern Affairs Minister Laing said today.

He told the annual meeting of the American Bar Association that recent proposals by some engineers to divert Canada's surplus water to arid sections of the U.S. are not acceptable to Canada and have not been endorsed by the U.S. government.

"We have our own arid areas too," he said.

Mr. Laing said the problem of natural resources and their ownership "will open great fields of controversy in the balance of this century."

TAXES SATISFY

He predicted that in most cases, direct control would not be necessary on ownership of resources. A continuing scale of taxes and royalties would satisfy the public interest. Discoveries would have to continue to return benefits to the explorer.

"I am enunciating no government policy but simply making a prediction that in the generations ahead there will be a heavy manifestation of the historic appreciation to value of resources simply through the passage of time and without efforts to work any improvement.

"This prediction does not depend on any conviction that the sphere of natural resources presently in the private sector will substantially remain there."

Text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Dinosaur Man Retires As Director of Museum

By BILL FOLEY

TORONTO (CP)—The "Dinosaur Man" has retired after three years as director of the Royal Ontario Museum. He replied in which he proved that although his appetite is as avid as ever, the 40,000,000 years ago, he's very much a man of the present.

Dr. William E. Swinton, one of the world's leading paleontologists, became chief of the museum in 1957 and two years later took over as director.

He was committed to the idea that a museum, far fallen being a dusty showcase of the past, must give a picture of the real world of today. His success in communicating this to the people is indicated by the fact that in his first two years, attendance rose by a third and last year reached 740,000.

"When I took over, the museum was a dreary repository place," says the white-haired 65-year-old professor. "Curtains hung in the galleries, cases were dull and drab, showcases weren't labelled well enough.

"And curators hated publicity. There was a feeling in the place that life is divided into two watertight parts, one between painting and mathematics, the-atre and botany.

"That's one of the major problems of our age. We have had great scientific and material changes and yet our attitudes are those of 2,000 years ago. We believe what we believed as a child and what the physical world has changed so much around us that we feel lost.

SOURCE OF HOPE

Dr. Swinton says a museum can show man how to reconcile these differences.

"And it can give hope because in a museum you can see the highest peaks of what man is capable of."

The Scottish-born Dr. Swinton, who got his dinosaur nickname as a result of lectures he used to give on BBC television, now is a professor at Massey College, Toronto, lecturing to staff and students on the history of science.

"There is really little lecturing involved," he says. "The idea is to give me a few years of freedom and some dollars. I want to write some books, collect my thoughts, get the things I have learned in a lifetime into focus."

He's writing two books at the moment — both on prehistoric animals—which will bring his total close to two dozen, and hopes to add 20 to 200 scientific papers he has published.

Dr. Swinton has retired from the museum because he has the University of Toronto, which operates it, has a rule that no academic administrator may work past 65. But he can stay on teaching at the university because he doesn't apply to professors.

His successor is Peter Swann, now curator of Eastern Art at the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford University, who is due in Canada shortly.

Mr. Swann, married and the father of five children, is editor of the magazine Eastern Art and official adviser to the French government on that subject. He has also been awarded by Princeton University to advise on the development of their museum.

10,000 Delegates Present For Bar Association Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — The house of delegates, the human policy - making wing of the American Bar Association, unanimously passed a resolution Monday to create a new section to deal with individual rights and responsibilities.

Its aim will be, through public education, to bring discussion of United States civil liberties to the conference table and courtroom. The resolution read: "Vindication of rights must be accomplished by lawful and orderly means."

The ABA's 93rd annual meeting, which has drawn 10,000 delegates including 3,500 lawyers, opened Monday.

Edward Kuhn, a Memphis, Tenn., lawyer and president of the group, said "self-appointed" civil rights leaders espousing civil disobedience believe themselves to be above the law.

Students about "freedom, freedom" yet show little awareness of its responsibilities, the president said.

PLANS NEW CHARTER

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson said earlier his administration intends to establish a charter of human rights and an ombudsman or public protector.

Also being studied, he said, are non - political judicial appointments, family courts, universal legal aid, accelerated judicial processes, a modern adoption act, and more humane expropriation laws.

Eric Kierans, former Quebec minister of health, told a luncheon meeting Canada's internal

Women Get Short End Of Educational Stick Says Expert on Labor

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Women from developing countries are getting the short end of the educational aid stick, says Mrs. Elizabeth Johnstone, an American International Labor Organization.

Speaking at a summer seminar sponsored by the women's bureau of the federal labor department, she said it was true that developing countries don't give high priority to technical co-operation projects specifically directed toward the advancement and training of women."

Scholarships and fellowships given by international bodies like the United Nations and the ILO do not discriminate against women in principle, "but in practice, very, very few awards come the way of women."

Mrs. Johnstone, 52, has been with the ILO in Geneva since 1952.

EXPERTS SCARCE

There is "an element of sheer discrimination against women" in the attitude of governments which name candidates for International training programs, she said. But there also is a lack of women experts available for further training.

The ILO, and the UN through its status of women commission, are considering ways to encourage long-term programs for the advancement of women.

H. G. Christie of the external aid office said he felt it would be "regressive" to set up scholarships specifically designated for women. Awards must be made according to qualifications.

His office administers a program for candidates nominated by their governments. There was no discrimination "as if about 10 per cent of students were women, he said.

Mrs. Dorothy Patterson of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada said she has "a strong feeling women just don't apply for awards that are available."

FEW OPPORTUNITIES'

Dr. Grace Maynard of the external aid office said Canadian women have few opportunities to receive graduate scholarships because research money is concentrated in areas like the pure Sciences.

Dr. Helen Mussallem of the Canadian Nurses Association said grants in the social sciences are not given to nurses because administrators in those fields do not realize the need of consultation in research by doctoral nursing students.

The representative of the Canadian Labor Congress, A. L. Hepworth, said there was a "pretty sketchy program" available for women in the Canadian labor movement.

This was partly because the women were reluctant to come forward, and "there is often a feeling in the union which doesn't encourage them," he said.

Nurses Get New Contract At Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The first Ontario nurses to get a three-year contract with a hospital will earn about $25 a month more with two more raises in 1968.

The nurses' association of Riverview Hospital here and the hospital have a retroactive contract running from June 1, 1966, to May 31, 1969.

Elsbeth Geiger of Toronto, president of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, said Monday that the collective agreement between nurses and Riverview Hospital "marks the beginning of a new era. The impact will be felt across the whole province of Ontario."

An RNAO statement says the Riverview association was organized with the help of the RNAO employment relations department. It was certified as a bargaining unit under the Labor Relations Act on Jan. 21, 1966. The release says negotiations involved a conciliator from the provincial department of labor.

BETTER OFF

It says that under the new agreement, Riverview nurses will be better off than other hospital nurses in Windsor or Toronto, but salaries are still lower than they are in Detroit.

Previously a general - duty nurse started at $382 a month with a maximum after five years of $437. Under the new contract she gets $395 to start in a maximum of $465. On Dec. 1, 1967, minimum and maximum go up $20, and in 1968, nine another $20.

A supervisor's salary moves from minimum $435 and maximum $505 to $445 and $515 respectively. By Jan. 1, 1968, her salary will be $537 minimum and $607 maximum.

Other terms include increased shift pay, a uniform allowance of $25 a year, two weeks' holiday, pay increases for extra education.

Grievance and arbitration procedures are provided for as are check-off dues to the RNAO.

Jury — Kerr

Sandra Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Kerr, R. R. 1, Bellerville and William Jack Jury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Jury of Belleville, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Granger in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville, on August 5, 1966, at 3:30 p.m. Gary Fitzgibbon played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white, pure silk over taffeta gown with fitted bodice, long lily point sleeves, a bustle back extending to a shaped train and sprays of seed pearls, chalk beads and Alencon leaves flowing from neckline to hemline. Her bouffant, four - tier veil was held with a seed pearl and leaf headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations and trailing ivy.

Miss Susan Kerr, maid of honor, wore a full - length dress of turquoise spray silk chiffon with scoop neckline and Mona Lisa sleeves and Empire bodice of re - embroidered Chantilly lace. She wore a matching headdress of pebble and orange blossoms and carried a colonial bouquet of white and turquoise tinted poms.

Peter Jury was his brother's attendant and Douglas Hellwood and Richard Graham ushered the guests.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents on the Redmerrivile Road the bride's gather received the guests wearing a powder blue crepe dress with matching Chantilly lace coat, blue and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. To assist, the bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace over nylon dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white and pink 'mums.

Princess Noor Refuses to Pay Electric Bill

BRUNEI TOWN, Brunei (Reuter)—A young, Cadillac-driving princess here has had the electricity shut off in her $33,000 mansion because she refuses to pay the hydro bills.

The princess, Tunku Pengiran Putri Noor Ehsani, 28, says the government demand for payment of the bills infringes on her royal prerogative.

The government of his British-protected Borneo state has provided Princess Noor with the mansion for as long as she and her relations continue to live here. But it insists she must pay for her electricity.

The princess, niece of the Sultan of Brunei and only daughter of the late Sultan Ahmad Tajuddin, has refused to pay the last two years' bills, totalling $430.

USES GAS

Since the government cut off the power, she has been using gaslight.

"I am determined not to pay" said the princess. "If I am not treated like a princess in a wealthy sultanate like Brunei, it is a disgrace."

Princess Noor's husband, private secretary to the sultan, says the controversy has nothing to do with him. He is staying out of the dispute.

The sultan himself is reported to have told his niece the argument is between her and the government.

WEDDING

ANDERSON — WOODHOUSE

Sharon Lee, daughter of Mrs. Ford Lee Woodhouse of Belleville and the late Mr. Woodhouse, and Maurice Victor Anderson, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Anderson of Redvale were united in marriage recently by Monsignor Carley in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville. Mrs. Hugh Brady was organist and Mr. Ron Elmy soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Jack Barrett, wore a full length white lace ruched peau de soie gown with lace jacket. Her chapel veil was caught with a cluster of roses and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of pink delight roses and baby's breath.

The attendants were Mrs. Bradley as matron of honor, Mrs. Ron Stephens of Marmora, cousin of the bride, and Miss Linda Barrett, bridesmaids. They were identically attired in full-length dresses of mauve lace crystal chaine with matching lace jackets and carried bouquets of blue tinted poms.

Bruce Anderson of Redvale was groomsman and the ushers were Bernard Soave of Trenton and David White of Toronto.

To receive the guests at the reception at St. Joseph's Parish Hall the bride's mother chose a pale green boonded lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids and stephanotis. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a royal blue crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids and white stephanotis.

For her wedding trip to eastern points the bride donned a blue and white linen dress with matching blue coat and blue and white accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

On their return, the couple will live at 165 George Street, Belleville.

STRUCK FOR SMILE

TORQUAY, England (CP) — The nine girls working in the public library in this Devon town went on strike for half an hour in protest against a criticism that they were not "giving service with a smile." Councillor Harry Stanway, who made the remark, later apologized.

RECIPE FOR HERBED CHEESE BREAD

Herbed Cheese Bread has been well and truly tested by flat, fun and fine.

When we are on vacation with our crowd everybody gets in on the cooking and if kneading is needed offers are made from all sides. I know very well the man who can handball with the dough and the best bread yet is the result.

This loaf is a refinement of the Dilly Bread recipe you liked so well, but it requires kneading. A loaf, one pan in the cottage measures 14 x 4½ x 3" and this dough fills it to the brim. You could use two average-sized loaf pans.

I have to thank Jan Van Horstrand who was the originator of this lovely loaf.

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
¼ cup sugar,
1 teaspoon salt,
1 teaspoon onion salt (or flavoring),
1 teaspoon celery seed (or ½ teaspoon celery salt),
1 tablespoon oregano,
¼ cup bottled dried green onion or chives,
1 egg,
3¼ cups stirred but not sifted flour,
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese,
salt.

Scald the milk. Soak the yeast in the lukewarm water with the one teaspoon sugar 10 minutes. Into a large mixing bowl measure the margarine (or butter or shortening), ¼ cup sugar, salt, onion salt (or "flavoring" salt), celery seed (or salt), oregano and dried onion or chives. Pour scalded milk over and stir until margarine is melted and temperature has dropped to lukewarm. Add risen yeast liquid and 2 cups of the flour and the egg and cheese. Beat until thoroughly blended. Stir in remaining flour to make a soft dough. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise until doubled and light. Turn out on well floured board and knead 200 times. (Or give it to your boy to knead for 10 minutes like with dire peril if they drop it to the floor). Probably you will add all of an additional cup of flour to the dough during the kneading process to achieve velvety elastic dough. Shape into two long even rolls, let rise in two well-buttered average loaf pans until ½" to 1" above rims. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45 minutes or until crusty and deep gold. We took the warm loaf to the dining table on a bread board and sliced it as needed (which was often) right at the table. A heart-warming homey ritual.

Successful Living

Alcoholic Son-in-law Poses Large Problem

DEAR DORIS: My daughter went back to give her alcoholic husband another chance. It was heaven on earth for five months, but now he's back. I hope she won't be up in the hospital.

She is leaving him again. I know he'll beg her to come back. I hope she won't for it worries us as he best her up once.

If he writes us to be understanding should we answer his letters or break with him altogether?—MRS. WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Wouldn't it be nice if we could consult a crystal ball—we write to Doris Clare a real, definite answer to our human problem? But dumbness are not predictable like mathematics!

Alcoholism is a disease. If your daughter loves her husband and vice versa he may yet be saved, though returning to him seems like folly. She, and you, need individual guidance in this particular situation.

It's a lonely life for a woman who leaves her husband; and only to be considered after all efforts have been made to save a marriage.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am a widow living alone, a teacher and principal of a small school.

I am wondering if you have any suggestions re retirement. The following ideas tend to return to my thoughts:

(a) Should I remarry while I can, or should I seek permission to relinquish the task of principal?

(b) Should I attempt to secure some type of work that would not require such a high degree of skill?

I enjoy my work, and I like my pupils. I have taught school continuously since graduation. I tend to tire and the school life is usually both my social and my business.—LURAL.

* * *

DEAR TEACHER:

(a) The ideal is to taper off. This might be done by teaching without "principalling."

(b) I question this. You'd make an admirable coach or tutor for students who have trouble making their grades.

Being a full time teacher would still mean quite a long day; and leave little time for pursuing a leisurely and often remaining where you can see a successor struggle with what was your job. The temptation to offer unwanted advice might be far too great.

Much depends on your serenity and openmindedness. This also counts if you are to find useful and absorbing things to do. Are you in a good enough spot where your listening ear and cheery counsel offer a lift to sick people?

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Would you please give me information on how to get into politics? I am interested in the Progressive Conservative party.

Also, I am interested in Civil Defence.—MISS PROGRESSIVE.

DEAR MISS P.: "Getting into politics" means having a hand in running your country—a worthy ambition for any Canadian. We need more women in politics.

Start where you are: offer your help in local improvement projects; join a citizenship group where you can add your particular talent to the good of your community. Support your present member of parliament.

Learn all about our system of government, its economics and history. Learn to stand up for what you believe. Then believe in it so hard you can't be put off by jibers.

This takes character—and all the fortitude you can muster.

* * *

Confidential to MRS. I.D.: Send your letter through newspaper. Mrs. Peters addressed for me are opened at the newspaper office, but are forwarded in a large envelope still sealed to my own private address.

No need to disguise any of the facts. If you wait for a reply in the column, this means a lapse of several weeks; for better to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a private reply.

* * *

(When writing in, allow Doris four weeks for private reply; which will be sent if a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.)

New Treatment Centre For Drug Addicts at Matsqui Now Opened

VANCOUVER (CP)—The first women have moved into the federal government's new treatment centre for drug addicts at Matsqui, 30 miles east of here in the Fraser Valley.

Mrs. Pat Spence, superintendent of the women's section at the institution,' says 10 of the 14 women admitted to the centre came from Kingston penitentiary in Ontario and four were transferred from Oakalla, a provincial prison near Vancouver.

The first men were received at the new prison March 1 but Mrs. Spence, a slender, attractive woman of about 30, says the women's section is still being organized.

There's an air of modern comfort about the low-set concrete buildings that make up the prison, set in a 270-acre site amid rolling, wooded hills in a green valley.

But there's also a 12-foot-high fence surmounted with barbed wire, leaving no doubt that this is a prison.

For Mrs. Spence and her staff of 60, Matsqui is an experiment in treatment of drug addicts. Penitentiary Commissioner John MacLeod has indicated that if the matsqui centre works well, another will be built in Eastern Canada.

The present staff in the women's section includes experts in education, social work, occupational therapy and other fields. Eventually, a staff of 79 will guide some 125 women prisoners.

The women's section of the institution is located about half a mile from the men's area.

Both sections have the same facilities and purposes: to treat drug addicts in an atmosphere more like that of a hospital or rehabilitation centre than a maximum - security prison. Matsqui is termed a medium-security prison.

A few problems are expected as the Matsqui experiment starts to roll.

Authorities say heroin used by addicts now is weaker than in earlier years, and this could create a new situation. The stronger heroin prevented pregnancies, and few babies were born to women addicts.

In any case, the new prison is equipped with a modern hospital equipped to handle major surgery if necessary.

Buildings at the new prison in Penitentiary II covered walkways. Each "living unit" has 16 rooms, and each room contains a single bed, radio, and wardrobe space.

Ann Landers
Psychological Block Stops Comprehension

DEAR ANN LANDERS—All my life I have been a poor conversationalist. You have probably heard from others who have had this problem and you've told them the world needs listeners. Well, I'm not even good at that.

I often sit silently, hanging on to every word, when I don't understand a thing. It's almost as if I am listening to a foreign language. I graduated from high school with honors, so I can't be retarded, although at times I've felt this was a very real possibility.

ANN LANDERS

I once thought my problem was a limited vocabulary, so I made an intensive study of words, their origins, meanings and everything I could lay my hands on relating to the subject. It didn't help.

When I see a play I know if I like it or I don't like it but I can't speak coherently about what I have seen. The same goes for movies. I can't even repeat an amusing incident to a friend without losing my train of thought.

When we lived in a small town I managed to bluff, but in Indianapolis it's rough. My husband is a successful business man and his friends are bright. He is very attractive and I feel sure that he just stays with me because of the children.

Can you offer any advice or am I — HOPELESS?

DEAR FRIEND: Your problem is not mental or intellectual. It is emotional. Your enormous feeling of inferiority has created a psychological block which makes comprehension virtually impossible under some circumstances.

You need psychiatric help and I hope you'll get it at once.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I married my husband 22 years ago but neglected to mention that he had been married before — to a girl who was pregnant with his child. I learned of it 18 years later, by mail.

When I confronted him with the information, my husband said he didn't see any reason to tell me since the girl meant nothing to him. He said he stayed with her only until the child was two weeks old, then disappeared from sight.

The child, a girl is now 27 years old. She is married and is the mother of three small boys.

Last year the child "discovered" her father and now she won't let him alone. She lives in another city, has phoned and writes to him and he has gone to visit her three times. How can anyone be so stupid? This man has proved he didn't care about her so why does she continue to pursue him?

My husband seems to enjoy his new-found family. I've asked him to stop seeing these people but he has ignored my feelings completely. Will you please tell me what to do? — FRUIT CAKE.

DEAR F.C.: You can do nothing, so stop trying.

It might help if you would accept the fact that none of this is the girl's fault. She may be stupid but she's human. Her father is a rat but he is still "father" to her and she wants to establish a family relationship. He apparently wants to establish a family relationship, too. So be friendly if it kills you — because if you aren't friendly, it'll kill you sooner.

Weekend Traffic Mishaps Hospitalize Two Youths

NAPANEE — The Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police report two serious accidents, one fatal, over the week-end, with two youths still in the Lennox and Addington County Hospital as the result of the first one.

Friday afternoon Laurie James Clark, 18, of 164 Bay Rd., Etobikoke, was in collision with a parked car belonging to Clarence Taylor, six miles from Napanee on the River Road. The car rolled over at least once. Cause of the collision is not yet known as the investigation is not completed.

Clark and his passenger, Robert McFarlane of Napanee, age 18, and Bill Sly of Deseronto were taken to Lennox and Addington County General Hospital. Sly remained home after being treated in the emergency section. Clark and McFarlane are still in hospital under observation and treatment for possible head and internal injuries. Neither is in serious condition as Constable Ed Ford investigated.

Saturday, at 9:45 p.m., Robert James Spicer, R. R. 3, Napanee was driving west on Highway 33 at the Hinchinbrooke corner when his car struck the guard rails on the south side of the road. They held and prevented the car from going into the lake. The car was extensively damaged. A car belonging to Terrance Rogers of Kingston was also involved, but was only slightly damaged, and he was able to drive away.

FOUR ACCIDENTS ON ONE STREET

Friday was an unlucky day and Centre Street an unlucky street for motorists in Napanee day with four accidents at intersections in less then 12 hours.

At 8.50 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Zarefesa, American tourists, went through a red light at Dundas and Centre, and struck the car driven by Robert Mitchell of Napanee. Total damage was about $450, but there were no injuries, and both cars could still operate.

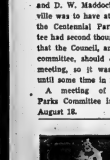
All was well until 4.00 p.m., when two cars were in collision at the Mill and Centre Streets intersection. Details of the accident are not available, except that there was damage of over $100, and no injuries. Constable Warren Richardson is investigating.

The third accident an hour and a half later was a bloody farther south on the same street, at the Water Street intersection. This, too, was a minor accident, no injuries and little damage. The cars were owned and driven by Helen Mary Stone of Napanee, and Walter Bell of R.R. 6 Napanee, Sgt. Lawrence Taggart investigated.

Damage to two cars is at least $1,000 as the result of an accident which began at the same place as the first accident of the day, Dundas and Centre Streets. Ernest Bradshaw will face a charge under the Highway Traffic Act. A parked car belonging to Donald Fish was hit and driven across the sidewalk and into the side of the Superior Restaurant. A parking meter was broken off.

Police Chief Ernest Benn was on the spot for the first and the last of the four accidents that day.

Lack of Supervision Limits Use of New Park



DESERONTO — The Deseronto Centennial Park Committee is more or less marking time just now. The project has progressed so much more rapidly than was anticipated, that the committee felt that no further use of the park should be encouraged until there is proper supervision. This can only be arranged when and if a Municipal Recreation Committee is set up.

Picnic tables have been set up and people are using them, although shade is limited. The Fish and Game Club has volunteered to assist in large measure. Some of the playground equipment is installed and children are having a good time with it. The beach is in use every day.

But there is no authorized supervision in attendance! There is supervision chiefly by mothers looking after their children, but it is purely voluntary, and not organized.

All this will be remedied before the park opens officially the day Canada is 100 years old. There is every hope that a Municipal Recreation Committee will be set up. A meeting had been called for the purpose of creating public interest, and D. W. Maddocks of Belleville was to have attended. But the Centennial Parks Committee had second thoughts, feeling that the Council, and not their committee, should call such a meeting, so it was postponed until some time in September.

A meeting of Centennial Parks Committee is slated for August 18.

C. H. KNIGHT RESIGNS FROM CONSERVATION AUTHORITY

NAPANEE — Claude H. Knight has resigned as secretary - treasurer of the Napanee Region Conservation Authority, a position he has held for ten years. Mr. Knight has been active in municipal affairs almost as long. He became secretary of the NRCA in April, 1956, and councillor at the election in December. He is serving a term as deputy - reeve, and has been reeve for four years.

Mr. Knight will be replaced by Mrs. W. D. (Donna) Giberson of Robert St. in Napanee. She has been working with the authority on a part - time basis since July 1, and will take over entire responsibility at the office when Mr. Knight's resignation takes effect September 1.

Mr. Knight worked with the Authority during the planning and construction of Second Depot Lake Dam, a project which has since given Napanee an abundance of water.

RIVER WEED CUTTING BEGINS

Weed - cutting began on the Napanee River Monday morning, and it is expected that the river from its mouth of the falls at Springside Park, will be cleared of weeds within two days.

Two specially built draft, a cutter and a barge, were unloaded Friday near the Centre St. Bridge at the newly - completed wharf at Centennial Park.

The equipment has been used to clear weed at Trenton, Belleville, on the Rideau Canal system, and Gananoque.

The project has been commissioned by the Department of Public Works.

HUCH - TRAVELLED SCOUTS

Boy Scouts, and especially Queen's Scouts, are much in the news in Napanee, with David Owen of the First Napanee Boy Scout Troop leaving Monday for three weeks in the United Kingdom; John Owen of Widnes, England spending part of his three weeks in Ontario with Mr. and Mrs. F. Queen's Scout Returns From Iceland Trip

NAPANEE — David Hutchison of West St. is full of enthusiasm over his experience attending the Boy Scout Jamboree in Iceland. He reached home Saturday. He enjoyed not only the experience of coming in contact with so many Scouts from so many lands, but also the people of Iceland, whom he describes as full of kindness.

David says that the boys had been told that it would be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to visit Iceland, but that most of them had agreed to go back again some time. The country itself was very scenic, but very rugged, David says. He was one of 24 Canadian Scouts, with their two leaders, to attend the Jamboree. There were also 10 Girl Guides with their two leaders, but they did not travel on the same planes as the Scouts.

As if the Jamboree itself were not adventure enough, the Scouts had still more adventure on the return trip. They were scheduled to reach Montreal Wednesday night, but did not arrive until Saturday, much to the anxiety of their parents.

The delay was due to a combination of circumstances. They were given three hours after the airport at five minutes after midnight Wednesday, but on checking found that there would not be a flight for 24 hours. This gave them a bonus of another whole day in the gaols of Lofileider Airlines. They were royally treated by them, and had free time to wander about Reykjavik. Their plane developed engine trouble when not far from the airport, and had to turn back. They were in the air nearly three hours. Thursday, the guests of the airline "As all the meals were free, the boys went back for seconds", David says

Once in New York, everyone was worried for them, and got an Air Canada flight, but they were lucky and reached Montreal at 11.30 Friday. As it was too late to catch the train west, they were billeted in Montreal homes until the next day.

Make Gifts To Pay Off British Debt

LONDON (AP) — George Parr, a paralyzed old - age pensioner, today sent James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, a donation of £84 ($252)—£1 for each of 84 years—to apply toward Britain's national debt of nearly £30,500,000,000 ($91,500,000,000).

"I see the idea from Miss Mary Manuel," said Parr. "I learned she had sent Mr. Callaghan £64 ($192) to help.

"As she is 64 and sent £1 for every one of her years, I decided to do the same thing."

Miss Manuel is a retired school teacher living in Newcastle upon Tyne. She sent in her contribution last week.

Will Change Road Numbers In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The entire numbering system in Quebec will be changed after this year, Paul Allard, minister without portfolio attached to the roads department, announced Monday.

He said the change was decided upon to prevent confusion for visitors to the 1967 Montreal world's fair, to integrate provincial highways and other routes to Montreal and to standardize Quebec's numbering systems.

Also on the program, Mr. Allard said, is increased use of symbolic or wordless signs on highways in Quebec. However, such signs as "Cedex-Yield," "Arret-Stop" and "Sortie-Exit" may be retained.

Under the new numbering system, north-south roads will have odd numbers while east-west roads will bear even numbers.

Numbers 1 to 99 inclusive will be reserved for limited-access highways. Roads bypassing cities will be prefixed by the numbers 4, 6, and 8.

Adjacent roads running in the same direction will be numbered in order.

Their trips have taken them all over the immensely varied, mountainous countryside, to the fine sand beaches, the historic old cities, the teeming medinas (Arab quarters), the bleak desert.

At their well-provided home in a smart section of Rabat—close enough to the royal Palace to hear the pet lions roar at night — they entertain neighbors and friends of every nationality and, in turn, sample a wide range of foreign hospitality among the diplomatic and business communities.

"It's been a deeply enriching experience," Denise Archambault said.

And despite her qualms about returning to Canada later, she added: "One feels more Canadian abroad. We seem to act as a sort of bryphen between some of the nationalities. It's very rewarding."

Tomorrow: North African countries find it difficult to promote Arabic language.

Exchange Visits Advocated By Rotary District Chief

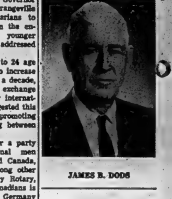
Rotary District Governor James B. Dods of Orangeville urged Belleville Rotarians to consider their role in the encouragement of the younger generation when he addressed the club yesterday.

Noting that the 30 to 34 age group was expected to increase by 97 per cent within a decade, Mr. Dods referred to exchange programs fostered by international Rotary and suggested this was one way of promoting greater understanding between peoples.

Earlier this summer a party of young professional men from Australia toured Canada, visiting Belleville among other centres. Sponsored by Rotary, a similar group of Canadians is scheduled to visit Germany next year.

Mr. Dods said his club in Orangeville promoted an exchange this year between high school students in his community and U.S. students from Pennsylvania. The district governor said such projects are in line with the ideals of International President Richard L. Evans of Salt Lake City.

Rotary, said Mr. Dods, numbers more than 13,600 clubs with a total membership of nearly 600,000 business and professional men in 133 countries.



During his visit to the city, Mr. Dods conferred with club president Dr. J. F. McCorquodale and secretary Adam Baldwin on club activities and plans. He was appraised of the club's work in connection with the Science Fair and Hobby Show, of its assistance to the Ontario Crippled Children Centre and of other activities.

Among the guests at the meeting was Pierre Gowjean, a young Frenchman whose father is president of the Lons-le-Saunier club in France.

A student at the University of Dijon, Mr. Gowjean is studying marketing and processing at the Black Diamond Cheese Company zoology at the University of Alberta.

tries were up slightly in the month to $150,000,000 from $148,500,000 in June last year. In the six months, imports were up 9.1 per cent to $798,500,000.

Exports to all other countries were up 26 per cent to $185,000,000, bringing the half-year total up 25.7 per cent to $1,040,000,000.

While the DBS report Monday did not analyze trade by commodities, it was believed the big boost in exports to all other countries included wheat sales to mainland China and Russia.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Backed by the financial efforts of between 20 and 30 interested business, professional and industrial men of the city, senior hockey is making a comeback after six years of dormancy.

Its success hinges upon the attitude adopted by hockey fans of the city and district. Those are the people who can make or break the venture for in all spectator sports the box-office is the key that opens the door to success or closes it in failure.

Senior hockey here rode its highest crest of popularity during the Roaring Fifties up to the famous 1959 season with its glorious if tainted climax. Prior to that, industrial hockey with such teams as the CNR Diesels, Northern Electric, etc., provided outstanding hockey attractions with minimum crowds of 2,100 clicking the turnstiles.

Following 1961 when an inquiry tarnished the escutcheon, the senior brand passed into oblivion. Fans lost interest.

Lammy Lamtrande's attempt to bring back upper brackets hockey through the medium of an intermediate club met with no success.

Fans who solidly acclaimed world champion players two or three years previous, turned thumbs down on a club that carried some eight or ten of the former heroes. Only a few die-hards of the game shows sentiment turned out. 400 was a record.

A junior "B" club bravely carried the banner of hockey through trying years. Staunch hockey men with some faith in the sport in its future gave it financial assistance to hope. It began to pay off. Last year the younger club enjoyed its best season.

From the turn of the century when the Old Lady of the Metis launched its first OHA junior club, this city has been known as an outstanding hockey town. It has iced some fine clubs including not a few district champions and one at least Ontario championship club that I can recall.

But one swallow should not constitute a binge nor should incidents of the past be dragged into the limelight to create effects of sincere men who are paying their money and devoting their time to a revival of the senior brand.

Sport has not been immune to scandal. There was the famous 1919 black baseball furore of 1921. Professional basketball in the United States reaped reams of publicity through player-gambling. There was the famous fiasco of the Jack Johnson, Willard fight in Havana in 1921.

Yet these incidents did not affect the future of the sports. The same-thinking attitude that "the believes in "the King is dead — Long Live the King."

To some people in this city the revival of senior hockey immediately brought back the incidents of 1959 and the B.C. world championship. These people are not being forced at gun-point, so to speak, to support the new senior hockey venture.

Some, and these are mostly people who never bought a hockey ticket in their lives are raving havoc recalling the 1960 incident and fearing for their tax bills.

As I have noted in senior hockey stories and I repeat, the senior hockey club vintage 1966 is sponsored solely by interested citizens. A company has been formed. The city taxpayer's bill is as immune to hockey costs as an Upper Mongolian chief's harem bill.

On the other side of the picture I believe the venture is meeting with approval in many quarters. Evidence of this is seen in the fact that a large number of requests for season tickets have been received. One director told me he can sell a book of 36 overnight. And a lot of these requests come from out-of-town hockey fans.

The city entry is playing in a league composed of ten centres, Kingston, Woodstock, Toronto, Barrie, Orillia, Collingwood, Oakville, Guelph and Galt. This will provide the top amateur hockey in Ontario.

The shadow of the past should not be used to dim the dawning of the future. Water gone under the bridge should not be turned to fiver upstream.

Well-known responsible citizens with no connecting yoke to city hall are trying to give this city's hockey fandom the best available. They deserve support.
